New Jersey Has a New City.

A new city was added to New Jersey when Governor Fort signed a bill incorporating South Amboy, near New Brunswick. South Amboy changed from borough to city government to control its own licenses, which have heretofore been handled by the Middlesex County Court. Judge Boorsem last year refused a large number of licenses, and has held up seven more this year. The South Amboyans say they want to pick their own saloons.

HAVE MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

Yet Cowboys Are Rarely Killed or Injured in Accidents.

Now, after the day's work was practically over, we had our first accident, says a writer in Outing Magazine. The horse ridden by a young fellow from Dos Cabezas slipped, fell and rolled quite over his rider. At once the animal lunged to his feet, only to be immediately seized by the nearest rider. But the Dos Cabezas man lay still, his arms and legs spread abroad, his head doubled sideways in a horribly suggestive manner. We hopped off. Two men straightened him out, while two more looked carefully over the indications on the ground.

He pointed to the indentation left by the pommel. Indeed, five minutes brought the man to his senses. He complained of a very twisted back. Homer sent one of the men in after the bed-wagon, by means of which the sufferer was shortly transported to camp. By the end of the week he was again in the saddle. How many escape from this common accident with injuries so slight has always puzzled me. The horse rolls completely over his rider, and yet it seems to be the rarest thing in the world for the latter to be either killed or permanently injured.

WHEN SMALLPOX WAS COMMON.

A Century or So Ago Every One Expected to Have Disease.

"All our ancestors," said a physician, "were pock-marked, and smallpox was a recommendation if you were looking for work.

"What I mean is that you couldn't get a job if you had not had smallpox. No one wanted a servant who was liable at any moment to be stricken down with the loathsome disease. Hence—"

He opened a newspaper volume of 1774.

"Hence 'help wanted' ads read like this:

"'Wanted, a man between 20 and 30 years of age, to be footman and under-butler in a great family. He must have had smallpox in the natural way. Also a woman, middle-aged, to wait upon a young lady of great fortune and fashion. The woman must have had the smallpox in the natural way.'"

Birds Shot with Water.

Shooting a hummingbird with the smallest birdshot made is out of the question, for the tiniest seeds of lead would destroy his coat. The only way in which the bird can be captured for commercial purposes is to shoot him with a drop of water from a bluegun, or a fine jet from a small syringe. Skillfully directed, the water stuns him. He falls into a silken net and before he recovers consciousness is suspended over a cyanide jar. This must be done quickly, for if he comes to his senses before the cyanide whiff snuffs out his life he is sure to ruin his plumage in his struggles to escape. Hummingbirds vary in size from specimens perhaps half as large as a sparrow to those scarcely bigger than a bee. The quickest eye cannot follow them in full flight. It is only when, though still flying furiously, they are practically motionless over flowers that the best marksmen can bring them to earth.

Japanese Hotels.

Barring the bath, and perhaps the beds, Japanese hotels are delightful. All during your stay in their spotless precincts you are made to feel that you are an honored guest, Japanese etiquette is lavished upon you, and when you depart you are always given a token to remember your visit, usually a white, coarse cotton towel with blue pictures printed on it.

You must thank the little maid for this with an elaborate bow when you go, and the chorus of "Sayo Nara" from all the hotel force gathered in the doorway will seem to have in it, not only the regret of good-by, as we interpret the words, but the added feeling which they really mean: "If it must be that we must part."—Travel Magazine.

A Servants' Paradise.

"Every kitchen has a window with one pane out in the Brazilian town of Rio Grande do Sul," said a cook. "That town is a servants' paradise.

"Servants live in their own homes there, as they should everywhere. They come to work at seven in the morning and they quit at seven at night. A 12-hour day. Quite long enough.

"The paneless window is for the milkman, the baker, the butcher, so that the tradesman can leave their supplies—they usually come early—in a safe place. The Rio Grande servant is, of course, not there to receive them. She is in bed at her own home."

To Match His Coat.

Robert Walton Goelet, at a meeting of the Astor Trust company's directors, in New York, said of a certain broker:

"The man's nerve is amazing. It shocks me. It reminds me of a money lender to whom a friend of mine, a great rider to hounds, once resorted.

"'Yes,' said the money lender to my embarrassed friend, 'I will renew your note, but only on one condition, sir—namely, that during the next paper chase at Lenox you scatter from your hat these 5,000 pink slips bearing my name and the words, "Money advanced on easy terms." Is it a go, sir?'"

DERIVATION OF LETTERS

SHOWED THE ANCIENT STYLES.

Explaining the derivation of letters and tracing the history of books and records from the times of the Egyptians to the invention of the printing press, Dr. James Harvey Robinson, professor of European history at Columbia University, gave a most practical lecture before the pupils of the Stillman and High School pupils at the High School auditorium Friday noon. Dr. Robinson, who was the guest of S. B. Howe, Jr., at the High School today, illustrated his remarks by a series of stereopticon slides, illustrating ancient lettering and the earliest manuscripts.

Printed letters developed from picture writing of the ancients, and the letters in use today may be traced in their earlier forms through Roman facade writing, Greek writing and Phoenician lettering to the inscriptions on the tombs of the ancient Egyptians. Only capital letters were used at first, and because of the fact that the Roman lettering was principally carved on stone, the letters had but few curves. Subsequently hasty writing brought about the development of the so-called "small letters," or "lower case."

Egyptian records were kept on stone or papyrus, and later wax, on which the letters were scratched. These blocks, like a slate, could be used over and over again, by softening the wax and smoothing out the scratches. In the middle ages, pigments and inks were used, and some beautiful, though painfully slow, writing was done in the European monasteries, where the monks created an alphabet of elaborate letters which they wrote on scrolls of vellum, illuminating the work with gold and colored pigments. Photographic reproductions of such scrolls on the screen showed the elaborateness of the lettering.

Later on, with the introduction of wood engraving in Germany, came the lettering on wooden blocks. Soon afterwards came the introduction of printing, and moveable types were carved out of wood before metal types came into use. The final picture thrown on the screen showed one of the powerful modern presses used in the printing of the New York Herald.

At the conclusion of his lecture, Dr. Robinson showed a collection of monastery records and early books, brought from the library collection at Columbia University.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF MR. AND MRS. A. B. DAVIS.

In honor of their tenth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davis were tendered a surprise party at their home on Duer street last night, when about fifty of their relatives and friends called at the invitation of Mrs. Davis to surprise her husband. It being the crystal wedding anniversary, the couple received many gifts of Bohemian and cut glass, as well as other presents.

The house was handsomely decorated with potted plants and roses, the color scheme being pink and white. The evening was spent with games, music and recitations and a collation was served at midnight. Mrs. Willard Suydam rendered several piano selections, Mrs. Elijah Dufford sang and Miss Edna Diltz recited. The guests included friends and relatives from Morristown, Lebanon, Potterville and Somerville.

A New Engineering Feat.

In bridges and other structures of iron or steel it often happens that some one of several parts in tension does not support its share of the load, and instead of the usual expensive and troublesome plan of taking down the parts and forging them in a blacksmith shop Hasenkamp, a German engineer, proposes making the adjustments in length with the structure intact. His plan is to use thermit at the beginning of the work in place. This material, a mixture of iron oxide and aluminum, is readily ignited, and it burns with an intense heat, which may reach 5,000 degrees F. through the affinity of oxide. Clamps are fastened to the steel part on each side of the spot to be heated. These clamps are connected by bolts, and when the right temperature is reached turning the nuts shortens the steel permanently to the extent desired. The operation, requiring but a few minutes, does not interfere with traffic.

Christening Robe.

White nainsook, pin tucked, hand embroidered on the rounded yoke, all outlines finished with lace beading, was simple, dainty and plain for the prim little robe. And, by the way, the narrow lace beading for baby dresses is something you want to get to outline fine lingerie waists. It is splendid for joining sleeves to the waist. But the work must be done by hand.

THE SOUL OF A DOG.

The curate thinks you have no soul;
I know that he has none. But you,
Dear friend; whose solemn self-control
In our four-square, familiar pew,

Was pattern to my youth—whose bark
Called me in summer dawns to rove—
Have you gone down into the dark
Where none is welcome, none may love?

I will not think those good brown eyes
Have spent their light of truth so soon;
But in some canine paradise
Your warmth, I know, rebukes the moon.

And quarters every plain and hill,
Seeking its master . . . As for me
This prayer"at least the gods fulfill;
That when I pass the flood, and see

Old Charon by the Stygian coast
Take toll of all the shades who land,
Your little, faithful, barking ghost
May leap to lick my phantom hand.

Clean City Plan for Children.

The Board of Education of Chester, Pa., has extended permission to Mrs. Henry Clay Cochrane, chairman of the civic improvement committee of the New Century club, to introduce into the public schools the formation of companies among the children of from ten to fourteen years of age of a society to be called the League of Good Friendship, the object being to encourage the children in all matters relating to good citizenship, with the view of eliciting their co-operation in keeping the city clean.

One-Egg Cake.

One and a half cups granulated sugar, half-cup butter, scant, one cup sweet milk, two and a half cups sifted pastry flour, one egg, two and a half level teaspoonfuls baking powder in sifted flour. Flavoring. Beat butter and sugar thoroughly, adding a little of the milk to help make creamy. Beat egg well and add then the balance of milk. Just at this point beat the mixture with the egg beater, which makes it fine grained. Add flour last.

Congenial Occupation.

"I wish my husband could get a situation in the weather bureau?" said the discouraged looking woman.

The Muskellunge.

So voracious is the muskellunge that it will devour any living thing that comes within its vision. Full grown bullfrogs, good sized ducklings, small aquatic birds, as well as many water mammals, become an easy prey to its yawning sepulcher of a mouth.

Too Easy for Him.

Rough on the Old Man.

"Do you believe that old Satan is always hovering around us?"

"Not always," replied the old lady, "John goes fishin' now three times a week!"

After oiling a sewing machine it not infrequently happens that a drop of oil which has not been absorbed stains the material which is being stitched. To remove the mark a lather made with soap, cold water and a tablespoonful of ammonia will usually prove successful, but in the case of colored linens and cottons the ammonia should be employed cautiously, as it is apt to fade the color.

WOMAN HER OWN HAT MAKER.

No new hat?
Old one all wrong?
Oh, well, there is yet hope.
Last summer's hat may serve.

First the brim must be ripped from the crown.

Clean and press the brim, and raise the crown an inch or more by means of a wire or buckram band.

Or, if the hat has no crown, make or buy a wire foundation. Cover it with net, then with several layers of tulle, and lastly sew flowers, or foliage, or both all over it.

MEMORY TRAINING IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Urging public school teachers to make allowance for the mental capacity of their pupils in the class room, and suggesting that the study outlined in the curriculum course of study could be more thoroughly and more rapidly covered by dividing the pupils of a class into sections according to their memory capacity, Miss Lillian Williams, professor of psychology at the Trenton State Normal School, gave a most practical address on memory at the Somerset street school Wednesday afternoon. The lecture was attended by a representative majority of the teachers of the city and borough schools.

The speaker said that there are two kinds of memory—plastic and retentive. Some few people have both kinds of memory, and Napolean Bonaparte was cited as an example of this class. Plastic memory is the ability to gain information quickly generally by visualization, but cannot remember readily after the lapse of a day or two. Retentive memory, on the other hand, makes facts harder to acquire, perhaps, but the knowledge is retained for all time.

The practical side of the talk dwelt upon the cultivation of a well-balanced memory by the pupil, and the problem of dealing with the four classes of pupils—those who have both qualities of memory, those who have but one, and those who have neither. This last class of pupils, the speaker said, are a perpetual drag on a class, and should not be allowed to attend a public school for this reason. Especial emphasis was laid on the fact that during the development of a child, there are periods of strong and weak memory, which must be considered in the class-room training. Miss Williams advocated the plan of dividing each class into sections, giving those who could comprehend the work readily as rapid advance as they could grasp, while those whose memories were deficient or not yet trained, should be given more time on each lesson. To make this division of pupils, the speaker said that a careful individual study of each pupil was necessary by the teacher, and that the education of the memory should be a feature of the class-room work in all grades.

MRS. CAROLINE R. WEISS ENDS LIFE OF SERVICE.

Mrs. Caroline Weiss, mother of Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Allen, of Somerset street. She was seventy-seven years of age, and had been a resident of the borough for the past twenty-two years. Mrs. Weiss had been ailing for about a year, and death was due to a complication of diseases.

She is of the late Henry Weiss, who died about fifteen years ago. Mrs. Weiss was the mother of ten children, six daughters and three sons, nine of whom survive her. These are Mrs. Julius Stephany and Mrs. Fred Nuse, of Newark; Mrs. Charles Harris, of Steiner place; Mrs. William Allen, of Somerset street; Mrs. Albert Stine, of Grandview avenue; Mrs. Kate Leland, of Somerset street; Henry Weiss, of Regent street; Christopher Weiss, of Lincoln place, and Chief Marshal Weiss. Mrs. Weiss, whose maiden name was Caroline Harley, was born at Wurthemburg, Germany, and came to this country when a girl. She was for many years an active worker in the First Baptist church, and was also a member of the Christian Endeavor Society, the Ladies' Aid Society and the Home Department of the Sunday-school. Of recent years she has been identified as one of the most earnest workers at Faith chapel.

Going Into a New Line.

"What'll you swap off a three-cent Nicaragua '95 for, Jack?" asked Jack's uncle of the young stamp-collector. "I won't swap it off for anything, Uncle George, but I tell you what I will do. I will swap off my whole collection for a goat. Stamps are always the same, but goats—my!—goats, they're never the same!"

A TETE-A-TETE WITH PA.

My pa, he didn't go to town
Last evening after tea,
But got a book and settled down
As comfy as could be.
I'll tell you I was awful glad
To have my pa about
To answer all the things I had
Been tryin' to find out.

And so I asked him why the world
Is round, instead of square,
And why the piggies' tails are curled,
And why dont fish breathe air?
And why the dark is black,
And just how many birds there are,
And will the wind come back?

And why does water stay in wells,
And why do June bugs hum,
And what's the roar I hear in shells,
And when will Christmas come?
And why the cries is always green
Instead of sometiles blue,
And not an apple, too?

And why a cow can't neigh
And do the fairies live on dew,
And what makes hair grow gray?
And then my papot up and, gee!
The awful words he said.
I hadn't done a thing, but he
Jest sent me off to bed.

LONG ENGAGEMENTS.

Naturally the girl who loves a man will promise to wait for him, even though marriage should be very far in the dim distance.

But if she waits longer than two years she begins to get discouraged and to look old maidish. Love grows commonplace from the long wait.

Other men forget all about her; she gets out of the way of going out at all, as she spends all her evenings with her fiance.

The best plan to avoid all this is for the ineligible man to refrain from paying serious attention to any girl until his prospects warrant his asking her to marry him.

It is too late to back down after he has won her love. The only fair thing to do then is to tell her of it, but he must not make love to her in the first place.

The girl cannot very well set the date for the marriage nor complain of the long engagement. She can hold to look old maidish. Love grows and looks in the waiting.

An engagement of a year gives them a chance to become friends as well as sweethearts.

Of course if they have been friends for years the engagement is short.—Engagement is a trial, but the average engagement is between people whose acquaintanceship has been brief.

ANCIENT GREEK DIE.

Professor K. Zengelis, writing in the Chemiker Zeitung, calls attention to what is probably the only genuine antique die used for coinage that has been preserved. It was found in Egypt in 1900, but is now in the Museum of Athens. It consists of bronze, and is engraved with the owl that was stamped on Athenian tetradrachama pieces, which contained about as much silver as three quarter-dollars. The die is of high scientific interest on account of the evidence it gives of the skill of the ancients, three or four hundred years before Christ, in metallurgy. It contains about 22½ per cent. of tin, and nearly 70 per cent. of copper. It is extremely hard, and at the same time possesses a certain malleability, due to the great purity of the copper and tin, which were carefully freed from all traces of lead and zinc to preserve the hardness, and from arsenic and antimony to avoid brittleness.

A Unique Library.

There exists in France a private library of quite a unique character, being composed entirely of its hundred wooden books. The collection has been made from the wood of different trees growing in the park attached to the chateau if Wilhemshoehe. At the back of each book is a tablet in red morocco indicating the name of the tree from which the volume has been made, and the two covers are lightly polished. Inside the book the complete natural history of the tree is detailed. The collection, which is at Cassel, includes 120 species and 445 varieties.

SOMERSET MEDICAL MEN HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Somerset County Medical Society was held at the Ten Eyck House in Somerville, Thursday afternoon, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. Henry V. Davis, of North Branch; vice president, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, of North Plainfield; secretary, Dr. C. R. P. Fisher, of Bound Brook; treasurer, Dr. Thomas F. Flynn, of Somerville; reporter, Dr. L. Stillwell, of Somerville; censor, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, of North Plainfield; delegates to the State Society, Drs. J. H. Buchanan and P. J. Zeglio, of North Plainfield.

A banquet was served by Landlord Lake. Covers were laid for twenty-four guests.

CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian.

J. F. Harmon, Leander N. Lovell and Ellis W. Hedges were re-elected deacons of the Crescent Avenue church at the annual congregational day night. Dr. W. H. Murray was re-meeting held at the church Wednesday elected a deacon of the church.

Reports from the various departments of the church work, as well as from the church treasurer and from the officers of Warren chapel, Hope chapel and Bethel chapel were read, and showed in general a gratifying condition of the church and chapels. The parish has been especially active during the past twelve months, and has raised much money for church support and benevolences, so that the end of the year finds the Presbyterians to be on a firm financial basis, with an advance in spiritual growth.

The report of Joseph W. Sandford, the church treasurer, showed that there still remained a balance of $925.92 from the year's receipts of $14,029.30. The expenses for the coming year have been estimated at $13,065. A general financial report on the three chapels showed that April 1 there was a short balance of $239.49, due to the fact that all the subscriptions have not yet been received. There is now but $326.55 to be paid on the Hope chapel organ fund, $3,560.93 has been received from this fund. The treasurer's statement on the Warren chapel building account showed that $22,791.92 has already been received, of the $31,491.92 which comprises the cost of the building and lot.

The deacons' report, made by S. H. Whitney, showed a balance of $215. There are now 1,772 members in the church, of whom 768 are members of the three chapels. The sum of $5,010 has been raised for foreign benevolences and $2,404 for home benevolences in the past twelve months.

Reports on the year's work at Warren chapel were made by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, the pastor, and E. E. Parvin, the Sunday-school superintendent. There are now 256 members of the chapel and 437 in the Sunday-school. The missionary and aid societies have raised $1,724 for the furnishing of the chapel and $715 has been raised during the year by the Sunday-school.

For Hope chapel, Rev. L. R. Howard reported that about $3,000 has been received and expended during the year. In his report on the Sunday-school, Ira W. Travell, the superintendent, emphasized the growth of the various departments. There are now 35 members in the men's club, 48 in the boys' club, 18 in the young men's club, and 25 in the junior club. The chapel now has 410 members, and there are 550 in the Sunday-school. The Ladies' Aid Society has raised $800 for the organ.

Bethel chapel's finances were reported to be in good condition, and there are now 300 members of the Sunday-school; there are 18 members to the boys' club. Four hundred dollars has been raised for the support of the pastor, Rev. F. D. Tildon, and money has been raised for the organ.

The other church organizations presented gratifying financial reports, among them being the Missionary Society, the Mcall Auxiliary, and the Boys' Mission Band. Superintendent L. R. Hopton's report showed 356 members in the Sunday-school, and a balance on hand in the school treasury.

First Presbyterian.

Encouraging reports, showing no debt, were presented at the annual meeting of the First Presbyterian church Wednesday. The fact that the year is closed with a clean slate, all religious having been given, was a source of gratification to the pastor and people. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor, was chairman, and P. M. Bettman, clerk, of the church meeting, which was held first, and treated the spiritual side of the body.

Reports were received from all of the societies, including home and foreign missions, Ladies' Aid Society, senior and junior Endeavorers, Sunday-school, etc., and every one showed marked improvement. The total amount raised from these societies for benevolent objects was about $1,900. It was also reported that the church membership at present is 387. During the year eleven new members were received on confession and thirteen by letter. There were nine deaths and eleven lost by removal.

It was decided to increase the board of elders from five to six, and J. H. Manning was elected as the sixth member. William Shotwell and Robert Radford were re-elected to the board. It was also decided to increase the board of deacons to five, and John S. Johnston was elected as the extra member. E. D. George was also re-elected a deacon.

The congregational meeting then followed. J. M. Bettman was the chairman and Fred Dickinson secretary. The resignations of Howard A. Pope and J. A. Haynes, as trustees, were received with regret. This action was taken owing to ill health. Mr. Pope was secretary for many years and resolutions were adopted expressing the appreciation of the church for the services rendered by Mr. Pope and Mr. Haynes. Fred Dickinson was elected trustee and appointed to succeed Mr. Pope and W. J. Hamilton was chosen trustee to succeed Mr. Haynes, while William H. Shotwell was re-elected as trustee.

The question of music for the coming year was left entirely to the session, which will select the music committee of the church, and the present arrangement will be continued.

The report of the church treasurer, William H. Shotwell, was one of the best in the history of the organization. The receipts for the year amounted to $5,622.82, all of which was expended for the various objects in church work. In every instance there was a balance on the right side.

In order to comply with the new State law requiring churches to appoint an auditing committee to audit the account of the treasurer, F. O. Dunning, George B. Wean and E. D. George were selected as such a committee.

AVIS TAX BILL KILLED PENALLY IN THE ASSEMBLY.

The House at Trenton Friday, under leadership of Mr. Sullivan and spurred on by a 500 telegram from the powerful Junior Order United Mechanics, killed the Avis bill raising the amount of money from the main stem railroad tax from one-half of 1 per cent. to three-quarter of 1 per cent.

It was shown that the appropriation cut of $1,000,000 from the State school support was because of many commissions created this session, and that the Avis bill was an attempt to get back $500,000, thus giving the State schools but one-half of what they should get.

This means that the costly commissions and the "$100,000 for the inland waterway from Bay Head to Cape May will wipe out the "surplus" supply in the treasury always reported at the end of the fiscal year, which surplus has only been a working balance over night.

POSTPONE ORGANIZATION

Local Republicans Make Preliminary Arrangements for Formation of Club.

A COMMITTEE ON DETAILS.

Mayor Fisk Presides and Councilman Hall Acts As Secretary at Meeting in the Casino—Frank Smith Explains Objects.

Fully 100 voters attended the meeting Thursday called for the purpose of forming the Plainfield Republican Club and considerable headway was made although the work of organization was postponed until Saturday night, April 25. A committee on organization was elected and it will meet on Wednesday night to arrange all details.

New workers and organization men were here on hand to further the movement and by acclamation Mayor Charles J. Fisk, formerly city chairman, was chosen to preside over the deliberations. Councilman Robert E. Hall was chosen secretary. The objects of the club were fully explained by County Chairman Frank H. Smith. Mr. Smith declared that it is most important that the Republicans of Union county be prepared to do effectual work during the next campaign and that the best possible sort of work could only be obtained through organization. He wished it distinctly understood that the club should have no axes to grind for this or that candidate and he made special emphasis on the fact that it would not be in the interest of any one man.

The Plainfield club he explained would be just one in a link through Union county, Summit, Rahway and Elizabeth, he said, already have Republican clubs and at an early date others would be organized. When Mayor Fisk took his seat as chairman, he made a few remarks, laying special stress on the fact that the club would not be in the interests of any candidate for office but would work for the general welfare of the party.

Howard Tracy, chairman of the New Ideal Central Committee, made a motion that a committee of ten be elected, be appointed, to arrange the details of organization. Twelve were nominated but former Mayor James F. Buckle declined to serve and the other eleven were elected by acclamation. The name of the committee being increased to that number. The committee consists of Frank H. Smith, J. Henry Depew, Charles Runyon, William Starr Bullock, W. S. Angle, an, Frederick L. Holt, Francis J. Blatz, George J. Tobin, Howard Tracy and N. Mansfield Smith.

A motion made by F. H. Smith to appoint an enrollment committee of five in each district was amended when Mr. Tracy pointed out that it would be well to have two Republicans until after the organization was effected. On his suggestion the name of the committee was changed to that of "invitation," the five in each district being instructed to get out the names of prospects for the next meeting. Mayor Fisk will make the appointments for this committee.

Before the meeting closed, Chairman Fisk called on Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., to make a speech.

According to a statement by General D. F. Collins, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, who is to be appointed a member of the Democratic State Committee at the State convention April 28, William E. IN MEMORIAM.

Erskine Mason Rodman, April 5, 1908.

They say that he is dead . . .
And silently the people throng
To look once more upon the face
Of him, of whom it has been said,
All people loved, it mattered not what creed was theirs,
What language or what clime;
He spoke the common speech of all,
But, like a new sweet chime,
A note of love ran through it
That soon could span the ages
And all men understood
And knew that he had lived
So close to God, his Master and his God,
But blessed them in His name . . .
He is not dead . . .
Such men can never die.
Weary he was
To God so gently touched him,
And he slept.

NEW FACES IN PULPITS

Revs. C. S. Kemble and Ora J. Schoop Take Charge of Methodist Congregations.

REV. McCREA WELCOMED BACK.

Receptions Being Arranged for the Two New Pastors—Their Services Sunday.

In two of the local Methodist churches, Sunday, the congregations were addressed by new pastors appointed by Bishop Spellmeyer at the recent Conference. At the Monroe Avenue church, Rev. Charles Sumner Kemble, of Elizabeth, succeeded Rev. E. E. Robinson, and at Grace church, the borough, Rev. Ora J. Shoop, formerly of St. Paul's church, Cranford, began a pastorate in the pulpit made vacant by the death of Dr. Charles W. Parsons. Both ministers were greeted by large congregations at morning and evening services and made very favorable impressions.

Dr. Kemble's Welcome.

Rev. Mr. Kemble, who assumed charge at the Monroe Avenue church, was formerly pastor of the Park church at Elizabeth, where he labored successfully for four years. He is a comparatively young man and has a commanding presence in the pulpit. His sermons yesterday were appropriate to Palm Sunday and the entrance to Jerusalem, continuing in the evening a series of thoughts on the subject began in the morning. His discourses were marked by forceful suggestions as to spiritual uplift and were presented in a most convincing way.

Mr. Kemble and his family, comprised of his wife and one child, will take possession of the parsonage this week. On Thursday night, he will be tendered the customary reception as arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. Mr. Roberson, the preceding pastor, preached yesterday in his new church at Passaic.

Mr. Kemble's charges in the Conference heretofore have been as follows: Ferry church, East Orange, 1891-93; Bergen Point, 1894-98; Piermont, N. Y., 1899; Nyack, N. Y., 1900-02; Centenary church, Jersey City, 1903; Park church, Elizabeth, 1904-08.

ford, assumed his duties as pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, Sunday, preaching there both morning and evening. He was appointed by Bishop Spellmeyer at the recent Newark Conference as the successor to the late Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Parsons. Large congregations attended both services, and the parishioners tendered Mr. Shoop a hearty welcome to his new duties. The new pastor removed from his home in Cranford today, taking possession of the Grace church parsonage on Park place.

The topic of the morning's sermon was "The Supremacy of God," the pastor taking his text from Revelations, 1: 8, "I am the Alpha and Omega." The sermon was framed appropriately to Palm Sunday, emphasis being laid upon the triumph of "Our Saviour" at His entry into Jerusalem and his supremacy as an earthly King, later superceded by His acknowledged heavenly over.

In the evening Mr. Shoop spoke on "Daniel, the Man." His text "And Daniel continued even unto the first year of King Cyrus," was taken from Daniel 1: 21. Introductory to the main discourse, Mr. Shoop gave a character sketch of the prophet, emphasizing his ambition for power although he was but a captive and a slave. "Daniel was a man bigger than his position," said the speaker, "and although he was but a slave, he grew to be seemingly the master of the kingdom of Darius. Daniel fought against his environment and won success because God was on his side."

"Be first a man," said the speaker, "the twentieth century has no use for the automaton or the machine. The greatest need today is for men of the character of Daniel—strong, God-fearing men, with a keen sense of conscience. The church, too, needs men of virility, integrity and manly courage to work for God. The trend of present day thought toward the following after the glittering and the physical, so that we have come to minimize the essentially great and most desirable qualities."

Rev. Mr. McCrea's Return.

Rev. Abel C. McCrea, the beloved pastor of the First M. E. church, who was returned to this church by Bishop Spellmeyer for another year, was given a hearty welcome at both services Sunday, his people taking that opportunity to express their great satisfaction over the action of the Bishop. Large congregations were out both morning and evening and Mr. McCrea delivered two practical sermons, in which he evidenced the strong appreciation and regard between pastor and people and the hope that the coming year will be the best in the history of the church.

According to the usual custom, the members of the church will soon arrange a reception for the pastor and his wife, when they will be welcomed in a more informal manner. In connection with the reception there will be a program of music and other features combining to make it an enjoyable event.

EDISON MEN TO ASSIST IN ELKS BIG MINSTRELS

As an added attraction for the local Elks' big minstrel show, booked for Thursday night, April 30, at the New Plainfield theatre, Manager John H. Olsen has secured the well known singers and comedians, Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, of Orange. Their voices, if not their faces, are familiar in every part of the country as they comprise the team that sing most of the songs for the Edison company in making phonograph records. They have a repertoire that would take a week to reel off and from it they will pick some of their best numbers for the Plainfield show.

The members of the troupe are now hard at work preparing for the big event and rehearsals take place at the theatre three times a week. Harry Wetton, of Elizabeth, who is known as the "Wizard of the piano," is musical director and the end men are being taught fancy ensembles and soft shoe stepping by Dr. Rivers, of New York, who drills chorus people for the big theatrical managers. George O. Stevens is to sit in the center and "play the goat" for the end men's gags. The latter will be as follows: Bones, W. J. Counihan. John H. Cose and Tom Muir; tambos, Harry Blimm, Harry Messersmith and William Doud. . . .

An experienced stage manager will devise the electrical effects and something new and novel is promised. In the olio a big feature will be a burlesque of the famous "Florador Sextette" by twelve members of the troupe. The music is arranged by Joseph C. Martin and will be elaborated by Dr. Rivers.

SOMERSET DEMOCRATS ENDORSE MR. MARTINE

James E. Martine, the ambassador of Bryanism in New Jersey, was unanimously endorsed as delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention at a meeting of the Somerset County committee held at Somerville on Saturday. There were thirteen of the twenty-seven members present—thirteen, count 'em—and the resolution of endorsement was prefaced by laudatory remarks about "that able and sterling Democrat." The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this Committee that the delegates of Somerset County to the ensuing State convention should lend their support to that sterling Democrat, James E. Martine, as one of the four delegates-at-large to the national convention to be held at Denver, July 7, 1908."

April 25 was set for primary day in the county, except in North Plainfield borough and township and in Bernards township, where it will come April 23. At a meeting a week ago, the committee endorsed the nomination of William J. Bryan for President.

ADVISES AGAINST A SUIT

CITY'S INTERESTS SAFEGUARDED

In Case Municipality Should Be Held Litable It Could Recover Over Contractors.

As counsel for the Royal Insurance Company, State Senator Everett Colby has advised his client that it has no case against the city of Plainfield to recover for alleged carelessness and neglect in properly handling the fire at the home of Richard B. Letcher in Belvidere avenue some few weeks ago. While the city did not fear the outcome of any actions against it as a result of the official investigation it had taken every precaution to safeguard its interests by ascertaining its alleged liability.

The Councilmanic committee in its report held the Plainfield Water Co. responsible, exonerating the fire department. Frank Bergen, as counsel for the water company, later filed a communication with the city fathers taking the position that the water company was in nowise responsible for the inability of the firemen to extinguish the flames, but that John H. Keely, as city contractor for street sprinkling, was the one to blame. He declared that the hydrants had not been properly closed after the street sprinkling season had ended.

It was said today that in any event in case of a suit, the city of Plainfield would be the defendant and that should a verdict be returned against the municipality it would have to look to the water company or the street sprinkling contractor to recover its loss. The Letcher building was worth $20,000, and it took the fire department six hours to extinguish the flames. The loss was almost total.

ARMRIGHTS WIN FIRST GAMES IN BOWLING MATCH.

The first three games of the home-and-home bowling series to be rolled between the Plainfield Armrights and the New Brunswick Elk team took place on Campbell's alleys last night. The visitors captured the first try by a margin of nineteen but Plainfield took the other two. Good scores prevailed on both sides but the New Brunswickers had difficulty in finding the "groove" and were handicapped.

Five more games are to be rolled at New Brunswick next Monday night. Last night's scores:

ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Senate Commission's Report Advises That Juries Fix Kind of Punishment.

ACKERMAN'S FINDINGS ABROAD.

The Union County Senator Is One of the Three Filing Exhaustive and Satisfactory Report On Subject.

After a most thorough investigation of the matter to which it was entrusted, the Senate's committee to inquire into the subject of capital punishment has filed its report. This committee consisted of State Senators Ackerman, Price and Hutchinson. While Mr. Hutchinson conducted the investigation so far as this country is concerned, Mr. Ackerman, at his own expense, journeyed abroad, carrying letters of credentials from the Secretary of State of the United States and the Governor of New Jersey. Last summer, the Union county man devoted his entire vacation to this work and he is largely responsible for the exhaustive and satisfactory report.

The conclusions reached by the committee are summed up in these closing paragraphs of its report:

"It appears that English public opinion does not favor the abolition of the death sentence, which condition is acknowledged by Mr. Collinson, of the Humanitarian League, who states in a letter published in the 'London Times' of September 18th, 1907, 'Recognizing, however, that in this country, at least, public opinion is not ripe for the total discontinuance of the death penalty, the Humanitarian League has long advocated the legal recognition of the varying degrees of guilt in the crimes now indiscriminately classed as murder.' Mr. Collinson's statement appeared in other important English and Scotch papers.

"The 'London Queen,' in its issue of October 5th, 1907, says, 'A large number of people think the State has no right to take human life, and still larger numbers doubt whether capital punishment is a real deterrent to the crime of murder. . . . The statistics are not able to prove much either way, many facts can be adduced to show that capital punishment has great terror for about ninety-nine people in every hundred, and that its abolition generally would be most undesirable and unmitigated than before, at least for a considerable time after the abolition. * * *

"In referring to the situation in the United States, the same paper says, 'In the matter of murder and its punishment, the United States holds a very unenviable position. In 1889 there were 3,567 murders committed in the States, ninety-eight persons were executed, though 175 were killed by lynching. In fact, for every year from 1885 to 1889, lynching invariably exceeded the official executions. The United States, therefore, must be taken as an example of the efficacy of capital punishment, seeing that the practical abolition of it is coincident with an enormous murder roll, the disproportion being so great that the populace themselves were forced to step in and supplement the weakness of the law with the rough and ready method of mob justice.'

"A newspaper dispatch to the London Times, from Paris, November 5th, 1907, says: 'An important indication of the state of feeling in France on the question of capital punishment which tends to confirm the continual protests made by Premier Clemenceau in practically suspending by the too frequent exercise of the Presidential prerogative of pardon, is given by the result of a referendum organized by the 'Petit Parisian,' one of the most widely-circulated of the popular Republican organs. That journal asked its readers to answer by a simple 'yes' or 'no' whether they were partisans of the death penalty. It has received no fewer than 1,412,000 replies to this question. Of these 1,034,000 were in the affirmative and 378,000 in the negative. The 'Petit Parisian' says that, in organizing this referendum it had no political object in view, but merely wished to submit to its readers a social problem which Parliament will soon be called upon to solve. Notwithstanding the efforts made by the Minister of Justice to prevent juries from expressing their desire to see the death penalty maintained and applied, the newspapers publish almost daily fresh resolutions to that sense. The latest is that by the jury of the Landes department, signed by twenty-seven out of the thirty-three jurors.'

"The exciting excitement in France over the question of the death penalty appears to arise from a seeming increase of crime, which has aroused a popular demand for the restoration of the death penalty, which has been practically abolished by the systematic commutation of the sentences of criminal condemned to death—the present acute agitation of the subject resulting from the recent reprieve by the President of France of Soleillard, the atrocious murderer of a little French girl. The President of France, it is understood, does not believe in capital punishment.

"It seems to be a fact that the death penalty, as a punishment for the crime of murder, does not act as a complete deterrent for it is only partial in its effect.

"The death penalty, when executed, becomes unalterable to future evidence which might clear the prisoner, which may account for the constancy on the part of juries to convict, and it may also show the reason why, in comparison with the total number of murders, so few pay the price of death for their crime.

"This leads to the suggestion that an effective reform in the punishment for murder might lie in a cumulative life penalty, which, in practice, may prove to be a greater deterrent. In some cases than the death penalty. That is to say:

"The convict under life sentence for murder shall be placed in solitary confinement for one day each month, commencing with the first month of the third year; two days each month starting with the first month of the fourth year; the period of solitary confinement to be increased one day each month for each succeeding year up to and including the tenth year. After which the period of solitary confinement to be reduced one day each month for each succeeding year until the end of the seventeenth year. The days of solitary confinement shall not be consecutively. Would not this form of punishment be both merciful and powerful?

"As a writer in a recent issue of the 'London Daily Mirror' has accurately stated:

"'We do not regard punishment as a revenge. Under all aspects we believe revenge to be an evil passion. We hold that the law ought to keep two objects in view:

"'1. To defend society.

"'2. To reform criminals.

"'With the object of defending society, it has for many years been the practice of communities living under the protection of laws either to kill murderers, or to keep them locked up for life, so that they shall murder no more.

"'Many people think with President Faithers that to keep them alive in prison is a better plan than executing them. They say that perpeual imprisonment is a far more appalling penalty than death, and that it must have a better deterrent power.

"'This is only half true; it would no doubt deter you and me both, because we have enough imagination to realize the horror of perpetual imprisonment. We should shrink from the awful monotony, the idleness, the dullness, the deadness of a life sentence; but we should not fear the sharp short anguish of execution.

"'Criminals of the Soleillard type can scarcely be said to have any imagination at all. If they had any, they could not possibly commit atrocious crimes. They would picture to themselves the pitiful, limp body of their victims, the hue and cry which would be raised, the horror which would afflict them and their lives. Similarly, the unimaginative would be fearless influenced by the fear of perpetual imprisonment than they would be by the fear of death.

"For particularly revolting and heinous crimes involving in their perpetration a great degree of moral wrong, it does not seem wise or sound as a matter of state policy to entirely abolish the death penalty, especially so if the guilt of the accused is supported by direct and positive evidence.

"Could not all such cases be properly provided for by some arrangement whereby the jury in bringing in a verdict for murder in the first degree could state the nature of the punishment they advised, whether 'with capital punishment' or 'without capital punishment?' As the first object of legal punishment should be the defence of society it must follow that any plan to be largely deterrent should cover both the imaginative and unimaginative mind—in the former the life sentence would be forbidding and dreadful, while in the latter case the chilling threat of the death penalty might act to check criminal intent."

BENCH AND BAR HONOR CHANCELLOR MAHLON PITNEY.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Former State Senator Charles A. Reed were among the guests at a dinner given in honor of Chancellor Mahlon Pitney, at the Morris County Golf Club, Saturday night. The bench of New Jersey was largely represented at the affair, covers being laid for 100 in the big banquet hall of the clubhouse, which was decorated with flowers and palms.

There were no set speeches, the host called upon Governor Fort, Chancellor Pitney, Attorney-General McCarter, Chief Justice Gummere, former Chancellor Magie, former Judge Gilbert Collins and Judge Adams, who spoke.

Personal.

My hands are such peculiar things,
I'm really glad I own 'em.
They feed my face, they comb my hair;
But, what is sad, they're fastened where
I cannot even loan 'em.

My ears are great, large floppy things
That stick out sideways from my head,
And when it's cold they get quite frigs.
I like 'em, though the trouble is
They interfere when I'm in bed.
—Judge.

FINAL LENTEN SERVICES

the evening there will be a service with a sermon. The rite of holy baptism will be administered in the church at 5 o'clock Easter Even, Saturday. A celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock Sunday will begin the services of Easter Day. There will be special music at 11 o'clock service, when the rector will preach. The children's carol service will be held at 4 o'clock.

The Catholic Churches.

Impressive Lenten services will be held at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches this week and the Roman church ceremonial will make the service on Easter Day particularly impressive. The devotions will begin tomorrow with high mass at 7:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's and 9 o'clock at St. Mary's. At this time there will be the procession with the Blessed Sacrament to the repository where it will remain until Good Friday. At St. Mary's, this procession will be headed by children as flower scatterers. At the singing of the Gloria during the service on Thursday, the bells will ring and the organ play for the last time until the service Saturday. At the Friday services no bells will be rung, and the singing will be without the organ.

Early Good Friday morning will be solemn prayers for the conversion of the world and the Passion will be read previous to the administration of the previously-mentioned mass. At St. Mary's church there will be the three hours' service of agony, beginning at noon. Father Bogan will comment on the last words of the Saviour and the choir will sing, although without accompaniment. In the evening will be a Good Friday sermon at St. Mary's and adoration of the Blessed Virgin.

Saturday morning early will come the Roman Catholic ceremony of blessing the new fire at the church door, and the paschal candle, typifying the Resurrection, will be lighted. The altar lamps will also be lighted and the baptismal water will be blessed. At the conclusion of the Gloria in this service, the bells will be rung again and the organ played.

On Easter Day, there will be five masses before the principal service of the day at 10:30 o'clock. At this time, the choir will be headed by about 100 children, singing. A priest from Hoboken will officiate, assisted by Father Miller as deacon, and Father Tyrell as sub-deacon. Father Brennan, of Newark, will also assist. Father Sciola will officiate at St. Mary's, with Father Delehanty as deacon and Father Mahon as sub-deacon. Father Bogan will be master of ceremonies. The music at this service at both churches will be from the Cecilian Scroll, in accordance with a recent decree of the Pope and both choirs will be augmented by several vocalists.

The Easter services at St. Mary's will mark the beginning of the two weeks of the mission. This will be a series of evangelistic services, conducted annually by visiting priests. The special services will last about two weeks, the first week being especially for the women and the second week for the men.

More than three hundred persons crowded the corridors of the Camden city hall yesterday seeking work under the resolution recently adopted by the City Council. Each applicant came with a recommendation of the councilman of his ward or other person known to the authorities, declaring he has others depending upon him and is worthy of aid from the city.

Henry W. Leeds, president of City Council, Atlantic City, head of the Hotel Chalfonte Company, announced yesterday that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself when his term expires. Joseph W. Salus, president of the City Business League, is said to have been slated by organization leaders as the hotel man's successor. Mr. Leeds says he has had enough of office.

Application was made yesterday to Vice-Chancellor Leaming, in Camden, by Lewis A. Starr, counsel for Luther W. Perkins, of Beverly, to have set aside a decree for the payment of $7 a week alimony which was given to his wife Addie in 1901 by the late Vice-Chancellor Grey. Perkins has appealed to the Court of Errors and Appeals, but was subsequently affirmed. In consequence of this the defendant made the payments until March, 1905, when the couple agreed to live together because, he contributing to her support. In 1907 the wife began housekeeping on her own account. Following this she filed another bill in Chancery in January, 1908, asking for alimony and alleging constitutional desertion. The Vice-Chancellor reserved his decision.

Wagon Alleys to Be Joined.

Through the efforts of A. Fred Mac-Donald, it is learned, that the rear of Roth's market on East Front street is soon to be connected with the alley adjourning Marchant's creamery on Watchung avenue, which will be widened to eighteen feet and extended to meet the Front street alley. This is a new roadway, for which the consent of most of the property owners has already been secured by Mr. MacDonald, will give a rear entrance to the East Front street and East Second street properties and will deviate much delivery wagon traffic.

—Co. K expects to go to Sea Girt the week beginning July 11 or 18. Official orders concerning the trip will be received within a short time.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO REV. NICHOLAS BOWERS

Rev. Nicholas Bowers, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stirling and one of the best known ministers in this section, died at his home in Stirling yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. He was stricken with paralysis a few weeks ago and had been sinking steadily.

Mr. Bowers was born in Germany seventy-eight years ago and came to this country when he was a child. At the age of eighteen he located near Basking Ridge and took up religious work, first acting as exhorter and conducting revival meetings throughout Somerset and adjoining counties. He continued in this way until ten years ago when he assumed the pastorate of the Stirling congregation.

The deceased leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Faulkner, of Basking Ridge, and four sons, Henry, of Newark; Hayes, of Liberty Corner; John, of Bernardsville and Israel, of Millington. A brother, Peter Bowers, died at his home in North Plainfield last November, soon after selling his farm in Warren township and moving into town.

The funeral will be held in the Basking Ridge Presbyterian church, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Stirling church being too small to admit of a large attendance. Burial will be at Basking Ridge.

Second Attack of Scarlet Fever.

An unusual case that is attracting consideration attention from local physicians is that of Miss Ella Kirstein, of South Second street, who is suffering a second attack of scarlet fever. The young woman had the first attack three or four years ago and was recently taken ill with the same disease. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan is the attending physician and he has called in several other physicians to see the case. So far as known in the medical profession here it is the first instance of the kind in Plainfield. The present attack is not a severe one and a speedy recovery is expected.

Clinical Society Meets.

The Plainfield Clinical Society was entertained last night at the home of Dr. J. H. Carman, of Watchung avenue. Dr. Trimble, of New York, read a paper, which was followed by general discussion.

COUNTY AGAINST BRYAN

COLLINS FOR STATE COMMITTEE

Union Overwhelmingly Against Nebraskian But Martine May Be Delegate-at-Large.

Union county Democrats last night at their primaries went on record as against the third nomination for William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency. They also stamped their approval on the candidacy of Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth, for member of the State Committee to succeed Peter Egenolf. While the Bryanites were completely routed outside of Plainfield, it is likely that Union will support James E. Martine as a candidate for delegate-at-large, at the State convention, to the National convention.

Almost the solid delegation from Elizabeth will be anti-Bryanite and in addition to the nine votes from Plainfield, the Peerless One will get but two other delegates in the entire county.

Without any opposition nine delegates were elected as the Democratic primaries in this city to attend the State and Congressional conventions, and while they were not instructed, all are said to be favorable to the candidacy of William J. Bryan for the Presidential nomination and will vote for James E. Martine as one of the four delegates-at-large to attend the National convention to be held in Denver July 7. It was a clean victory for the supporters of Bryan and they feel particularly happy over the result. This is especially true of J. V. F. Diits, who claims to have made a ten strike after the refusal of the county committee to endorse the Nebraskan's candidacy.

The primaries were held at the Hotel Kensington, with only thirty-eight members of the party present. Mr. Martine, fresh from his visit with Bryan to Trenton, where they were guests of Governor Fort at a luncheon, was filled with enthusiasm for the Peerless One. Patrick J. Reville was chairman of the meeting, J. V. F. Dilts secretary and Charles Sturtevant and Joseph Burke, inspectors. The nomination and the election of the following delegates were completed in short order:

First ward, first district, J. A. Staats; second district, W. L. Hetfield, Sr. Second ward, first district, Charles Sturtevant; second district, J. V. F. Dilts. Third ward, first district, J. H. Harkins; second district, Frank Shattle. Fourth ward, first district, D. A. Galbraith; second district, Patrick J. Reville; third district, Ira Hurlburt.

After the selection of delegates, the voters present were entertained by Mr. Dilts and as one Democrat expressed it, "the harmony was so thick you could cut with a knife." Speeches were made by Mr. Martine, Mr. Reville and James Guttridge, all expressing loyalty to what they termed the true principles of Democracy, adding that they would fight to the last ditch for Bryan.

The attention of the party here is now directed to the meeting of the State committee from Union county to be held at Elizabeth Friday night, when a successor to Peter Egenolf, as State committeeman, will be chosen.

Union county Democrats elected seventy-one delegates last night to the State convention to be held next Tuesday at Trenton to elect delegates-at-large to Chicago. The primaries were open from 8 until 9 o'clock, and a fairly heavy vote was cast. Little interest was attached to the election in Elizabeth, and there were no contests of any importance.

The entire delegation from Elizabeth is rabidly anti-Bryan, but nevertheless may support James E. Martine when it comes time to elect two delegates from the Fifth Congressional district at the convention which will be held on the same day that the State convention is. The "Farmer Orator" has announced his candidacy for the office, the first time that he has followed such a course in all the years that he has been fighting in the political field, and many are inclined to give him what is regarded as an honorary office. Martine is heart and soul for Bryan.

The delegates elected last night will caucus Friday night at Democratic headquarters, in Elizabeth, and then may come something like a split. General Dennis F. Collins and John J. Lane, of Summit, are aspirants ofr the place of State committeeman, which will have to be filled that night. Each is fighting hard. All the chances favor Collins, as the delegation from Elizabeth, comprising a majority of the delegates, is for him. The question of passing resolutions favoring Bryan may also come up at the meeting.

BRYAN AS FORT'S GUEST

FORT AND OTHERS TAKE WINE.

Democratic leaders friendly to the Nebraskan were gratified at the turnout of people yesterday afternoon in the Taylor Opera House, at Trenton, where William Jennings Bryan spoke following a reception at the Hotel Sterling and a luncheon with Governor Fort at the State Capitol.

At the luncheon there were about twenty persons, all Republican heads of departments, except Mr. Bryan, Mr. Martine and Mr. Katzenbach. Mr. Bryan sat on the Governor's right; next to him was State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, and then Mr. Martine. On the Governor's left Mr. Katzenbach sat.

When the wine was served Mr. Martine proposed the good health of the Governor. This was acknowledged with only a bow, as it was understood there was to be no formal speech making. In turn Supreme Court Justice William Riker proposed the health "of our honored guest." This was also acknowledged with a bow from Mr. Bryan, who took only water. The conversation was of a general character, referring principally to campaigning experiences.

Introducing Bryan, Mr. Katzenbach likened the condition of the Democratic party to that of France when a minister at the Paris court, during a crisis, remarked that the event would mark the death of France. The other ambassador replied that he had "been many times at the deathbed of France." France was resuscitated, said Mr Katzenbach, and so would be the Democracy. This prophecy was received with cheers.

Money Question Settled.

Mr. Bryan said, while the Republican party boasts that it has been in control of affairs in the country for almost half a century, he felt prouder of the fact that the Democratic party had the qualities that enabled it to live more than a century.

Money Question Settled.

Mr. Bryan told how the Republicans have been helped by natural conditions; the opening of new gold mines in various parts of the world, the failure of crop conditions and similar incidents.

"They said the Democratic party had a monopoly of panics, but now the people are willing to admit that the Republicans have destroyed a monopoly. They've got the panic now. For the first time in the history of the country the banks had the audacity to tell a depositor how much of his own money he could get to use in his business."

Mr. Bryan referred to Secretary of War Taft's views on trust regulation as being not so far advanced as seventeen years ago, and said Taft was walking backward. Bryan berated Taft on the question of government by injunction, and said Taft was the father of the system. Sweltering tunes were the result, said Bryan, of Republican methods of favoritism and privileges.

Mr. Bryan, immediately after the speech, went to the train to keep his engagement to speak in Cooper Union and to rejoin his family.

"It is more to say of a party that it has lived fifty years under defeat," said Mr. Bryan, "than to say that it has lived fifty years while in office."

Describing how the Democratic party during its career had always taken the people's side in various issues, he told how two Democratic houses of Representatives had voted for the popular election of United States Senators and that Republican houses would not act on the proposition until eight years after.

Forecasts Platform.

"This means," said Mr. Bryan, "that the Democratic party has more faith in the people than the Republican. The Democrats have put this principle into two platforms, and it will do the same in the third platform. I can say this without fear of contradiction. I can say this positively because at the St. Louis convention, where we fought sixteen hours over other things to put in the platform, we were unanimous on this point. If a principle got through the St. Louis convention there is no doubt about it being adopted again in Denver. What Republican can make a prophecy about this plank being *in the next Republican plat-*form?"

"In 1896 the Republicans said they could elect anybody," Mr. Bryan said later on. "Since that time they have had twelve years of control in all branches of the government, and were able to repeal or enact any laws they saw fit, having the Supreme Court with them to construe the law any way it liked, and yet the party

MASONS ARE IN SESSION

WOLFSKEIL MAY BE "G. W. M."

The Election Takes Place Tomorrow —The Reports Are Being Read Today.

Delegations from this city and surrounding towns left for Trenton today to attend the annual communication of the ancient and honorable society of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New Jersey, in session in Masonic Hall, Trenton. Special arrangements have been made for the care of the delegates, and the interest in the event extends beyond the limit of fraternity.

William Taylor and S. K. Fish as the worshipful masters of Jerusalem and Anchor lodges, respectively, are in attendance.

Austen H. McGregor, one of the best known of Newark's business men, is the most worshipful grand master, and he and his associates will take up part of the day in reading their reports. There will be a reception also later today to the many distinguished visitors that are gathering at the State capital.

Tomorrow the brethren will elect their officers for the new fiscal year, and additional interest will be lent to the occasion by the fact that there will probably be a new grand secretary and grand treasurer.

If Grand Master McGregor does not succeed himself, Deputy Grand Master W. D. Wolfskeil, of Elizabeth, as the next in line of advancement, will be the head of the fraternity in the State. This would probably mean the promotion of Senior Grand Warden, Judge J. Clarence Conover, of Freehold, to be deputy grand master.

The suit of E. C. Potter, as administrator of the estate of Isaac C. and Elizabeth Dunn, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, for $20,000 damages, will be tried in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton on Friday. G. W. V. Moy, of this city, represents the administrator.

The action is brought to recover damage for the death of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, both of whom were killed *at the grade crossing of the Penn*sylvania Railroad in Stelton about a year and a half ago, while they were driving home from attending prayer meeting at the Stelton Baptist church. They were well-known in this city. Mrs. Dunn was a sister of Mrs. Thomas Cuming, of North Plainfield, and she lived here prior to her marriage to Mr. Dunn.

Bridge Party for Miss Howell.

Miss Valiant gave a bridge whist party at her home on Myrtle avenue for Miss Sarah Mae Howell and Harry L. McGee, whose wedding will occur on April 29. Miss Virginia Hegeman and Raymond McGee received the prizes. There were twenty guests, including most of the members of the briday party. Tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. Allen B. Latas, of Washington avenue, will give a card party for Miss Howell and the other women members of the bridal party.

60 YRS. A TELEGRAPHER

OSLER'S THEORY DISPROVEN.

Veteran Knight of the Keys Is As Active As Average Man of Fifty—Hale, Hearty and Happy.

Manager Charles H. Schermerhorn, of the Western Union Telegraph Company office here, is celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birthday today. He has been connected with the local telegraph office since 1870, having been transferred from Beverly, N. J., to this city in that year. He has been an operator for thirty-eight years and is as hale and hearty as ever. He began work at the age of seventeen as a messenger boy and assistant to Joseph Worl in the telegraph office at New Hope, Pa., in 1848.

The next year he was put in charge of the office and remained until 1851, when he was transferred to Princeton. In those days the Western Union was hardly known, and the business was done by the Magnetic Telegraph Company. So few telegrams were handled that the offices at New Hope and Princeton were used mainly as testing stations for all wires running north and south. It was part of the operator's work to look after repairs to the wires after storms, and Mr. Schermerhorn has often walked from New Hope to Philadelphia with climbers and the rest of the repair outfit looking after the wires.

From Princeton he was transferred in 1853 to New York, and took charge of the office in Barnum's Museum. For a time he was in the main office, then in Hanover street, which had a manager and six operators. In 1856 a line was laid across the East river, the forerunner of the great Atlantic cable, and when an office was opened in Brooklyn he was put in charge. The line had been working only two months, when a schooner dragging anchor, tore up the cable, and the service was then maintained for some time by messengers.

In 1857 Mr. Schermerhorn was transferred to Beverly, N. J., where the Union soldiers were in camp, and had a busy time with messages for the soldiers to their families. He was assisted here by his wife in a material way. When Gen. Grant was in Beverly, where his family were then located, the general sat all night in the little telegraph office awaiting news from the front. He introduced Mr. Schermerhorn to Generals Sherman and Sheridan at one time with the words, "Gentlemen, this man has done his part for the Union cause. He has kept me in close touch with the army with some very important messages when I have been away from the front."

FRED ENDRESS RETIRES FROM MEAT BUSINESS.

The meat and provision business which has been conducted by Fred Endress on West Front street during the past twelve years, was sold yesterday to John K. Rousby, of New York, and William Pluger, of Jersey City. Possession will be taken May 1. The new owners are thoroughly experienced in the meat and provision business and will maintain the high standard of the present proprietor. Mr. Rousby is a member of the New York Produce Exchange, while his partner is president of the Halsted Packing Company, of Jersey City. The new firm will be known as the Endress Meat and Provision Company.

Mr. Endress will continue to reside in Plainfield and will devote his attention to his large farm at South Plainfield, where he has a rending factory and other interests. He came from Brooklyn to Plainfield fourteen years ago and first opened a market on Liberty street, moving two years later to his present place.

Adjourned Pending a Compromise.

The case of Mrs. Agna Utzinger against her husband, Augustus Utzinger, both of the borough, for non-support, was called before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy, last night, and laid over until Tuesday, pending a compromise. Francis J. Biatz represented Mrs. Utzinger and Codington & Swackhamer the defendant.

LABOR STRIKE SETTLED

Leland and Thompson Believe the Situation by Quitting Park Avenue Job.

GALBRAITH'S SHOP REINSTATED

Two Hundred Men Affected By Sympathetic Strike Declared, Resumed Work Today.

Through a concession made by Leland & Thompson, the "open shop" masons who caused the sympathetic strike among union artisans last week, the firm has quit the job at Dr. Harold D. Coulter's house on Park avenue and the union men have been ordered back to work again. The settlement was effected at a conference in Trades Union Hall last night and at the same time Den Galbraith's shop on North avenue, which had been declared "foul" by the union, was put on the "white list" again so that the fourteen union plumbers he employs went back to work there today. Two hundred plumbers, whom Walking Delegate David Bodine ordered out on sympathetic strike when Galbraith's shop was declared "foul."

In order to avoid a long strike and the possible ruling of the Master Builders' Association of the "open shop" in this city, W. A. Leland and H. S. Thompson, who were at the meeting last night, declared that they would give up the contract and thus allow the union men to go back to work. At the meeting were C. W. Krause, president of the Master Builders Association; David Bodine, representing the union labor forces, and Den Galbraith. Dr. Corbusier, who employed the "open shop" masons, said today that he was ignorant of the union ruling at the time. The masons had completed the job before the strike was declared.

Leland & Thompson have a grievance against local Masons' Union, No. 4, for action taken by that organization back in 1905. At that time a fine of $25 was imposed by the organized masons on the firm because of a violation of a union rule. The firm declared that the fine was unjustly imposed, and did not pay it. It is probable that on account of the action of Leland & Thompson at last night's conference, the local masons' union will shop their appreciation of the action by consenting to "let by-gones be by-gones!"

PASSENGERS GET A SHAKEUP WHEN TROLLEY IS DERAILED.

Because of slippery, wet rails, which made the brakes ineffective, car No. 74 was derailed on Arlington avenue early yesterday afternoon and the eight passengers received a bad shaking up when the trucks left the rails and the car crashed over the macadam for several feet. The accident happened at the transfer point made temporarily necessary by work on the south side sewer, and the bumper laid across the rails to mark this transfer point derailed the front trucks of the car.

The derailment caused a delay of half an hour and partially blocked the roadway, for the car left the rails and turned toward the gutter on the south side of the street. The passengers, among whom were several women, were uninjured, but received a severe shaking up.

COUNTY TO MACADAMIZE MILE OF TERRILL ROAD.

The Union County Board of Freeholders at a meeting in Elizabeth this afternoon, voted in favor of recommending the making of Terrill road a State aid road, and the plan is to macadamize at least a mile of the thoroughfare this summer. Later on when the State road commissioner approves the proposition, which it is believed he will, the improvement will be completed as originally decided.

Tomorrow afternoon the freeholders will inspect a portion of Munn avenue, East Orange, which has been covered with liquified asphalt, with a view to determining the advisability of using it on the roads in Union county. The preparation is said to have considerable merit and the freeholders may decide to give it a trial.

Miss Edna Dilts Entertains.

Miss Edna Dilts, of Duer street, entertained the S. S. S. Society at her home, last night, when Miss Cornelia Hansen and Miss Marie Hahn were initiated into the mysteries of the society. Harrison Fahn and Edward Honeyman were in charge of the initiation. Afterward a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Complain of Sprinkling.

The merchants in the business part of the city have been complaining about the poor sprinkling during the past few days. Every day there have been long intervals between the trips of the sprinkling carts.

MENINGITIS PROVES FATAL

NERVOUSNESS INDUCED ATTACK

Following thirty hours of convulsions brought on by an acute attack of meningitis that first developed while he was attending a dance at Truell Hall, Monday night, Abe B. Gaston, son of Dr. and Mrs. William F. Gaston, of West Front street, died at the home of his parents at 3:30 this morning. He became unconscious soon after he was stricken and remained in that condition until he passed away.

The young man was one of a coterie of young people who were the guests of Stanley Karner at the dance at which he became ill. According to his father, he was in a nervous state when he left home, due to the fact that he had been working hard on a prize essay for submission at the Plainfield High School and also that several friends he expected would be at the affair informed him at the last moment that they could not attend. About 11 o'clock he complained of headache and numbness in the limbs and the young woman he was dancing with at the time suggested his retirement from the floor for a brief rest.

Young Gaston was carried to a bedroom where he said that he had struck his elbow while dancing. Convulsions quickly followed but it is said that the alleged injury was in nowise responsible for his death.

Telephone calls were sent for a cab and the young man's father and he was removed to his home. Physicians worked over him constantly but without avail, the meningitis increasing in its intensity until the end.

Young Gaston was in his eighteenth year and was a member of the 1911 class of the High School. He was of a quiet, unassuming disposition but had many friends among the students and elsewhere. He is survived by two brothers, William and Don Gaston, and one sister, Dorothy. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

JAILED FOR COURTING ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

On complaint of Martin Schneiderbeck, of East Fifth and Sycamore streets, the police yesterday arrested John McDonald, well known locally, who the former claimed was "breaking up his home." He asserted that McDonald had been the "star boarder" there and was paying too much attention to Mrs. Schneiderbeck and was chased away. He continued to come back while the husband was at work, however, and the complaint was made.

Patrolman Dobson caught McDonald yesterday afternoon as he and Mrs. Scheiderbeck were walking at Park avenue and Ninth street. He spent last night in a cell and this morning Judge Runyon sent him to jail for thirty days.

MERCHANTS AGITATED OVER MEMORIAL DAY CLOSING.

The report yesterday that the Plainfield Merchants' Association had decided at a meeting Monday night to keep the local stores open on Memorial Day, caused considerable discussion today and several members of the association took occasion to deny that such a decision was reached. The information was given out by F. A. Duschnofer, a member of the association, who alleged that owing to the dissatisfaction over the action to close on Washington Birthday it was decided to let the plan of keeping open on Memorial Day. He also said that a decision regarding succeeding holidays would be made after that holiday.

E. E. Peck, president of the association, stated today that a decision to keep open May 30 was not reached Monday night, it being the general opinion that it would be better to lay the matter over until the meeting on Monday, May 18. He believes that the storekeepers would keep open on that day.

It is likely that the grocers and butchers will keep open as they did on Washington's Birthday.

S. C. Peck, the dry goods merchant, said today: "I would as soon think of opening my store on Sunday as on Memorial Day." Peck's store will be closed all Memorial Day.

The Court of Pardons will meet April 29 to consider the applications for clemency.

CHEST WORKMEN FIND MAY CONTAIN FORTUNE

A rusty iron chest containing bonds, stock certificates, old English coins and deeds for about seventy acres of land near Lancaster, England, was discovered Thursday on the farm of Andrew B. Williams, of Troy Hills, in Morris county, by workmen digging a cellar for a barn. Mr. Williams says his grandfather, Herbert Williams, who was eccentric, came to America from England in 1857 and purchased the Morris county tract. He never said much about his old English home except that he came from Lancaster.

For the last ten years of his life, he was not considered to be in his right mind although quite harmless. At this time he often spoke of being the owner of considerable property in England, but no attention was paid to what he said. In 1885 he died. The box was found near the stump of an old maple tree. The exact value of the papers has not been learned.

ARTHUR BRISBANE'S ADVICE TO MOTHERS AND FATHERS.

The human being most in need of amusement, most greatly benefited by amusements that stimulate the imagination, is the child. And in our civilization there is far too little done in the line of amusement for children. Nothing so stimulates imagination stimulates mental growth. The circus and the Hippodrome are beneficial, normal, entrancing stimulants to the imagination of children. That is why we urge parents to take their children to the Hippodrome or the circus. Better still, to both of them, twice a year at least. The building of the Hippodrome, and its management on clean, intelligent, broadly spectacular lines, constitute a real public service in New York city. The elephants, with their tows neatly manicured and brilliantly white; the prancing horses, the dogs that stand on their heads or their hind legs, or carry cats about in friendly fashion; the clowns, the sinking platform, the water, mermaids, and all the rest of it—those are the things upon which children's minds develop. Children suffer if they do not occasionally receive the normal stimulant of pleasant excitement. An old American joke represents the father taking the child to exercise as an excuse for going himself. No excuse is needed for circus or Hippodrome. Boys and girls should be taken to the circus and Hippodrome regularly. It is their right, and the father and mother should go along to enjoy the performance with the children, and to enjoy above all the children's intense delight.—New York Journal.

FEWER ALIENS COME OVER.

Big Falling Off in Immigration for Last Month.

Washington, April 20.—Immigration into the United States in March decreased 76 per cent. as compared with the same month of 1906 and 77 per cent. compared with 1907. The total number of immigrants arriving in this country last month was 32,517, as against 139,118 in March a year ago.

The country showing the greatest decrease is Italy. In March, 1907, there were 41,455 Italian immigrants, but only 6,612 in March, 1908. Hungary stood next with a total of 27,567 for March, 1907, as against 1,804 for March of this year.

MINERS' STRIKE IS OVER.

Agreement with Operators for Two Years' Contract.

Toledo, Ohio, April 20.—The miners and operators of the central competitive field yesterday afternoon completed their labors and adopted the report of the scale committee unanimously.

The report provides that mining be resumed in the central competitive field next Monday, that the rate for mining in effect up to April 1, 1908, be reaffirmed.

The contract expires March 31, 1910. The agreement is to be referred to a referendum vote of the miners.

NO PLEDGE FOR TAFT.

Springfield, Mass., April 20.—At the Second Congressional District convention, held here yesterday afternoon, Winford N. Caldwell, of this city, and John W. Wheeler, of Orange, were elected delegates to the Republican national convention.

The delegates are unpledged and no preference resolution was introduced. This is the first district convention so far held in Massachusetts at which some sort of a Taft resolution has not been submitted.

High School Boys Strike.

More than twenty students in the Belvidere High School are out on strike because of the expulsion of George Sawyer, whose father is a member of the Board of Education. The boy had a dispute yesterday with the supervisor, Prof. Ernest T. McNatt. Yesterday he returned to the school, when he was told by the supervisor that he could not stay. He left, and twenty of his friends went with him, and they will not return until Samsel is reinstated. They say they will go before the School Commissioners themselves and present their grievance.

NEW JERSEY IS NOW MINUS HEALTH BOARD

Until the Governor can convene the Senate in special session to receive his nominations for officers created by the Legislature this year, there will be no State Board of Health. The Governor has signed Senate bills 58, 59, 60 and 61, which abolish the State Board of Health, the State Sewerage Commission and wipe off the books the law providing for the work of the State Sewerage Commission.

The last provides for the appointment of a new board to take over the duties of the other two. The new body is to consist of six members, to serve for six years at $2,500 per year each, and one to be designated as secretary and one as president, the secretary to get $500 more a year than his associates.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START SEEDS AND BULBS.

Plant the entire bunch of dahlia roots in a box of soil; keep in a warm place until sprouts appear, then remove to a cooler situation.

Begin planting out hardy plants, shrubs and vines as soon as the ground can be worked, and be such as need it before growth begins.

Send for the flower catalogue early and make your selection of roses and shrubs, and get your orders in early so as to avoid disappointment in choice when time for planting.

Have the man of the house make you a hotbed. He can do it easily and at little cost, and in it many varieties or flowers may be started. Have him do it now before he gets too busy with his own affairs.

If there are any stumps and hollows on the lawn, cut and roll back the sod, fill in level, or cut away hump, then roll back of sod, and firm down smooth. Scatter unleached wood ashes over the lawn, and seed bare places before ground hardens.

Sow sweet peas now, the sooner the better. This is the method employed by H. A. Caswell, one of our New York folks, who has gratifying success: "I dig a trench about a foot deep, then put in clay, then manure, then dirt and stamp in the seed. The clay holds the moisture."

Divide the canna roots into pieces of one eye each, and place in flats about three or four inches deep, and a couple of inches apart, according to size of tuber. Cover loosely with soil, or sand and soil, and keep warm and moist, but not wet. When they have grown four or five inches high, transplant to pots or boxes until time to set outside. The plants will show flower stalks within about six weeks from planting.

Many of the flowers that will bloom late in the autumn must be started now. Among these are chrysanthemums. Soon after the old plants are brought from the cellar, sprouts will appear. When these reach a growth of two inches, separate from the old plants, taking care to leave a bit of root attached; plant in small pots that have been filled with rich soil. Keep them in a moderate temperature, and water well until time for transplanting to the open.

WOULD DISFRANCHISE NEGRO.

Mr. Griggs, of Georgia, Advocates Drastic Measure.

Washington, April 20.—Mr. Griggs, of Georgia, made a speech in the House of Representatives yesterday favoring the disfranchisement of the negroes. He declared that this step was necessary to insure white control and to maintain peace and prosperity in the South.

"At present," he said, "the negro is only a menace, a scarecrow—not a factor in deciding political issues. The rights of the negroes of the South are secured only through white judges and white jurors, and those rights will not be changed by disfranchisement.

The claim that manual training and technical education of the negro of the South presented a solution of the race question was denied by Mr. Griggs. "That in itself is a recognition of the negro's inferiority," he said.

LOSES SUIT FOR $10,000.

Hackensack, April 20.—All Ridgefield Park is satisfied, for a jury here yesterday refused to award a cent damages to Albert Shafer, who sued to recover $10,000 from Benjamin B. Stern for the beating Stern gave him last June.

Shafer had insulted Mrs. Stern in passing while passing the Stern house: "Ah! there's a pretty girl; guess I'll kiss her."

Shafer had Stern indicted and fined $75 last December for the beating. Shafer claims to have been injured internally, but the jury offered no sympathy.

When Stern returned to his home in Ridgefield Park he was welcomed with flying flags and new brooms tied to porches.

Union County Board Decides to Improve Terrill Road After an Inspection.

MAJOR KING'S STATEMENT.

Director Says that Union County Will Be Ready for Realty Boom When Tunnels Are Built.

All of the members of the Union County Board of Freeholders, with the exception of William H. Swain, together with County Engineers F. J. Hubbard and J. L. Bauer and County Road Inspector J. W. Fink, inspected Terrill road Thursday afternoon for the purpose of seeing what should be done toward improving that thoroughfare. Following the inspection, which was made by the party in automobiles, luncheon was served at the Maplewood Hotel. During the repast, J. E. Martine made a speech.

Major Benjamin A. King, director of the Board of Freeholders, announced the intention to improve most of the county roads. The plan is to form a connecting link between Plainfield and Rahway, the idea being to extend Terrill road in Plainfield through Fanwood, Westfield, Clark Township and thence to Rahway. It has been suggested that the Somerset County Freeholders take up the other end of Terrill road and extend it into the centre of Somerset county.

Owing to the fact that the road appropriations have been made it will be impossible for the county to receive State funds for the improvement of the thoroughfare as named this year. There is a plan being *considered, however, for the free-*holders to undertake the proposition in anticipation of receiving State aid later on.

Speaking on the subject, Major King said:

"In a word, we want to be ready for the development which will strike this part of the State when the new tunnels and bridges and other plans for realty advancement take tangible form'."

Mr. King went on to explain that a main source of income through which it is hoped to make their increased expenditures on improvement is from the benefits of the new Frelinghuysen automobile law. By the provision of this law, framed especially to help Union county, the apportionment of funds from auto licenses, fines, etc., is distributed on a basis of county built roads. As Union county has built nearly all its roads without State aid, it has heretofore been cut off entirely in this manner. The fund is designed to enrich Union county this year by about $5,000.

These freeholders were in the party Thursday:

Major Benjamin A. King, director; E. L. Adams, Thomas J. Hopper, J. Boggs Walker, Robert C. Mahrer, John Robinson, Henry Krouse, Elston Darby, Bradford Jones, S. P. T. Wilbur, J. Hervey Doane, George B. Cladek, John H. Stephan, Peter H. Meisel, John N. Cady, Noah Woodruff, Charles A. Smith and Joseph Perry. They all appreciated the hospitality of the Plainfielders who furnished the automobiles for the trip. This was arranged for by H. W. Marshall, president of the Board of Trade, assisted by David T. Kenney, who kindly loaned his big touring car for the occasion.

Memorial Day Observance.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., has invited S. S. Swackhamer to make the address at the public exercises to be held at Reform Hall on the afternoon of Memorial Day, and it is expected he will accept. As yet the Post has not decided upon where it will attend divine service on the Sunday evening preceding Memorial Day, but this matter will be decided within a few days. The Memorial detail is now engaged in perfecting its plans for the visit of the veterans to the city and borough public schools. When that is done the annual orders for the observance of Memorial Day will be announced.

Little Miss Leary's Party.

Catherine Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Leary, of the Hotel Iroquois, celebrated the third anniversary of her birthday, Thursday, and in the afternoon a party was given in her honor. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Leary and a number of Miss Leary's young friends were present to enjoy the festivities and congratulate her. Among the guests was her cousin, Miss Edith Marie Vogel, of New York. The young people played games and enjoyed a repast. A feature of the affair was the reading of an original poem, "Our Autumn Girl," dedicated to Miss Leary. Each guest was presented with a copy. The young celebrant received a number of gifts.

A Great Excuse.

Mother to Frank—How is it that you're late home every night?

Mother—Why, what has the clock to do with it?

Frank—'Cause it's so big it takes the hands an awful long while to get round it.—If we had a clock like pa's little one I'd get home a great deal quicker.

NORTH AVE. MERCHANTS PETITION CITY FATHERS

The property-owners and merchants on North avenue have signed a petition to be presented to the Common Council urging that either a new pavement be laid on that thoroughfare or that the present pavement be oiled to eliminate the dust nuisance. The petition was circulated Thursday and within a short time practically everyone on the avenue had signed it. It is intended to present the petition to the Council at the regular May meeting.

Ever since the contract for the brick pavement was awarded the merchants and property-owners on North avenue have been making efforts to have that thoroughfare improved. By some it was considered a mistake that North avenue was omitted from those streets to be paved with brick. At the time the matter was being discussed by the city fathers, representative merchants and a committee from the Board of Trade appeared before that body and urged that a permanent pavement be laid in North avenue. The Councilmen did not feel warranted in making the improvement, it is said, but if sufficient pressure is now brought to bear it is believed the city fathers will be willing to give the residents on North avenue the relief they ask for and either lay a new pavement or try the oil as a prevention from dust.

TROUBLE AGAIN AMONG MT. OLIVE BAPTISTS

The mutual consent the pastoral relations of Rev. M. L. Alexander with the Mt. Olive Baptist church, have been dissolved and hereafter Mr. Alexander will conduct Sunday services in Reform Hall, while the church will take steps to obtain another pastor.

The change which is now in effect, is the result of a disatisfaction on the part of pastor and people extending over a period of several months. In a report presented to the church *last November by the board of dea-*cons it is declared that "many of the members of the church claim that the deacons insisted on forcing them to keep and maintain a man who is in no sense capable of the pastoral work of the church from the fact of lack of intelligence and from a physical standing."

The report then goes on to say that after a review of the facts a conference with the pastor was held and he was requested to resign, the church offering to pay him less salary with the understanding that he would preach at one Sunday service. The resignation was to take effect in three months. After a long discussion Mr. Alexander refused the offer.

The deacons then declared that after they had acted towards, deceitful and many hard names, called a meeting and again submitted the offer to Mr. Alexander. Again refusing the deacons decided to bring the matter before the whole church. As a result the pastoral relations were severed and Mr. Alexander today declared that he is no longer the pastor of the church, but that he would hereafter *conduct services every Sunday at Re-*form Hall. In the opinion of the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church there has been a steady decline in membership and interest and *the action of the deacons is consid-*ered essential for the welfare of the church.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

Ackerman will deliver one of his popular stereopticon lectures on his travels abroad for the benefit of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union. LAWRENCE'S TWO RECORDS.

Charles H. Line scored a total of 163.2 points in athletic competition at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday and won the title of gymnatic champion of Plainfield, securing the champion's gold medal offered by the association. Stryker Hoagland won second honors in the gym meet and his score of 146.2 gives him a silver medal. E. E. Vail won third honors with a score of two-tenths of a point lower. He will receive a bronze medal. Walter Sampson won fourth place with a total of 134.1 points.

Russell Lawrence, the schoolboy champion, hung up new records in two events, the shot put and the standing broadjump. He competed without a handicap and broke the association record in the broad jump by 2¼ inches, clearing 9 feet 7¾ inches. In competition as a shot-putter, Lawrence boosted the 12-pound weight 50 feet 3 inches, which established a new Y. M. C. A. record.

The score in the gymnastic and athletic events, with the handicaps of the contestants, follow:

Parallel bars: Line, 54; Hoagland, 50.5; Sampson, 48.8; Vail, 47.5.

PROPOSED FIRE HOUSE PLANS ARE INSPECTED

Councilman Robert E. Hall presented a set of plans for the proposed new fire house in the East End of the city, at a meeting of the Councilmanic Fire Committee, Friday. They call for a two-story brick structure equipped with all modern conveniences. The members were much pleased with the plants, it is said, but some were of the opinion that if followed the cost of construction would be too great. It is estimated that it will cost between $12,000 and $15,000 to build the structure desired. The probable cost of the apparatus and other equipment has not been agreed upon. A report will be made at the May meeting of the Common Council.

The city recently purchased a site for the fire house on South avenue, adjoining the Netherwood station park. It faces the south and the location is considered ideal for the purpose desired. It is the hope of the committee to get matters in such shape that the building can be erected this summer.

VanWyck Property Sold.

The handsome residential property at Stelle and Plainfield avenues, formerly occupied by P. R. VanWyck, was sold yesterday to R. H. Hood, a wealthy retired New York merchant and he expects to take possession this summer. The property has a frontage of 250 feet on Stelle avenue, and extends back to Randolph road. Mr. Hood is delighted with his new home, the choice of which was made after visiting several other suburban towns in New Jersey. The consideration is not known, but it was a cash deal, Mr. Hood paying the entire amount to Charles H. Lynn, the broker, who negotiated the transaction for the owner. Mr. Hood is now making his home at the Hotel Savoy, New York. His new property here is one of the finest in the city.

SPORTING NOTES.

It is reported that Ruth Dillon, 2:15¼, the crack three-year-old half mile track filly, will be raced again this season.

Over $100,000 worth of power boats—that is a conservative estimate of the value of the engine driven craft in the Lakewood Yacht Club of Cleveland.

The Pacific Athletic Association, after investigation, reports that it has been unable to discover that Ralph Rose, champion shot putter, is a professional as charged.

Report says that Harry McKerron (3) 2.24¼, by John A. McKerron, 2.04½, has been entered by H. D. Devereux in the international prize contest to be decided at Moscow, Russia, next year.

COUNTY TO BUILD BRIDGE

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE HERE

As a result of Thursday's conference between the Somerset County Freeholders and the borough officials, the county board is to build a concrete bridge on Somerset street at Greenbrook road, and will probably take action favorable to North Plainfield in the matter of macadamizing and maintaining Greenbrook road to the borough limits and the extension of Watchung avenue to Somerset street. The board will hold its next regular meeting May 14 and at that time will decide upon the matter of the two roads.

The conference yesterday showed the county and borough officials to be on the best of terms, and there seems to be a desire on the part of the Freeholders to grant the petitions of the North Plainfield Council. Yesterday's meeting was attended by all but two members of the Board of Freeholders and they came to North Plainfield in company with their counsel, John A. Breck, and County Engineer Joshua Doughty, Jr. They were received at the Council chamber by Mayor Samuel Townsend and Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed. With the borough officials were B. R. Waldron, of the North Plainfield street committee, A. I. Smalley and W. L. Smalley, Jr., as property owners on Greenbrook road, and George Bird, who owns property which will be affected by the extension of Watchung avenue.

At the council chamber Mayor Townsend spoke of a feeling on the part of North Plainfielders that it is impossible to get anything from the county for local improvements. He said that he did not take this antagonistic stand against the Freeholders, and that the Council had framed the petition with the expectation of action by the Board and a square deal. He mentioned the fact that this is the first time that the borough has asked for any road improvements at the expense of the county, and urged that this be all the more of an instigation to the Freeholders to grant the requests of the North Plainfield government.

Along similar lines was the speech of Corporation Counsel to the Board. He stated the tax basis for the town and showed that the borough has been annually turning over large sums of money on the county tax and has as yet received no tangible benefits. "Last year," Mr. Reed said, "we paid $25,500 in tax to the borough for our local needs. We spent it in the maintainance of our street, fire and police departments, and we have something to show for our money. We also raised $20,264 for county tax longer ago and have nothing to show for that." He concluded by urging the Board to consider favorably the petitions for the bridge and road maintainance.

At the conclusion of the session in the Council chamber, the Freeholders and boroughites were driven in four carriages to the Somerset street bridge, where the county engineer *made a careful inspection. As a re-*sult, it was announced that the new concrete bridge petitioned for would be erected at the expense of the county and that work would be started at once. The party next drove over Greenbrook road to the western limits of the borough and later went over Watchung avenue and discussed the petition for extension of that road *to Somerset street. At the conclu-*sion of their long drive, they adjourned to Blatz's Hotel for lunch, and after a short business session, at which routine matters were disposed of, they formally adjourned.

Although no official statement of the proposed action of the Board about roads was made yesterday, Mayor Townsend said today that he *believed that the Board looked fa-*vorably upon the petitions of that road to Somerset street. At the conclus

WILL RETURN FLAGS CAPTURED FROM SOUTH

Under the concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate and the House of Assembly of the New Jersey Legislature, which was signed several weeks ago by Governor John Franklin Fort, preparations are being made by Adjutant General R. Heber Brientall and his office force to return to their original owners nine flags of Confederate troops which were captured by the Third and the Seventh Regiments of New Jersey Volunteer Infantry at the battles of Manassas and Chancellorsville during the early part of the Civil War.

Since the return of the New Jersey troops at the close of the war, or for more than forty years, the flags have been in possession of the State military authorities. They have been kept in vaults in the cellars of the State House, in Trenton, and are today in exactly the condition in which they were received from the fields of battle, on which New Jersey's volunteers bore the brunt of the fray in some of the hardest fighting of the entire four years of bitter strife between the North and the South.

When taken from their long place of rest the other day, some of them split in places where the silk of which they were made had been folded for two-score years or more; but this did not destroy them to any appreciable extent.

In nearly all of them are holes made by bullets from the rifles of the contending forces in the desperate struggles in which they were taken, while the ragged edges of most of them show plainly how the grade of the flag staff the flag was shot away in the conflict. On one of them, a large silk flag, which is said to have been made from a shawl once worn by a Southern society belle, there are plainly discernible, on the broad crimson stripes and light brown stripes into which it was fashioned, blood stains, presumably from its defenders.

In the very center of that flag is embroidered in golden-hued silk a single word in the word "Field," similarly embroidered, which seems to be the last word in a sentence which was torn from the flag by shot and shell in the battle of Manassas before its capture, on March 4, 1862, by Company A, Third New Jersey Volunteers, Captain D. Vickers, after several days of the hottest kind of fighting, which resulted in the New Jersey brigade of which the Third Regiment was a part compelling the Confederate troops to evacuate a commanding position at Manassas. From the records of Foster's "New Jersey in the Rebellion" is gained the information that the missing portions of the sentence would make it read "Carolinians in the Field." Following this, and still in good condition is embroidered on the flag the legend: "Traitors, Beware!"

Of the other flags which New Jersey is soon to return to the States of the original owners, four are Confederate "Jacks," which were used as guide flags and field headquarters flags. They are about five feet square, of bunting, and are in a perfect state of preservation. They have a deep red body, wide border of white, with a cross of St. Andrew extending across the full length and breadth of each.

Seven-Minute Trolley Schedule.

The Public Service Corporation has agreed to the proposition to operate the Netherwood cars through the business part of the city as far west as Grant avenue, providing a seven-minute schedule in this part of the city. It is expected that permission will be granted at the company's meeting in May. If the company could obtain permission to install several "Y's" in the city new and improved cars would be placed on the lines, but no action is expected soon regarding this matter.

Block of Five Sentenced.

Patrick O'Connell, Clarence Horten, William Gilbert, Gus Kolliehy, Michael Zugart and Peter Buzzee were committed to jail by Justice Sedam at New Brunswick on Saturday to serve five days each for disorderly conduct. They were arrested for trespassing on the railroad in South Plainfield.

Delicious Baked Apples.

Peel and core, the apples, then place in a deep pan, allowing a heaping teaspoonful of sugar and half a cup of water to each apple. In the centre of each apple place a tablespoonful of chopped nuts and a strip of lemon or orange peel, and over the whole sprinkle cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake very slowly and the juice will become jellylike.

AMUSEMENTS.

Easter week's program at Proctor's Newark theatre promises to be as bright and welcome as a spring floral. Easter Morn. Vaudeville's greatest producer, Jesse L. Lasky, offering his latest sensation, "A Night on a House Boat," the scenic effects are especially pretentious for a vaudeville offering. Special novel music and comedy makes this one of Mr. Lasky's best efforts. Willard Simms and company offer their side splitting sketch, "Flinders' Furnished Flat." Griff, one of England's best festive jugglers, will appear here for the first time. Wynn and Lewis offer a lively conversational turn of up to date witticisms and parodies. Ferreros, the great French animal trainer, offers his wonderfully trained dog in a series of acrobatic feats that show a great amount of patience and skill on the part of the trainer. Wills and Hassan, two of the world's greatest equilibrists, appear in a turn bordering on the sensational. Of great interest to the Newarkers will be the Proctor debut of one of her native sons, Jos. A. Gaby, in an amusing monologue, brim full of originality and humor. Murphy and Francis, high class colored entertainers and a new ludicrous film of animated pictures.

During the New Orleans engagement of John Drew in "My Wife" last week, the local newspapers frequently reported the weather to be "as nice as Billie Burke."

A rare treat will be accorded the patrons of the Grand Opera House, during the week commencing Monday, April 20, when Cohan & Harris will present for the first time at present in this city, Geo. M. Cohan's gigantic musical success, "The Talk of New York." Victor Moore as "Kid Burns" has in one season, jumped from comparative obscurity to the position of one of America's greatest stars. The "Talk of New York," replete with catchy music, comely maidens, and Cohanesque situations, is now on Broadway, where, for the past twenty (20) weeks delighted audiences have packed the theatre. Immediately prior to its Broadway engagement, it played to capacity for twelve weeks in one of Chicago's largest playhouses. "The Talk of New York" is in four acts and as much care has been paid to the scenic effects and costuming as characterize all of the other Cohan successes. Seats now on sale.

Margaret Dale, who is declared by Acton Davies and other competent judges to have builded permanently for herself by her splendid performance of "Bessie Brayton," in support of William H. Crane in "Father and the Boys," is, oddly enough, neither the daughter of a Confederate general, the graduate of a convent in the vicinity or an automobile accident, nor the subject of the latest diamond robbery. These deficiences have always limited the scope of Miss Dale's achievements. They have prevented her from being anything more than an excellent actress on the stage by separating her from the large army of those who are content with being fine actresses off the stage.

The twenty-third week of Augustus Thomas' drama, "The Witching Hour," still finds it firmly intrenched at the Hackett theatre, New York, where it is doing capacity business. It is unanimously considered among those who liberally patronize the theatres that this play is unquestionably the biggest success seen in New York in many years. One strong feature of its drawing power is that it appeals to all classes. Inasmuch as it combines theatrical entertainment with mental divertisement, it is just the sort of play that makes the theatres after witnessing a performance encourage others to attend. The comedy element is so piquant, and its humor so irresistable that it supplies a much needed relief to the tired business man jaded after a hard day's work. The usual Thursday and Saturday matinees are liberally patronized by out of town residents, and for the special convenience of the suburbanites who will be in New York on Easter Monday, April 20, an extra matinee will be given on that date.

A commentator on matters musical recently wanted to know through the columns of a newspaper if Franz Lehar had copied the wonderfully melodious "Merry Widow" waltz, which is the big hit at the New Amsterdam theatre show of that name, from an air of Mendelssohn's oratorio of "St. Paul." He asks: "Is the 'Merry Widow' waltz only a skillfully concealed appropriation from Mendelssohn, dead these sixty years?" A vaudeville performer and her husband, an orchestra leader, have made affidavits that the "Merry Widow" waltz is practically identical with the music of the waltz of the opera "Le Paradis de Mohammet" composed by M. Robert Palinquet, a French composer, dead these many years. It is a pity that Messrs. Mendelssohn and Palinquet are dead else we might put it down to them. Under the circumstances, however, it seems but meet to leave the discussion to the dead composers' respective champions—the commentator and the vaudevillian. Until these two have arrived at a common decision, it seems hardly necessary to call Herr Lehar to the stand.

TOBACCO COMPANY REDEEMING TAGS FROM MANY BRANDS.

According to reports from the local dealers in tobacco more people are saving tobacco tags than ever before in the history of the giving of presents in exchange for tobacco tags. This tremendous increase in tag saving is due to the action of the American Tobacco Company in offering a remarkable list of valuable presents in return for tags from various popular tobaccos.

Such brands as Standard, Navy, Sailor's Pride, Town Talk, Tinsley's, Granger Twist, Jolly Tar, Horse Shoe, and about a dozen others, bear tags which can be exchanged for presents. An idea of what can be accomplished by so far-reaching a cooperative system is gathered from such sample offers as the giving of an English Steel Razor for only 50 tags.

Reports in the tobacco trade indicate that dealers throughout the country are laying in stocks of these cuts in order to be able to meet the extra boom in tobacco tag saving. In places where the dealers are not supplied with presents, the American Tobacco Company is redeeming by mail—tag-savers selecting the presents they wish from a free catalog.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

For linen suits which will hold first place among washable materials colored trimmings will be popular.

Instead of trying for a Lady Hamilton or a Romney effect, the latest fashion decree calls for a reproduction of the classic draperies of old Greece.

Skirts are longer. For all but the typical walking suits they are very long and sweeping, while the street suits have taken on another inch and just escape the ground.

Frocks of wash materials will be made up in the same semi-tailored style as rules other fabrics at present. If anything the skirts will be more elaborately trimmed, but always in such a way as to lose none of that semi-tailored appearance.—New York Post.

TALES OF CITIES.

The birth rate in New York in 1907 was one baby every three and a half minutes during the year. The death rate was one in every five and one-third minutes. There was a marriage for every eight and one-third minutes.

Conway, Me., boasts that it is the most distinctive woman's town in America. Every line of commerce and finance, trade and profession is successfully carried on by women. Women not only clothe that and shoe the population, but they own and run the meat markets, the three hotels, they bury the dead and marry the living.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

People tolerate those they fear further than those they love.

As people grow older the days become shorter and the nights longer.

Many persons would be bright if they were not too lazy to scour off the rust.

The farther away a man gets from the day of his sin the more he is convinced he is not guilty.

There are very few things that you can receive an invitation to and not be called upon afterward to pay your dues.—Atchison Globe.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

The new play in which Eddie Foy is to appear is called "The Wild and Woolly West."

The company in "Until We Meet Again" has disbanded. It is said the play will be revised.

Harry Kellar and Paul Valedon, the noted masters of legerdemain, have combined this season in a program of novel tricks and innovations in the black art.

Delicious Dessert.

Hominy or rice boiled to a jelly may be molded in cups for dessert and served with a jelly sauce. Thin the jelly with hot water, add a little lemon juice or sherry and a trifling portion of thickening in the form of corn starch if the jelly is thinned very much. Very sour jellies, like currant, will bear thinning, while the more solid jelly needs only melting with a little water and turning around the molds of rice.

Sea moss blanc mange may be served in similar fashion, although nothing is better on it than sugar and cream. It is quite too bad that this simple sea plant should be quite for it is sure to be pure and harmful, containing properties from the sea that are helpful to delicate throats. It is often made into a mucilaginous drink with lemon for this purpose.

Dr. N. H. Probasco to Build.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of East Front street, has purchased the vacant lot on West Seventh street, adjoining that of A. H. Afterbury, and is planning to erect a commodious dwelling there for his occupancy. The property was formerly owned by H. B. Goombs and was afterwards purchased by Mayor C. J. Fisk and Mr. Afterbury from whom Dr. Probasco bought it. When Mr. Coombs was the owner he had plans prepared for an apartment house there, but later he decided to remove from the city and abandoned the proposition.

Local Boys Take Uphill Game From Strong Metropolitan Nine.

THE SCORE WAS NINE-SEVEN.

Plainfielders Batted In Runs In the Sixth Inning, When Poly Led.

The Plainfield High School baseball nine won the season's third victory over metropolitans school team at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. When a batting rally in the sixth netted five runs and gave the schoolboys an uphill victory over the Brooklyn Poly Prep team. The final score was 9-7. The Plainfielders started in with a ragged exhibition, and Poly led 5-2 up to the sixth, when the local team got together and clinched the game by good stick work.

Hits by Mulvihill and Crafts, together with a couple of errors by the local team, started the scoring in the first inning, when three Brooklyn boys crossed the plate. Blanking the Plainfielders, Poly added two more in their second session with the willow, when Bryan's triple and another single by Crafts helped out materially. For P. H. S., Dutcher was out at third for trying to stretch his two-bagger for another sack, but Deane's single scored Snyder, who drew a pass, with the first run for the home nine. Dodwell and Snyder scored on a passed ball by Butler, of Poly, in the fourth.

The local nine took the game in the fifth, when Gildes, Dey and Dutcher hit safely after Wiarda had given two men passes and hit a third High School batter. Butler scored for Poly in the seventh and ninth; Dutcher's hit in the eighth scored Gildes and the Plainfielders did not need to come to bat in the ninth. The score in detail:

TIMELY STAGE NOTES FROM NEW YORK TOWN.

Much of the characteristic excellence of Frank Keenan's Virginia gentleman and soldier, Gen. Warren, in "The Warrens of Virginia," is due to the actor's painstaking study of the Virginia people at close hand. After "The Girl of the Golden West" closed its season last year Mr. Keenan went to Virginia and spent his vacation there.

"The Warrens of Virginia" will complete its 150th performance at the Belasco theatre with the Thursday matinee, April 16.

The same little black-and-tan dog that was secured for the first performance of "The Music Master" is still in the cast at Belasco's Stuyvesant theatre, where David Warfield is appearing in his famous character of von Barwig every night except Saturday. The little animal appears only in the first act.

Charles B. Batchelor, of New York, has been appointed boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A. to succeed L. A. Soule, who resigned from the office several weeks ago and has returned to his home in Jamestown, N. Y., to enter the real estate business. He will commence his duties in this city June 1.

Mr. Batchelor is a graduate of Columbia University, class of 1907, and has been active in association work for the past ten years. He was for several years physical director of the boys' department at the West Side Y. M. C. A. in New York city, where he is at present assistant director of boys' work. Previous to his employment there, Mr. Batchelor was for several years a volunteer worker in the boys' department at the Brooklyn central association. The international boys' secretary and the State boys' secretary of the association gave the young man a high recommendation to President J. W. Gavett, of the local association.

Mr. Soule, who succeeded H. W. Barrows as boys' secretary last September, resigned his position here April 1. Kenneth Robbie was the first regular boys' secretary. Until Mr. Bachleor assumes his new duties, William LaTourette is acting as boys' secretary and general assistant to Secretary Parker.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER IS REPORTED INDICTED

It was rumored in the Court House at Newark on Monday that the grand jury had found indictments against some of the parties accused of being responsible for the death of Marietta Vliet, of Blairstown.

The circumstances of the death of the choir singer were laid before the jury on Tuesday. The testimony in the main was of a medical nature.

Miss Vliet died in the City Hospital last month after an alleged illegal operation. Those held as a result of the investigation that followed were Irving Van Riper, of Hope, Miss Vliet's fiance; Mrs. Sadie M. Dodge, of New Brunswick, and formerly of North Plainfield, her companion at the time she was taken to Mrs. Cargellus John's home in New York; John Bennett, and Dr. Hermann A. Glatzmayer.

BABY CAMP BENEFIT AT MRS. RUNKLE'S

Mrs. H. G. Runkle, of 531 West Eighth street, has offered her home for a private view of the important art collection formed by the well-known amateur, A. A. Hokes, prior to its public exhibition and sale in New York city. The exhibition will be given for the benefit of the King's Daughter Baby Camp, on Thursday night, April 30. The collection, while not large, is pronounced by connoisseurs a choice one. It includes notable paintings by old and modern masters, see Kakamoora belonging to an ancient dynasty and an exceptionally fine example of "Peachblow."

During the evening an attractive musical program will be interpreted by the following artists, who have generously offered their services: Miss Grace Carroll and Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto and mezzo-contralto, and Willard Wadsworth, baritone.

One of the delightful features of the evening will be Haydn's great nature Symphonie in C," and Chwatal's "Cine Heitere Schlittenpartie," will be rendered by the world-renowned "Rinder Orchestra," every member of which is a soloist, conducted by its inimitable leader, Herr Von Tinklemeister.

As the seating capacity is not large the number of tickets is limited. Requests for seats will be filled in the order of application. They may be obtained from Mrs. Runkle on April 22, 23 and 24, between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. It is requested that the audience be seated promptly by 8:15 o'clock.

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT PASSES AWAY IN GERMANY

Friends in Plainfield have received news of the death of Gustav Schipper, for many years a prominent local resident, which occurred on April 8 at his home in Oldenburg, Germany. He had been in ill health for a long time but his demise was unexpected.

Mr. Schipper was sixty-seven years old and a native of Oldenburg, but came to this country when a young man. He was a brother-in-law of the late Charles Schipper, of West Seventh street, and lived for many years on East Ninth street. He returned to Germany in 1903, believing the ocean voyage and the change of climate would benefit his failing health and it did to a certain extent.

Mr. Schipper married a Miss Escher, a member of one of Oldenburg's finest families, who with one child survives him. The young woman came to this city to visit Charles Schipper's family and it was while a guest there that she was introduced to her future husband. The wedding took place here and was a social event.

While not as actively engaged in hospital and other philanthropic work as was Charles Schipper, the deceased was a broad-minded, liberal man and his beneficiaries in Plainfield were equally as numerous.

During the year 1907 the order paid out more than $5,500,000 in relief of 120,000 of its members and 7,500 widowed families, and in the education of orphans and burial of the dead.

UNVEIL A MEMORIAL TO THEIR LATE PASTOR

Special interest was attached to *the later services of the First Bap*tist church Sunday for the fact that the handsome bronze tablet in memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. Yerkes, who was pastor of the church from 1862 to 1905, was in position and seen for the first time. It occupies a prominent place just inside the auditorium and was greatly admired yesterday by the large congregations.

The tablet bears an excellent bust figure of Dr. Yerkes, and the following inscription: "In loving Memory of David Johns Yerkes, D. D., Pastor of this Church, 1862-1905. To Live in the Hearts we Leave Behind is Not to Die." The tablet is now fastened temporarily to a board, which will soon be replaced by a marble slab. It is the work of the Hitman Bronze Company, of this city, and is considered a fine piece of work. Alexander Gilbert was the chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

CAPT. HOPKINS EFFORTS

Head of Local Salvation Army Corps at Work Getting Barrack's Finances in Shape.

HE HELPS THE TAXPAYER.

Keeps Well Known Characters Names Off Police Blotters By Reforming Them—Receiving Good Support.

In organizing the work of the Salvation Army in this city on a practical business basis as far as the matter of donations is concerned, Captain Arthur Hopkins has aroused greater interest in the work here and has proportionally broadened the local field. He and his wife, both of whom are a notable feature of so many of the meetings, at heart and soul in the work, and have won the support of many for the charitable work of the corps.

Captain Hopkins succeeded Ensign James Johnson as the head of the local corps in June. His first work was to inform himself perfectly as to the financial condition of the corps and to prepare a budget of the cost of maintaining the work. He found that it is costing $2,600 annually to continue the work, with the receipts from donations, collections and box contributions near year amounted to but $650. Maintaining that perpetual "nagging" for money is a poor policy, he has adopted the system of securing annual subscriptions for the work.

His canvass has resulted in obtaining $750 toward banking up the deficit. Among those who are interested in the support of the work are Harry G. Runkle, Mrs. Percy Stewart, C. W. McCutchen, E. S. Hooley, Alexander Gilbert, Alexander Millar, R. B. Corey, John D. Loizeaux and William S. Hyde.

"So many people misunderstand the work we are doing here," said the Captain to a Daily Press reporter today. "They think we are solely a charitable organization for the poor, whereas we are striving to bring about a reformation of the poor and the unchurched masses. First and foremost, then, our work is of a religious nature, for you know there are some people who do not care to attend the churches, thinking, I suppose, that their clothes are not good enough.

"The maintainance of this work is really an advantage to the taxpayer. You see, we have been successful in bringing into our corps several who were constantly an expense to the city through police court, drunken characters are such an expense to the community that you would be astonished to hear the figures. I heard recently that fifteen character, reformed through the agency of the Salvation Army corps in Buffalo, cost that city $47,000 for their support while in jail and in bringing about their arrest. They were constantly in the lock-up, it seemed.

"Now right here in Plainfield we have effected the conversion of two drunken characters, a man and a woman, whose names you can see with regular frequency on the police court blotters of several years ago. We have not been successful in every case, but we are never discouraged and are greatly encouraged by the fact that these two, at least, have entirely quit drinking and now are self-supporting, in Christian homes.

"The Industrial Home is a distinct branch of the work of the Salvation Army, and is practically self-supporting. Our first object in this is to supply employment for men who constantly appeal to us. They are mostly men who are 'down and out' and have a bad record, so that after they reform, it is hard for them to find a job and get a new start in life. We send them out to collect papers and magazines, which we sell to the paper mills. Clothing, too, is donated in large quantities, and this we distribute to the needy poor. You may be surprised to know that most of these poor people whom we supply with clothing insist upon paying for it. They feel, and rightly too, I think, that they are preserving a certain independence by paying for what they get, even if it is only a little, and would rather pay than be supplied gratis."

Captain Hopkins is now engaged in his canvass and is personally visiting the residents of city and borough. He is a practical business man as well as a powerful element in the religious work of the corps and in addition is a most efficient manager and officer.

QUIET HOME WEDDING ON EASTER DAY.

Miss Charlotte Jawsey, of Denmark road, became the wife of William Joseph Ashton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ashton, of East Sixth street, at a quiet home wedding at the house of the bride Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Searing Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church, and was attended by only the immediately relatives and friends of the couple.

Miss Jawsey's parents are in England, and she came to this country but a short time ago. The couple left for British Columbia today, and will make their home there.

JOYOUS MUSIC IN ALL CHURCHES ON EASTER DAY

Despite the Rainy Weather, Large Congregations Attended Services Both Morning and Night.

FLORAL DECORATIONS PROFUSE

Inspiring Sermons On the Risen Lord a Feature—Musical Programs Elaborate.

In all the churches Sunday the Christian Feast marking the anniversary of the Resurrection was observed by elaborate services.

Holy Cross.

Easter lillies, azaleas, palms and smilax were used lavishly in the decoration of Holy Cross church for the five Easter Day services. A triple lancet window design, executed in trailing smilax on the dorsal added impressiveness to the decoration, and the chancel was banked with lillies. At the conclusion of the evening service, the flowers were distributed to the congregation by choir boys at the door. There were unusually large congregations at all the services.

Two altar lights were presented to the church by sisters of Herbert Brooks, as a memorial to their brother, and these were used for the first at the 6 o'clock communion service. The full vested choir of forty voices was in attendance at all the services and led the rendition of the Easter carols by the Sunday-school at the children's service in the morning. Choirmaster H. Raymond Lodor was at the organ and sang "He Is Risen," as the offertory at the morning service. The rector, Rev. George A. Warner, preached morning and evening, his texts being II Timothy, 2: 8, and Galatians 3: 13. At the service of holy baptism Saturday afternoon, ten children were baptized. The mite box offering from the Sunday-school was the largest in the history of the church, and will be devoted to church missions.

First Presbyterian.

Elaborate decorations consisting of flowers, plant and greens, and a fine program of music, combined to make the Easter services at the First Presbyterian church attractive. The music was in charge of Clifford A. Braider, organist, and the quartet, comprising Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, and Herbert D. Byard, baritone, sang several anthems and solo numbers at both the morning and evening services. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, in the morning preached an Easter sermon and in the evening gave the third discourse in the series on "The Apostles Creed." In the afternoon the Sunday-school took part in a special program, consisting of Easter carols and concert recitations.

First Baptist.

What was probably one the most elaborate floral displays at the First Baptist church was witnessed at the Easter services Sunday. There was a massive bank of azaleas, lillies, varied colored carnations about the pulpit platform, while about the choir loft and organ was an attractive arrangement of greens, all from the conservatories of C. W. McCutchen.

The program began with a prelude, "Adagio," violin and organ, Miss Florence Wohlfert and Howard Case, after which the church choir sang several anthems. The solo parts were taken by Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Gertrude Tinz, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George H. Smith, tenor. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor, occupied the pulpit, assisted by his brother, Rev. Joseph Chambliss, who offered prayer, and at the request of many, he preached the same sermon delivered just five years ago, with a little different arrangement of the subject matter. The theme was "Consider the Lilies of the Field How They Grow." It was a masterly discourse.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock the Sunday-school exercises were held. These consisted of Easter songs by the school, anthems by the choir, Scripture reading, Easter message and son, "Lord, Who Lovest Little Children," by the primary department, a recitation by Dorothy Hall; offertory, "Cradle Song," violin and piano; recitation and song, by the girls of the Junior department, with a "Song of Victory," by the Junior department. At this service Miss Wohlfert and William Dorr assisted with violins and Miss Jessie Utter was at the piano. Superintendent George H. Batchelor had charge of the exercises, assisted by F. W. Jones and J. E. Church.

A feature of the afternoon program was a concert recitation, with a solo by Miss Elsie Moore and chorus of five children, comprising Miss Emeline Manning, Miss Grace Hunt, Miss Elsie Moore, Miss Dorothy Hall and Eleanor Browning.

Trinity Reformed Church.

The Easter services at Trinity Reformed church, both morning and evening, Sunday, were largely attended and the hearts of both old and young were made joyful by the fine programs arranged by Arthur L. Titsworth, organist and choirmaster, and Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent of the primary department. The services for the day began with a sunrise meeting, an annual feature greatly enjoyed. There were fifty-three persons present. Martin A. Korff was in charge and Miss Nora Schenck, soprano, sang a solo, while E. D. Young gave a cornet solo, both being highly appreciated.

The beautiful display of flowers, plants and palms was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. Jacob Beekman, Mrs. L. R. Schofield, Mrs. G. W. Cole and Mrs. Henry VanName, and was greatly admired.

The special music at the morning service was rendered by the regular church quartet, Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; Edmund D. Young, tenor, and Fred S. Cutter, bass. Mr. Titsworth was at the organ. A feature of both this and the evening service was the playing of W. Paulding DeNike, 'cellist, of New York. In the morning he delighted the congregation with four solos and in the evening he rendered three selections in a way that made a host of friends for him. He was accompanied by Mr. Titsworth in the morning and by Miss Lillian A. Force on the piano in the evening.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson delivered a pleasing Easter sermon in the morning from the third chapter of Philippians and part of the tenth verse, the theme being "The Power of Christ's Resurrection." The discourse for the evening was from the subject, "The Stone Rolled Away."

At the close of the morning service, Robert Clark, Jr., chairman of the finance committee, presented a statement of the church's finances for the year. The total amount raised for denominational benevolences was $1,015.03, while $572.89 was contributed to other benevolences. The amount given to congregational expenses was $6,036.36, making a total of $7,624.28. Mr. Clark added that all bills are paid and there is a small balance in the treasury. He also took occasion to speak of the warm words which he heard at the meeting of the Newark Classis concerning the relations between the church and Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schneck, whose active pastorate has ended.

In the evening the service was in charge of the Sunday-school, and assisting was an orchestra composed of C. P. Wheeler, violin; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute; R. W. Barnes, violin; E. D. Young, cornet, and Miss Lillian A. Force, pianist. Horace J. Martin, who acted as precentor and led the school and congregation in the singing of Easter carols.

An interesting feature of this service as the part taken by the little folks from the school, under the direction of Mrs. L. M. Tier, superintendent primary department. An exercise, entitled "Easter Gifts," was given by the following members of the beginners' department: Alma Allegar, Florence VanNest, Dorothy Ross, Donald Willett, Alfred Baker and Carmen Trenbath.

This program by the members of the primary department was then followed:

Recitations, "An Easter Herald," Adela Freeman; "The Easter Dress," Wilma Thew; song, "Open Wide Your Dreaming Eyes," primary department; recitations, "My Easter Lesson," Alfred Willett; "The Minister's Call," Howard Willett; "The Least I Can Do," Malcolm Sheppard; "The Children Are Happy," Marion Wyckoff; exercise, "What Shall We Wear?" During the evening the dances Eliza Dufford and Alice Brown sang a duet and Miss Dufford also sang a solo.

Seventh-Day Baptist.

Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson assisted with the violin, while Miss Mabel Maxson was at the organ and Miss Jessie Utter at the organ. There was a prelude, violin, organ and piano; Gloria from 12th Mass, Mozart; offertory solo, George H. Smith, and after brief remarks by Rev. A. H. Lewis on the subjects, "The Background of the Crucifixion," and "If I the Cross Were All," the choir rendered the cantata, "The Crucifixion," by Schnecker. The services were concluded with an anthem, "Alleluia," Humphrey, the benediction and recessional, piano and organ, Rev. Dr. A. J. Gardiner expected to take part in the service, but was called to New York to preach in the Seventh-Day Baptist church there.

Faith Chapel.

The principal Easter service at Faith chapel was held Sunday night under the auspices of the Sunday-school, of which L. W. Randolph is the superintendent. In the opening exercises Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss read the Scripture lesson and his brother, Rev. Dr. Joseph Chambliss, offered prayer. This program was then followed:

Kemble, pastor, officiated. The members of the school participated in a special program, including concert recitations, singing of carols, while Mr. Kemble gave a short address. The superintendent, Walter McGee, was in charge. Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano.

In the morning and evening there was special music by a chorus choir and Easter sermons by the pastor. The theme in the morning was "The Significance of Christ's Resurrection," and in the evening he delivered a unique discourse, using a lump of coal as the basis of his remarks for the theme, "Why should it seem a thing incredible to you that God should raise the Dead."

He said that the lump of coal which he held in his hand and had fallen millions of years ago, represented light, heat and power and by this illustration he showed the possibilities of the Resurrection. He said that coal represented carbon in humiliation and through the process the diamond was glorified and shown in its greatest purity. This he likened unto the body glorified through the cleansing progress of the Holy Spirit. The idea impressed on the congregation was that if such wonderful things could be accomplished with coal, why should the Resurrection be attended by doubts in the minds of the people.

Park Avenue Baptist.

"The Story of Calvary," an Easter cantata, was the feature of the service at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning. The rendition was by the chorus choir under the direction of Rev. H. Lowry. Horace Martin was the narrator, while Arthur Mosher and Miss Arline Brown assisted with violins. The pastor, Rev. A. E. Frazee, and vocal solos by Mrs. William H. Sebring and Miss Adelia Runyon, together with instrumental selections by the school orchestra and violin accompaniment by Miss Arline Brown, recitation by Miss Elinor Stutsman, with quartet accompaniment and carols.

The choir rendered special music in the evening and the pastor preached on the subject, "The Resurrection of the Spiritually Dead," after which he baptized Miss Lily Hibbin, Miss Florence A. Crammer, Miss Lilian Van Winkle and Charles Edward Dalby. There were large congregations at all three services.

Crone, superintendent, gave a program of songs and recitations published in The Daily Press on Saturday.

McKelvey, the pastor, preached morning and evening, and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey was at the organ. The choir of fifteen members sank at all services.

A special program of Easter carols marked the Sunday-school festival in the afternoon, with Miss Elsie Godard sang "The Joyous Morn," and there was special singing by the infant class, of sixty members. Martin sang Shelley's "Resurrection," Mrs. Thos. McDonald sang "Salvation," and Dykman Winckler played a violin solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." Rev. Ophel Shoop, the pastor, preached morning and evening, and at the evening service, which was particularly well attended, Mrs. McDonald sang "The Golden Harps Are Sounding," and Mr. Winckler played Handel's Largo. Miss Alice Carroll was at the organ for the services and there was special music by the choir of twelve voices.

Grace Episcopal.

Rev. Dr. F. C. Wendell, of East Haddam, Connecticut, assisted Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, at all the Easter services at Grace P. E. church Sunday. The chancel was handsomely decorated with Easter lillies, potted plants and palms and the dorsal was covered with smilax, which was used effectively in decoration of the walls of the sanctuary. W. E. MacClymont was at the organ, and music by the vested choir was a feature at all the services. In the afternoon came the Sunday-school Easter festival, when the children met in the church and sang their Easter carols. The Lenten mite box offering for missions was collected at this time. At the evensong service of Saturday, three infants and an adult were received in Holy Baptism, the rector officiating.

The Easter festival of the Sunday-school was held in the afternoon, and the musical program included the singing of Easter carols. Each child was presented with a potted plant at the conclusion of the rector's address on the Resurrection.

Congregational Church.

The Easter service at the Congregational church was held Sunday morning, there being special music. Mrs. Thomas McDonald rendered a soprano solo, "Salvation," and violin solos, "Cavatina," "Adagio," and "Traumerei" were given by Miss Rose Fond, a talented musician from New York. The other numbers were, anthem, "Come Sing We Loud Hosannas," Spence; "I Am He that Liveth," King; "In the End of the Sabbath," McFarlane. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich occupied the pulpit and preached an excellent sermon. There was no evening service.

In the afternoon, the Sunday-school held special exercises, when members of the primary class sang and recited and Willard Wadsworth gave a solo that was very much appreciated.

Crescent Avenue.

The morning service at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was largely attended and Dr. Zelie's sermon and the musical program as prepared by Miss Ethel Sealey were greatly enjoyed. The musical numbers were the same as given Saturday with the exception of the "Hallelujah chorus," Handel, as the postlude in place of Meyerbeer's "Coronation March," the latter being the prelude. In the evening the program was as announced. The pulpit was banked with Easter lillies, azaleas and other flowers and plants.

The Sunday-school held special exercises at noon in charge of Superintendent L. R. Hopton. One of the numbers was a solo by Mr. Stanley, accompanied by William Dunn. The primary department held its exercises in charge of William D. Murray.

Hope Chapel.

An anthem, "The Lord is Risen," was given by Hope chapel's chorus choir and the "Beginners' class," composed of first year tots, gave the following numbers: Song, "Two Little Eyes," exercise, "The Reason Why," Harriet Mortimer, Richard Howard, Miriam Walls, Helen Johnston, Walter Weber, Martha Williams, Eva Cullinan and Flossie Runyon. The children were capably drilled by Miss Edna Eckert and Miss Madge Phillips.

The primary department afterward assumed charge and under the direction of Mrs. Williams, gave the following program: Song, "Little Ones Are Singing," entire class; recitations, "Easter Morning," Constance and Dorothy Durant; recitation, "Easter Chimes," Clifford Hughes; recitation, "Christ the Lord Is Risen," Marjorie Kelley, Lillian Balk and William Bird; recitation, "The Crocus Song," Catherine Sprague; recitation, "Easter Up," Flossie Ryder, Margaret Lounsbury and Minnie Slorah; recitation, "The Butterfly," Grecian Peterson; recitation, "Easter Carol," Charles Corbin, Elsie Cullinan and John Case, Jr.; recitation, "Easter Bells," Robert Marsh and Ruth Carlson; song, "At Easter Time," by the department; benediction was pronounced by Rev. L. R. Howard.

St. Mary's.

Three masses were said at St. Mary's church Sunday morning, the special Easter service being at 10:30. Father Schiolla was the celebrant, Father Delehanty deacon, Father Dolan, of the Passionist Fathers, sub-deacon and Father Bogan, master of ceremonies. Just before the mass started, a surpliced choir of thirty boys, headed by the cross bearer and acolites, marched from the sanctuary through the church and back to the altar singing: "The Risen Lord." Father Downs, of the Passionist Fathers, preached the sermon.

The space about the altar was beautifully decorated with palms and Easter plants.

St. Joseph's.

The principal mass at St. Joseph's church, Sunday morning, was at 10:30 and was celebrated by Rev. Father Hinman, of Hoboken, a Passionist Father. Father Miller was deacon and Fathers Terrill and Brennan, assistants. Special anthems were sung by a choir of men and boys.

Dunellen Churches.

Large congregations attended the Easter services in the various churches yesterday, although the mral in the morning put a check on the splendor of the Easter parade. The pastors preached special sermons on the Resurrection and all the churches were beautifully decorated. Floral decorations, with Easter lillies predominating, added to the impressiveness of the services. The Sunday-school festival of the Methodist church was held in the evening, when "The Easter Quest" was rendered by the pupils, in connection with recitations, carols and drills. Mrs. E. C. Dutcher, the superintendent, was in charge.

South Plainfield Baptist.

The services in the South Plainfield Baptist church Sunday were well attended, especially in the evening, and the fine music was greatly enjoyed. The cornet solo by W. C. Frazee, of Plainfield, was a masterly piece of work and the solo by Miss Grace Norman, with a quartet chorus, was repeated in the evening by special request. The Scripture recitations by Miss Florence Johnson and Mrs. Atlee were beautifully rendered.

Marconnier.

More than a score of young people from South Plainfield joined the large membership of Marconnier Sunday-school in celebrating Easter Sunday afternoon, when an interesting program was rendered. Each pupil and visitor received an Easter egg in a decorated basket. The chapel was crowded to the doors. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marconnier, who founded the chapel just twenty years ago, were present and through their liberality the presents were provided.

Wilson Chapel.

John B. Lane, of this city, conducted the services at the Wilson Memorial chapel, Watchung, Sunday night. A. A. Lake, of Dunellen, addressed the Sunday-school in the afternoon.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

It has been agreed by the Methodists of the United States and Canada to erect a monument to Barbara Heck, the "Mother of American Methodism."

Milford (N. H.) people heard a sermon on a recent Sunday delivered by the oldest active minister in the United States when Rev. William Hurlin, of Antrim, aged ninety-four years, consented to conduct the services.

The Christian church at Chickasha, Kan., held an election to see if the women should vote their hats during the services. As the lady members were not allowed to vote, the men carried the election in favor of no hats.

Epiphany mission, a little Protestant Episcopal church at Sherwood, O., recently received the gift of a large bell. As the church is without a tower, the bell was hung to an old chestnut tree which stands so near the church that one large limb extends over the roof.

OBSERVED GOOD FRIDAY

All Protestant Congregations United in Service Commemorating the Crucifixion.

ADDRESSES BY FOUR PASTORS.

Representatives from the congregations of all the local churches united in worship and meditation at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Friday night on the occasion of the union Good Friday service, and the gathering was larger than on previous years, taxing the seating capacity of the main body of the edifice. The service was deeply impressive. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of Faith chapel, had charge, conducting a simple service of special form, in keeping with the sacred anniversary.

A feature of the service was the speaking by four local pastors, Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the Park Avenue Baptist church; Rev. John Sherman Dafoe, of the Crescent Avenue church; Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel. In place of the customary remarks on the seven last words of the cross, the general topic this year was "The Sins that Crucified Christ."

After the opening scripture sentences, said by Rev. J. W. Musson, the congregation joined in a general confession, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer and responsive reading from Isaiah LIII: The evening's lesson, from Matthew 27: 15-37, was then read by Rev. A. E. Flinn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Music was a feature of the service, including the rendition of several impressive Good Friday hymns. The offering amounted to $46, and will be given to the Children's Home.

In connection with the crucifixion, four sins were dealt with by the speakers. These were the sins of the politician, the society man, the populace and the church. Each of these was developed to show its bearing on present day Christianity as well as the religion of the times of Christ.

The Politician's Sin.

In his remarks upon the theme, "The Sin of the Politician," Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring spoke at the outset of the wrong done by Pilate, the Roman governor. The speaker emphasized three sins, all of which, he pointed out, are wrongs of present day politicians. The first is the sin of irresolution, an indecision and indefiniteness of action. Pilate had a negative attitude which was just as much a cause of Christ's crucifixion as His death sentence would have been. This sin exists today and is the cause of many mistakes in politics.

In the second place, Pilate sacrificed his principles and his conviction to the end of furthering his personal political ambition. The speaker drew a parallel of present day political life, where a man allows himself to be influenced in order to "stand in with his constituency." Pilate's third sin was the sin of his personal life, reckoning his power by his own misdeeds. He was the worst governor the Romans ever had, and was hated by the Jews, whose favor he tried to regain by his action in the case of Jesus. Dr. Herring pointed out that the political man of today puts himself in the power of his opponents by his actions in political life, which leave weaknesses in his character utilized by his opponents in campaign time.

The Sin of the Society Man.

In dealing with his topic, Rev. John Sheridan Zelie stated at the outset that any man attempting to extend the work of Christ into difficult places in the city would find that a populace would again and again realize its own welfare by failing to realize its source of inspiration. The society man, his own personal friends and admirers, will stand aloof, and the sin of the society man is perhaps the hardest of all.

"But Christ could not go far in the world of today without meeting this man," continued the speaker. "Never before has what he call society life bulked so large in the life of man. It was never so powerful as today, when many quarters it almost dominates the church itself. Once the corruption of the church came from its alliances with the state; today it springs from the alliances with society. There is nothing that leaves a man more jaded and listless for hearing the commands of Christ than this heated and excited struggle to shine and advance in the social world. And in it are thousands who once felt the claims of Christ.

"Men get into that world and, although in their hearts they believe in Christ, their life is so organized that it is difficult to serve him. The society man's denial of his Lord is so refined and gentle that it seems almost like an acceptance of Him, but because of the denial of this man, who, commonly owes to Christ so much, more good work is made impossible than by anyone else.

"But Christ redeems men even from the wastes and losses of that life, and the redemption in this case comprises taking that which was devoted to one purpose and applying it to another. Christ purposes nothing less than the capture and transformation of the society man. There are many lives right out of this society world which have brought of their best and brightest to put to God's service. The Christ who has captured so many movements that were against him may yet turn this also to his own purposes."

The Sin of the Populace.

Rev. Dr. C. L. Goodrich emphasized the point that it was the populace who really crucified Our Lord, and although they were prompted to this action by the priests and elders, the act was the sin of the people. They showed themselves easily swayed by the suggestion of the politicians.

Today the same condition exists. Men are too willing to follow the leadership of a few do their thinking and to act with the masses. This is true in politics, where two or three politicians sometimes run the party without a thought for the individuals. An it is also true in society, forming our customs, fashions and morals. The power of thinking and reasoning by conscience has entirely disappeared with some people, who act according to the suggestions of a few leaders without reasoning the why or the wherefore.

"There is a tendency today," said Rev. J. O. McKelvey in connection with the evening's last topic, "to isolate the church from all outside human relations. Christ is, of course, pre-eminently God, but He is also man." Christ was a man as he lived on earth, and his life was that of an orthodox Jew. He was publicly received into the Jewish church when a boy and followed the customs of the Jewish religion. But He came with a protest against the traditionalism and the formalism of the church. The sins of the church are of two classes, outward and manifest, and subtle. Of the first class are the acts of bribery and cruelties. Among the more subtle inward sins were mentioned the sin of personal hatred, causeless in the case of the Jews against Jesus. Another sin is that of spiritual blindness, showed in their failure to recognize the Messiah. Then there was the sin against his Love and the sin of not following Him, who came as a Shepherd to the world. The church of old exemplified the sins in the flesh, the present-day church is a prey to the sins of the spirit, which must be sternly combated.

ELIZABETH MAN WEDS MISS ANNA HOPEWELL

Miss Anna Hopewell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Cleef, of Richmond terrace, and Samuel Waldron, of Elizabeth, were married at the home of the bride Saturday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring and was attended by a gathering of relatives and intimate friends. Miss Sarah Hopewell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Raymond Guinn, of this city, was best man. Miss Mary Felix Van Cleef acted as flower girl. The parlor, dining room and hall were prettily decorated with Easter lillies, ferns and plants.

The bride wore a gray traveling gown and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her attendant carried carnations. While the participants were assembling in the parlor the wedding march was played by Miss Stella Rink.

Following the ceremony a brief reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Waldron left for Atlantic City where they will spend a short time. They will make their home at Elizabeth where the groom conducts an extensive express business. He has many acquaintances in this city.

NEW SWEET PEAS VARIETY BEARS GOVERNOR'S NAME.

In honor of Governor Fort, A. C. Zvolanek, the Greenbrook florist, has named a new variety of sweet peas that he is cultivating. Being a great admirer of the governor, he decided that either one of his two new varieties should bear his name and be registered officially as such. Accordingly he sent a large basktet of the to Governor Fort, Tuesday. The president of the J. F. Fort Republican Club of Greenbrook, acting as the messenger.

"The sweet peas which you sent me were duly received. They were certainly beautiful. Mrs. Fort enjyed them greatly and wished me to return her thanks with my own for them. The bonds which we like the better are seedling 92, and I appreciate your thought in naming them after me. It is a beautiful and delicate recognition for which I am grateful."

A Truly Ancient Wasp.

Professor T. D. A. Cockerell, of the University of Colorado, describes a well-preserved specimen of a wasp, belonging to the genus, Paratiphia, found in the shale rocks of Miocene time at Florissant, Col., which exhibits a peculiar venation of the wings, exactly as it appears in the same genus today. The most striking peculiarity is a characteristic imperfect vein in the wing, which persists in the same insect at the present time.

P.H.S. WINS LOOSE GAME

Upsala College Lost in Ninth Inning by the Score of 12 to 11.

THE SEASON'S POOREST GAME.

Heavy hitting in the ninth inning at Kenilworth yesterday gave the Plainfield High School team six runs against Upsala College and enabled the local nine to score another uphill victory. The final score was 21-17, and if the game could be called a game, it was nothing for either team to brag about.

Upsala College is a Swedish institution situated in the foothills of the Rahway Valley railroad. The baseball diamond is laid out on a hillside, and was used for a cornfield last year. Deep centre field is a young swamp, filled with natural hazards in the shape of corn hills. The Upsalians have a small knowledge of the rules of the game, but support a strong batting club. The umpire is a candidate for the chair of Optical Science at the college, but will never make good.

"Despite the fact that they were outweighed thirty pounds to the man," the local nine hammered in five runs in the opening session, causing the retirement of Daniel Danberg from the slab. He was succeeded by Jacob Jacobson. Now Jake had lots of speed, and the umpire had good control, but the new pitcher was a sonny. The third was a painful session for Plainfield, for the ball got caraming around the cornhills and the big collegians scored five runs. Murphey took Van Zandt's place in the box after that. Again in the eighth, Upsala cleaned up five runs and when the High School came to bat for the last time, the score was 17-15 in favor of the college. Some bases on balls by Jake, a two-bagger by Dodwell and a single by Dunn put the score even to Plainfield.

The local boys made thirteen errors, and the college boys ten. The Swedes did the best work with the stick, hitting safely twelve times, while P. H. S. got eleven hits. Features were the errors in the nineteen debates with the umpire. The rahrah boys nearly won the game by their cheering, for the Plainfielders were afraid of being hit with a ragged Swedish consonant and they huddled all on one side of the diamond during the yells. The painful story follows:

A Way Out of It.

He (learning to waltz)—Is it very hard to reverse?

She—Oh, no; just take your foot off mine and put it on the other.—New York Life.

SHE WEDS FIRST MAN THAT SHE EVER KNEW

Back of the marriage of Miss Adah Pratt, of Washington, to E. Franklin Hoover, of Philadelphia, last Saturday, lies a story of unusual romance and interest.

Miss Pratt lived until she was 29 years old without forming the acquaintance of a man. She was born and reared in a community of women taught to believe that marriage was a sin. She was bound by teaching and belief always to remain single. Then she married the first man to whom she ever had been introduced. More than that, she did more than half the courting herself.

Nearly thirty years ago, in Texas, where Mrs. Hoover's mother lived at the time, a Mrs. Marsha McWhirter, of Virginia, announced that she had had a visitation from the Almighty, and had been told that it was sinful to live with man. Accordingly, she left her husband, and, gathering about her a small party of women who shared her belief, went to the little town of Bellton, and there established headquarters of the new creed.

Mrs. Pratt was one of the converts to the religion, and, leaving her husband, she joined the colony, where, two months afterwards she present Mrs. Hoover was born. Ten years ago the commonwealth moved to Washington, taking up a farm in Montgomery county, Maryland, and a large house in the city. The children grew taller in the former, but not stronger in the latter. There it was not right, at least, I thought it was not. But I couldn't get him out of my mind. Later I met him downtown again, and several times after that. Then he told me he was going to leave the city, and asked me to write. I told him I would.

"I was crazy to see him, and decided to risk my mother's displeasure and give him a surprise party, so I slipped quietly out of the house in Washington and came here. Then I found Mr. Hoover and he was greatly surprised. But we were married right away."

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Henrietta Crosman is to make a series of revivals.

David Warfield is to have a new play next season.

Frank Daniels will have a new musical comedy next season.

Jerome K. Jerome and Clyde Fitch are both to write plays for Grace George.

Mrs. Fiske seems to have made a sensation among the critics with her Rebecca West in "Rosmersholm."

A play of seminary life by Margaret Mayo, called "Commencement Days," is to be produced next season by John Cort.

It is reported that Nat C. Goodwin is to soon turn his back upon the stage and devote his attention to his mining interests.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

MARTINE IS A CANDIDATE.

For the first time in many a year, if not for the first time in his history, James E. Martine announces himself as a candidate. The unbroken record hitherto, so far as it can be recalled at the present time, has been strictly of the Cincinnatus order. Mr. Martine has been called by his party again and again and again; and when defeat overtook him and his party had no further use for him he returned to his plow. Never was he a voluntary candidate, and never was he elected, and it remains to his respect. Mr. Martine and Cincinnatus parted company.

But this time "Farmer Orator" Martine announces himself a candidate. He says he sincerely believes "that the nomination of William J. Bryan as Presidential candidate is the safety and breadwinners' hope and our country's salvation," and to aid in saving the nation and to realize the toilers' and bread winners' hope, Mr. Martine declares himself a candidate for Delegate-at-large to the national convention at Denver, that he may help to nominate his personal friend, William J. Bryan.

This will precipitate more or less of a fight in Union county as well as in the State. General Collins, one of the Democratic leaders, is opposed to both Martine and Bryan, and in truth the State is divided over this issue. It is a fact unique in political history that an individual citizen, such as Mr. Martine, should be so strong a candidate for President that his opponents in his own party are compelled to organize in order to prevent him from carrying away the nomination.

Hitherto political party organizations have united to boom certain men, but this year many Democratic organizations, though unable thus far to agree upon any other candidate, are agreed to defeat Bryan if possible. Mr. Martine's announcement, therefore, has much more than ordinary significance. In the coming Democratic State convention the fiercest fighting may be on the very ground whereon James E. Martine stands.—Newark News.

New York city has the third largest German population of any city in the world, only Berlin and Hamburg being ahead of it.

Philadelphia is talking about celebrating the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of her founding next October, and Mayor Reyburn recommends that the old home week idea be adopted.

A town that doesn't owe a cent, has not had a debt for twenty-five years, but has money invested, where the tax rate is only $18.20 on $1,000 and where practically the entire commitment, over $16,000, is collected within the year, it is assessed—that is Warren, Me.

An Ancient Exposition.

Perhaps the first industrial exposition on record was held in 1569 in the rathhaus of Nuremberg. A catalogue published at the time thus states the purpose of the exposition: "It shall bring before the public all innovations in the trade of the whole world in modern times, together with domestic art productions."

Not Visible.

"Have you any visible means of support?" asked the policeman sternly.

"Me? Yes, sah, I sure has. As a wash lady mah wife is out of sight."

"Then she's not visible," rejoined the policeman, and the march to the patrol box began.—Kansas City Independent.

The Real Need.

"They say that laziness is caused by a germ. What a fine thing it would be if we could find something to kill the thing."

"Oh, no; I know something finer than that. I think how much nicer it would be if we could all find some way to gratify it."—Hebrew Standard.

SMALL BOY OBEYED ORDERS.

But Perhaps His Methods of Play Were Too Strenuous.

He is a very small boy, but he has a very much smaller sister, a new baby, who arrived only a few weeks ago. The small boy was delighted. Never had he seen anything so little or so interesting.

Could the baby see, could she hear, could she eat, did she have teeth, and why didn't she talk and walk? These were a few of the questions he asked. Answers not being altogether satisfactory, he began a personal investigation. He opened the baby's eyes when she was asleep to see where they were, had gone to, anyway; he opened her mouth in search of teeth, and he was there that the family came to the rescue, and the small boy was told that he could never visit his baby sister without clapping his hands closely behind him.

"He loves the baby so that he stands by the half hour just looking at her," said the proud mother of both youngsters to a visitor. "And he is so honorable that he never thinks of taking his hands from behind his back. Just listen and see him here."

But as the two entered the nursery mamma gave a wild scream as she rushed for her baby.

There was the small boy, his hands clasped tightly behind his back, standing over the baby and having responded to his challenge to play, he had taken her silence for consent, and was bumping heads with her.

HARD LIFE OF BACHELOR SEAL.

Has Nothing Like So Good a Time as Human Counterpart.

"This skin," said the furrier, "came from a young seal bachelor, a youth ignorant of love and of life."

"How do you know?" the lady asked.

"By its fineness, its perfection," he replied. "Like all young furs it is as like closecut velvet. Only bachelor sealskins have such a pile.

"The bachelor seal," he went on, "has a rather sad life. The big bull seals in the seal islands have quite a household of 15 or 20 wives, but the young bachelors must herd by themselves. Let one of them attempt to marry, and straightway a bull slays him. Not that he is big enough to find and conquer a bull—not till he is 6 or 7 years old—can he know the delight of settling down in a home of his own.

"He is not like the human bachelor, the favorite of the chorus girls, the reveler in all sorts of club luxuries, but the seal's hard, ascetic, celibate life, only in the end as like as note to make a lady a very fine coat. All the very fine coats, I repeat, are made from the unhappy bachelor seals."

Why Snow Is White.

The reason why snow is white is that all the elementary colors are blended together in the radiance that is thrown off from the surface of the crystals, which may be examined in such a way as to detect these colors before they are mingled together to give the impression of whiteness.

The whiteness of the snow is also in some degree referable to the quantity of air which is left among the frozen particles. Considerably more than a thousand distinct forms of snow crystals have been enumerated. These minute crystals and prisms reflect all the compound rays of which white light consists.—Chicago Tribune.

Sartorial Wisdom.

A Manhattan magazine announces upon the authority of the leading writer on men's fashions that "double breasted trousers" will be the vogue next spring. The same authority is quoted as declaring that "it is now considered good form to line the buttonholes with silk straight to the edge." This resale has a competitive ring also periodically ventilates the ludicrous combined with the incongruous. In an article treating of the approved period of mourning, the rival of the "double breasted trousers" dictator, presented weeds as follows: "Husband for widow—nine months."

Failed to Work.

"Yes," said the sad-eyed passenger, "I married the widow of a man who was hanged, and I thought, under the circumstances, I would be able to avoid odious comparisons in connection with the late lamented. But I was mistaken."

"She praised him just the same, eh?" rejoined the hardware drummer.

"Well, not exactly," answered the, a. p., "but we hadn't been married a week when she declared that hanging was too good for me."

Irksome for Both Parties.

A long friendship and a short engagement is, perhaps, the best combination. A prolonged engagement is the most trying relationship between the sexes possible to conceive. For the woman it means the drawbacks of matrimony without the charm of restful finality and for the gentleman's solid worldly advantages. On the man's side it means the irksomeness of the marriage yoke without any of its satisfactions and comforts.—The Grand Magazine.

Best He Could Do.

"Sir," said the irate parent as he unexpectedly entered the parlor, "what do you mean by kissing my daughter?"

"Excuse me," replied the poor but otherwise honest young man, "but if desired to show my appreciation of your daughter's loveliness, and kisses are the only things I can afford to give her at the present state of the sugar."

LEGAL PROBLEM SO

After Many Years of Litigation Mortgage Suit Decision is Handed Down.

W. S. ANGLEMAN'S VICTORY.

Twenty-Six Defendants in All in the Case—An Appeal Will Be Taken.

That Plainfield lawyers are among the leaders of the bar in the State and successfully present some of the hardest problems brought before the courts for decision has again been demonstrated in the victory for the defense won by Counsellor W. S. Angleman in the case brought by George W. Marsh, of North Plainfield, through his counsel, former Judge P. H. Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, against twenty-six defendants to foreclose a mortgage for $3,000 given by John K. Van Nest on certain property on East Front street in 1891 to the late John R. Marsh, of Scotch Plains.

The case has been pending in the Court of Chancery for many years, and the final argument was made over three years ago. Since then the case has been under consideration by the court, and this week a decision has been rendered by Vice-Chancellor Emery, allowing the defendants $1,500 in payments claimed to have been made on the mortgage but which were disputed.

The complainant made a hard fight on the allowance of any of the alleged payments on the mortgage, and in addition to the full oral argument made on the final hearing, Judge Gilhooly submitted a brief of thirty-seven pages to sustain his views of the case.

It is understood that the case will be taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Botha, sister of General Botha, now prime minister of the Transvaal, has been married in London to R. C. Hawkin, secretary to the Eighty club.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hazleton, aged 103, of Philadelphia, who still reads newspapers without the aid of glasses, finds the financial news the most interesting.

Only seven debutantes were presented at the first court of the season in London, one of whom was Miss Wynne, daughter of Consul General Wynne. The young lady is remarkably handsome.

Mrs. Frank H. Parker, of Malden, Mass., has gone with her husband to take up her permanent residence in the leper colony on the island of Penikese. Dr. Parker was recently poaointed superintendent of the colony.

Mrs. L. Walters Elsenlohr has made her home at 795 Lexington avenue, New York city, a veritable haven for all cats, and, besides ten regular feline boarders, milk is served on her steps at 6:30 every night and rules are spread for stray cats who come and propose to stay all night.

Mrs. Eveline Wright Allen, a graduate of Leland Stanford University, has been appointed dean of women of that institution. The office is newly created, and in filling it Mrs. Allen will have supervision of all matters relating to the women students of the university.

Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Gibson, of Cambridge, England, recently received the degree of LL. D. from the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, and that of D. D. from the University of Heidelberg for their research and discovery of Biblical manuscripts in the Syrian monasteries. These ladies are sisters, both born in Scotland

HER FACE WAS A TOWEL.

Some time ago a little West Philadelphia girl went to Tioga to spend the day with her aunt, and while they were seated in the den the family cat rambled in and began to wash herself with her paws after the manner of the feline species.

"Look, Bessie," said the aunt, pointing to the cat; "pussy is washing her face."

"No she isn't," stoutly asserted little Bessie.

"Why, Bessie," returned the aunt in a surprised tone, "what is she doing then?"

"She is washing her feet and wiping them on her face," was the prompt reply of the young scholar.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 26, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

The experiences of Paul on the island of Melita after his shipwreck while on the way to Rome do not in any way correspond with those of John G. Paton, missionary to the New Hebrides. The inhabitants of Melita are called a "barbarous people", notwithstanding they "showed no little kindness" to the apostle and those with him. When God protected the apostle from the sting of a viper they looked upon him as a god. He was entertained in the house of Publius, the chief of the barbarians, whose father he healed of a fever. He also healed others, and when he departed they laded him with such things as he needed.

But how different the experience of Paton among the barbarians, to whom he went with the definite purpose of carrying them the gospel. They showed him no kindness; they loaded him not with good things. But for Christ's sake he stood at his post, "enduring hardness as a good soldier of Christ," and was rewarded by being able to do a great work for Christ even among barbarians whose barbarianism extended to cannibalism.

The story of Paton and his work is a remarkable one, and as told by himself in an autobiography consisting of two volumes it should be read by every one interested in foreign missions. The opening words of the first chapter of his thrilling story illustrate the spirit of the man. He begins: "What I write here is for the glory of God. For more than a century past I have been urged to record my story as a missionary of the cross, but always till now, in my sixty-fourth year, my heart has shrunk from the task as savoring of self."

Paton was born near Dumfries, in the south of Scotland, May 24, 1824. His father was a stocking manufacturer in a small way, but a man of religious disposition and character and one who exercised a strong influence upon his son. Though working for his father, the boy found time to study Latin and Greek. His first missionary work was city missions in Glasgow. In 1858 he went as a missionary to the New Hebrides and labored there until his death, Jan. 28, 1907, almost fifty years. To tell of his trials and hardships among the cannibals would be impossible in a very limited space. A few years ago he visited the United States to interest our government in the suppression of the liquor and opium traffic with his people. The Presbyterian C. E. Manual thus sums up his experiences:

He first spent four years on the small island of Tanna, where he had the most terrible experiences among the most bloodthirsty cannibals on earth.

His wife and child died. His fellow missionaries, the Gordons, were killed on a neighboring island. Another missionary fell at his side. Still he continued to work faithfully against wife beating, widow strangling and the eating of human flesh.

Iniquitous traders introduced measles to kill off the natives, and one-third of them died. Surrounding all white men, they set about murdering Paton. After a thousand hairbreadth escapes he succeeded in getting away.

Next he went to the nearby island of Aniwa, which by persevering labors he transformed into a beautiful Christian community. He won their favor at first by the unheard of feat of digging a well, bringing up water from below.

This result, however, was not brought about without heroic toil and fearful sufferings, brightened by the discovery of rare qualities among the redeemed natives. Now, very largely through Dr. Paton's inspiring example and leadership, missionaries have quite won to Christ the whole south-western portion of the New Hebrides.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxv, 1-10; lii, 7-10; Ps. ii, 1-12; lxxii; Matt. x, 16-28; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 8; xiii, 1-12; Rom. x, 14, 15; Rev. xxi, 23-26.

The Endeavor Standard.

There is no occasion for framing new excuses. The world, the flesh and the devil are all busy at this task. The only Endeavor standard is what "Christ would have me to do." Let us never lower this, but ever cultivate a more heroic, courageous, conscientious type of Christianity, for this is what the world most needs today.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in Irish Endeavorer.

"Until a Little While."

The Brazilians have an expression which is used a thousand times, which being literally translated, means "until a little while." It may be many years before it comes, but "the little while" is measured in the years of eternity. It will be only "until a little while" that we must again. Then "Ate bade," our friends, "Ate long," "until a little while."—Dr. Francis E. Clark.]

The Lord of all shall give His peace
His watchful love shall never cease
Nor lessened be His smile.

CHORUS.

"Until a little while,"
The Lord loves watch in tender love
"Until a little while."

The Lord of light shall guardian be
"Until a little while,"
Keep watch in love o'er thee and me,
Though weak and frail and humble.

The Lord of light with mighty arm
"Until a little while"
Shall keep from every dire alarm
And safeguard life's long mile.

Through varied scenes to heaven's gate
Our pilgrim band shall flee
To where the "loved and lost" even wait
"Until a little while."

VARIED USES OF THE ONION.

Homely and Strong Smelling Vegetable Not Without Virtue.

The ancients frowned on the onion as a food and classed it with garlic and leeks, as of an acrid nature, of unwholesome juices. "When twice boiled they give little nourishment, but when unboiled they do not nourish at all," says Paulus Aegineta, and Burton, advising as to the diet of the melancholy, dismisses the onion as troublesome to the head. The people at large pay no heed to these sayings. To the man who smiles at the conflicting opinion of dietists, the onion is healthful, when plainly boiled. As a child he was taught that it was good for a cold. These same ancients thought highly of it as a medicine. It occasions a rapid growth of hair, it breaks hard tumors; stewed it is beneficial in paralysis of the tongue; it is eminently rubefacient; its juice is useful in suffusion and dimness of vision from thick humors. Discordies recommends it as a cataplasm with salt, rue and honey for the bite of a mad dog. There are many today who believe that the onion juice is of assistance in deafness. Italians in the north end eat the insides of little onions and stuff them in aching ears of their children. They leave them there for weeks. An onion put under the pillow will bring dreams of the loved one. The thickness of the skin determines the mildness or severity of the coming winter. But to dream of onions is a bad sign in some countries it presages sickness.

OCCUPATION FOR "REAL GENT."

Ignorant Englishman Could Not Understand Where Laugh Came In.

MR. BOGGS KNEW THE AMOUNT.

Possessing He Had Often Computed the Water He Carried.

It was by no means a holiday task for Amos Boggs to carry pail after pail of water from the old well through the orchard and across the henyard to the kitchen, where Mrs. Boggs washed for the family and a dozen or so of customers. Therefore he was in no mood to enjoy questions.

"How many years have you been at this sort of things?" asked the elderly person of wealth, on whose white skirts Mrs. Boggs was then expending her energy and the heat of a heavy iron.

"Dear, dear!" said the woman, in a commiserating tone. "Why, how much water do you suppose you've carried in that time?"

"I've figured all that's been in the well during that time, and isn't there now, ma'am," and Mr. Boggs entered the kitchen and set the pails down with as near a thump as the nature of their contents would permit.—Youth's Companion.

Only Mortal, After All.

"When I went to church last Sunday," said a young woman visiting in Washington, "I sat directly behind a high executive officer whom I have regarded as almost more than mortal. I tried not to be rude and stare at him too much, but I could not help my eyes wandering toward him occasionally. I glanced at him just once, near the end of the sermon, and what do you think he was doing? He was yawning, and he yawned a large and vigorous yawn, which came on him so suddenly that he did not have time to hide it behind his hand. I must confess that I was delighted. My veneration for the executive officer is just as great as ever was, but I am glad I found out with my own eyes that he is subject to ordinary human weaknesses and cannot help yawning during a sermon."

German Shipping Trade.

The activity of the German shipping trade is demonstrated by the fact that the number of vessels built in the empire in 1906 was 750, of 398,151 registered tons, against 646 of 310,771 registered tons in 1905, and 535 of 267,991 registered tons in 1904. Among the vessels built in 1906 were 11 men-of-war of 30,831 registered tons. In addition to the foregoing, there were built in foreign countries, on orders for German firms, 119 vessels of 122,845 registered tons.

Children's Favorite Toys.

A hundred and thirty-two schoolboys of Paris and 72 girls were invited to describe their preference in the way of toys. Among the former 31 voted for a railway train, 23 for tin soldiers, ten for steam engines, nine for building bricks and eight each for toy typewriters and mechanical horses. Forty girls—a solid majority—declared without hesitation that a doll was superior to any other implement of recreation. The super-child seems, happily, a long way off.

Historical Fragment.

P. T. Barnum had just added the woolly horse to his wonderful collection of curiosities.

"That's an entirely new kink in horses," he said.

Regretting that the animal's wool was not finer, so it could show fur, and thus be to some extent a forerunner of the automobile, he instructed his press agent to send the news of his find to Bill Nye, the editor of the New York Herald.

HAVE RIGHT TO RETAIN NAME.

Advantage English Women Possess Over American Sister.

"The English woman has at least one advantage over her American sister," said a young woman who has just returned from a two years' stay in London. "The English law does not require a wife to take her husband's surname, if she please herself. The point was settled several years ago when Mrs. Fenwick Miller was elected on the London school board. She had never taken her husband's name, merely altering 'Miss Into 'Mrs.,' and a formal protest was entered against her election because it was claimed that she had not stood under her legal name. This protest was referred to the law officers of the crown and they decided in her favor. Now, there are a large number of society women in England, most of them widows, who have never taken the names of their husbands. They refuse to give up the title and position they already possess for the sake of using their husbands' names. Of course, the question of changing the name and thus losing their identity in marriage is even more important to the professional woman whose well-known name is often of commercial value. In America, where the women use one name for business purposes and another for society, it would seem dreadful never to take the husband's name at all, yet it is much simpler, and the almost invariable rule among English women."

Indian Viceroy Departed from His Policy of Kindness.

Lord Lawrence, one of the famous viceroys of India, was an able and very simple man. He used to do his work in his shirt sleeves, and discouraged as much as possible all state and ceremony. He was inclined to treat the natives like children. although he always strenuously insisted upon their meeting and receiving justice and kindness. Lord Mayo went to India to succeed him, and on the last afternoon before Lord Lawrence was to leave for home he took the incoming viceroy for a drive. On the way he impressed his doctrine of kindness very emphatically and solemnly on his successor. Lord Mayo thanked him for his helpful advice, and they returned in due course to the government house. The syce or footman, was slow and awkward in opening the door of the carriage, whereupon Lord Lawrence jumped out in a hurry and gave his ear an unmistakable tug. Lord Mayo turned to the viceroy's aid with a smile. "My first practical lesson in kindness to natives undoubtedly is an odd one," he whispered.

Effect of Relaxation.

Dr. Long Mayhelive Young of Chicago does not agree with us that sleeping on the front is good, says the New York Press. But he seems to be in his own mind an expert on relaxation. "Relaxation," he says, "the want of relaxation is the principle cause of insomnia. To produce relaxation we must first equalize the circulation of the blood. This is very often accomplished by sleeping with the head down. Some throw the blood into the lumbar region. The position is rather tiresome (I should say so!) and on stretching out the legs equalization and therefore relaxation takes place. For insomnia supervening upon nervousness I would advise taking some quick, long breaths. When due to want of control of the thinking apparatus use three or four ginger snaps (ten cents a pound), which will warm up the stomach and transfer the nervous energy to the solar plexus, or stomach brain."

Nurses Dread Lightning.

Of all people who are glad when the season of thunderstorms is past, none are more thankful than professional nurses. "It isn't that we are afraid of lightning ourselves," said a hospital nurse, "but it has a harmful effect on our patients. Almost sick people have an unreasoning fear of lightning. In cases of extreme weakness or nervousness a dozen flashes of blinding lightning reduces the patient to such a state of prostration that it takes extraordinary efforts on the part of the nurse to bring him back to life. If one sick person requires all that extra attention in a *thunderstorm, just imag*ine the predicament of the nurse who has a whole ward full of them on her hands."

German Exactitude.

The widow of a German officer presented herself at the office in Berlin for the purpose of drawing the pension due her. "This certificate is not sufficient," said the officer in charge. "What is the matter with it?" asked the lady. "It bears the date of September 21," was the stern reply, "and your pension was due on September 15." "What kind of a certificate do you want?" asked the disappointed applicant. "We must have a certificate stating that you were alive on September 15," said the officer with great firmness.

The Reason.

"There goes a man who doesn't get credit at any business establishment in town." "Who? Old Mr. Worthy? Why, I thought he was one of the most reliable men in the city. Why doesn't he get credit?" "Because he always pays cash."

One of the Tests.

"So your daughter made a brilliant marriage." "Not very," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Her husband is of noble origin." "Yes. But I could pronounce his name properly the first time I tried."

FREAK PLAYS IN ROYAL GAME.

Records on Golf Grounds Very Much Out of the Ordinary.

On one occasion a player handicapped himself to the extent of playing all his shots with one leg held up, and the only crumb of satisfaction that some people can get out of the story is that the man missed nearly every shot after his waistcoat. Also, who has not heard of men trying to play with one face covered up, others who have had but one club against the full set used by their opponents, and others who have agreed to put with cocoa Scots who have driven balls off the face of expensive watches without at the same time driving the faces off the watches, and an American variation of this form of golf freakishness, as practiced with much success on one occasion, was to drive a ball off the top of a hen's egg, which had been dented at one end to make it hold the ball, but not otherwise damaged.

TERRORS OF BALLOONING.

Not to the Aeronaut, but to the Man on Earth Below Him.

It must be more than two years ago that I called attention in this column to the danger and nuisance that would be likely to ensue if ballooning became popular, but it is only recently that the public have awakened to the fact that the possibilities mentioned are likely to become stern realities.

Already we read of people quietly lounging in their gardens being wellnigh blinded by showers of sand, of conservatories being smashed, of houses uncroofed and chimneys demolished, of trees uprooted, of fences damaged and of cattle injured by the action of the grapnel.

Of course, as ballooning becomes more general such accidents will be more frequent and more serious. An inconsiderate aeronaut is far more difficult to catch and control than a roadhog, because he may perpetuate his *annoyances from an inaccessible dis*tance. It is really high time—before this latest nuisance becomes so vast as to be uncontrollable—that strident measures should be taken for its suppression.

But, I suppose till the prime minister has been hooked by a grappling-iron and dragged by the heels across a plowed field and through a couple of quick-set hedges, nothing will be done.—London Graphic.

VEGETABLES ON THE ROOF.

Saying that the conventional roof garden was dansimoner, Mrs. Antonio Bellestri of 1,039 Hilles street, built a real garden on her roof and planted a variety of vegetables. Stalks of corn, which is only one of the many vegetables she raises, can be seen from the street, and attract much attention.

The inability to buy vegetables in the market caused Mrs. Bellestri to conceive the idea of a roof garden. Procuring several store boxes of a depth of about six feet, she filled them with rich soil and planted the seeds. The growth of the plants was watched with keen interest, and to her delight the vegetables she desired came in abundance, and she had more than could be used by her family. Those that she does not use are sent to her friends.

Several crops are raised a year, and besides corn and spices she has beans, pumpkins, squashes, cucumbers and tomatoes. She plants that flourish well in the rich soil of her unique roof garden.—Baltimore Sun.

A Little Mixed.

"The late Marion Story, Julian Story's brother, was a great sportsman," said a New York broker. "He is a sporting angler. I used to like to hear him tell fish stories, for in his case these stories were always no less amusing than true.

"Mr. Story was once fishing for tarpon in Florida. He fished in a motor boat, and his companion was a cracker—a Florida cracker.

"Suddenly the cracker got a bite. Gave a great jerk backward, and then —presto, he was splashing and floundering in the water. The huge fish had pulled him overboard.

"'Drop your rod!' shouted Mr. Story, and he started the motor, and in a few minutes reached the cracker and hauled him back on board.

"The man said, as he began to wring the water from his clothes:

"'What I want to know is—is this cracker a-fishin' or was that fish a-crackerin'?'"—San Antonio Express.

New Term in Law.

The plaintiff was stating his case: "Your honor, I was walking alongside of the waiting train when this man, who is a stranger to me and without any cause whatever, reached out of the car window and planted a couple of powerful blows upon my face."

"Your honor," expostulated the defendant, "I was so enraged by the delay of that train and this miserable service of that road in general, that I just had to give vent to my feelings in some way. I couldn't restrain myself."

"I feel for you," admitted the judge, who had occasion to travel on the same road, "but I am compelled to fine you nevertheless. That pair of hand-me-downs will cost you just $10."

WORLD'S BIGGEST CATASTROPHE

The greatest catastrophe the world has ever known is in progress at this present moment, and the world reeks little or nothing of it.

This is the plague epidemic in India, which has now been raging for more than 11 years, and which, so far from showing any tendency to die out, keeps steadily increasing in intensity. Thus, during the six weeks ending May 11 last, 481,892 persons perished from it, or at the rate of over 80,000 deaths a week.

Nothing approaching the appalling horror represented by these figures has ever been recorded before. The nearest to it was in 1905, when, during the last week in March, the epidemic was responsible for 57,707 deaths.

No pestilence of ancient or modern times of which we have any knowledge has slain so many millions of people as has this one, and the end of which, mind, is not yet.

The "Black Plague" of London, for example, about which everybody has heard, killed at the outside some 80,000 people in seven months, or about as many as are dying weekly in India from a disease which is identical with it in every respect.

The "Black Death" is said to have slain one-third of the then population of England—say 1,500,000 persons; but this is doubtful. Even admitting the correctness of the estimate, however, the mortality of the present epidemic in India has already more than doubled this huge total.

What will be the end no man can foresee or venture to forecast. It may be that all that has gone before, and all that is happening now, inexpressibly awful though it is, is but the prelude of worse to follow.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE CAT CAME BACK.

But It Was Not at Home in the Country for Awhile.

The kitten that the little city girl had brought back from the country with her last fall had grown to be a big, beautiful cat when the time came to go to the mountains again, so he was placed in a basket and carried to the train, the first time since his babyhood that he had been below the third floor of the apartment house. There was little surprise and a good deal of amusement, therefore, at the cat's ideas of nature, gained in the 6 feet between the basket and the window. At the top of the big farmhouse and peer out of the window whenever it was released on the veranda. Gradually, however, it became accustomed to life on the ground level, and in a week or so timidly ventured outdoors by itself. Then it was quickly found that its natural instincts had not been affected by city life, for it soon became a terror to song birds, much to the disgust of its little mistress, who in vain begged for corn with which to win love for the cat and for the birdies that fell victims of its cunning. THEIR ONLY NEED.

It Was Just Filled but the Sergeant Was a Hero.

Lord Lansdowne, commander in chief of the Canadian militia, recently gave a dinner at Toronto to the members of the governor general's bodyguard, the crack mounted troop of Canada. Notwithstanding his lordship's title of nobility and his high military rank he is very democratic. During the progress of the dinner he made a tour of the tables, accompanied by members of his staff, and wishing to put the men completely at their ease, made a few commonplace remarks and asked if there was anything they desired to have.

"Now, don't be backward," he said. "If everything is not all right just say so."

Of course no one would think of making a complaint to the commander in chief at such a time, but as he asked once more if there was not something the men desired, a sergeant arose, saluted and said, "We would like to have some oysters."

The modesty of the request, on a red hot summer's night, was so palpable his lordship was silenced, and he walked quietly on, asking no more questions. The sergeant, however, was the hero of the evening for having dared to speak to a real live lord.

SOME ARE SO SENSITIVE.

The First Tall Man Couldn't See the Joke and Left.

A tall, thin man, dressed in a light gray suit, entered the hotel restaurant and took an unoccupied chair at a table near the door. He hardly had gotten seated comfortably before another man, even taller and thinner than the first one, entered and took a seat at the same table. And, to make the situation more remarkable, the taller man wore a gray suit of exactly the same shade and cut as the other.

The shorter man never raised his eyes from the bill of fare, and seemed quite oblivious of his companion's presence. The latter looked curiously at the first comer for a few moments, and then with an apparent desire to be sociable, said:

"Say, you'll be the thin man's table."

The shorter man straightened up with a jerk, gave the very tall man a look of the greatest indignation, and exclaimed in a burst of anger:

"Well, you may have it."

With that he hastily rose and took a seat at the other end of the room. The very tall man winked at the waiter, and the incident was closed.

The late Sir William Henry Perkin, the inventor of coal-tar dye, "said a Philadelphia chemist, "had a singularly brief mind. I once heard him talking about the missionary movement. Sir William had been for years a warm supporter of this movement, and he praised it highly; but he condemned in this phase of it, illustrating the phase he meant by a quotation from a letter—a letter written by the notable Capt. Davis to Secretary Washington, about the conversion of the Indians.

"The letter ran:

"'If these people (the Indians) were once brought over to the Christian faith, they might soon be brought to relish a more civilized kind of life, and be thereby induced to consume greater quantities of our coarser woolen manufactures.'"

THIRD TALK ON CREED

Dr. Herring Takes "And In Jesus Christ His Only Son Our Lord" as Theme.

IT HAS A FOURFOLD MEANING.

Christ As the King and Master of Our Lives—An Instructive Discourse.

Continuing his instructive series of discourses on the Apostles' Creed, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, last Sunday, addressed his congregation for the third time on the subject. The phrase "And In Jesus Christ, His Only Son, Our Lord," was his theme.

Dr. Herring said:

There is an inspiration in the first part of the creed when a man says to God, "I trust my reliance in Thee as an Almighty Father." But the next clause adds positive strength to that utterance, 'I put my reliance in Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord.' A man would never know the full meaning of the word 'Father' had not Jesus Christ revealed the character of that Fatherhood. We know that Fatherhood is a Fatherhood of individual souls only as Jesus Christ has made that clear. Jesus responded to the question that Philip asked by saying, 'he that hath seen me hath seen the Father.' So you and I say I believe in Jesus Christ for the perfect light He throws on the nature of God as God is related to us.

"There is fourfold meaning in this part of the creed we have chosen for tonight.

"First. When you say you believe in Jesus Christ, you declare your belief in the Old Testament. How? Why Christ is but another word for the Messiah and all through the Old Testament patriarch, psalmist and prophet have been painting the picture of the coming Messiah and in the fullness of time the Messiah came just as the Old Testament had promised.

"The confession of the early Christians was, 'Jesus is the Christ.' In other words Jesus is the Messiah. The Old Testament finds its consummation in Christ. He has fulfilled it and God has been found true to his promises.

"Again, second. When you say 'I believe in Jesus Christ you are not confessing your belief in the miracles or the works of Jesus Christ; you are confessing your reliance in the person of Jesus Christ just as if He were a living presence whom you could see with your physical eye, for He is a living presence today.

"It is possible to criticise the Christian church and the methods that men employ in doing Christian work, but you cannot criticize the sinless Lord.

"Dr. W. E. Channing said beautifully of Christ, 'To know Jesus Christ is to approach His soul, comprehend his spirit, and to see how he thought.' Dr. Channing's thought while beautiful does not contain the whole truth. He sees simply the beautiful character that lived here 1900 years ago, but he does not speak of reliance upon a living Christ.

"'I believe in Jesus Christ' does not mean that we are following a beautiful example merely, but that we are inspired by a living presence.

"Third. The third confession of your faith is that this Christ is 'His Only Son.' All men are sons, men redeemed are in a special sense the sons of God, but Christ is called here in a very special way the 'Son of God.' You confess here that while the Lord lived the life of a man He was far more than that. He was the only son of God, and in essence, God.

"Bring to your mind what the Lord said to the Jews. 'Before Abraham came into existence I am,' not became. Paul so described Him as the Image of the invisible God,' and and in a remarkable utterance to the Philippians, that though 'being in the form of God, and on an equality with God. He did not deem that equality a thing to be grasped at or retained but emptied himself of that glory and took upon Himself the form of a man.' He temporarily and freely relinguishes His rights with the Father that He might carry out the purpose of love. He, therefore, is the 'only Son.' Deny this if you will but you must find the basis of that denial outside the Bible.

"In the early history of the church when the deity of Christ was assailed men gathered in great councils to define the attitude of the church in the matter. One of these councils was held in 325 A. D. and the Nicene Creed was formed which said, 'I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds, begotten not made, being of one substance with the Father." There is no uncertainty as to the Deity of the Lord in this utterance. The great council of Chalcedon 451 A. D. affirmed this position by saying, 'Jesus Christ is perfect in His Godhead, a begotten before all ages as to His Deity.'

"There is a fourth confession you make in this part of the creed: You say 'Our Lord.'

"When Thomas after the resurrection put his hand into the nail prints he said 'My Lord and my God.' He would not believe others. Jesus came to him personally and Thomas claimed Him as his personal Lord.

"So you with others claim the Lord as the Lord and sovereign over your life. You believe in Him as the Master of your life.

"Throughout the history of the Christian church men have offered themselves their lives, in devotion not to Christian principles, but to a personal Christ. Polycarp, the aged Bishop of Smyrna, when he was asked to recant his Christian faith, said, 'Eighty and six years have I served Him. How can I blaspheme the name of my Lord and king.'

"In later times the great Livingstone wrote as the last record in his diary, 'March 19, 1873, birthday. My Jesus, My King, My Life, My all. Again I dedicate myself to Thee.'

"So let us here who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ claim Him as the King and Master of our lives."

ROAD WORK IN BOROUGH

ELECTRICIAN LOSES HIS JOB.

Telephone Company to Do This Work in the Future—Councilmanic Routine.

By guaranteeing ten per cent. of the cost of the improvements sought, the North Plainfield Council made the macadamizing of Greenbrook road and the extension of Watchung avenue to Somerset street practically a certainty at a special meeting held Monday night. The petition for these improvements was made by the borough fathers to the county Board of Freeholders some time ago, but was recently returned for the insertion of the ten per cent. clause.

There was no opposition to the incorporation of the clause when the councilmen assembled last night. Mayor Samuel Townsend had the two petitions read and a formal resolution for their amendment by the insertion of the clause was presented by Councilman Waldron and unanimously carried. When the Freeholders were in North Plainfield last week to inspect the proposed improvement and extension, it was reported that the members of the Board look with favor on the borough's petition.

After considerable discussion, in which the Mayor and Councilmen Woolston, Nichols and Smith took part, it was voted to frame a contract with the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co. to maintain the borough fire alarm system at the rate of $275 a year. This proposition was submitted through Mayor Townsend, and the rate includes the entire cost of keeping the North Plainfield fire alarm system in repair, both as far as wires are concerned and in fire headquarters. The company is to supply material for repairs.

*Several years ago, it was the cus*tom of the borough's mayor to appoint a borough electrician, who was paid $175 a year to keep the wire system in repair. This did not include material. In addition, the telephone company was paid $100 yearly for electricity to maintain the system. A faction of North Plainfield taxpayers, claiming that the borough electrician had duties which could easily be discharged by the telephone company, brought the matter to Mayor Townsend's attention and the contract was framed after a consultation with the telephone officials and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed. It was unanimously endorsed at last night's meeting.

The Council's attention was called to the fact that the former borough *electrician, while not formally re*appointed by Mayor Townsend, had been attending to the fire alarm system since the beginning of the pres*ent administration, but this eventual*ly proved no drawback to the endorsement of the contract with the telephone company.

STORES WILL BE OPEN MEMORIAL DAY HERE

Several shopkeepers objecting to the plan of closing their stores on holidays, the Plainfield Merchants' Association, at a regular meeting, Monday night, voted to keep open on Memorial Day. This action was taken after a lengthy discussion. A majority of the members favored closing, but for the purpose of giving the change a trial, they voted with those who want to keep open. After that the association will determine what is to be done on succeeding holidays.

The question of a "bad credit list" was reported by the executive committee and a more complete statement will be presented later. The committee has been busily engaged in preparing a list of people who should not be given credit and when this is completed each member of the association will be furnished a copy.

The members discussed a number of other matters of more or less importance tended to advance their in*terest and renewed their allegiance* to the plan to refrain from advertising in anything but newspapers with a bona-fide paid subscription list. This action is taken to protect the merchants from persons who are constantly seeking advertisements for programs, catalogues, etc., which is considered a useless investment of money.

The city will be entitled to eight delegates to the Congressional convention, two each from the First, Second, Third and Fourth wards. The State convention will elect four delegates to the National convention, with four alternates.

The Congressional convention will be held Tuesday morning, May 5, at 10:30 o'clock at the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, and the State convention will be held at the same place in the afternoon.

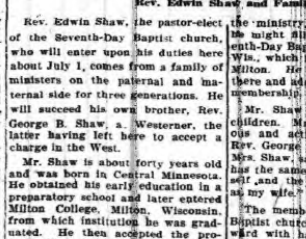
THIS NEW PASTOR COMES FROM A FAMILY OF MINISTERS



Rev. Edwin Shaw and Family.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, the pastor-elect of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who will enter upon his duties here about July 1, comes from a family of ministers on the paternal and maternal side for three generations. He will succeed his own brother, Rev. George B. Shaw, a Westerner, the latter having left here to accept a charge in the West.

Mr. Shaw is about forty years old and was born in Central Minnesota. He obtained his early education in a preparatory school and later entered Milton College, Milton, Wisconsin, from which institution he was graduated. He then accepted the professorship of chemistry and Latin there, which position he has held for twenty years with the exception of a brief interval, during which he took a course at the Chicago University. Although he never expected to enter the ministry, he was ordained that he might fill the pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Rock River, Wis., which is about five miles from Milton. He has done a good work there and added many persons to the membership.

Mr. Shaw has a wife and three children. Mrs. Shaw is equally zealous and active in religious work. Rev. George B. Shaw in speaking of Mrs. Shaw, said: "My brother's wife has the same Christian name as myself, and the same Christian graces as my wife."

The members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church here are looking forward with happy expectancy to the arrival of Mr. Shaw and his family. The choice is said to be particularly fortunate and the new pastor as well as the people are counting on an active campaign in religious endeavor here.

Highlanders Won, 16-4.

The Highland Park A. C. nine trimmed the Jr. O. U. A. M. team in a well-played game on Home Common Saturday afternoon. Coon and Winters were the points for the Highlanders, and Montross and Van Ardsdale were on the slab for the Juniors, while Banks wore the big mitt. Coon's arcs fooled the Juniors completely, and he kept the hits scattered. Brown was strong at the bat for the Highlanders, while "Manester" Mullen's base running was a feature. Next Saturday the Highlanders will play the East Millstone team at East Millstone.

NEW IDEA FOR TAFT; LAUDS ADMINISTRATION

"Resolved, That this organization as a body approves the principles and policies of the administration of Theodore Roosevelt and favors a plank in the national Republican platform for the physical valuation of railroad property; and that it recommends to its branches the support of candidates for delegates to the State and Congressional district conventions who are in favor of the candidacy of Secretary of War William H. Taft for President."

After debate of more than an hour the advisory committee of the Essex County Republican League for Limited Franchises and Equal Taxation, the New Idea wing of the Republican party, Monday at Newark adopted the above resolution, unanimously indorsing President Roosevelt's administration and committing itself to Secretary of War Taft for President.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL.

All the schools in New York city are undergoing rigid examination in the matter of fire escapes and exits.

In China they propose to punish the father or mother of any child above seven years old who is not sent to school.

Captain Ervin L. Phillips, Thirteenth cavalry, has been detailed as professor of military science and tactics at Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., to take effect Oct. 14.

Dr. James Temple Porter, of the faculty of the Randolph-Macon Woman's college at Lynchburg, Va., has been elected to the chair of physics and astronomy at the University of Tennessee.

MISSION STUDY WORK IN ELIZABETH PRESBYTERY

That thorough organization of mission study will be a prominent feature of the work in churches of the Elizabeth Presbytery this year has been made certain by the appointment of Miss Harriet Halloway, of Plainfield, as secretary of this branch.

At the meeting of the Presbyterial W. F. M. A., held in Cranford last week Miss Halloway was elected secretary of mission study classes, the department being added to the society's work. Her ability for organization and for imparting enthusiasm in regard to the study of missions has brought to her a further honor—the appointment as mission study field secretary for the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church. She will represent both the Philadelphia and New York headquarters, and will organize and stimulate classes wherever possible.

Although the mission study class idea is general among the denominations, the Presbyterians lead in the work. This is also true in Elizabeth, *as there are classes in all the Pres*byterian churches. Carter Milliken, who addressed the young people conference which followed the W. F. M. A. meeting in Cranford on Tuesday, gave such a clear, systematic presentation of the plan of study classes that an outline of it is being given for the benefit of Christian Endeavorers who are not familiar with the method, or who are seeking improvement.

It is a small group of persons banded together for the study of mis*sions.*

It plans a short course of study—eight weeks, or, at the most, sixteen weeks.

It holds frequent sessions, meeting once a week, if possible.

It has one leader throughout the course. His or her duty, however, is not to teach; the leader is not to pour in, but draw out.

The class must have a definite aim. This aim should be fourfold, *viz.: 1. To seek spiritual develop*ment. 2. To show skill in the study of the work. 3. To create a sentiment of personal responsibility. 4. To lead to action.

Speaking of the objection made sometimes that study classes need lessly multiply the organizations in a church, Mr. Milliken said that: 1. The mission study class is not coordinate with other organizations, but auxiliary. 2. The class is not permanent; it is temporary organization; study itself should be permanent, but not classes. 3. The class is not a channel for gifts; it will stimulate to giving, but it will be through the usual channels.

The speaker made a plea for leaders in church work, and said that the study class was a good place in which to develop them.

Summing up the whole matter he said that the aim of every class should be to study missions. The greatest danger lay in the tendency to be carried away by "head interest." To counteract this the members of a class must not neglect the prayer life. Intellectual pleasure must not be allowed to outdistance soul development and profit.

Wise Beyond His Ears.

The inspector in an English school asked the boys he was examining:

"Can you take your warm overcoat off?"

"Yes," was the response.

"Can the bear take his warm overcoat off?"

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

There was a silence for a while, and then a little boy spoke up:

Home-Made Tooth Powder.

A simple formula for tooth powder is this: Five ounces of areca nut charcoal, two ounces of cuttlefish bone, one ounce of raw areca nut, powdered and sifted together. Two or three drops of oil of cloves or of clasia may be added if a perfume is required. Use a firm brush when cleaning the teeth. Remove all foreign particles with a piece of dental floss. Twice a year have the dentist scrape away the tartar which is sure to form in spite of all care.

"That suits me. It's easier to simulate sorrow than to pretend to be amused."

The others are Senator Briggs, David Baird and Franklin Murphy.

Morristown Republicans last night elected one set of delegates to attend both the State and 5th Congress district conventions, as follows: George 9. Squire, George T. Allen, Charles McCollum and H. A. Vaughlder. Morris county will have twenty-three delegates in the convention favoring David Baird, Senator Kean, Senator Briggs and Governor Fort as delegates to the national convention.

Runyon, District Court Judge William Newcorn and Councilman Herbert Buxton will compose the Plainfield delegation at the State and Congressional conventions. There was little interest, as a rule, taken in the primaries here last night and no semblance of any contests for delegates.

Sixty-four votes were cast for former Mayor James F. Buckle at the polling place in the first ward, Watchung avenue and Second street. Proportionately, this ward had a better turn-out of voters than the wards where fewer delegates were to be chosen. Little interest was shown in the second ward, where but twenty-two votes were cast, although the registry list gives the ward two delegates. There was no opposition to the regular ballot and Robert E. Hall and Charles B. Morse were elected. The results of the balloting: Robert E. Hall, 20; Charles B. Morse, 19; William N. Runyon, 1; D. F. Ginna, 1; H. D. Hibbard, 1; Arthur Lovell, 1.

Howard C. Tracy was chairman of the committee and Frank L. Holt secretary. The tellers were George Ballentyne and Arthur Lovell.

Mayor Fisk acted as chairman at the third ward primaries held at the Casino. George W. Mott was secretary and Major Maze Edwards and Theodore LaRue acted as tellers. There were about thirty votes cast, the candidacy of County Chairman Frank H. Smith being unopposed.

In the fourth ward, H. C. Runyon called the meeting to order and Julius Williams was chosen as chairman, Abraham Angleman acting as secretary. W. L. Hetfield, Jr., and Fred Schomp acted as tellers. H. C. Runyon, Herbert Buxton and William Newcorn were named as delegates. Eighty-seven votes were polled.

At Scotch Plains, William Randolph Buckley acted as chairman with James Johnston as secretary. George H. Johnston was chosen as delegate with power to name his own alternate.

J. E. Flammer acted as chairman of the primaries at Watchung. J. P. Cooper was named as delegate to the State and Richard Maddeke to the Congressional convention.

Former Mayor N. B. Smalley and Alexander Milne were elected delegates to the State convention and Allen B. Laing and Robert Clark, Jr. were chosen to represent boroughites at the Congressional convention at the primaries held in the Somerset street school last night. Seventy-five ballots were cast, and there was no opposition. The board organized as follows: Councilman L. B. Woolston, chairman; N. B. Smalley, Jr., secretary and Alfred R. Trancbard, judge. The tellers were Councilman Morris VanArdsdale and former Councilman Charles Lee.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Lewis Thompson were elected delegates to the State convention at Somerville last night. The same two will act as delegates to the Congressional convention.

QUARTET CHOIR DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT TRINITY

The musicale by the quartet choir of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, dramatic reader, given in the Sunday-school room of the church, last night, attracted a larger audience than on the first occasion several weeks ago, and the program, a delightful one, was greatly enjoyed by everyone. The affair was under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church, and much credit is due the members for the success attained. The attractive decorations were the work of Mrs. George W. Cole and Mrs. L. B. Reed Camp, and they were much admired.

The program consisted of ten numbers, but they were so well received that an encore was given each one. The quartet, solo and duet numbers were heartily applauded, while Miss Roberts was given quite an ovation adding to her popularity among Plainfielders as a reciter of unusual ability.

The first number was "The Miller's Wooing," by the quartet, after which Fred S. Cutter, basso, sang a solo "Song of a Heart," by Tunison. As an encore he gave "The Turnkey's Song." By request Miss Roberts gave as her first selection, "The Shop Girl," followed with child impersonations and one entitled "Talk," with piano accompaniment, for encores.

As a solo number Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano, sang "Carmena," by Wilson, in which she had an excellent opportunity to display her attractive voice. She was strongly encored and responded with another selection. A number which seemed especially to please the audience was a duet by Miss Raybert and Mr. Cutter, entitled "Spirit, Spirit." They sang voices blended in perfect harmony, possessing strength and sweetness which made the rendition so effective.

The next selection by Miss Roberts, "In the Sewing Lady," was one of her best and for an encore she gave "Who's Dat Knocking." Another recitation that found favor was the one "Who's Afraid." The musicale closed with two selections by the quartet, "Kate," by Hawley, and "Through the Night," by Damrosch.

The quartet is composed of Miss S. Eetta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, mezzo-contralto; Fred S. Cutter, bass, and Edmund D. Young, tenor. Miss Lallian L. Force was the accompanist of the evening and her work added much to the success of the affair.

Want Grade of Street Changed.

Henry Leifke, E. M. Laing and other owners of property on Chatham street, near Elm place, are making efforts to have the borough officials change the grade of the street at Chatham street and Elm place, so that in heavy rains it will not be flooded as at present. The matter has been taken up with the Borough Council and Mayor Townsend and the latter is speaking of the plan for improvement yesterday, said that he believed that it could be accomplished in a way that would meet the approval of the property-owners. Considerable money has been expended in that section of the borough for improvements and the property-owners believe that their request is a fair one.

DESERTED WIFE WANTS TO SELL HER AUTOMOBILE

No money has yet been furnished for the release of Matthias P. Backer, the borough's hole under $100 bonds on charges of desertion preferred by his wife, who lives on Pearl street, and he is still a prisoner in the borough lock-up. His wife and four children are without means of support and Mrs. Backer said today that she was anxious to sell an automobile, bought in the palmy days before man-and-wife-and-family troubles began. The machine is a Jackson car, "in good condition," and there will be no quibble as to price, because the sale means bread and butter for the woman and her four children.

It was at first reported that Mrs. Backer wanted to sell the machine to secure the release of her husband. This was denied by the wife who says she will continue to press the charge. Miss Annie Becker, the alleged "affinity" in the case, has been in conference with Mrs. Backer, and the two women agree that the husband is a worthless one. Mayor Townsend and Mrs. Backer had a long conference this morning, the Mayor seeking an adjustment of the family quarrel. The woman remained firm, stating that if she could only dispose of the automobile she would be independent at least temporarily.

Backer spends most of his time brooding over his troubles in his cell. There was no foundation to the rumor that he attempted to commit suicide, but the wayward husband had to have the services of a physician in his cell yesterday afternoon.

CITY FIREMEN RESCUE FEAR-STRICKEN FELINE

Chased by a dog to the top of a barn at East Seventh and Washington streets three days ago, a terror-stricken cat was rescued from its lofty perch by members of the city fire department today. At the request of W. A. Coddington, of the S. S. Co., the firemen sent the hook-and-ladder truck to the scene as the feline was in such a position that it could not be gotten to the ground except by reaching it with a ladder. A twenty-two feet extension ladder was placed alongside the building and the mewing animal was grabbed by one of the men and brought down.

The cat was first noticed on the barn Sunday night and kept the neighborhood awake by its frightened cries, attempts made to dislodge it proved in vain and Monday and Tuesday night's resulted in more or loss of sleep. It looked as though the same thing was going to happen until the animal died from exhaustion or starved to death when Andrew Coddington thought of the fire truck as a last resort.

King's Daughters' Musicale.

A musicale of special interest will be given at the Casino Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters. The program has been arranged by Joseph McIntyre, pianist, whose talent in this respect is well-known. The various numbers, all selections from famous composers, will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre, piano; Clifford Cairns, baritone; Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; Harry Dorr violin, and there will be readings by Frederick B. Hanson, who will give several of James Whitcomb Riley's best poems. Tickets for the affair can be had at Estil's or the pharmacies of Armstrong, Miller and Randolph.

Baby Boy Lost.

James Schlief, the two-year-old son of Charles Schlief, of Second street, took a long walk yesterday afternoon, "all by his lonesome" and was found near Herman's mill on Somerset street at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The little fellow was evidently looking for his father, only a few words, and those in German. He was taken to Chief Marshal Weiss' house, on Somerset street and stayed there with the chief until 8 o'clock in the evening, when his father came for him.

New Borough Fire Team.

A team of grey horses has been purchased by the borough for use on the fire apparatus. The animals are well-matched, standing slightly more than sixteen hands high. Driver William Gaub says they have lots of speed, and they are in regular service at borough headquarters today for the first time. Chief Solomon says that they are to be christened "Newt" and "Sam." "Nip" the surviving horse of the former team, is to be sold.

Mrs. John Clapp, who has been spending the winter in Gloucester, Mass., has returned to her home on Mercer avenue.

DR. RODMAN'S PORTRAIT PRESENTED TO MASONS

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, a charming musicale was given in the Masonic Hall Association, yesterday afternoon, under the direction of Joseph McIntyre, for the wives, mothers and sisters of Masons. The audience numbered about 200 and the affair was considered one of the best ever given by the auxiliary.

A feature was the presentation of a life-size portrait of the late Rev. Erskine M. Rodman to the Masonic Hall Association. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. M. H. Hart and the handsome portrait was hung in place. It is the work of F. C. Langhorne and in size is 26x31, appropriately framed. The association will arrange for suitable recognition of the act.

The program of the afternoon was given by Miss Marjorie Riley, soprano; Clifford J. Cairns, baritone, and Robert Thrane, 'cellist, all of New York, and Joseph McIntyre, pianist. The artists were all well received and they were generous with encores. In the selection of the various numbers Mr. McIntyre displayed his usual good taste, and his part in the musicale was as delightful as ever. His solo numbers and his work as accompanist were of a high character.

The other artists were fully up to expectation and their part in the musicale added not a little to its success. The program:

Piano solo, "Valse de Concert," Mozkowski; 'cello solo, "Rhapsodie Hungroise," Popper; baritone solo, "A Summer Night," (with 'cello obligato), Thomas; soprano solo, "Nymphs and Fawns," Bemberg; piano solo, "Dance Espagnole." "Petite Serenade," Streibski; 'cello solo, "Memories," "Gavotte," Dancla; duet; baritone solo, "Across the Desert," Kellie; soprano solo, "Caller Herrin," "Auld Robin Gray," Old Scotch.

"JIM" WILL BE DELEGATE -THOUGH NOT FROM JERSEY

James E. Martine today declared that he would not be an alternate to the delegates-at-large to the Denver convention. "I told them at Trenton yesterday that I wanted to be a delegate-at-large. They tagged me down. I don't want and won't be an alternate although the convension elected me as such," said Martine.

"I will be at that convention. There are other states beside New Jersey and I will find a way to get to one of them. My voice will be heard in behalf of the next president of these United States, William Jennings Bryan, the greatest statesman America has ever produced. I have no fault to find with "Jim" Smith; the convention thought his way. But I'll be there and will have as much to say as 'Jim' Smith or any other Democrat of New Jersey."

In New York Theatricals.

Victor H. McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, is a member of the cast that is to present "The Little Minister," on Tuesday evening of next week for the benefit of the Chrystie Street House, New York. This house is a temporary home for boys and young men out of work, and not only supplies food and shelter, but clothing and aids in getting employment.

C. D. Meigs Will Speak.

The annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Association will be held at the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon, May 26, at 3 o'clock, when C. D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Fishing for Minnows, or the Cradle Roll." The same evening he will make the principal address at the same place before the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union.

Elks Get High Class Artists.

As a special feature of their minstrel show to be given in the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, the local Elks have secured Cooklet and McBride, considered one of the greatest song and dance teams in the country. They will be recalled by Plainfielders as the artists who headed "The Red Mill" company which appeared here last fall, appearing in the parts created by Montgomery and Stone.

Unlicensed Peddlers Fined.

William S. Titsworth and Charles Kaplan, travelling rug agents, were arrested by Acting Chief Keller, of the borough force, on Chatham street for peddling without a license. At their hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night they were fined $1 apiece and warned to get licenses.

"JIM" SMITH'S TRIUMPH

SENATOR HOLDS FULL SWAY.

Defeats "Bob" Davis—"Gag Law" a Feature— Dilts' Appeal Unheard—Real "Democratic" Meeting.

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., poses no longer as leader emeritus of the Democrats of the state of New Jersey. Whatever might have been his intentions when he announced his retirement from active participation in politics two years ago, it was abundantly evident in the Democratic state convention held in the State street theatre, at Trenton, yesterday afternoon that he is no longer retired. In fact, Mr. Smith literally occupied a front seat and actually assumed the reins of leadership. He not only had himself elected one of the delegates-at-large to the national convention to be held in Denver, but picked his three colleagues for Big Four honors and incidentally rejected Robert Davis, of Hudson County, in that connection. In signalizing his resumption of leadership, Mr. Smith did two things that he has never before been known to do since he became a power in state democratic politics. The first is contained in the fact that he occupied a seat in the first row from the stage in the theatre and the second is that he arose personally *during the proceedings of the conven*tion and made a motion.

Mr. Smith demonstrated his absolute control of a majority of the 1325 delegates with a big "D" on him, he himself received 972 votes for delegate-at-large, while the most that his Hudson County rival could rally in his behalf was 445. The overwhelming victory of the Essex gentleman, however, does not mean that the 445 were easily defeated. As a matter of fact, the convention, once it had got under way after the speech of former Mayor George A. Viehman, of New Brunswick, who acted as chairman, became exceedingly turbulent. Men who have attended New Jersey Democratic conventions for twenty-five years declare that it was the acrappiest affair of its sort that they ever witnessed. It was constantly noisy and combative, and at one point it looked as though physical encounters would be a part of its activities.

The determination of Smith to turn down Davis was not worked out according to the original slate. Having not only a majority of the delegates with him, but as well wielding irrepressible influence in the state committee, it was through the latter body that the original slate *for delegate-at-large was first an*nounced. That slate contained the name of former Senator Robert Hudspeth, chairman of the Democratic state committee, as the choice for Hudson county. As soon as Hudspeth arrived in Trenton yesterday he announced that under no circumstances would he accept the Big Four honor. A conference ensued between Hudspeth and Smith, and the former, it seems, prevailed upon the latter to agree to the naming of Davis as one of the delegates-at-large. Such was the understanding when the hour arrived for the calling of the convention. Meantime Davis arrived with the bulk of the Hudson county delegates. As soon as he was told of the concession made by Smith he said that he could not be a party to it unless James E. Martine, of Plainfield, would consent to release him from *a promise made that Hud*son county would support the farmer orator as one of the delegates-at-large. While some of Davis' friends were trying to find Martine, Davis and Smith met each other in the lobby of the theatre and had a brief chat. Surrounded by a number of Essex and Hudson men, Smith said that after all it might be that harmony could be worked out of the convention and that under the circumstances he was willing to agree to Davis going as a delegate if he would pledge himself not to oppose the unit rule and also not urge that the delegation be instructed, thus shutting off considerable stir in the convention favorable to Bryan.

While Smith was defining his attitude towards Davis, Martine arrived on the scene. On the advice of several members of the Progressive Democratic League Martine told Davis that he would release him from his pledge, provided Smith would allow the passage of a resolution favorable to Bryan, even though it did not directly instruct. Smith regarded that proposition as preposterous and would not consider it. Just at that moment one of Smith's lieutenants said: "Oh, this sort of talk has gone far enough."

"Well, I guess we will have to fight it out, Bob," declared Smith, "and let the Convention decide."

REAL FUN IN THIS PLAY

AT BENEFIT PERFORMANCE.

The Casino was thronged with the members and friends of the Cup Bearers' Circle of King's Daughters, Wednesday afternoon and night, when that organization gave a play, doll exhibition, Punch and Judy show and conducted a sale of candy and flowers. Liberal patronage was accorded and the circle will net a substantial sum for the support of the King's Daughters' work. The whole affair was under the direction of Mrs. Henry L. Hall, president of the circle, and Mrs. F. W. Butler, vice president, assisted by all the members.

The feature was the presentation of a one-act play written by Miss Louise Saunders, daughter of former Mayor W. L. Saunders, of the borough, entitled "Another Day in Paris," and it made a decided hit. The story is a very cleverly written one, and is in the nature of a take-off on one of the Cook's tourist parties abroad. Some of the younger members of the party, who are fascinated with Paris, devise all sorts of schemes to remain a day or two for another day, against the wishes of a majority who want to go to Germany. The laundry, belonging to the members as supposed, was hidden, but later developments discloses a lot of baby clothes and the incident brings down the house. Just as all hope of remaining in Paris is abandoned, Miss Anna Garrigues, as "Mrs. Bellehaven," who has invited them to spend three weeks with her, arrives, and everything turns out lovely for the young women.

The principal parts were taken by Miss Marion Hall, as "Sue Alden," Miss Eleanor Waring as "Joan Jasper," and Miss Marion Brown as "Miss Esterhazie," and they kept the audience convulsed with laughter. The other members of the cast were also very good, and Walter McGee as "Mr. Terwilliger," who was in charge of the party, took his part especially well. Stella Butler, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Butler, who had a small part, was clever.

At the close of the play there was loud applause and continued calls for the author. Miss Saunders was showered with beautiful floral gifts, and when quiet was restored she said: "I never made a speech in my life, but I am sure that with such a cast any play would have been a success. I am glad that you liked it."

The cast for the play follows:

Joan Jasper, Miss Eleanor Waring; Sue Alden, Miss Marion Hall; Miss Esterhazie, Miss Marion Brown; Miss Love, Miss Gabriel McQuaid; Miss Denton, Miss Lucie Budlong; Mrs. Broxbury, Miss Frances Hyde; Mrs. Maloney, Miss Helen Stevens; Evangeline Maloney, Miss Stella Butler; Mr. Terwilliger, Walter McGee; Mrs. Bellehaven, Miss Anna Garrigues; French errand maid, Miss Anna Fisk; other tourists, Miss May Faber, Miss Susan Wharton, Miss Kathryn Titus and Miss Helen Timpson.

The exhibition of dolls was one of the sights of the affair. They ranged in age from a few days to 150 years, there being a number whose age is between fifty and sixty years. Several of these dolls were obtained for the exhibition by Mrs. Harry L. Hall, while many were loaned by Plainfielders. One of these ninety years old was loaned by Miss Margaret Vail, of Church street. Another 150 years old came from Newport, while Mrs. R. M. Brown loaned a beautiful doll 130 years old.

The sale of flowers and candy was a great success, everything being disposed of at good prices. The members of the Circle are: Misses Natalie Bradley, Lucie Budlong, Anna May Campbell, Marguerite Carpenter, Beresford Letcher, Jessie Flanders, Charlotte Finch, Mabel Hooley, Ray Hooley, Katheryn McCutcheon, Gabriel McQuaid, Anna Garrigues, Louise Saunders, Frances Hyde, Marion Hall, Constance Wilcox, Helen Adams, Marion Brown, Eleanor Waring, Helen Moody, Ethel Most, Gladys Peck, Endora Sullivant, Susan Wharton, Anna Fisk, Dorothy Fisk, Helen Timpson, Eleanor Waring, Caroline Martin, Helen Stevens, Alice Titus, Katherine Titus, Seline Zinkeisen and Stella Butler.

The chairmen of the various committees follow: Candy, Miss Alice Titus; flowers, Miss Dorothy Fisk; lemonade, Miss Ethel Most; grabbag, Miss Marguerite Carpenter; Punch and Judy, Miss Katherine McCutcheon; parcel auction, Miss Caroline Martin; exhibition of dolls, Miss May Faber.

HOLY CROSS CLUB NETS $75 BY DRAMATICS

Holy Cross parish house was filled to capacity accommodation last week when the boys' club presented two comedies, the "Obstinate Family" and "The Dentist's Clerk." As a result, about $75 has been netted by teh organization, and this money will be used for the purchase of uniforms and equipment for the baseball team.

"The Obstinate Family," the first play presented, gave an opportunity for some first-class acting on the part of Miss Helen Roberts and Percy Watson. The key phrase of the whole play is "Thank goodness, the table is ready," and this comes in time after time in amusing situations. Those who took part were William Little, Miss Henrietta Winn, Percy Watson, Miss Agnes Van Norden, Walter Knokiton and Miss Helen Roberts.

Russel Conroy, as "Julius," a colored assistant in a dentist's office, made the hit in the presentation of the second play, "The Dentist's Clerk." His acting was a feature of the presentation, which deals with the "treatment" of various "patients" in the office of Dr. Puff, a dentist, where Julius is left in charge during the doctor's absence. The unfortunate patients' parts were taken by Erl Moran, Fred Grey and Charles Metzger. Metzger's singing was a feature of his acting which won much applause. Others who took part in this play were Ira Vail, William Taylor, who ably took a girl's part, and Fred Van Norden.

During the intermission between the plays there was a piano duet by Rev. George A. Warner and Russel Conroy. There was also music before the entertainment began. Harry Little was business manager, and the ushers were Edward Mosher, Arthur Mahoney, William Bullock and Carl Nichols.

A NEW COOKBOOK.

A gift suitable to any time of the year, original, homemade, is described in the Woman's Home Companion. Have you ever thought of making an autograph cookbook? It only requires a little care and patience to have a cookbook filled full of original recipes of dishes fit for a king.

First make a list of your intimate friends. Those noted for their good cooking an dhousewifely virtues of course should head the list. Write to each of them a personal note asking them to write out and send to you their favorite recipe. In each not inclose a stamped envelope with a sheet of paper of uniform size for the written recipe. Then wait.

Presently in will come whole flocks of white envelopes, each inclosing the recipe which is the particular pride of the particular housewife who donates it. And before long what a collection you will have! When all the names have been accounted for, you must get to work and bind the sheets into a book. Vellum makes a good cover, and if the more serviceable one is desired ooze leather, purchased at a leather shop, may be used. Red leather, lettered in gold or black, looks well, and the initials of the lucky recipient should be added in one corner. Just see what delight this gift will bring, and you will then feel amply repaid.

POINTED PARAGRAPH.

There is a lot of extravagant language in some brands of free speech.

Smiles Keep Affection.

No matter what the novelists say against her, the smiling wife is an improvement on her stern browed sister, and the smiling mother is the one who gathers her babies most tenderly in her arms. Children read more in looks than in speech.

"She talked kind, but she looked cross," said a little boy of a new teacher as a reason for his refusal to go to school. And big people are affected much more than they realize by the expression of the faces that they meet in the street. "She was so pleasant" is the inscription on a moss mottled stone in a country churchyard. "She was so pleasant" is not a bad epitaph for any one when the book of life is finished.

The smile is as much the sign of good humor as an open fire is a sign of warmth and cheer.

Dogs' Toilet Club.

There has recently been opened in one of London's fashionable streets a toilet club for dogs. There the pets of the smart set can have their hair dressed and their coats trimmed to immaculate perfection. For three shillings (about 75 cents) they can be bathed. If their teeth are imperfect they can be filled or extracted, and if their claws protrude too far they can be daintily manicured.

RUNAWAY'S WILD DASH

Horse Belonging to Father Bogan Demolishes Wagon and Injuries Two Men.

BIG STRUCK TROLLEY CAR.

Covered a Distance of Two Miles Before It Was Finally Swerved into a Tree and Stopped.

A saddle horse belonging to Rev. Father Bogan, of St. Mary's church, got to a wagon for exercise Decoration day afternoon, ran away soon after it was taken for a junket around town and left a trail of excitement for a couple of miles before it was caught. The vehicle was practically demolished, two young men in it were slightly hurt and another rig and a street car were slightly damaged through being struck. The runaway itself escaped with only a few scratches.

Policeman Cornelius McCarthy, a member of the night patrol force, volunteered to take the horse out for the junket and came from the church to the business district without any mishap. At East Second street and Park avenue he offered James Mahoney and John Caulfield a ride and they accepted. At Second and Church streets, a shaft of the vehicle became detached and, as it dropped, the horse made a sudden jump forward, wrenching the lines from McCarthy's hands. The next instant the animal was dashing along at top speed while the frightened young men behind sought in vain to stop it.

McCarthy advised his friends to jump to the street and Mahoney made the first attempt. He climbed out at the rear but his feet had barely struck the ground when he was hurled headlong to the sidewalk. McCarthy was the next to jump and executed a movement that shoved his forehead along the macadam, leaving a large part of the cuticle from his face behind him. Caulfield was the last to get out and landed safely.

At Richmond and Second streets, the runaway banged into a trolley car, the tongue of the corner and a section of the wagon was ripped off. The car withstood the shock but a dented dashboard showed that it had been against it. With the remains of the rig, the horse turned up Richmond street and then brought it safely to Watchung avenue. It had just turned the corner there when it banged into a delivery wagon and some more wreckage followed. At Hillside and Watchung avenues, a young man named ran to swerve the runaway into a tree and the long run was stopped. A pair of shafts was about all that remained of the wagon.

McCarthy's hurts were sufficient to keep him off duty last night and he will be laid up for a day or two for several weeks to come. Mahoney's left hand was cut and torn by stones from the fingers to the elbow and he has bruises about the body that make walking difficult.

UNION CO. FREEHOLDERS GRANT TERRILL ROAD PETITION

The Union county officials will do the work from Greenbrook road to Mountain avenue and a proposition for the North Plainfield part of the road was presented to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders at Somerville today. It is reported that the Somerset Board is favorable to the petition of property owners, and will grant the petition.

James E. Martine, Lemuel B. Woolston, Martin A. Rose, D. T. Kenney, J. D. Loizeaux, W. A. Coddington and W. C. Codington, all of the Freeholders were present except two. D. T. Kenney is representing the interests of the property owners before the Somerset county Board at Somerville today.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS.

To prevent knots in cotton while sewing always thread your needle before cutting the cotton from the spool. This will prevent both knots and twisting.

Baby's bibs are prettily embroidered in the cross stitch with coarse embroidery cotton. The designs used are a group of animals, birds and other things that appeal to the infant mind, and as the cross stitch is one of the easiest methods of embroidery baby's belongings can always be decorated in this way.

What the circular skirt was a few years ago we now see the godet pattern. The skirt is fitted to the hips smoothly over the hips, and the front is cut in a decided point. To this is attached the plaited flounce, which is short in front and high in the back. For a linen skirt the pattern is graceful and stylish.

For the baby is made a lovely little coat of white handkerchief linen, lined with washable white china silk. A circular collar is trimmed with a lace ruffle, and the little sleeves and all edges are trimmed in like fashion. The pattern is first embroidered with small blue forgetmenots, and the coatee is tied with blue ribbons.

N. J. INDUSTRIES' GREAT PROGRESS

The bureau of statistics of labor and industries of New Jersey has signalized its thirtieth anniversary by the issue of a volume of unusual interest, as its report for the year 1907. The book contains the statistics of manufactures, prefaced by an analytical introduction in which the misleading character of some features of the federal census reports are pointed out, particularly the manner in which the number of manufacturing establishments is swelled by the inclusion therein of every variety of small industry, many of which employ the labor of no one outside of the proprietor.

Data relating to manufactures, which are for the year 1906, show a remarkable condition of prosperity in all lines of industry throughout the State. As compared with the year 1905 the 2,120 standard factory establishments reporting show increases as follows: In capital invested, $53,611,147, or 11.3 per cent.; in value of stock or material used in manufacturing processes, $75,315,705, or 21.8 per cent.; in selling value of total products, $117,419,812, or 19.2 per cent.; in the average number of wage earners employed, 14,239, or 3.7 per cent.; and in the amount paid in wages to wage earners, $1,728,081, or 12.7 per cent.; in average yearly earnings per employe, $17.47, or 3.6 per cent.

The greatest number of wage earners reported as being employed at any time during the year was 277,566, or of these 73.5 per cent. were males 21 years of age and older, 23.9 per cent. were females 16 years old and older, and 2.6 per cent. were young persons of both sexes under 16 years old. The foregoing classification of labor shows an increase of 0.8 per cent. in the proportion of male employes and decreases of 0.7 and 0.1 per cent. respectively in the number of females and children employed.

Gigantic Strides Made.

The report also contains a comprehensive summary showing the growth of manufacturing industries in New Jersey since 1850. Some of the most striking totals for both periods are shown in the following table:

Capital invested, 1850	$ 22,293,258
Number of wage earners, 1850	37,820
Number of wage earners, 1905	266,330
Amount paid in wages, 1850	9,364,749

In the value of annual products of manufactured goods the rank of the principal municipalities is at present as follows:

1—Newark.
2—Jersey City.
3—Bayonne.
4—Paterson.
5—Perth Amboy.
6—Camden.
7—Trenton.
8—Elizabeth.
9—Passaic.
10—Hoboken.
11—New Brunswick.
12—Harrison.
13—Phillipsburg.
14—Orange.
15—West Hoboken.
16—Bloomfield.
17—Kearny.
18—Millville.
19—Plainfield.
20—Union.
21—Bridgeton.
22—East Orange.
23—Hackensack.
24—Atlantic City.
25—Morristown.
27—Long Branch.

One of the most interesting chapters in the book is that in which the particulars relating to "accidents to workmen while on duty and the number of these that resulted in death" are given.

Figures show the total number injured in 1907 to have been 1,898, and the number of these in which death followed soon after was 425, or 22.4 per cent. of the total number. In 1906 the year's record of casualties among wage earners totaled up 1,274 accidents, which resulted in 269 deaths. The increase for 1907 compared with the record of 1906 shows, therefore, that 624, or 49 per cent. more workmen were injured during the year while following their customary vocations, and also that the number of fatalities which followed was increased from a small fraction above 21 per cent. in 1906 to 22.4 per cent. in 1907.

Railroad Men's Mishaps.

Railroad trainmen, yardmen and section men furnished by far the largest number of accidents, 440, and also the greatest number of deaths, 180. Among the trades the carpenters suffered most, the number of accidents being 120, to 22 for bricklayers, the next highest on the list. Quarrymen and tunnel laborers both show high percentages of accidents that terminated fatally; out of 18 quarrymen injured 50 per cent., died, and of 42 tunnel laborers injured 19, or 45 per cent., died.

These statistics of accidents are particularly opportune at this time, when the question of establishing statutes regulating of employers' liability is engaging the attention of Congress and many of the State legislatures. There is a growing sentiment in favor of compelling more effective protection to be given workmen. The record of the lives thus maimed and killing of New Jersey working persons given in this report makes a gruesome and pathetic recital. It is felt that the State factory inspection department should be clothed with ample power to bring about the conditions. It should also be made one of its most imperative duties to safeguard the lives of industrial employes.

Dr. Herman A. Glatzmayer and Mrs. Caroline Zahn, of Newark, pleaded not guilty in the Quarter Sessions Court in that city Thursday to the indictment charging them with committing an illegal operation upon Miss Mary E. Dodge, both former Plainfielders, who accompanied Miss Vliet to Newark, are indicted with Dr. Glatzmayer and Mrs. Zahn.

Gavett, of the association; F. P. Lamphear, Principal Ira W. Travell of the Plainfield High School, and Secretary Parker, of the association were also present.

Maintaining His Argument.

One night at Brooks' when Coke was present Fox, in allusion to something that had been said, made a very disparaging remark about royalty. Coke, who was Attorney-general to the Prince of Wales, who heard it, considered it a personal reflection and sent Fox a challenge. At the time appointed Fox went out and took his station, standing full face to his adversary. Pitzgerald pointed out to him that he ought to stand sideways. "What does it matter?" protested Fox, "I am as thick one way as the other!" The signal of fire was given. Adam fired, but Fox did not. His seconds, greatly excited, told him that he must fire. "I'll be —— if I do!" said Fox. "I have no quarrel." Whereupon the two adversaries advanced to shake hands. "Adam," said Fox to me recently, "you'd have killed me if it hadn't been for the badness of government powder."—London Bellman.

FAIR HEIR CLAIMANT GIVES GOODBY DINNER

Frank H. Smith, claimant to some of the Fair millions, who is contesting a settlement made some time ago on the estate, has quietly slipped away, according to evidence, gave a farewell dinner to a number of relatives and friends at the Cafe De Jianne, Newark, last night. He, his wife and son, Frank H., Jr., leave on Tuesday for a trip around the world.

Mr. Smith said that effects were being made to settle his claim, but that he had thus far refused to settle under the terms offered.

In the party at the dinner last night were Mr. Smith, his wife and son, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Leonard, of Newark; Albert G. Nelson and wife, of New Market; Miss Carrie Smith, daughter of William B. Smith, of Caldwell; Mrs. Frank Leonard and Elmer Leffler, also of Caldwell; Lorenzo Castles and wife, of Kingsland; William H. Castles and wife, of Kingsland, and N. L. Kahn and wife, of Newark.

The receiver's accounts for the Powers Pharmacy Company, insolvent, shows the total amount of assets realized to be $4,373.91, and the balance remaining after the payment of the expenses and preferred claims is $1,020.41. This results in a dividend of approximately 23 cents on the dollar. Elston M. French is the receiver. There are about seventy-five creditors.

The Powers Pharmacy Company was a drug firm on Somerset street, founded by J. P. Powers two years ago. It went into the hands of the receiver several months ago.

PARTY LEADERS SPEAK AT BIG G.O.P. BANQUET

Governor, U. S. Senator, Congressman and State Senator Address Union Co. Republicans.

JOHN KEAN AS TOASTMASTER.

Feast Held Under Auspices of Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth Attended By 500 Party Workers.

There was a great outpouring of Republicans from all parts of Union county, and a large representation of State officials at the dollar dinner given in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, last week, by the Downtown Republican Club. The affair marked the opening of the campaign in this part of the State and local Republicans had the assistance of Governor J. Franklin Fort, United States Senator John Kean, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, as well as other prominent members of the Legislature, in giving it a rousing start. The affair was largely under the direction of County Chairman F. H. Smith, and the able leader saw to it that there was no hitch in the program.

When the Governor reached the hall at 9:30 he was given an ovation he will not soon forget. It lasted for the best part of five minutes.

Senator Kean, who was introduced as the toastmaster by James White, made a few remarks congratulating the party on having such a loyal band of followers, and he presented as the first speaker, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, who just previous to that had joined heartily in drinking a toast to President Roosevelt. The representative of the Fifth District, after paying his compliments to the President and his sterling qualities, adding that he was not always able to travel his gait, gave a brief review of his opinions on the money question, contrasting the advantages of gold reserve as against fiat currency. He paid his compliments to Senator Aldrich, saying that now that his currency measure is in the hands of his committee, he was privileged to speak of it. He declared that there were only three representatives who had spoke in favor of the bill to the committee, while thousands of communications were received against it. He said that the United States Senate had the reputation of being a historic body, but on the money question he considered it an "ancient historic body."

In the meantime, Governor Fort arrived, but in order to give him a chance to collect his thoughts, the toastmaster called on State Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris county. The chief thought of his talk was that he hoped the time had arrived or would soon come when all troubles between capital and labor would be settled peacefully.

There was loud and continued applause when the Governor was introduced and what he had to say was very much to the point. He displayed no enthusiasm when he was heralded as the next vice president by Senator Kean as well as the crowd, but directed his attention to speaking of State affairs, taking care to explain that while he might not have obtained all he desired from the Legislature, the same might be said to be true of Governor Hughes, of New York, and even President Roosevelt. In speaking of the President, he was not quite sure but that Congress might be found in the wrong and Roosevelt right in the many important controversies now engaging the attention of National affairs. He declared emphatically that a person could not point to one dishonest act on the part of State office-holders since January 1 last, and to the best of his knowledge every office is being filled by a capable and honest person.

Frank B. Jess, Speaker of the Assembly, spoke briefly. He referred to a banner against on the wall bearing portraits of Roosevelt and Fort, and requested that it be preserved for it might only be necessary to change one face, that of Roosevelt for Taft. This brought forth cries of "No." Every mention of Roosevelt brought forth prolonged cheers.

Following Mr. Jess, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, was introduced. His speech dealt with national affairs, in which he also referred to platform pledges. He said:

"To represent Union county in any capacity is a great honor. Territorially small yet its population is only exceeded by three or four other counties, and it has the additional distinction of being so situated next to the great metropolis that an excellent baseball player like Governor Fort could almost throw a ball into greater New York. Union county is also honored by being the home of the Senior United States Senator. Consult the Congressional Record and you will find that the questions asked by him in debate have been fruitful of good results. In gatherings of citizens like this lies the hope of the Republic. Fortunate indeed is the city, the county and the State that can number on its roster of activities such associations of men who amid all the vicissitudes of political life, grow and extend their influence beyond the city, beyond the county, yes, and beyond the boundaries of the State, even to the boundaries of the nation and beyond them, judging by the distinguished character of this brilliant gathering.

"Movements like this are the framework and backbone of success. From them radiate the enthusiasm, the determination to overcome obstacles, the desirable contagion that infuses others and makes movements popular and successful. It is evident that there are no drones among the diners here assembled. Every man takes or has taken his turn at the wheel. Adversity does not discourage you and an essential of life is ability to prosper amid disappointments and hostile political surroundings. It seems to me that it is not impossible to unite rugged strength with artistic appreciation; versatility with consistent action. The Republican organization in Union county is not one that quails before a wintry blast. You have known how to withstand assaults of political opponents in the past and to make temporary defeats stepping stones to success.

"Our country has grown and prospered since Lincoln's time. We have had great statesmen in Grant, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt, but none greater than the immortal Lincoln. Should we not stand today as Lincoln stood in 1863 with the same full measure of devotion for that 'government of the people, by the people and for the people?' We hear it suggested that hysteria is in the air and that a panacea is needed. The only thing that is needed is confidence. Are the conditions more dangerous than they were in 1863 when Lincoln delivered that famous address? It seems to me not. We have no great armies to disband. We have foe threatens us. We have no fear of our currency being debased. Bountiful crops have been our portion. Labor has been well employed. Then what are the dangers that require so much devotion to prevent government for the people from perishing? To me it seems that the greatest danger to the Republic at the present time is the tendency to centralization—that centralization which in its administration would reduce legislative authority and destroy local self government. Home rule is a good thing. Trust the people in their respective localities, be it borough, township, city, county or State.

"As a nation grows and becomes more populous it is important that the checks, balances and visions of authority, so carefully worked out by the early statesmen of the country and which have stood the severe test of time and experience, shall be jealously guarded, protected from invasion, prevented from being destroyed. Our platform must not consist of captivating platitudes to simply hypnotize the credulous voter—rather they should reflect the will and the sentiments of the expectant multitudes who, in good faith, await their legislative enactment.

"Is not a platform pledge a solemn contract between the representatives of a party in convention assembled and the people? and like a man's word it should be as good as a bond. If necessary every concession to one's personal conviction short of trespassing upon conscience, should be made in order to keep faith with the people.

"Progress should ever be the keynote of our action and we should strive to improve our condition, otherwise the nation would stagnate and all hope for the future would be lost.

"While it has been of late years a popular craze to unreasonably assail the railroads, yet one of the greatest blessings to our free institutions has been the means of communication as represented by the railroad, the telephone and the telegraph, uniting the widely separated parts of our country so that whatever affects one part favorably or adversely usually affects all. It is doubtful if the American Union during the Civil War could have been preserved without the use of the railroad.

"Of course the railroads must furnish safe, sufficient and adequate service; there must be no rebates, no discrimination, and supervision of public utilities conserves capital, helps the investor and protects labor.

"Passion and prejudice and party or factional advantage should not be allowed to so influence our legislation as to lose sight of economic laws which can only be violated at our peril. New laws, particularly those affecting business conditions, should be carefully considered before being enacted so as not to check the proper business expansion commensurate with our growth. Laws, if made, ought to be thought out in all their multitudinous details so as to be sure of doing good and not harm.

"A great Southern authority has recently said that during the past year 14,000 new laws have been enacted in the various States of the Union, and that these laws would cover 17,000 pages in fine print. Just thing of it! Were they all judiciously considered before being passed? To read them all would require two months, reading a page a minute and reading 5 hours a day, and yet we hear more than whispers for the initiative and referendum! How many of my auditors realize that since 1845 18,727 separate laws have passed in New Jersey alone?

"If the counsels of wise and cautious statesmanship prevail peace and prosperity will be the good fortune of the country. In all things the common good should first be considered in the interest of 'government of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

Among the other speakers were Assemblymen Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Kirstein, of Rahway, and John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, and Austin Colgate, Governor Fort's aide.

Those present from Plainfield were the following: Senator E. R. Ackerman, County Chairman F. H. Smith, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Judge William Newcorn, Winfield S. Angleman, Andrew McCardell, Councilmen Frank Randolph, Herbert Buxton, F. L. Montgomery, W. L. Gleak, G. W. V. Moy, Frederick R. Phillips, Howard C. Tracy, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, Asa F. MISSIONARY SOCIETIES HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

The anniversary meeting of the Women's Missionary societies of the First Baptist church was held Thursday afternoon in the lecture room. Following the devotional service led by Mrs. J. A. Chamblin, the secretary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, made the thirty-fifth annual report, briefly recounting the year's work and future aims of the society. The treasurer, Miss Ida Yerkes, reported the receipts for the year $523.11.

The secretary of the Young Women's Society, Miss Pauline Denton, gave a pleasant story of the year's endeavor and Miss Ada Fountain read the report of the treasurer, Miss Carrie Combs, showing the receipts for the year $191.63.

Mrs. George H. Robbins, secretary of the Women's Home Missionary Society, gave a report full of interest, the society having carried on its work for thirty years. The treasurer, Mrs. Frank Jones, reported the year's receipt $759.90.

Very pleasing recitations were given between the reports by Miss Rachel Smith and Miss Elizabeth Wynn. Miss Druse, of the First Baptist choir, sang very effectively two solos, "Redemption" and "O, Saviour Dear, Immanuel."

Mrs. Knox, president of the Women's Home Missionary Society and the presiding officer of the day, explained the plan of raising $300 for building and furnishing a room in the new training school edifice at Chicago. She was followed by Mrs. A. W. Palmer, of East Orange, vice-president of the Women's Home Missionary Society of New Jersey, who gave a most interesting address on the necessity for the new building of the training school. She prefaced her statements with the thought that the work of the missionary societies instead of being regarded as a tax and a burden should be looked upon as helpful and necessary to our spiritual good. The training school she regarded as the most important factor in the work of the society. She outlined briefly the sphere of the Women's society in the home of the people, especially the foreign population of the country. Many of the students are foreigners, who after preparation go to the people of their own nationality, understanding their language and national sympathies. These women are taught in the school how to organize and conduct meetings, to care of the sick, the care of homes and adaptability to many emergencies in their work. Believing that if the homes are purified the nation is purified, their motto is "Christ in Every Home."

Environment and Height.

The difficult question of the influence of environment on the height of the human body has been taken up by Pittard, Karmin and Kappeyne in the Swiss cantons, where a homogeneous population lives under greatly varied conditions. Their results all contradict previous beliefs, as they find that the tallest men live at the greatest altitude in the mountains; also that height is greater in regions less exposed to sunlight and greater on primitive or igneous rock than on limestone.

The Strongest Wood.

The strongest wood in the world ... is yate, and it grows in Western ... Australia, the home of many valuable hard woods. The official tests of ... yate show it to have an average tensile strength of 24,000 pounds to the square inch, equaling that of good cast iron. Many specimens are far stronger than this. One was tested up to seventeen and one-half tons to the square inch, which is equal to the tensile stregnth of wrought iron. The sawed timber of yate probably is the strongest in the world. The tree grows to a maximum height of 100 feet and sometimes has a diameter of two and one-half and even three feet.

To Preserve the Silks.

Many complaints are heard over the country to the effect that silk garments, some of which have been worn very little seem to split. The very worst thing for silk is heat, and oftimes a wardrobe is built where a chimney runs right back of it, or a radiator is too near, so the silk crumbles. Many wholesalers have holes drilled in the walls for ventilation in winter, if their silks are subject to excessive heat, and manufacturers that have a heavy stock in summer always place it in cold storage. Certain colors are more perishable than others, but it is well to take precaution for the protection of all.

BOY'S EYE GRAZED BY EXPLODING CARTRIDGE

...Because he pounded a blank cartridge shell with a hammer, while at play in front of his home Monday, William Drake, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Barber, of Somerset street, may lose the sight in his right eye. The accident was of an unusual nature, in thatinstead of having flying powder grains or wads inflict the wound, the copper shell struck the boy just beneath the eyebrow, escaping the right eye-ball by a fraction of an inchand lodging in the flesh above the eye.

No one knows where young Drake found the cartridge, but the accident followed his attempt to break it open with a hammer. He laid it on the sidewalk and at the first blow the cartridge exploded. It was standing on end on the stone, so the copper shell flew into the boy's right eye.

Dr. M. H. Dundon was summoned and it was found necessary to probe for the shell. An examination showed that the eye-ball had been missed by a veritable hairs-breadth.

The boy is resting comfortably at his home today and the physician believes there is little danger from blood poisoning.

MUSICAL CLUBS' SUCCESS READY FOR THE REVIEW

Plainfield High School Entertainment Shows Musical and Dramatic Talent.

GIRLS PRESENT A FARCE.

"My Aunt From California" with a Cast of Seven Young Women Makes the Hit of the Evening.

A musical and dramatic entertainment under the auspices of the musical clubs of the Plainfield High School Saturday night gave the public an opportunity to see what is being done by the pupil musicians—soloists, glee club and orchestra, and further proved the dramatic talent at the school by the presentation of a one-act farce, "My Aunt From California," given by seven girl pupils. About $35 was netted for the use of the clubs; although the entertainment was not very well attended, each number on the program was fully appreciated and the acting in the farce caused round after round of applause.

The program was in two parts, the first consisting of vocal and instrumental numbers by the clubs and soloists and the second comprising the presentation of "My Aunt From California." The opening number was a piano solo—from Opus 72 of Tschaikowsky, rendered by Miss Elsie Knowlton, and this was followed by three glees and choruses by the school glee club of forty-five boy and girl pupils. The best work in this number was on the third selection, "Jabberwocky," where some difficult music was capably rendered.

Percy Mygrant rendered the Flora Waltz as a cornet solo, and was encored for "O Happy Be Thy Dreams." His work was of the usual high order, and he was accompanied by his sister, Miss S. Louise Mygrant. Benjamin Stutsman played a violin solo, "Selections from Faust" so effectively that he was forced to give an encore. His accompanist was Miss Lillian Stutsman. The school orchestra of a dozen pieces played two selections and the first part of the program concluded with a piano duet, "Forest Spirits," rendered by Miss Muriel Collins and Miss Frances Rittenhouse.

The proverbial Plainfield High School dramatic ability was demonstrated among the girls of the school by the presentation of the one-act farce, "My Aunt From California," and the work of the entire cast showed careful training and some clever interpretations. The farce plot hinges upon the mistaken identity of one "Mrs. Merry Muntoburn," a rich aunt of Sally, Felicia and Rosalie Needy. Miss Barbara Fleming took the part of the aunt, and Miss Louise S. Andrews played as "Sally Needy," the leading character of the play. As the liveliest of the three sisters, with a sense of humor which appeals most satisfactorily to her aunt, she makes her two sisters, whose parts were taken by Miss Bessie Alspaugh and Miss Marian E. Snyder, believe her to be the aunt from California, and when the real Mrs. Muntoburn appears, forces her to appear to her sisters as a dress maker.

Miss Andrews injected so much jollity and stage business into her part that her acting alone assured the success of the play. But she was not a "lone star" in the production, for her "sisters" portrayed their individual characters with great success, Miss Fleming did some good acting, and Miss Harriet Knox, as "Mrs. Needy," the girls' mother, took a minor part with success. Miss Kathleen Phillips, wearing a two-by three "Merry Widow Hat," took the part of a dress-maker, and Miss Margaret V. Leggett, as the girls' maid, was typical.

The success of the entertainment was in a large measure due to the coaching of S. B. Howe, Jr., as faculty director of the management. Albert Hardcastle acted as business manager, George H. Fisher, Jr., stage director; Miss Mary French, property manager; F. Clyde Doane, assistant property manager, and Miss Margaret Leggett, prompter.

Runaway Horse Fatally Injured.

A valuable draught horse belonging to Street Commissioner John Y. Barrett, of North Plainfield, was fatally injured in a runaway on East Front street Saturday afternoon and subsequently shot by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn. The horse was one of a team at work with a wagon in charge of Edward Prentiss on an East Front street building excavation. The animals became frightened and bolted toward Watchung avenue. Near the corner, one of the team fell and its leg was broken. The animal was valued at $200.

Must Remove Telegraph Poles.

Preparatory to undertaking the work of widening and macadamizing the Washington Valley road, leading from Watchung to a point beyond Warrenville, County Engineer Doughty, of Somerville, accompanied by a representative of the Western Union Telegraph Company, went over that road yesterday and decided that all of the telegraph poles must be removed back to permit the work to be done. An effort will be made to place the poles all on one side of the road. The improvement will call for at least eight new bridges, both large and small.

Mayor Fisk Announces Plans for Inspection of Police and Firemen May 9.

DRILL ON THE MAYOR'S LAWN.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk today announced the arrangements for the annual inspection of the police and fire departments on Saturday, May 9, and from all indications it will be the most pretentious the city has ever had. It will comprise a street parade, a review by the chief executive and Common Council and a drill by the bluecoats and fire fighters on the spacious lawn in front of the Mayor's residence.

The members of the two departments will assemble in full uniform on North Avenue at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, their resting on Park Avenue. Thence, headed by Ben La Vere's band of eighteen pieces, the line will march down Park avenue to West Seventh street and the Mayor's home. The police will take position on the grounds while the firemen will remain in West Seventh street until after the inspection. After the inspection, Mayor Fisk will address the men as has been the custom of the city's chief official every year. The drill will be given in concession.

Following the program at the Mayor's home, the line will reassemble and proceed over the following route: West Seventh to Liberty street, to Fifth street, to Central avenue, to West Front street, to East Front, to Watchung avenue, to Second street and disband.

Heretofore the inspection of the department has been a mere formality and consisted practically of nothing more than a drill in some hall by the policemen and the lining up of the firemen in their respective houses. The Mayor conceived the idea that some display should be given the event in order that the citizens might see the full strength of the two forces and he accordingly arranged the coming affair. All the regular men of both departments will attend the inspection, special officers and call men substituting for them during.

While his wife and one of the daughters were attending services in the Reformed church at Whitehouse Station Sunday morning, John B. Davis, seventy years old, one of the leading men of that place, committed suicide by hanging himself in his wagonhouse. He was reclining on the lounge when his wife started for church and nothing unusual was noticed in his condition. Before the services were ended she was summoned home by the sad intelligence of her husband's death. Mr. Davis had gone to the wagonhouse, secured a tie rope, fastened it to the rafters and about his neck and jumped from an arm chair. Because he had been in poor health for more than a year is believed to be the reason why he took his own life.

Deceased was a justice of the peace for a number of years and for a long time had conducted a general store. He leaves a widow and five children, one of whom, Miss Ella Davis, is traveling abroad.

LEAP YEAR FEATURES AT YOUNG PEOPLE'S DANCE.

A highly successful leap year dance, at which the girls took the initiative during the whole affair, was held at True's Hall Friday, when about a hundred young people, including many pupils of the Plainfield High School and out-of-town guests, made merry until an early hour this morning. The dance was arranged by Miss Florence Dickerson, Miss Edna Martin and Miss Autumn Laney, and leap-year features were plentiful.

There were twenty dances, including several barn dances, and the cards were made out by the girls who scheduled dances for their partners. The men in the affair had little to do but enjoy themselves. Each was "asked to go" by a certain girl and in many cases carriages were sent for them, or their car fare paid. The ball-room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and palms, predominating colors being red and green. Signs were posted conspicuously, requesting the men not to walk across the dance floor unaccompanied by a girl, not to ask for dances, and to be a girl's escort before going to the punch bowl. Music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. Out-of-town guests came from Dunellen, Dover, Summit, New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Westfield. A "return dance," of the good old-fashioned style where man is boss, is being arranged for the near future.

His term as a committeeman expired with the convention and it was an agreeable surprise to him and his friends when he was named for the treasurership.

These are officers: W. C. Heppenheimer, of Jersey City, president; E. L. Howe, of Princeton, vice-president, and Mr. Arnold, treasurer. W. J. Field, of Jersey City, will be re-elected secretary by the executive committee.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of establishing four clearing houses in different parts of the State. Henry G. Parker, the retiring president, was given a vote of thanks for his services. Mr. Heppenheimer's election was made by acclamation.

VAN HORN AND MRS. DODGE ARRAIGNED ON INDICTMENT

J. Irving Van Horn, of Hope, formerly of this city, and Mrs. Sadie M. Dodge, of New Brunswick, at one time a borough resident, were arraigned Saturday before Judge Ten Eyck in the Quarter Sessions Court, at Newark, and held in $5,000 and $2,500 bail, respectively, on the indictment returned by the grand jury, charging complicity in the death of Miss Marietta Vliet, of Blairstown, who died in the City Hospital after having been removed from the home of Mrs. Cornelius Zahn, of 41 Chadwick avenue. Investigation led the authorities to believe that the young woman's death was the result of an illegal operation.

Van Horn, who was engaged to the dead girl, is the principal in the case, and Mrs. Dodge is held for bringing the girl to the Zahn house. Mrs. Zahn and Dr. Herman Glatzmayer were held in bond several days ago.

Van Horn was visibly affected when he was arraigned, and as he left the court room he kissed the hand of his aunt, Mrs. Caroline Fyles, who went his bail, and then burst into tears. Mrs. Dodge also lost her composure and had to be assisted to an ante-room.

The date of the trial was set for May 26.

A. S. DENISE INJURED WHEN RUNAWAY UPSETS HIS RIG.

Alfred DeNise, proprietor of the Manhattan Hotel on Somerset street, was painfully injured in a runaway accident Sunday afternoon, when the runabout in which he was driving was overturned and he sustained severe bruises on the hip and shoulder. The accident happened near Stonewall Jackson's stables on Somerset street.

DeNise was alone in the rig and was driving toward the mountain, when in some way the shafts came loose and fell about the horse's heels, frightening it so that it bolted. The runabout overturned, throwing its occupant heavily. The runabout turned in at Jackson's stables and was easily caught. Some of the stable men saw the upset and ran to DeNise's assistance. It was at first thought that his back was badly strained, but examination by a physician showed his injuries to be slight, and he is able to be about today.

These Are Malicious Thieves.

Charles Emmons, the contractor for the garage vault being constructed on Johnson's drive for the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, has had his job delayed by the malicious work of petty thieves, who periodically break into the shed where he keeps his cement, empty it outdoors and carry away the bags to sell. Emmons said today that he will sleuth around the place nights and prefer charges against anyone he catches or recognizes.

N. P. H. S. Nine Woe.

The borough High School baseball nine defeated the Holy Cross club team on the Cricket Field Saturday. The final score was 4-3 in favor of the schoolboys. Day and Fred McClintock were the points for the winners, and Hadler and Trembath were the battery for the church club.

The Cup Bearers' Circle of The King's Daughters netted $200 at the play and sale given at the Casino last week and this sum will go toward meeting the circle's pledge for support of the city nurse.

MISS DUYCKINCK A BRIDE

CEREMONY AT GRACE CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. William M. Hughes and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson Officiate—Society Witness Nuptials.

Miss Harriet Dennison Duyckinck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead Cornell Duyckinck, of Crescent avenue, and Henry Rutgers Conger, of Morristown, were married at Grace Episcopal church, Saturday at 3:30 o'clock, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Morristown and this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William M. Hughes, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Morristown, and a life-long friend of the bride and groom. He was assisted by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church.

The bride was gowned in white satin and point lace and wore a veil. Her bouquet was of white orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by Mrs. Edward Kirkpatrick Mills, of Morristown, who was the matron of honor. Her gown was of pink chiffon, trimmed with French lace, of a pink shade, and she carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Conger, of Morristown, sister of the groom; Miss Carolyn Shields, of Chicago; Miss Helen Sanger, of New York, and Miss Anne Scott, of Brooklyn. They were gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with white satin, and they wore tulle hats, trimmed with white and pink roses. They carried pink roses.

William E. MacClymont, organist of the church, was at the organ, and prior to the ceremony rendered several selections. The Lohengrin Wedding March was played as the bridal party entered the church. The ushers led the way, followed by the matron of honor, bridesmaids and the bride, accompanied by her father who gave her in marriage. At the chancel they were met by the officiating clergymen, the groom and his best man, William McMurtrie Rutter, of Philadelphia. As the bridal party left the church, the wedding march from Mendelssohn was played.

The groom, as best man and all the ushers, with the exception of Butler Duyckinck, were classmates at Williams College, Class '99. The ushers were John S. Oakman, Joseph Howe and Lorenzo Armstrong, of New York, and Butler Duyckinck, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Crescent avenue, where congratulations were offered and the large and handsome collection of gifts received by the bride were admired. Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left the city to enjoy an extended honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in New York, where the groom is a practicing lawyer, with offices at 40 Wall street.

The bride and her parents were former residents of Brooklyn, later removing to Morristown, from which place they came to Plainfield about a year ago. They have since been prominent in society circles here.

Prior to the wedding there were several entertainments for the bride and the members of the bridal party. Thursday night Mr. Conger gave his bachelor dinner at the Hotel Lafayette, New York. Yesterday afternoon a brilliant luncheon was given by Mrs. Sydney Williams, of East Ninth street, for the bride and her attendants. Last evening before the rehearsal at the church Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Van Buren, of Central avenue, entertained the groom, best man and ushers at dinner, and after the rehearsal, Mrs. Daniel T. Van Buren, of Central avenue, gave a dinner for the entire bridal party.

Miss Mary Halligan, of North Plainfield, and Thomas Curley, of Elizabethport, were married Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. William Messler, of Spooner avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Miller and was witnessed by a small gathering of relatives and friends. Miss Cecelia Halligan, sister of the bride, and Peter Foy, were the attendants. Following a week at Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Curley will make their home at Elizabeth, the groom being employed as engineer at the Shooter Island shipyards.

GRACE M. E. WELCOMES REV. AND MRS. SHOOP

Rev. Ora J. Shoop was welcomed to his pastorate at Grace M. E. church, Friday, when a large number of the parishioners attended a reception given him and Mrs. Shoop in the church parlors. There were about a hundred present to meet the new pastor, who assumed charged of the church several weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Shoop were assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Carroll.

The formal welcome to the parish and his new duties in North Plainfield was extended to Mr. Shoop by Dr. Carroll, who spoke informally on the two factors constituting the relations between a pastor and his flock. The first of these, he said, is the religious and social relation inside the church, and the second is a personal element of relationship in the community. Both are necessary for the maintainance of an aggressive, united parish.

Rev. Mr. Shoop responded simply to the speech of welcome, expressing his gratification as to the reception accorded him since he assumed his new duties. He stated that his prime object in the church would be expressed through his sermons, and he felt gratified to realize that the parsonage so near the church would allow him much time for working out his thoughts with quiet, persistent study for the best interests of the church community. He also expressed gratification over the fact that the church is free from debt and besought a continuation of the spirit of hearty co-operation which has marked his entry into this parish.

Later in the evening, Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Charles S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue church, both personal friends of Rev. Mr. Shoop before he came to the borough, dropped in for the formal welcome. Mr. McCrea spoke of the necessity for aggressive labor in the local field, emphasizing not only the opportunity for pastoral work, but the opportunity for unrequired work in the community. He said that there were advantages to be gained from such work which were in many ways over and above those of the required duties. Mr. Kemble spoke of his personal friendship for Mr. Shoop in the Greek course which the two have been working in for several months past. His remarks were in appreciation of the man.

During the evening, Miss Winifred Carroll sang two contralto solos, "The Gipsy Trail," by Galloway, and "A Prayer," by Starr. The piano accompaniment was played by Miss Alice Carroll. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee, were served by a committee of members of the ladies' auxiliary, Mrs. Andrew Lutkins and Mrs. George Nelson being in charge.

He will have charge of the paper all next year. Kee for two years has been a member of the varsity debating team and was instrumental in defeating the Cornell team recently.

He was born September 30, 1836, at West Stockbridge, Mass.

THESE THEORISTS.

"Theories, theories," he said with a wave of his hand. "Theories and theorists—they are apt to err, very apt to err."

"Theorists go mad," he said, "over their theories. "You know the theory that Bull wrote 'God Save the Queen?' William Chappell and Joshua Maidwin were the most arbitrary supporters of this theory, but one day they found an inconvenient entry in a rare old Tudor manuscript that threw the gravest doubt upon their claim.

"In this case what did they do? They clubbed together, bought the manuscript and burned it with great secrecy, solemnly ejaculating:

"'Thank goodness, we have now got rid of that objection to our theory.'"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Bad Model.

"I must say I'm s'prised at our minister," said Deacon Longface. "He ses all Christians should take pattern o' the bee as a model of industry."

"What's the matter o' that?" demanded his wife.

"Why, the bee works on the Sabbath same's any other day."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

CLINTON AVE. TEAM WON 'PLAINS TEAM WINS FIRST GAME OF SEASON

FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON.

The Clinton avenue baseball team opened the season at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon by rolling up a score of twenty-three runs in a practise game with the Plainfield High School nine. Out-classed and outplayed in every department of the game, the schoolboys could score but five runs in the entire contest, four in the second inning, when they made two of their four hits, and one in the ninth.

"Cliff" Randolph was the direct cause of the High School's defeat. He had all kinds of speed with him, and slipped over a good assortment of bends, striking out ten of the schoolboy batsmen. The High School team developed a bad case of the "rattles" in the early innings, and put up such a sad exhibition of the national game that even "Mother Nature" wept from time to time at the sight of so many errors and strike-outs. There were fifteen errors scored against the schoolboys, who played as if they had gone into the game with the idea of losing.

The West End nine made a most favorible impression before the crowd of fans who braved threatening weather to see the season start. They made good both with the stick and in the field, using up two schoolboy pitchers for a total of thirteen hits, and making but two misplays. There was lots of speed in handling the ball, but "Cliff" Randolph did so much at the plate that there wasn't much chance to see fielding. Moffett and Brit Martin made the best showing with the stick, the former hitting safely three times and the latter scored nine runs. Addo Frost, Hebert and V. LaPorte did the best work with the stick. The lineup: Fairview A. C.—A. Buner, c; C. Smith, p; F. McDonough, 1b; R. Conroy, 2b; W. Birch, 3b; V. Goldsmith, ss; M. McDonough, lf; Joe Sutcliffe, rf; E. Kenney, cf. Jackson A. C.—E. Hebert, c; E. LaPorte, p; V. LaPorte, 1b; H. Lungera, 2b; B. Hebert, 3b; B. Moore, ss; A. Seidel, lf; B. Bowe, rf; W. Howe, cf.

Struck out: By Randolph, 10; by Murphey, 1; by Martin, 1. Passed balls: off Snyder, 3 in 2 innings; off Murphey, 3 in 7 innings; off Randolph, 1; off Martin, 1. Passed balls, Dodwell, 1. Double play: Gildes, Snyder, Dey. Umpire, Mr. Daly. Scorers: Dorflinger and Caldwell.

JUNIORS SHUT OUT MONO A. C. NINE, 7-0

The Jr. O. U. A. M. team shut out the Mono A. C. nine in a well-played game on Hope Common Saturday afternoon, winning out by a score of 7-0. Van Arsdale was a puzzle to the Monos, fanning ten batsmen, and allowing but two hits. The Juniors did a lot of heavy hitting, and a two-base hit by Hann, with a two-baggers by Vanderbilt and Hewitt helped in the run getting.

The lodgemen's nine started the run getting in a very first session, scoring a tally in the first and two more in the second. In the seventh there were four runs, when they landed on Conover for some long hits. The Juniors played a snappy game in the field, and only two errors were scored against them. The official summaries:

Three base hits, Hann; two base hits, Vanderbilt and Hewitt. Struck out, by Van Arsdale, 10; by Conover, 4. Hit by pitched ball, Emmons. Umpire, Earl Smith. Scorer, Mulr.

Tip to Local Contemporary.

What an astonishing lot of strange things happen in the hamlet of South Plainfield that find their way into one Plainfield paper and then into its exchanges! What latest yarn about a South Plainfield man named James Sutton being in a "critical condition" from a wound inflicted "near the jugular" by a "Merry Widow" hat is timely, but we don't believe it is true. A strange thing about these remarkable things that happen to South Plainfield people is that nobody but the ingenious reporter who unearths them can ever find the victim. Some hard-working reporter, who is more enterprising than exact, should be reminded that newspaper fakes went out of style about ten years ago and that fakers are tabooed in reputable newspaper offices.—New Brunswick Home News.

Tickets for the Kirmess will be placed on sale at the theatre on May 1, when a choice of seats can be made.

Rahway Band Disband.

Of the original organizers of the association those still in membership are E. C. Miller, treasurer for twenty-five years, H. H. Voorhies, C. C. Jeffries, H. C. Springer and George Crane. The last dividend gave to each participant about nine dollars. This time it will probably be more.

DUNELLEN YOUNG WOMAN INJURED IN RUNAWAY

In a runaway accident on West Front street near Grant avenue at 4:45 Monday afternoon, Miss Lillian Sturman, of Dunellen, was quite badly hurt, and her father, Charles Sturman, was severely shaken up. A runabout they occupied was hurled against the water trough in front of the Stevens coal yard and both were pitched headlong, landing twenty feet away. Miss Sturman has possible internal hurts and had to be attended by Dr. A. K. Brennan before she could be removed to her home.

Mr. and Miss Sturman were returning from a shopping trip in the city and when at Plainfield avenue and Front street the horse became frightened by the breaking of a trace. With enough of the harness holding fast to keep the vehicle with it, the animal started off at a mad gallop. Mr. Sturman made ineffectual attempts to check its speed but without success and when Grant avenue was approached, the runaway became pocketed by trolley cars coming from opposite directions. It sought to swing around one of them and struck the trough.

The horse was left a wreck after the collison and the horse pulled itself clear to continue the flight. It was caught by several of George O. Steven's employees at the Grant avenue corner.

Quite Right.

"Yes," said the suffragist on the platform, "women have been wronged for ages. They have suffered in a thousand ways."

"There is only way in which they never suffered," said a meek-looking man standing up in the rear of the hall.

"What way is that?" demanded the suffragist.

"They have never suffered in silence."—Tit-Bits.

KNEW BETTER THAN TO INSIST.

There was a determined-looking woman on the far end of the seat of the car, and as the conductor began to pass along the running board to collect his fares the colonel got out his own nickel and asked the woman if he should pass hers.

"Excuse me, but I thought you had to pay."

"Well, you watch out and see whether I have to or not. If I do then there'll be such a row on this car as you haven't seen for a year."

The conductor came along and the colonel handed over his fare and watched. The man stood for a moment looking the woman in the face, and she returned the look without flinching. Then he seemed to sigh as he passed on.

"Didn't I tell you so!" chuckled the woman.

"He must have suspected that you were ready for a row," answered the colonel.

"You bet he did. I told him last night what to expect."

"Oh, then you know him?"

"Know him? He's my own husband and he wanted his own wife to pay fare so that he could knock it down. Not any for Mary!"

Destructive Music.

A member of the board of directors of the New York Metropolitan opera house tells a story that he had from one of the musicians attached to the orchestra there.

It appears that a friend of the wife of the musician had, during a call on the latter, inquired as to the husband's taste in musical matters. Among other things she wanted to know what operas the musician liked best to play.

"I don't know much about dot," said the better half, who was at the time busily engaged in darning an old shirt, "but I do know sometings. Votever he likes I like not dos Wagner operas. Dey sounds vell enough, but dose clothes—ach! He nefter yet comes home from dot Wagner opera dot he haf not torn a place in his poor old shirts. I prefer the Italian operas."

Rushing a Boy.

In Virginia a boy climbed an apple tree to fill his pockets with the fruit. The farmer's hired man discovered him, and came running. In his hurry to get down, the boy lost his hold and fell and broke his leg. His father is now suing the hired man for damages.

It is not contended that the boy had any legal right up the tree, and it is not denied that the hired man had a legal right to drive him away; but the point the father wants to make is that the boy should have been given time to get safely down. If the court sustains him, then it will be in order to tell a robber to please go away before shooting at him.

Pick-a-Back in Mexico.

The queerest mode of travel I saw in all Mexico was that adopted by a woman who was on her way to the doctor, seated complacently in a chair borne upon the back of a man. Some Mexican women are afraid even of the mule cars, while they look upon the rapidly spinning trolley with such trembling of knees they cannot be persuaded to put foot upon it. Unable to pay coach hire, they employ the human carrier at a few cents for each trip.—Travel Magazine.

"Phoy should yez say that?" replied Denny in injured tones. "During th' great battle wasn't Oi where th' shells wor thickest?"

Fountain Built 800 Years Ago.

The inscription, which is well preserved, states that it was erected about 800 years ago, and for centuries, as at the present time, it has been fed with water brought in pipes from Solomon's Pools, nine miles away.

WHEN THE SCORCHER'S SINGED.

If you're very gally speeding down the street
In a car that's very nifty and complete,
If it's very proud and cheesty that you feel
As you sit there with your gauntlets at the wheel,
Don't forget,
Don't forget,
There'll be something doing yet—
You bet!

If a pluteer sounds behind you as you speed,
It were better that you give a little heed,
If you've speed to cut her loose and run away
You will maybe live to scorch another day.
If you've not,
Oh, it's naught!
You will certinly be caught—
Oh, what!

If you're thus caught with the goods you'd better stop,
It's a waste of time to argue with the cop,
For his little game is nothing but a cinch;
It's a sure thing that you'll lose out in a pinch.
Don't repine,
Like a shine,
But just fall right into line—
Oh, fine!

THE SEVEN AGES OF WHEELS.

A wicker carriage we provide
For infancy's extended ride,
With kilts, a yellow cart arrives—
A doubtfully billy-goat he drives.
In knickerbockers, down the pike
He circusses upon his bike.
The age of love and gasoline
Demands a sixty-horse machine.
The years advance; he rides afar
In his palatial private car.
Old, feeble, if the day be fair,
His valet wheels him in his chair.
Then one last trip he takes on wheels,
His head no higher than his heels.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 3, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart—V. The silver lining of dark clouds.—Ps. xiii. 4. (Consecration meeting.)

The Forty-second Psalm was written by David. It was written at one of the times when his soul was deeply depressed over his absence from Jerusalem and the house of God. The date is probably the year of his flight from Jerusalem, at the time of Absalom's rebellion, when he spent several months across the Jordan, principally at Mahanaim. Between the Forty-second and Forty-third Psalms there is an intimate relationship, the latter being in a sense an added stanza to the former. In them we indeed see dark clouds in the life of David and also the silver lining to the clouds. They are "chiefly an outpouring of sorrow and complaint, but still they are instructive, in asmuch as they teach the lesson that in the deepest gulf of sorrow [the dark clouds] the soul may still turn to God and rest itself in hope on Him" [the silver lining].

The dark clouds in the life of David at this time were many. His favorite son had rebelled against him. His most trusted friends had proved false to him. As a fugitive he had fled from his home; but, worst of all, his soul was cast down because of his absence from the house of God. God seemed to him to be associated only with the tabernacle, and absent from it he felt that he was absent from God. "My soul is cast down within me" seems to have been the burden of his sorrow, and frequently he cries, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me?" Dark clouds, indeed, and yet not unfamiliar to the modern Christian. Temporal adversities and spiritual depression are not unusual. The wicked prosper, the righteous fail, and our souls are disquieted within us because we cannot solve the mystery. We are bereaved and afflicted. We ask God why and get no answer, and we are spiritually depressed. Sin obtains the mastery of us, and, alienated from God, we feel as if God had altogether forsaken us, and we, too, cry out, "My soul is cast down within me!"

David's clouds had a silver lining—hope in God. "Hope thou in God" was his own answer to the cry of his soul. "Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him who is the light of my countenance and my God." Hope in God is the silver lining to every dark cloud in human life. Deep mysteries surround us. Insolvable problems present themselves continually to us. The pathway of life at times is hard and rough. But to the man who hopes in God there is always a silver lining to the cloud. He may seem to have forsaken us, but he is never so. He watches the sparrow when it falls. Can He therefore forget His own? Never. Through the darkness He only leads us to a fuller vision of Himself.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take.
The clouds ye so much dread
Are big with mercy and shall break
In blessings on your head.

Australia's C. E. President.

The Rev. Joseph Robertson, M. A., the Australasian Christian Endeavor union president elect, was one of the earliest students of Camden college, Newtown, Sydney, and won his degree at the university in the immediate neighborhood. He has successfully during a long ministry held the pastorates of the Congregational churches in Hawthorn, Auckland, Petersham and Adelaide. Some time since he removed from Stow church, Adelaide, to Clayton, a suburb of that city, where his ministry is much appreciated. He is connected by marriage with the Rev. S. S. Kent, the Australasian president of ten years ago. During a visit to America he was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Clark, and it is anticipated that his term of office will be crowned with rich and enduring blessing.

The recent Australasian convention was a great success. All the states were well represented, and the fellowship held together, both spiritually and intellectually, can never be forgotten by those thus privileged to meet in the bonds of Christian union. One delegate said at the great unified welcome meeting, "We cannot get much nearer heaven than this!" The next convention will be held in Queensland in 1905.

BUILDING OF A WITICISM.

Point of Joke the Same Though Under Changed Conditions.

The Bohemian had an article entitled, "How a Joke Is Made." In it Marshall P. Wilder, the well known humorist, cites this story as an illustration of one method. "Here is a story with a joke in it about Labouchere, the genial editor of London Truth. When he was standing for the borough of Northampton for the English parliament a little girl came up to her father and said: 'Papa, who made Mr. Labouchere?' 'Why, Providence, my dear,' answered the somewhat astonished parent. 'And what for, papa?' inquires the child. Now that isn't a bad joke. It was natural, anyway. But listen to one of mine, which really has the same point, though it is brought out in a different way. A child and her mother are on the cars. Opposite them sits a young man dressed in the height of fashion. Says the child: 'Mamma, what is that?' and, as she asks the question, she points to the young man opposite. 'Hush, my dear,' answers the mother. 'But, mother, I want to know.' To quiet the child the mother whispers in her ear: 'He is what we call a dude, dear.' The child persists as loud in gaining some more information. 'And who made him, mamma?' 'Why, Providence, dear, of course,' replies the mother sotto voice, whereat the child exclaims: 'Oh, mother, doesn't Providence like to have fun sometimes?' You see, the stories are really alike. At all events, the point is the same."

GIRL KILLED A HAWK.

Bird Had Attacked Her When Driven From Pigeons.

A large hen hawk, weighing nearly fourteen pounds, attacked Miss Eloise M. Shields, 18, of Milton, Mass., while the young woman, accompanied by some friends, was spending the afternoon at the Hills Farm plantation. The party had just had their luncheon and were feeding some pigeons when the hawk swooped down and started to carry off one of the pigeons in its talons. Miss Shields quickly picked up a stone, and throwing it at the bird made it drop its prey. The hawk then attacked the girl and nestling on one of her shoulders started to beat her with its wing. After knocking off the bird with her hands the young lady picked some of the tonic bottles, which the party had been using, and hitting the hawk a hard blow on its head, killed it. Except for a few scratches the young woman was not injured.

A Harlem (N. Y.) resident after a busy day was seated restfully at home when the telephone bell rang, says a New York letter. "Meet me at the Waldorf within an hour," called an intimate friend at the other end of the wire; "must see you. Don't fail. Within an hour. Important. Good-by." The Harlemite grumbled, wondered why business should follow a tired man into his home, got into his boots, kissed his wife and hurried to the hotel. His friend was waiting for him in the Waldorf cafe. "Well, Jim," he said, "what is it? What's up?" "What's up?" echoed Jim. "Why, I'm as lonely as a castaway to-night. Want company—some one to talk with. What will you drink?" Jim is a bachelor.

Hurry.

To our own age belongs the credit of having raised hurry from the degraded position of a disease to that of a commercial process. Formerly hurry simply brought people to an early grave, with nothing to show for it, whereas now it is become the means of transforming peace of mind, which is a solecism, to say the best of it, into ready money. Hurry has grown to be a great fact, for even the fashions take account of it, until women are found doing up their hair in such a way that they may go the speed limit without fear of its coming down. And the best of hurry is that it is its own sufficient justification. Nobody expects hurry to have any particular reason behind it any more.—Life.

The Jewel of Forgiveness.

Nothing is more moving to man than the spectacle of reconciliation; our weaknesses are thus indemnified and are not too costly, being the price we pay for the hour of forgiveness, and the archangel who has never felt anger has reason to envy the man who subdues it. When thou forgivest, the man who has pierced thy heart stands to thee in the relation of the sea-worm that perforates the shell of the mussel, which straightway closes the wound with a pearl.—Richter.

Some Reason for Her Fear.

The wife of the Pittsburg millionaire reached her breakfast table in fear and trepidation. The waiting maid offered her the morning papers. "No, Marie; never give me those papers. John is out of town on business. I can't bear to think what they might contain." And she sipped her coffee with heavy eyes.—Judge.

The Great American Novel.

The pretty nurse had taken the best of care of the steel millionaire. "I want you to marry me," said he simply. "Why, Mr. Gilledge, this is rather sudden." "I know, child, I know. But you'll have plenty of time to get used to the idea. I'll have a fierce job to get rid of my wife."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Dr. Winfield S. Hall and wife, of Chicago, adopted three children of different parentage—the first time, it is said, that such a thing has been done in Chicago.

Daniel P. Jones, of Lewes, Del., says he followed a ghost which led him to a hollow tree, supposed to be 150 years old, at the bottom of the tree was found a skull.

Among the aged couples in Somerset county, Me., are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bunker, of Athens. Mr. Bunker is ninety years of age, and his wife is two years his senior.

Lord Cromer, whose book on "Modern Egypt" rounds out his life work in that country, is sixty-seven years old. He retired from active work last May.

A daughter born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sykes, of West Windsor, Vt., has eight grandparents, as the parents and grandparents of both Mr. and Mrs. Sykes are living.

Mrs. Lucy P. Proper, of Pelham, N. H., aged seventy years; Mrs. C. M. Johnson, of Alstead, N. H., aged sixty-two years, and her fourteen-year-old son, all born on the same day of the week, celebrated their birthdays together recently.

At a recent dinner which Congressman Gardner gave the Massachusetts delegation at his Washington home Mrs. Gardner remarked that the three Boston Democrats were all bachelors. "Oh," said Senator Lodge, her father, "that is to show the opposition to the president's policies!"

There are not many men in the consular service of the United States who have traveled more extensively than J. Martin Miller, who recently resigned the consulship at Rheims, France, on the ground that the salary attached to the post was inadequate. Before entering the service Mr. Miller had a varied experience as a newspaper correspondent, and he has visited nearly every country in the world.

How to Boil Fish.

In boiling any fish you should put enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in if it were alive. Add to this water half a cup of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one blade of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and heat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boil hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from the liquor in which the fish was cooked and add to it the juice of half a lemon.

STANDING TREAT.

Woman Is Said to Be Handicapped by Her Home Training.

A man says that a great deal of unintentional entertaining takes place among women. Women when they are by themselves—it appears, lack independence of action. They cannot say a word when they have met a moment or two ago with a nod when they want to lunch by themselves. The spirit of domestic hospitality is too strong. In a word men—for it is painfully weak—they insist on paying for the company and the food of an acquaintance they had merely meant to be civil to.

Of course this sort of thing seems almost incomprehensible to a man. Invariations in men's clubs, say, have to be backed by a pretty sound reason. The pleasant sort of fellow who waited about for some sensitive man on whom to insinuate his appetite would soon find himself living a hungry life.

This is certainly a strange and disturbing insight into the manners and customs of women. It is against one's observation too. Women usually appear to be quite conscious that they are doing an independent thing in an independent thing in an independent spirit.

They Were Good Eaters.

One day Dr. Norman McLeod, who was a large and healthy man, and one of his burly elders went to pay a visit to a certain Mrs. MacLaren of the congregation who lived over the Scotch hills. She was a frugal woman, but since she knew that a call from these two meant that they would stay to supper, too, she determined that they should have the best in the house. So she piled the table with jellies and jam and preserves and shortbread and all the delicacies of the season, and, the journey having been long, they partook unsparingly, and after the meal the elder said to Mrs. MacLaren, were you at the kirk Sunday?"

"Oh, aye," she said, "I was."

"And what did you think of the treatment of the miracle?" The sermon had been on the loaves and fishes.

"I thought it was good," said Mrs. MacLaren.

"And what is your idea on the subject, Mrs. MacLaren?" persisted the minister.

"Losh," said their hostess suddenly, "I'm thinkig that if you and the elder had bin in the congregation there wadna bin twelve baskets of fragments for the disciples to gather up!"

The Partitions of Poland.

There have been three partitions of Poland. The first was in 1772, when Prussia took the palatinates of Pomerania, Posen and Kulmia, a part of Culm and a part of Great Poland. Austria took Red Russia, or Galicia; a part of Podolia, Sandomir and Crocow, and Russia took White Russia, with all the part beyond the Dwina. The second partition was in 1792, by which Prussia acquired the remainder of Great and a portion of Little Poland and the Russian boundary was advanced to the center of Lithuania and Volhynia. In the third and last partition, in 1795, Austria had Crocow, with the country between the Pilica and the Vistula. Prussia had the capital, with the territory as far as the Niemen, while the rest went to Russia. —New York American.

The Sausage.

The sausage dates back to the year 891. It has been asserted that the Greeks in the time of Homer manufactured sausages, but this prehistoric mixture had nothing in common with our modern product. The ancient so called sausage was composed of the same materials which enter into the make-up of the boudin of the French market and the blood pudding of the French Canadian. The ancient sausage was enveloped in the stomachs of goats. It was not until the tenth century that sausage made of hashed pork became known. It was in or near the year 1500 that, thanks to the introduction into Germany of cinnamon and saffron, the sausages of Frankfort and Strassburg acquired a universal reputation.

A Dramatic Author.

Like most actor managers, Macready was pestered by would be dramatic authors. An ambitious young fellow brought him a five act tragedy one morning to Drury Lane.

"My piece," modestly explained the author, "is a chef d'oeuvre. I will answer for its success, for I have consulted the sanguinary taste of the public. My tragedy is so tragic that all the characters are killed off at the end of the third act."

"With whom, then," asked the manager, "do you carry on the action of the last two acts?"

"With the ghosts of those who died in the third."—Cornhill Magazine.

The Great Seven Brown Camels.

The length of a stage varies throughout Persia, depending on the character of the country, and is reckoned in farsakhs, the old Greek parasang. The farsak is a most elastic and uncertain measure, and as animals are paid per farsak as many as the credulity of the traveler will allow are crowded into each stage. "How far," I once asked an old Kurdish muleteer, "is a farsak?" "As far as one can distinguish a gray from a brown camel," was the discreet answer. The average about four miles and the stage about six farsaks, or twenty-five miles.—Atlantic.

CURFEW STILL RINGS AT 9 AT PRINCETON

At 9 o'clock every evening in Princeton during term time the curfew rings from all the college belfries, as it has done for the past one hundred and fifty-odd years. In Colonial days it called the undergraduates back to their rooms in Nassau Hall, not to stir therefrom until the rising bell at five the next morning. The calling-in rule long ago ceased to be enforced but the curfew, a curious survival of the time honored law, still rings at the official close of the day.

Once a student entering Princeton was required to transcribe the "Laws and Customs" of the college for his own use and to copy in quarto the 1756 edition, "being signed by the president, shall be the testimony of his admission and shall be kept by him whilst he continues as a member of the said college as the rule of his behavior." A perusal of this useful document would remind him that he was to attend morning or evening prayers he would be fined two pence and if he did not "timely attend" he was liable to a fine of a penny, all fines being doubled on Sundays. Rule 2, under the heading "Moral Conduct," informed him that he should not "at dice shall play at cards or dice or at any other unlawful game under the penalty of a fine not exceeding five shillings."

Furthermore, he might not go out of town without leave, a law which remained on the books until recently, although, like the curfew rule, it had for years been honored in its breach rather than in its observance. Undergraduates might roam around the country within a radius of two miles, but beyond that limit distance was forbidden. This law was still in force late in the sixties. Another law more picturesquely stated in its eighteenth century form than in its simpler modern version for it is still on the statute books of Nassau Hall, warned its reads that "no jumping or hollowing or any boisterous noise shall be suffered, nor walking in the galleries or corridors of Nassau Hall, during the time of study." The freshman of Colonial days, moreover, learned that Jersey mud was to be strictly left outside college walls, rule 8 telling him he "shall keep his room neat and clean, and when he enter the college shall clean his shoes to prevent soiling the floor, which if he be observed to neglect he shall be fined two pence." Those who smoked or chewed tobacco in their rooms were charged an extra shilling for cleaning.

Grammar school boys meeting the president had to take their hats off when ten rods away and half that distance when meeting any other member of the faculty, and when the president went in or out of the chapel the grammar scholars were to rise and bow, a rule that has a counterpart in modern today at Yale. In the senior class obeisance to the president as he leaves chapel, freshmen sent on an errand were to "do it faithfully and make quick return."

The etiquette to be observed in the college commons was also carefully worked out. At the ringing of the bell for meals the classes were to assemble at the door of the dining hall in order of seniority and wait until a members of the faculty or a resident graduate arrived to head the procession to table. There the four classes were to keep to their respective tables, at each of which tutors or graduates presided.

The seating was in alphabetical order, beginning at the tutor's right hand. Every day, we learn, the man's seat was moved up one place, the head of the alphabet changing over to the tutor's left hand, so that each member of the class had the seat of honor in turn. The honor, however, was not without its penalties, rule 23 says "He that sits highest shall always carve; he that sits opposite him cut bread and he that sits next on the right hand serve in dealing out provisions." The closing phrase of this rule reads somewhat ominously, "None shall eagerly catch at his share, but wait until he is served in his turn."

A hint that more luxurious habits were creeping into college life is found in the edition of the laws issued in 1802, where it is stated that "No student shall employ any barber or hairdresser to shave or dress him on the Sabbath," and also, "No student shall keep for his use or pleasure any horse or riding beast, nor shall any student keep a dog or gun or firearms or ammunition of any kind." Rule 17 under the head of "Sword dirk, sword cane or any deadly weapon whatever" were added to the list of contraband articles and remained in the laws for several college generations.

In the middle of the nineteenth century a new rule appeared directed against born spree, a form of undergraduate bedevilment of authorities that had not been thought of in earlier days. At a preconcerted signal on a dark night from behind every tree on the campus the tooting of innumerable horns would suddenly break the silence. The din was hideous and the college proctor and often the vice president himself would be kept pursuing the dodging figures. It was to stop this amusement that the law against blowing horns on the campus was put into operation.

Rules still forbid undergraduates to keep dogs in their rooms and they are not allowed to discharge firecrackers or kindle bonfires on university grounds. It is a mystery where the scores of fox terriers and bull pups are kept, which seem to be the favorite pests of the modern undergraduate; and the din that echoes around the campus during what is called "Poler's recess" at nine o'clock in the evening during the examination period, signalling a few minutes' respite from hard study in preparation for the tests of the next day, seems to indicate that there are certain other rules that forbid discharging firearms too numerous for the proctor to handle.

Odd Feature of a Trial.

A murder trial now in progress in St. Charles, Mo., has an odd interstate feature. Daniel Dempsey, village marshal of Grafton, Ill., is accused of killing one Claude Allemang. It appears that Dempsey followed Allemang from Grafton across the river into St. Charles county and had him arrested. The prisoner agreed to return without requisition papers and later starting back tried to escape, whereupon Dempsey shot him. It is contended that Dempsey had no authority to shoot Allemang, being an officer of Missouri in Missouri territory. On the other hand, it is maintained by Dempsey that Allemang lived until he reached Grafton, Ill. The question at issue is in which state the dead man's heart stopped beating.

How to Boil Fish.

In boiling any fish you should put enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in if it were alive. Add to this water half a cup of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one blade of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and heat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boil hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from the liquor in which the fish was cooked and add to it the juice of half a lemon.

A Graceful Act.

After one of the many charitable performances which Mme. Yvette Guilbert has given the priest of the village where it had been held entertained all the company at lunch. Mme. Yvette found an egg on her plate, broke it and ten gold pieces fell out.

"You don't know my tastes quite well yet, M. le Cure," she said. "I adore boiled eggs, but I eat only the white. I never touch the yolk, and I must leave it to you for your poor people."

Cradle Shouts.

Sunday-school Teacher—"Why did the Lord command us to love our neighbors?"

Little Lola—"Oh, I guess it was another way of telling us to love our enemies."

Small Harold was crying when his aunt said: "Don't cry, Harold; it doesn't help matters."

"W-what do you c-care," sobbed the little fellow, "so-so long as I'm enj-joying the misery?"

Minister—"Is your father working now, Johnny?"

Small Johnny—"No, sir."

Minister—"Why, only last week he told me he had a job."

Small Johnny—"Yes, sir; but the man he was working for died."

Little Margie's father had raised a full beard during a month's absence from home. Upon his return he attempted to kiss Margie as usual, but she wouldn't have it. "I don't like strange men," she declared.

"But you kiss your papa," he protested. "Is it possible you don't know me?"

"You're not my papa," replied Margie. "My papa is bald-headed on his face."—Chicago News.

Snubbing a "Snob."

Snubbing a snob is a bracing exercise when you can do it as well as M. Guitry, the actor. A well-known novelist and playwright called on him and offered him a new piece. The actor was delighted, and said, "Come and lunch and read it to me." The distinguished writer's pet foible is snobbishness, which sometimes breaks out in his conversation as well as in his writings. He brought forth an engagement book and read: "Monday I lunch with Prince Pierre Murat; Tuesday, with Count de Clermont-Tonnerre; Wednesday, with Prince de Beauveau; Thursday, with the Duke d'Haussonville; Friday, with the German Ambassador; Saturday with the Comte de Montalivet-Bireo, and Sunday with Count Primoli. Shall we say the week after?" The actor blandly replied: "Let me see," and took out his engagement book. "Monday week I lunch with my milliner, Tuesday with my butcher, Wednesday with my candlestick maker, Friday with my oil and color man, Saturday with my bootmaker, and Sunday with my pedicure. Shall we say the week after that?" The lunch is off, and the play is still waiting to be read.—London Telegraph.

Table Decorations.

Remember when decorating the tables for the wedding breakfast or supper to bear in mind the comfort of the guests. If you use tall flowers with long stems, put them in high vases so that the guests can see underneath; but if you use short-stemmed flowers, then mass them in a low bowl, or on a flat platter, so that conversation over them will not be interfered with.

MANY PLEAD NOT GUILTY

INDICTMENTS FOR GAMBLING.

Larceny and Disorderly House Complaints Predominate—Judge Schenck Presides.

The defendants indicted by the Somerset county Grand Jury were arraigned to plead in the Somerset county courts at Somerville before Judge Schenck yesterday.

George Daniels, charged with keeping a disorderly house at Raritan, pleaded not guilty and gave $300 bail to appear May 11 for trial.

Andrew Stahlle, of Raritan, on a like charge, made the same plea and was also held in $200 bail for trial May 11. John Heifen, of Raritan, pleaded not guilty on a disorderly-house charge and was held in $200 bail for trial May 11. Theodore Van Aniel, who was indicted for stealing money from the person of George Voeseller in Somerville, entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded for trial May 11.

Joseph Florette, charged with stealing a domestic fowl, the property of Mrs. Fannie Van Dyke, near Rocky Hill, said he wasn't guilty and gave bail in $100 for trial May 11. Charles and George Ianson, of Somerville, were arraigned on two charges—keeping a disorderly house and gambling. To both they pleaded not guilty. They gave $300 bail on each charge, their case is set down for May 11. James Shaw and Howard Cramer each pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon and sentence on the former was deferred until Friday, while the latter was placed in charge of the probation officer for one year and fined $25.

William Honan, of Raritan, pleaded guilty to an indictment for keeping a disorderly house. Counsel for him made a strong plea for a suspension of sentence, for various reasons, and it was granted. Patrick Cronin, of Bound Brook, who was indicted on a charge of atrocious assault and battery, two counts, on John Sweeney, of that place, entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery, which the prosecutor decided to accept. The prisoner was held in $200 bail for sentence Friday.

Frank Delasander, of Bound Brook, on three charges of resisting an officer with intent to kill, atrocious assault and battery and with assault with intent to kill, pleaded not guilty. Bail, $300; trial May 11. Louis Carelo, of Raritan, and Frank Kalbeck, of Bound Brook, had each been indicted for keeping a disorderly house. The former pleaded guilty and gave $300 bail for sentence Friday. The latter pleaded not guilty and gave $300 bail for trial May 11. John R. Dailey, for obtaining money under false pretenses, entered a plea of guilty and was remanded for sentence Friday. Lawrence Wells, of Bound Brook, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, also pleaded guilty. He gave $300 surety to appear for sentence next Friday.

POLICE PAYROLL HELD UP.

Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, refused to sign the police payroll for the latter half of April yesterday unless Detective Sergeant Frank Bennett's name was taken off. Frank Van Winkle, clerk of the Police Board, took the payroll back to the Commissioners' rooms and it was signed by them. The Board will meet tonight.

It is predicted in the City Hall that the resolution adopted a few weeks ago reinstating Bennett will be rescinded. Bennett resigned last March 31 from the force. The Mayor has said he'd reinstate him if he could and that Bennett could return to the force only as a new man. Reinstatement gives Bennett credit for his fourteen years of service and makes his retirement on half pay, due in six years, possible.

Would Abate Paper Nuisance.

New Brunswick, April 24.—The street commissioner has been authorized by Common Council to take steps to abate the nuisance caused by paper waste from the ruins of the Janeway & Carpender wallpaper factory at Schuyler and Paterson streets. The factory was destroyed by fire March 13, 1906. The ruins smoked for over a year, and though the fire has been finally extinguished hundreds of thousands of scorched rolls of wallpaper are piled in the ruins. Fragments of the paper are blown about and litter the streets, defying every effort of property owners to keep sidewalks or streets clean. Common Council has put it up to the street commissioner to find some way to abate the nuisance. He will confer with the owners of the property in an effort to devise a satisfactory method.

Not Expected.

"Thank you very much," said the lady, smilingly accepting the proffered seat.

"Madam," said the man, tipping his hat, "you surprise and pain me."

"I do not understand you."

MANY BIDS FOR SCHOOL

BUILDING TO BE LESS ORNATE.

Estimates for Less Expensive West End School Submitted by Many Contractors—Tobin's Low Bids.

More than double the number of contracting firms which submitted bids for the new Darrow avenue school in September, presented their bids for same building Tuesday, in response to a call issued by the Plainfield Board of Education for a less expensive structure in the West End. The lowest bid for construction on the general contract was that of J. W. Lanning, of Trenton, whose estimate was $73,979. For the heating and ventilating contract, George J. Tobin, of this city, had a bid of $9,754, the lowest of the ten submitted. The same contractor also bid the lowest for the plumbing contract, his figures being $2,371. Peet and Powers, of New York, had the lowest bid for the electrical work by their estimate of $575, and the same firm underbid all others for the wiring contract, where their bid was $1,075.

The advertising of new bids was due to the fact that the figures submitted last fall were too high,—the Board wishing to keep down the cost of the new building with a view to the possibility of erecting a second west end school north of the railroad. The bids were opened last night at a special meeting of the board, and the building committee of which Charles F. Abbott is chairman, is now looking up the responsibility of the low bidders before formally awarding the contracts to the lowest bidders. No date for the formal award of the contract has been set but the meeting will probably be held next week.

In advertising the bids the second time, the board made several changes in the proposed building with a view to lessening the cost. In general, these consist in making the building less elaborate. The auditorium is to be less ornate than first planned, the halls are to be square celled instead of arched as provided in the first plans and the foundation stone has been changed from brick to concrete. The latest bid for the general contract, that of J. W. Lanning, is about $9,000 less than that of John Abbott & Son, of this city, who had the lowest figures under the first set of plans.

Those were but six bidders on the general contract the last time the bids were advertised, as contrasted with fifteen submitted last night. Generally speaking the bids are figured slightly lower than last fall, attributed to the fact that the large concerns are not over-rushed with work now, and are looking out for contracts more eagerly. There was but a single bid for the plumbing then, as only two submitted estimates at last night's meeting. For the heating and ventilating, there were but four bidders for the last contract and ten last night. For the other contracts, there were more than three times the number of bidders.

General contract: J. W. Lanning, Trenton, $73,979; Doe & Ferguson, New York, $76,000; Rimer, Agar and Cuzen, Plainfield, $75,200; Cramp & Co., Philadelphia, $78,342; William H. Connolly, Newark, $78,-600; Alexander Lamont, Plainfield, $79,000; M. Byrnes Building Co., $79,212; H. Wales Lines Co., $79,-743; John H. Parker Co., $79,753; John Abbott & Son, Plainfield, $81,-724; E. M. Waldron & Co. $82,575; J. E. and A. L. Pennock, $82,847; Herman Probst, $91,200; Ira N. West, Plainfield, $91,690; Concrete Steel Co., New York, (except floor system), $95,798. Aside from these bids, Doe & Ferguson, the lowest bidders, submitted a bid of $74,900 for the work, substituting the Merritt system, and Cramp & Co. also put in an alternate bid, using blue stone, in which their figures were $76,942. Neither of these bids will be considered.

Heating and ventilating contract: George J. Tobin, Plainfield, $9,754 with thermostat, $9,650 without; John H. Reis, $10,285 with, $9,960 without; Den. Galbraith, $10,484 with, $9,898 without; J. A. Suter & Co., $10,516 with, $9,869 without; Robert Leinau, $10,578 with, $9,878 without; Walter & Chambers, $10,-975 with, $10,350 without; Mutual Engineering Co., $11,757 with, $11,-086 without; Eina Heating Co., $11,-826 with, $10,900 without; W. J. Baldwin Jr. Heating Co., $12,875 with, $12,225 without; Burton P. Hall, $12,953 with, $12,148 without.

Electrical work contract: Peet & Powers, New York, $575; Whitall Electrical Co., Newark, $1,-$659.29; N. J. Engineering & Construction Co., $783; Powers Engineering & Construction Co., $860; A. B. Lang Co., $890; Browne & Co., Newark, $957.

Wiring contract: Peet & Powers, New York, $1,075; Powers Engineering Co., $1,125; Browne & Co., $1,-267; A. B. Lang Co., $1,217; N. J. Engineering & Construction Co., $1,-$425.

BOROUGHITES TO VOTE ON SCHOOL BUDGET MAY 19

The Legislature ended its session without passing any bills to change the apportionment by this main stem railway tax, and the date of the meeting was announced at a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night. The year's budget is made up as follows: Current expenses, $11,500; manual training department, $1,700; repairs, $1,000. The total of $14,200 is $10,700 less than the amount asked for last year, the difference being made up by the Perkins law money. The railroad tax money is the apportionment for two years, and is only about eighty per cent. of the amount expected.

At last night's meeting, it was decided to urge the North Plainfield Council to install a fire alarm box at Watchung and Mountain avenues, at the Watchung school. The Board feels that the nearest fire box, 1,000 feet away at Westervelt and Mountain avenues, is not near enough to insure the safety of the pupils, and will present the recommendation for the box at the school at the meeting of the Council next week.

BANQUET MARKS END OF Y. M. C. A. MEN'S GYM WORK.

To mark the conclusion of regular gymnasium work for the business men's class at the Y. M. C. A., thirty members of the class had a jolly banquet at their meeting room in the association Tuesday night. The "feed" was by Mrs. Henry Johnson, and W. S. Angleman acted as toastmaster. The class is regularly organized with officers, but President E. L. Tolles called a Council meeting on hand and was unable to be present.

At the conclusion of the dinner, the toastmaster introduced President J. W. Gavett, of the association as Physical Director George Listman as the principal speakers. Mr. Gavatt spoke of the benefits to be derived from a social organization, such as the class has, in connection with the gymnasium work, and Mr. Listman outlined his plans for the enlargement of the physical department. Other speakers were Joseph Sandford, John H. Doane, captain of the basketball team; Harry C. Runyon, secretary of the class; Ray Raymond Stevens and Charles L. Lewis.

Epworth District Meeting.

The quarterly meeting of the Elizabeth District Epworth League will be held in the Methodist church at Dunellen on Tuesday evening, May 5, an interesting program having been prepared for the event by Louis G. Ayers, district league secretary and leader. Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, the new presiding elder of the district, has been invited to make the chief address. The different societies at Plainfield, Westfield, Round Brook, Somerville, Martinsville, Dr. Horch and Raritan are expected to send large delegations.

CONSUMERS' COMPANY GETS SCHOOL CONTRACT

The Consumers' Coal Company submitted the lowest bid for the winter's contract of coal for the city schools, when the bids were opened last night at a meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education of the High School. The contract price submitted was $3,233.30. The other bidders were Boice, Runyon & Co., $3,298.25 and Clark T. Rogers, New York market, $3,300.

These bids are for providing a total of 690 tons of coal of various sized to the city schools, and will be formally awarded to the lowest bidder at a special meeting of the Board of Education to be held at the school next week. The bids called for 245 tons of chestnut coal, 170 tons of egg, 130 tons of pea, and 125 tons of buckwheat. The lowest bidder quoted the following prices per ton: $4.35 for egg, $4.25 for nut and stove, $4.25 for pea and $3 for buckwheat.

Somerville Votes Against a Team.

The West End Athletic Association, of Somerville, met Saturday night, and decided as an association not to put a ball team in the field this season. While this news will be received with regrets by many Plainfield fans, there is still a chance that Somerville will have a good nine. The action on Saturday night was largely the result of last year's experience in hiring fancy-priced players to compete against High Bridge and Flemington and in consequence the association dropped some money.

COPS LOSE A PRISONER

Notorious Jersey City Burglar Gets Away from Bluecoat by Clever Dodge.

BESTED PATROLMAN KELLEY.

Cornered in a House, Hurls Rocking Chair Against the Officer and Tangles Him Up.

Though the information was not given out at police headquarters, it became known Tuesday that Robert Scott, a notorious negro burglar, who is wanted in Jersey City, was trapped in this city, Saturday night but escaped through a clever move while Patrolman John Kelley stood waiting for him in the alley. Scott fled from the home of Pearl Webster, located in the middle of the Boulevard just back of Sachar's grocery store, and disappeared after a chase down West Third street.

The bluecoats in the city were immediately put on the jump in an effort to find him but not a trace of him has been discovered since.

Scott committed a robbery in Jersey City recently and secured a diamond ring worth $450 and a diamond-studded watch valued at $200. Two detectives were detailed to look after the case and they finally traced him to this city. They learned through sleuthing on the part of Detective-Sergeant John Flynn that he was putting up at Pearl Webster's place and plans were made to nab him Saturday night. When the Jersey City men and the local cops got into the house, they found that he had gone out but was expected to return. Several women in the place were arrested and all the officers with the exception of Kelley started back to headquarters with the prisoners.

It was the understanding that Kelley should remain in the house until they returned and if Scott showed up in the meantime he was to grab him as he entered the door. The patrolman seated himself in a rocking chair and prepared to wait. He had barely gotten himself comfortably fixed when footfalls sounded on the porch and the big negro burglar entered the room. Before he had his bearings the officer cut off his escape.

"You've got me" was the only comment the prisoner made, "but give me time to put on my second coat."

Kelley saw nothing out of the way in the request and gave his consent. The negro started toward a rear room as if to take a coat from a hook but there was none to be found. Then he started his steps to the front room, mumbling that "it was queer where he had put that coat." Kelley kept close behind him but as Scott worked himself back to the door he entered. Resuddenly made a quick turn, grabbed up the rocking chair the policeman had been sitting in and hurled it against his knees. The onslaught was so sudden that Kelley got tangled in the rockers and by the time he worked himself clear, Scott was on the front porch. He had all the advantage necessary and with seven-leaguer boot strides only hit the high places in his flight to safety. Kelley followed as quickly as possible but hardly got more than a glimpse of his quarry as he was swallowed up in the darkness.

It would be hard to find a more disgruntled pair of sleuths than the Jersey City men when they learned that Scott had slipped through their fingers and they went back home saying unkind things about the Plainfield cops.

MRS THEODORE FRENCH DIES AFTER OPERATION.

Mrs. Melissa French, wife of Theodore F. French, of East Front street, died in Muhlenberg hospital at 11:45 Tuesday morning after a brief illness caused by meningitis. She was taken to the institution last Friday and an operation was performed but she became unconscious soon afterward, remaining in that condition until death ensued.

Mrs. French had been a resident of the city for a long time and was very well known, especially in the Netherwood section where she made her home. She was a member of the First M. E. church and was active in its work. Her husband, Theodore French, is associated with his brother Elston M. French, in the real estate business. She leaves no children.

Dinner for Bride-to-Be.

Miss May Hazelwood, of Brooklyn, gave a dinner and heart party Friday evening for Miss Lou F. Randolph, of West Seventh street, in honor of her engagement to Clifford Manning. Miss Randolph received the first prize, and Miss Dora Bitman, of Brooklyn, second prize. There were guests from this city, New York and Brooklyn.

25 SAVED FROM DEATH

WRECK AT SOUTH ELIZABETH.

Twenty-five persons, one of whom will probably die, were injured as the result of the sideswiping of an eastbound passenger train by a heavy freight on the Pennsylvania Railroad Tuesday morning at South Elizabeth. The stoutness of a telegraph pole, which prevented a car containing twenty-three persons tumbling down a 20-foot embankment, was the only thing that stood between the passengers and probable death; and the fact that the passenger train was running at moderate speed was also a fortunate circumstance. Traffic on the road, both east and west, was tied up four hours.

The accident, which took place on the South street bridge, was due to the breaking of an axle on the fifth car of a freight train that was also bound eastward and was running alongside the passenger train of five cars—which, filled with New York commuters, was going at ten miles an hour just after pulling out of the South Elizabeth station.

As the axle broke the freight car was thrown off the track and smashed into the first car of the passenger train, throwing the latter off its trucks and tumbling it on its side. The car, with twenty-two commuters in it, then, in a heap, was rolling straight toward the embankment at the side of the track, when it struck the telegraph pole, and poised on the brink. As soon as it stopped those within began to crawl out of windows and doors.

Blood flowed from cuts due to broken glass, while many were so bruised they had to be dragged out of the car. As soon as ambulance arrived, the surgeons got to work, and found that none of the twenty-five passengers in the car had received serious injuries, although several were severely cut and all were suffering from the shock. When they saw how the car hung over the embankment they considered it a wonder that they had escaped.

Kelley saw nothing out of the way in the request and gave his consent. The negro started toward a rear room as if to take a coat from a hook but there was none to be found. Then he started his steps to the front room, mumbling that "it was queer where he had put that coat." Kelley kept close behind him but as Scott worked himself back to the door he entered. PROPERTY OWNERS KILL BOROUGH RINK SCHEME.

Because the property owners in the vicinity would not give consent, a scheme for a roller skating rink at Brokaw Hall has fallen through, as Mayor Townsend has refused to grant them the borough's permission to have the rink. The application to conduct such an enterprise in the old Warren chapel building was made by James H. Nelson, of New Warren, who with Albert Vernam, Jr., and Theodore Randolph, of the same place, were to form a company.

Their application for license to do so came to Mayor Townsend several days ago, and they had previously made arrangements with William G. Debele, who owns the building. In order to find out the feeling of the property owners near the hall, the Mayor sent Chief Marshal Weiss to the residents of the district. In no case was there anyone particularly enthusiastic about the new rink, and the majority of the property owners came out strongly against it.

CHILDREN'S PARTY FOR MISS MARTINE WEEKS.

Mrs. Frank A. Weeks, of West Seventh street, gave a delightful Easter children's party at her home Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, for her daughter, Miss Martine Weeks. There were about forty guests, including several from Fanwood. The decorations were novel, especially in the dining room. The table was arranged to represent a duck pond, and the idea was carried out perfectly. Each guest received a favor, a box of candy, tied with satin ribbon.

The young people were first entertained by H. Warren Rankin, who gave a clever performance of sleight-of-hand, after which games were played and prize winners were Miss Anna Yerkes, Miss Amy Wimant and Miss Marie Sullivan. Among the games played were hunting the eggs and the young people had a merry time searching for them. Following the entertainment and games, all adjourned to the dining room, where several surprises awaited them and refreshments were served.

Won't Stand for It.

Smith and Davis and their conferees then separated, and Davis walked down the aisle of the theatre to a seat with the Hudson delegation, and was given an ovation by the Hudson men and whatever Bryan men were in delegations elsewhere in the theatre.

A few minutes later Smith's name was announced for one of the committee appointments made by the Essex delegation and he quickly jumped up from a seat half-way back from the stage and walked to a place in the "A" row.

When nominations for delegates-at-large were called for there was some speculation on the part of those who knew of the wire-pulling going on a few minutes previous as to who Smith would choose from the fourth representative in the "Big Four." It was not until Camden was reached on the roll call, and William J. *Thompson, chairman of the delega*tion, announced the names of Howard C. Carrow, of Camden, as a substitute for Lindspeth of the state, that it became generally known who would go to Denver in the place that Davis had designs on. This announcement made the delegates-at-large slate stand, James Smith, Jr., of Essex; John Hinchliffe, of Passaic, Frank Katzenbach, of Mercer, and Mr. Carrow.

On the roll call of counties for nominations Hudson named Robert Davis, of Hudson; James E. Martine, of Union; Johnson Cornish, of Warren, and Thomas Hinck, of Burlington. Cornish declined, as did Hudspeth who was nominated by one of the rural counties. Hudson and the Bryan men then united on Davis, Martine, Katzenbach and Burch. This latter combination was overwhelmed by an adverse vote, Davis getting 443 delegates and Martine 359.

It was during the roll call that the *riotous scenes and acrimonious dis*cussions occurred. The excitement was due to two causes. The first was the enforcement of the unit rule in many counties, notably in Union, in which delegation there were eleven Bryan men who made up in noise and persistence what they lacked in numbers.

The other exciting condition was due to the determination of Hudson county delegate to deny the charge that they betrayed the candidacy of Frank Katzenbach as a gubernatorial candidate, Congressman James Hamill, chairman of the delegation, precipitated the row when he took the floor to nominate. He pictured Hudson county as the only oasis in the democratic desert in New Jersey for many years and declared that it was a shame and a crime that the Democrats of Hudson of treachery to the state ticket last fall. He reverted to Essex county and by insinuation pointed out the democratic leadership of that county as the one where there could be found the only regular candidates had been knifed at the polls at the institution of democratic leaders.

This remark brought forth a chorus of groans and protests from the Essex delegation, so that all the convention was in an uproar. Hamill's voice could not be heard above the din. The turmoil continued for several minutes, despite chairman Vichman's efforts to suppress it.

Finally, quiet was partially restored and Hamill continued to execrate Essex and defend Hudson. By this time the whole convention seemed to be thoroughly aroused to a fighting mood and from that time forward there was a continuous spectacle of wrangling and high words.

There were half a dozen Bryan men in the Camden delegation who wanted to vote for Davis and Martine, but Duke Thompson would not record their votes. Several Hudson county men, besides many of the Bryan men in the theatre, were shouting at the top of their voices. It was half an hour later, though, on a recall for changes and corrections in the vote, and after there was no doubt as to the victory, that Duke Thompson announced the vote of the Camden Bryanites. There were also several similar incidents in other counties. As chairman of the Union county delegation, Edward Nugent refused to record the votes of eleven Bryan men—ten from Plainfield and one from Cranford. After striving in vain for full fifteen minutes to obtain recognition from chairman Vichmann, J. V. F. Dilts, of Plainfield, a Democratic city committee, rushed to the stage livid with rage.

Dilts shook his fist in chairman Vichmann's face and kept shouting "Mr. chairman, we demand to be heard and to have our votes recorded as we desire." Chairman Vichmann tried to be facetious and extended a hand, said: "Indeed, I am glad to meet you; take a seat right back there." A half dozen men on the platform took the hint and tried to shove Dilts into the seat. But Dilts is a six footer and he stood his ground, yelling protests all the time at the top of his voice. Even Abe Naar, the diminutive sergeant at arms, tried to use physical force and push Dilts off the stage, but he was no match for the enraged delegate and was determined to be heard. For a moment it looked as though Dilts would hand the convention was again in an uproar. Despairing of getting recognition on the stage, Dilts jumped to the orchestra pit and then out into the aisle alongside of the Hudson delegation. Allen Benny, Joseph Tumulty and several other Hudson men demanded that Dilts be heard and gag rule ended. All the while Dilts was waving his hands and shouting out protests, but they were not intelligible ten feet away on account of the din. Vichmann continued to ignore Dilts and let the delegates tire themselves out. Dilts finally exhausted himself, gave up and went to the rear.

Hardly had this incident passed when Assemblyman Tumulty, angered at some reflection on Hudson county said to have been made by C. H. Gallagher, started to invade the seats occupied by the Mercer delegation. It looked then as if a free fight would be started among the delegates, with Gallagher and Tumulty in the lead. Both men tried to get at each other, but were restrained.

By this time the secretaries were ready to announce the final vote on delegates-at-large and the announcement of Smith's election was greeted with loud applause from the Essex delegates. Later in the convention Davis moved that the election of the four successful candidates be made unanimous. It was done.

In response to a request Congressman Hamill Mr. Katzenbach was asked to state personally whether he thought Hudson county betrayed him last fall. Katzenbach went to the stage and said he was glad of the opportunity to make a statement. He did not say, however, what his conclusions on the subject were. He made a plea for harmony in democratic ranks.

The last thing brought before the convention was a resolution from Hudson county instructing the delegates for Bryan. Senator Smith got up personally and moved that it be laid on the table. On the call for ayes and nays, the chairman declared that the ayes were in a majority, but the Bryan men claimed their shout was the loudest and represented the most votes.

The convention then adjourned.

HE RECEIVED DIPLOMA FROM NASSAU IN 1832

If Dr. James Curtis Hepburn, of Orange, attends commencement at Princeton this June, he will celebrate the seventy-sixth anniversary of his graduation from college. He received his diploma in 1836, was graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania in 1836 and is Princeton's oldest alumnus. He recently passed his ninety-third birthday.

Of the 1,287 men graduated from Princeton University between the years 1832 and 1852, the twenty oldest classes represented by surviving alumni, only 151 are still living. The class of 1833, 1836, 1837 and 1838 have no survivors. Of these 151 graduates only eight are classed in the records as business men. The fact that this proportion is two-thirds less than it should be according to recently published statistics, indicates that the lives of the business men in the twenty classes concerned, have been shorter than those of their contemporaries who entered professions.

The statistics referred to show, moreover that a larger proportion of modern graduates go into business than into the profession. If this proportion shall remain as it is, or shall increase, and if the mortality of such graduates shall prove to be as high as that of the former generation, the chances for a business man to reach a ripe old age, not to speak of his celebrating the seventy-sixth anniversary of his graduation from college, are exceedingly slim.

Stated briefly the relative compatibility with longevity, according to the statistics of Princeton classes the professions are in the following order: law, the ministry and medicine.

The Upsala College nine visited Plainfield Friday and avenged their defeat by the city High School team last week by trimming the North Plainfield High School ball tossers by a score of 12-5 on Hord Common. Heavy hitting did the business, and the visitors piled up a total of seventeen hits, of which three were two-baggers. "Jake" Jacobson, whom the city schoolboys had such fun with at Kenilworth, was on the slab and held the borough down to two hits. These were a two-bagger and a single by Byron McClintock. "Jake" fanned eight and gave four passes to first. Smith, for the North Plainfielders, struck out twelve men, giving six bases on balls.

The Swedes started the run getting in the first inning, when Lundgren, who hit safely, came home on "Swan" Swansen's two-bagger. They scored again in the second, and Conroy scored the first run for the borough colleges on McClintock's hit.

The fourth, fifth and sixth innings were pretty perfect ones for the U. H. S. rooters. The Upsalians touched Smith for seven singles and a two-bagger, scoring a total of eight runs. In the eight again, a two-bagger and a single netted two more runs for the Kenilworth players. The North Plainfielders scored again in the sixth, when McClintock's two-bagger and some errors gave them four runs.

JERSEY'S DELEGATION WILL GO UNINSTRUCTED

Attempt Made to Pledge "Big Four" for Both Taft and Roosevelt Fails.

APPLAUSE FOR EX-GOV. MURPHY

His Withdrawal from the Contest for Delegate-at-Large Cheered by the Republicans in Convention.

The Republican State Convention yesterday named as delegates at large to the National Republican Convention, Gov. John Franklin Fort, United States Senators Frank O. Briggs and John Kean, and David Baird. The twenty-four delegates go uninstructed, although an attempt was made to instruct both for Taft and Roosevelt. The delegates were instructed to vote for ex-Gov. Murphy as Jersey's choice for the Vice Presidential nomination and National Committeeman.

The selection of these delegates at large came easy when State Chairman Franklin Murphy, in calling the convention to order, stated that in the interests of party harmony he would withdraw his name in the contest for delegate at large, and hoped that it would not be presented. There were all sorts of cheers for Murphy, and Temporary Chairman John F. Dryden came in for a round of applause when he warmly declared for Secretary Taft. Senator Dryden said:

"It now seem probable that the mantle of McKinley and Roosevelt will fall upon the ample shoulders of our great War Secretary, Mr. Taft, and his nomination will be ratified at the polls in November, and if the Nation should turn to our own State, as it did in 1896, when it nominated Hobart for Vice President, whose memory is dear to every Jerseyman, and nominate for second place on the ticket of 1908, a distinguished son of New Jersey, then will our people accept the honor with gratitude."

The convention did not know whom Dryden was alluding to, Fort or Murphy.

The alternate delegates at large elected were Walter C. Edge of Atlantic City; Gen. C. Edward Murray of Mercer, Louis S. Thompson of Somerset, and State Treasurer Daniel R. Voorhees of Morris.

Ex-Gov. John W. Griggs ran for delegate at large, but was defeated. He received but 178 votes to Fort's 611, Briggs 605½, Kean's 597½ and Baird's 568.

There was a determined attempt to pledge the delegates first for Taft and then for Roosevelt, when the Committee on Resolutions reported in favor of an uninstructed delegation, and for a time it looked as though Taft or Roosevelt instructions would prevail.

William P. Martin, the Colbyite leader in Essex, sought to pave the way for Taft instructions, when the Committee on Rules reported in favor of the rule sending to the Resolutions Committee all motions to instruct delegates. He was unsuccessful, but the motion of Surrogate Russel of Essex to instruct the delegates for ex-Gov. Murphy as the Jersey choice for Vice President went through with a rush.

There was a determined effort on the part of the "New Idea" people of Hudson to unseat the Rotherham delegates, who were declared to have been elected by primary frauds, but the Majority Credentials Committee report said the charges were not proved. A minority report was tabled.

As the unit rule was not adopted, the district delegates, who were named in yesterday's Daily Press, can vote for whom they please in the National convention, but they will be influenced by the delegates at large, of whom Fort is for Taft, Baird for Knox, Kean and Briggs still non-committal. There is a sentiment for Taft in the five northern Congressional districts and against Taft in the northern Congressional districts.

The resolutions indorse the work of the Republican Congress, Fort's administration, and insist that if there is to be revision of the tariff schedule, that all tariff revision be made with the principle of protection well in mind.

MR. AND MRS. MURPHY TENDERED A SURPRISE

A surprise party was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Murphy at their home on East Second street, last night, when a large company of friends enjoyed an evening of delightful sociability. There were games, selections on the piano by Miss Marie Vlebrock and Mrs. David Patterson, and vocal solos by Mrs. Charles Quint, David Paterson and Clarence L. Murphy, after which L. W. U. B. Crane then spoke of the loss that the Philathea Class at the chapel would suffer by the removal of Mrs. Murphy from their midst and in the name of the class presented her with a beautiful case of Irish linen handkerchiefs. Mr. Murphy replied for Mrs. Murphy with a few well chosen words.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. David Patterson and Frank Stewart and those present were Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Musson, L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quint, Mr. and Mrs. David Paterson, the Misses Vlebrock, John Vlebrock, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Van Nest, Mr. and Mrs. William C. ATTRACTIVE CONCERT TO BE GIVEN AT CASINO MAY 19.

A concert that will attract music lovers of Plainfield will be given at the Casino Tuesday evening, May 19, when Miss Mary Lansing, contralto; Miss May Gessler Delana, pianist, and Harold Kent, baritone, will appear, assisted by J. Frank Rice, violinist. Miss Lansing recently returned from a successful season abroad, where she studied in Berlin with Lamperti and in Paris with Jean de Reszke. She has appeared this winter with the New York Symphony Orchestra under Walter Damrosch in four concerts of the Beethoven cycle and in Washington with the Choral Society.

Miss Deleana has given successful recitals in New York, Elizabeth, Newark and this city and is a pupil of several of the best known teachers of New York city. Mr. Kent is a concert singer, who has had experience in operatic work also. He is a pupil of de Marchi and sings at present in one of the Metropolitan churches. His voice has great dramatic power, yet he also excels in the delicacy of his soft tones, giving considerable lyric style to his singing. These artists with the assistance of J. Frank Rice, pupil of vone Ende, should attract a large audience.

MRS. CHAPEY GETS A SIX MONTHS SENTENCE

Mrs. Gertrude Chapey, her daughter, Miss Gertrude Chapey and John Wallenhagen, the trio that traveled throughout the State passing worthless checks and swindling hotelkeepers, were arraigned in the Union County Court this morning for sentence. Mrs. Chapey and Wallenhagen were each given six months in the county jail, while through the efforts of Mrs. Emily Williamson, the county probation officer, Miss Chapey was placed in her charge upon the promise of Mrs. Williamson to be responsible for her appearance at a later date.

In addressing the court, Mrs. Williamson said that she was convinced that Miss Chapey was not as bad as the rest, that she had been taught bad ways by Wallenhagen and she felt sure that if removed from the influence it would be the means of saving the young woman from further trouble and disgrace.

Y. W. C. A. GLEE CLUB GAVE FINE CONCERT

The first concert of the Y. W. C. A. orchestra was given last night at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, when the thirty women members of the club were assisted by Mrs. Henry L. DeForest, pianist, Miss Jeanette Myers, of Poughkeepsie, soprano, Charles Smith, bass, and William Holmes, baritone. Four hundred people attended the concert, and the music was excellent, the various numbers on the program receiving merited applause for encores.

The club was organized but a short time ago, and has only had a dozen rehearsals for the concert. Mr. Holmes, who is the baritone soloist at the First Baptist church, is musical director of the association organization and leader. A feature of last night's program were the piano selections by Mrs. DeForest, who appeared in two numbers, whose playing was enthusiastically received. Miss Myers has a remarkably clear voice and accuracy of redition and her songs were especially suited to her voice. Charles Smith sang a solo and a duet with Mr. Holmes. A quartet composed of Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Mahia Hyde, Miss Elsie Goddard and Miss Frances VanDeventer were received with applause in two well rendered songs.

The chorus singing by the entire club was worthy of especial mention, reflecting great credit on the director and showing careful training. The members of the club are Mrs. Georgia Duryea and the Misses Margaret Bird, Cora Brokaw, Ella Codington, Isabel Conover, Lillian Conover, Mabel Conover, Emily Coriell, Jennie Dehn, Autumn DeLaney, Lillian Fedderman, Mary Flaherty, Leah Hammond, Winifred Hammond, Mabel Vanzandt, Florence King, Grace Karr, Harriet Mattison, Nora Schenck Marion Wakefield, Carrie Konzert, Emma Windham, Florence Windham, Wilhelmina Vroom, Adele Masters, Bertha Saunders, Henrietta Winn, Ella Stark and Amanda Shupp. The committee in charge of the concert was composed of Mrs. Henry L. CIRCUS CANVASMAN NABBED FOR STEALING.

Charged with breaking into a Bound Brook saloon and stealing sundry quart bottles of whiskey, John James and John Loring, canvasmen traveling with Washburn's circus, were picked up by the local police at the show grounds yesterday on a warrant from Detective Totten, of Somerville. They were taken to Somerville today in custody of the detective, and will be given a hearing there.

The men got the booze while the show was going through Bound Brook from Somerville to this city. James and Loring, according to the charge, took a couple of tent stakes and broke in the door of Frank Kobeck's saloon, securing several quart bottles of the real thing, which they partially absorbed and partially distributed among some of the other canvasmen. Kobeck reported the theft to the police, with a discription of the men, whom he knew to be with them now, and Detective Totten followed them up to this city.

COMING M. E. CONFERENCE

American Methodists to Meet in Baltimore on Wednesday, May 6.

BISHOP TO BE ELECTED.

Dr. George Edward Reed Favorite Candidate—Dr. Carroll to Continue In His Present Position.

The twenty-fifth delegated session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church begins on Wednesday, May 6, at 10:30 a. m. in the Lyric Hall, Baltimore.

The conference will be called to order by the senior bishop, Henry W. Warren, of Denver. One hundred and thirty-one annual conferences will be represented by about eight hundred delegates. Within two days of the opening session the work of the conference will be arranged according to the provision of the general conference of 1904 by Dr. Joseph B. Hingely, the secretary, with the local committee on entertainment and a bishop presiding.

Bishop L. L. Goodsell will read the Episcopal address, which will record the progress and prospects of the church; the results of Episcopal supervision and the success or otherwise of the presiding conference legislation affecting the various departments of the church's life and work. The Bishop will also represent his colleagues in suggestions concerning the benevolent organizations of the denomination and for cautious movements relating to the publishing interests; also to meet the demands of a growing church the Bishop will recommend the given number for additional bishops necessary.

What seemed a more grave problem than now appears to have been for many years a subject of deliberation among the leaders of Methodism, which is, the proper adjustment of the publishing interests for the sole purpose of economy, profit and utility. At the last General Conference a commission was appointed to consider the entire subject of the unification of the publishing houses in the interests named.

This commission recommended, as with final authority, certain changes which were given appropriate attention to the book committee, which committee after seeking the best legal advice obtainable decided the commission had misapprehended the authority given by the General Conference, which, therefore, left the whole question open for further investigation and direction by the next General Conference.

The great success of Eaton & Mains, agents for the New York Methodist Book Concern, and Jennings & Graham, agents for the Cincinnati house, is manifest in the report recently announced in "The Christian Advocate." The combined sales of the New York and Cincinnati houses for the last twelve years have been $4,158,879.60. The combined profits of the two houses for the last twelve years were $2,489,-210.32, and the dividends to annual conferences paid out by them were $1,145,750. The subsidies paid by them during the same period were $474,400.99.

The net profits of the two houses for the quadrennium just closed were as follows: The New York house, $735,949.30; the Cincinnati house, $621,676.51, making a total for the two houses for four years of $1,357,075.81. The dividends and subsides paid out by them in the last four years amount to $667,301.60.

This is declared an achievement unequalled by any other publishing house in the world. It is thought that in view of these figures the General Conference will not desire to change the management or make any material alteration in commercial methods, though the manufacturing relations may be modified by possibly removing the printing plants of New York and Cincinnati houses to parts outside the city limits.

Since the last General Conference four effective bishops and two superannuated bishops have died. The present requirements indicate that at least eight additional bishops should be elected. It is generally conceded that among those named for episcopal honors Dr. R. J. Cooke, book editor of the Methodist Episcopal church, who was nearly elected in 1904, and Dr. William F. Anderson, corresponding secretary of the Board of Education, will be elected on the first ballot. Others who are favorably mentioned for the office are Dr. David S. Downey, of New York; Dr. F. D. Bovard, of San Francisco; Dr. Homer C. Shintz, of New York and late of the Philippines; Dr. W. A. Qualyle, of Chicago; Dr. George P. Eckman, of New York; Dr. Daniel Dorchester; Dr. W. C. Smith of Pittsburg; Dr. George E. Reed, president of Dickinson College; Dr. W. H. Crawford, president of Allegheny College; Dr. E. H. Hughes, president of De Pauw University; Dr. H. C. Jennings, Jr., agent, Cincinnati; Dr. W. S. Lewis, president of Morningside College; Dr. C. B. Spencer, of Kansas City; Dr. W. S. Matthew, of San Francisco; Dr. Robert McIntyre, of Los Angeles, and others. Dr. Reed is the favor candidate. It is not likely that the conference will elect bishops for races and languages.

Dr. James M. Buckley will be re-elected editor of "The Christian Advocate" by an almost unanimous vote as will also Dr. William V. Kelley, of "The Methodist Review." There will be little change in theeditors of the various church periodicals. Dr. J. T. McFarland will be re-elected corresponding secretary of the Sunday School Union and deditor of the Sunday School literature, and Dr. A. B. Leonard, Dr. H. K. Carroll and Dr. Robert Forbes and Dr. Ward Platt will be re-elected to the Board of Foreign Missions and Home Missions and Church Extension respectively.

It is possible that owing to the unsatisfactory results of the so-called consolidation of benevolences, including the Sunday School Union and Tract Society, the Board of Education, the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, these will return to their former relations, and each will maintain its autonomy, requiring as hertofore its respective official representative.

It is said that the much disputed question of amusements expressed in the discipline of the discipline of the church will be fully discussed, with a possible modification changing it from a statutory to an advisory character.

The general conference will be asked to consider the advisability of restoring the pastoral time limit, which is not likely to prevail, also the electing instead of appointing of presiding elders and the districting of bishops for a term of years, which will not receive favorable indorsement.

There will be special legislation affecting city evangelization and social service and a change in the ratio of an annual conference representation in the general conference, and provision will be made to forward the more effective federation of churches. The Methodist Brotherhood for Men, recently formed by the union of the Wesley Brotherhood and the Brotherhood of St. Paul, will receive recognition and be encouraged.

On Wednesday night, May 6, a reception will be tendered the general conference in Lyric Hall. Addresses of welcome will be given by Governor Crothers for the state, Mayor Mahool for the city, the Rev. J. St. Clair Neal for the clergy and Henry M. Wilson for the laity. Special lectures will be delivered as follows: Friday night, May 8, by Bishop Galloway, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; May 12, Dr. W. A. Quayle; May 15, Dr. Robert McIntyre; May 19, William Jennings Bryan. On May 22 the oratorio of "The Messiah" will be given. On May 16 the general conference will be the guest of the American University in an excursion to Washington and the university grounds, where they will be addressed by President Roosevelt and Vice-President Fairbanks. There will also be some step taken for the anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of the church in Baltimore in 1808. Vice-President Fairbanks will preside.

JERSEY AUTO LAW IN EFFECT JUNE 1

Unusual preparations are being made in New Jersey to carry into effect the provisions of the new automobile law which becomes operative June 1 next. State Commissioner Smith now has 10 paid inspectors, and 20 unpaid inspectors on his staff, to instruct local authorities and investigate complaints.

What interests the autoist most in the new law is in the increased rate of assessment it reveals. Cars of less than 10-horsepower must henceforth pay $3 annually, $5 for machines of from 10 to 20-horsepower inclusive and $10 for cars of 20-horsepower and above, while drivers' licenses have also been increased from $1 and $2, to $2 and $4, according to the horsepower of the car handled, the dividing line being at 30-horsepower mark.

Makers' annual registration certificates will be at the rate of $5 each, and will be limited to five cars, for which $25 must be paid. These licenses are to be transferable. To accommodate the cab companies, blanket licenses permitting them to drive their vehicles fifteen miles within the borders of the state will be issued at a cost of $50 per annum.

Henceforth identification marks will be furnished by the state and all registrations will expire on December 31. Each number tag will also have stamped upon it the manufacturer's name, number, to prevent counterfeiting and running a car without renewing its license. Motorcycles will also be compelled to carry identification marks. Among the other changes in the new law, as compared with the old, is a provision making it a misdemeanor to throw glass or other cutting substances on the roadway, also one empowering the road commission to expend not more than $1,000 annually for the erection of warning signs. The money collected is to be expended for road improvements.

Willing to Qualify.

A few days ago a recruit was taken to be sworn in by the magistrate. Everything was going on swimmingly till the magistrate asked the man the following question: "Have you ever been in prison?"

At this the man looked startled; but, quickly recovering himself, he blurted out, "No, sir, I have never been in jail, but I don't mind doing a few days if you think it necessary."—London Mail.

NEW GAME LAWS IN STATE OF NEW JERSEY

It is now possible, out of the muddle and struggle over the New Jersey game laws, to say just what and when gunners may shoot and what and when they must not shoot. The efforts made by the new fish and game commission to reform the game laws and bring system out of chaos by a number of bills it introduced in the Legislature were partly successful. Several of these by the wayside in one house or the other, and several were vetoed by the Governor, but on the whole a distinct advance was made that will result in at least postponing the extermination of game in New Jersey. The most important advance scored was in shortening the water fowl season in South Jersey by three and one-half months and by five and one-half months in North Jersey. Two water fowl game districts and two seasons were created. In North Jersey the open season for this kind of game will hereafter be from October 15 to January 1.

There are now also two districts and two seasons for upland shooting. The geographical divisions are the same as in the water fowl districts. The open season in the northern district is from October 15 to December 1 and in the southern districts from November 15 to December 31, in game preserves shooting may begin October 1 and continue until December 31. The kinds of game included within this law are woodcock, ruffed grouse, quail, English pheasant, prairie chicken, wild turkey, rabbit and squirrel.

Other measures enacted were these: Allowing persons to bring game into New Jersey when it is legally acquired in another State, but not permitting it to be sold here. The non-resident license law was extended to include persons shooting wild water fowl, not that any one body can shoot in this State without a license. A law was enacted prohibiting unnaturalized residents from shooting without a license. This is to prevent this class of persons from ranging the fields and woods for the slaughter of unobtrusive and song birds. The game commissioners say the destruction of these harmless and useful birds by this class of gunners has been one of the most serious evils they have had to contend with. Under none of these unnaturalized foreigners can shoot without a license. Another bill cut out the July woodcock shooting season.

Open season for spearing suckers and eels now is from February 20 to June 15, providing for open season for two months over the present law. It applies only to salt water. A joint resolution was adopted for a tri-state commission, to be appointed by Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, to confer in regard to the fishing interests of the Delaware river, with special reference to the shad industry. It will inquire in to the sources of pollution of the river, also to the shad fish supply and the practical remedy.

William J. Thomson, who operates the largest shad fishery on the river, says that unless something is done to remedy the evil there will not be a shad in the Delaware in three years. Some progress was made in protecting sturgeon in the Delaware from extermination. It is now required that no seine with a mesh less than three inches shall be used in the capture of these fish. One good sized sturgeon is now worth from $60 to $100. They were formerly so plentiful in the Delaware in certain periods that it was easy to capture all that were wanted. They were held in such slight esteem as to be eaten by only the poorest persons. They sold in the Trenton markets for 3 cents a pound, while they now readily sell for 30 cents a pound. When one is now caught in the river there is great excitement among the fishermen, and it is pursued with great eagerness, its capture meaning $100. Increasing scarcity of this fish is mainly attributed to the unscrupulous greed of the fishermen in capturing and selling the baby sturgeon. The thirteen inch mesh now required will permit these to escape, and it is the purpose of the fish and game wardens to keep a vigilant watch and vigorously to enforce this provision of the law.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

The German fishers brought in during the last season 315,000 tons of herring, valued at $2,000,000.

Having thrown a pot of beer at a fellow officer and broken his nose, a German lieutenant in Danzig was so ashamed that he shot himself.

The supreme court of Germany has in several cases fixed the responsibility of bankers when advising investments to their clients, especially when such advice was volunteered as against another investment desired.

Railway stations of Berlin are shortly to be provided with automatic machines which in the insertion of 52 cents will deliver an umbrella. A ticket will also drop out, and whoever presents it within two days at an office of the automatic society will receive 33 cents in return for the umbrella.

HOME NOTES.

If you scorch a garment when irons ing it, rub a lump of dry starch on the mark, then sponge it off. Repeat till the yellow disappears.

To prevent a torn placket place a hook and eye near the bottom of your skirt opening. Never unhook this and your skirt will never be torn.

The pulverized washing powders last much longer if used from a talcum powder shaker. A baking powder can with holes punched through the lid may be utilized for the purpose.

Spots of wagon grease may be removed from cotton goods by moistening slightly a piece of common brown laundry soap and rubbing it on the spots thickly. Let remain three or four hours and then wash in cold water.

Berries that are faded can be redyed at small expense. There are several who have tried the result, provided a sample of the new color desired is furnished. Faded carpets have also been satisfactorily dyed.

A Deserving Recognition.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman's name will be presented to the Congressional District Convention for election as a delegate to the National Convention. The selection of Mr. Ackerman to represent this district would be a deserving recognition of his public services and reflect credit and honor on the Republicans of Union county as well.—Rahway Advocate.

M'GEE-HOWELL NUPTIALS

Ceremony in the First M. E. Church Witnessed by Society Throng.

GROOM'S UNCLE OFFICIATES.

Miss Sarah Mae Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Halsey Howell, of Myrtle avenue, and Harry L. McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard place, North Plainfield, were married at the First M. E. church at 7:30 Wednesday night, in the presence of a large and fashionable throng of society people. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and an uncle of the groom.

The bride's attendants were Miss Katherine Wolcott Dwight, of New York, maid of honor; Mrs. George Harold Bates, of Cranford, and Mrs. John Havemeyer, of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, as matrons of honor, and Miss Marion McCutcheon, Miss Verna McCutcheon, Miss Edith English and Miss Helen Ray Hooley, all of this city, as bridesmaids.

The best man was Donald A. McGee, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Raymond A. McGee, brother of the groom; John H. Thomas, of New York; Frank Howard, Hartford, Conn.; Emil H. Frank, Jr., of Brooklyn; Herbert S. Rogers and W. Vaughn McGee, of this city.

The color scheme as carried out in the costumes was unusual. It was shaded pink, with the exception of the gowns worn by the bride and maid of honor, who were in white. The gowns of the matrons of honor and bridesmaids were of the varied shades of pink and were exceedingly pretty. The bride's gown was of princess lace, trimmed with duchesse lace and rose point, with a court train of white satin. Her veil was of princess lace ornamented with old point lace and orange blossoms, and carried bouquets of pink sweet peas.

Assisting in the ceremony was the vested choir of the church, under the direction of J. Edmund Skitt, organist and choirmaster. The choir processional was a feature. The choir preceded the bridal party as it entered the church, singing the "Bridal Chorus" from the Lohengrin wedding march. The ushers followed the latter, then came the maid of honor, matrons of honor, bridesmaids and the bride, accompanied by her father who gave her in marriage. At the altar they were met by the groom and his best man.

During the ceremony the choir sang "O, Perfect Love." In leaving the church, the bride and groom led the way, followed by the other members of the party and the guests. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Myrtle avenue. This was largely attended and was a brilliant affair. The display of costly gifts of every description was greatly admired. Mr. and Mrs. McGee were the recipients of hearty congratulations previous to their departure on a wedding trip at 10:30. Upon their return they will reside on Orchard place. During the hours of the reception a delightful program of music was rendered by a stringed orchestra. The bride, who possesses exceptional musical talent, played nearly all of the selections of music rendered at the church and the house.

The groom is a graduate of Yale '96, Sheffield, and is a member of the Yale Club of New York and the Park Club of this city. He is also a member of the Park Club, and both she and Mr. McGee are prominent in social affairs and athletic events at the club. Mr. McGee is secretary of the Concrete Steel Company of New York.

Carl Blomgren a Benedict.

Miss Hilda Elina Person and Carl Petter Hilding Blomgren, both of this city, were married at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday at the home of Christian Gerlach, Franklin avenue, North Plainfield. Rev. Dr. Johnson, pastor of St. Peter's German Lutheran church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives and friends. A reception followed. The young couple will leave soon for a three months' trip to their native country, Sweden. The groom is employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works.

The Bakers' Dozen.

DR. ZEGLIO'S AUTOMOBILE FELLS BOY AT CROSSING

Running across Somerset street at Pearl street early Wednesday, Abraham Bender, the nine-year-old son of Isaac Bender, of Somerset street, was knocked down by Dr. P. J. Zeglio's automobile, sustaining a compound fracture of the left leg, bruises and contusions. The boy is now at Muhlenberg Hospital, where it was said this afternoon that he is resting comfortably. The leg has been set and an examination shows that he was not internally injured as was first feared.

The accident happened at about 8 o'clock. Young Bender was crossing the street to meet his cousin, Ben Estrin. Dr. Zeglio, driving his car along Craig place, tooted his horn and slowed up as he crossed Somerset street. Two young men, Howard and Michael Powers, who were about 16 feet in front of the machine, stopped, but Bender who was directly behind them, darted out in an attempt to cross in front of the automobile. Michael Powers seized his arm as he passed and saved him being run down, but Bender struck the fender at the side. He was thrown heavily, and the machine, to which he clung in falling, was instantly brought to a stop by the doctor.

The two Powers picked up the boy, who fell directly at their feet, and, with the doctor, carried him to the office of Dr. F. J. Hughes. A hasty examination showed that his left leg was broken below the knee, and he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance, accompanied by Dr. Zeglio.

Bystanders assert that the automobile was moving slowly, and Dr. Zeglio said today that the accident was the first he had ever had since he owned the car.

BOROUGH FATHERS WON'T BUY SCHOOL FIRE BOX

The petition from the North Plainfield Board of Education for a fire alarm box on the corner at the Watchung School was refused at the meeting of the borough council Friday, but the borough fathers will stand for the expense of installing and maintaining a box if the school board will purchase one. The petition was presented by Nelson A. Miller after it had been tabled at a meeting of the board Monday night. In giving the ruling in the matter, Councilman Smith, of the fire, water and lamps committee, stated that the expense of purchasing a box would be $125, while it can be installed for $8 and maintained at a cost of $12.50 a year.

A petition from Henry DeMott, asking permission to build a wooden awning partially over the sidewalk for 48 feet along the front of the store at 59 Somerset street, Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed emphasized that to grant such a petition would be to violate a borough ordinance, and the petition was voted down. D. W. Force's petition for the erection of two frame dwellings on Warren street, carried over from the last meeting, was rejected on the grounds that it would cause unsanitary crowding of buildings there.

In a report from the various committees, Councilman Smith, of the fire, water and lamps committee, stated that the cost of the new borough fire horses had been $600. He said that the team is heavier and better matched than the former team, and was perfectly gentle. The remaining horse of the old team is to be sold. The report of Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver showed that during the month of April there had been eleven arrests and $9.15 in fines collected.

A QUEER LIGHTHOUSE.

Lampless Beacon in the Hebrides Lights the Mariner's Way.

On Armish rock in the Hebrides, Scotland, there is a lighthouse without a light. It has been so mean that the light has been removed from it that the house is no longer used for its legitimate purpose. On the contrary, it serves as a beacon for the sailors and fishermen every night, and yet there is no light in it.

It is perhaps the most remarkable lighthouse in the world. It is conical in shape, and at the summit is a lantern in which there is a mirror. On Lewis island, 500 feet distant, is an ordinary lighthouse, and from a window in its tower a stream of light is thrown by the mirror in the Armish rock lantern. The rays of this light are reflected to an arrangement of prisms, which make them converge to a focus outside the lantern, and from there they diverge in the necessary direction. Thus a lighthouse exists that has neither lamp nor keeper, and yet it serves all the purposes in its locality of a costly and elaborate structure with all the accessories that modern lighthouses have.

SILENT BUT FAMOUS MEN

Celebrities That Have Been Noted as Misers of Words.

In the World's History.

SOME NOTABLE EXAMPLES.

Have Been as Sparing of Language as They Have Been Prodigal of Deeds of Renown.

It is a curious and interesting fact that many of the world's greatest men have been as sparing of words as they have been prodigal of deeds.

It is doubtful if there ever lived a more taciturn man than Wallenstein, the famous commander of the Austrian army during the thirty years' war. It is said of Wallenstein that he, "lived in an atmosphere of silence" and never uttered a word that was not absolutely necessary, nor would he permit others to speak in his presence more than was essential. One of his chamberlains was hanged for asking Wallenstein with needless noise. His servants were so many mutes, not daring to open their lips in his presence, and he was surrounded by patrols, and the approaches to his house were barricaded by chains to preserve him from the least disturbance. In comparison with Wallenstein, it has been recorded, Diogenes would have been a chatterbox and William the Saint a brawler.

But silence is a characteristic of many of the world's most famous soldiers. Napoleon boasted that in his dealings with men he never wasted a word and made monosyllables answer most purposes. But nothing escaped his eyes, and he could compress more within a sentence than most men could convey in a quarter of an hour.

The great Duke of Marlborough when receiving reports from his generals would produce his watch and say, "I will give you a minute," and it was likely to be heard with the officer who did not observe the limitation. To his staff the Duke of Wellington was always more or less a sphinx. A nod or a shake of the head was often the only response they could get from him, and he once said he was glad that he considered the best equipment of a commander he answered, "A long head and a silent tongue."

Von Moltke almost rivaled Wallenstein in taciturnity. He never opened his mouth if a gesture would suffice, and when the news was brought to him that the French had declared war he simply said to the aid-de-camp, "Second pigeonhoe on the right, first tier," and turned round to sleep again. But he had said all that was necessary, for in the pigeonhole indicated were combined plans by which the campaign, which closed in brilliant victory. Von Moltke used to say that one verb in the German languageswas worth all the others put together, and that was "thun"—"to do."

The worst thing his enemies could say of President Grant was, "He won't talk because he has so much to conceal," and yet it was precisely in this silence that Grant's real strength lay. His orders and dispatches were the briefest ever penned, and when once a charming young lady playfully asked him why he would not talk to her, he answered, "My dear, don't you know that silence is one of the greatest arts of conversation?"

But it has been the same in all ages. Charlemagne was a perfect miser of words, holding, with Confucius, that "silence is a friend that will never betray;" Hannibal was a man of "monosyllables;" and Julius Cæsar was nicknamed by his soldiers "The Oracle."

Even great statesman and writers who cannot suffer from any lack of words have often been among the most reserved of men. Of Addison, Johnson says, "Of his external manners nothing is so often mentioned as that silence or sullen taciturnity which his friends called modesty by too mild a name." According to Chesterfield, he was "the most timorous and awkward man I ever saw," and even Addison himself, speaking of his own deficiency in conversation used to say, "I can draw bills for a thousand pounds, though I haven't a guinea in my pocket."

Dryden was unutterably dreary as a companion. "My conversation is slow," he once wrote, "my humor saturnine and reserved, and I am none of those who endeavor to break jests in company and make repartees." Dryden's friends tells how he once dined with Dryden, and from the beginning to the end of the meal the poet "never opened his lips except to eat."

Thomas Carlyle was a "boarder of the gold of silence" and would sit for hours, puffing away at his pipe, without uttering more than a grunt or a brief monosyllable. Leigh Hunt, his neighbor and intimate, once wrote to a friend: "Have just spent a pleasant hour with Carlyle. When I went in he growled, 'Hallon; here again!' and at parting he snapped out, 'Good day!' and that is the sum of the conversation he honored me with. But how eloquent his silence is! I just sat and looked at him and came away strengthened for fresh struggle."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 10, 1908.

By REV. A. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Being a Christian—I. In our work and our play.—John v, 17; Eccl. ix, 10; Prov. xvi, 26.

Christianity should enter into every form of our lives. This fact is to be emphasized in this and the two succeeding topics, in which it is to be set forth that it should have a part in our work, our play, our school and home life and even in our political lives. These three topics should enlist the earnest interest of all Endeavorers, and each one should think out for himself the meaning of the topic or should at least inquire concerning himself whether or not his religion does enter into the various forms of his life or whether it is simply reserved for the Sabbath and the various religious activities in which he engages. The present topic deals with the question of being a Christian in our work and play.

1. Being a Christian in our work. The word work does not here apply even principally to our Christian work. While engaged in that the spirit of Christ necessarily predominates our actions. At least it does in most cases, while here and there we do find a lack of such a spirit even in work for Christ. False ambitions, favoritism and even theft have sometimes been found among Christian workers. But the topic applies more particularly to the work of life by which we make our living, whether by trade, business or profession. The question arises, Do we carry our religion into the daily work of life? Work we must. God worked, Christ worked, and if we are truly His disciples we will work also. And if we follow the Master's example we shall work earnestly, sincerely and honestly. "Whatsoever our hands find to do we should do it with our might," remembering that the night cometh, when no man can work. But in the business world there are many temptations. There is the temptation to increase riches more rapidly by falsehood and dishonesty, to advance more rapidly in our professions at the sacrifice of the rights of others. These things are of daily occurrence even among professing Christians. Some claim that you cannot be honest and succeed. If so, then you had better fail. Failure with Christ is better than success without Christ. But men who carry their religion into their work do succeed. We should not be bluffed by the cry of the world. Opportunities may sometimes come to make seeming success more rapid through the sacrifice of our religion. But it is only seeming success. Young people should keep this in mind. Do not lie or steal for any employer. If you steal(past) refuse he will realize your value and probably raise you to a higher position rather than discharge you. And if he should do the latter the business world is greatly in need of honest, upright, trustworthy men, and God will take care of you. Resist every temptation to do wrong in your work, and you will never regret it.

2. Being a Christian in play. The serious, earnest worker deserves a time for play or for recreation and amusement. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and men are but boys a little older grown. The Master retired frequently with His disciples for rest. Any healthful and sinless amusement or recreation is suitable for a young Christian. Christ Himself was no ascetic. He did not absent Himself from the social and joyful features of life. He attended a wedding, usually a most festive occasion, and on a number of occasions accepted invitations to feasts and dinners. The disciple can follow the example of his Master even in this respect. As to the character of the amusements in which we can rightly take part, each one must decide for himself. Whatever harms us morally and spiritually must be omitted. Whatever gives enjoyment and pleasure without such results may be indulged in. Go where you can take Christ. Stay away from any place where you would not like to see Him or His ambassador, your pastor. Do what you feel He can bless. Omit what you feel you could not ask Him to bless. If in whatever you enjoy you can be a Christian, have no fear, but if there be a doubt in your mind give your religion the benefit of the doubt. In either case you will be safe.

What We Stand For.

IA statement made by the Rev. J. H. Garrison, D. D., at Columbus, from the Disciples of Christ of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.]

For the Christ of Galilee,
For the truth that makes men free,
For the bond of unity
Which makes God's children one.

For the love which shines in deeds,
For the life which this world needs,
For the church whose triumph speaks
The prayer, "Thy will be done."

For the right against the wrong,
For the weak against the strong,
For the people we've waited long
For the brighter age to be.

For the faith against tradition,
For the truth against superstition,
For the hope whose glad fruition
Our waiting eyes shall see.

For the city God is rearing,
For the new earth now appearing,
For the heaven above us clearing
And the song of victory.

DEFENSE OF THE STINGY MAN.

"They say I am stingy. All right, let it go at that: I AM stingy. But did you ever hear that I was a dead beat? There was a time when I threw my money away, and stood off my creditors, in order that I might be known as a good fellow, but now I save my money and pay my debts. There was a time when I spent ten dollars in an evening, bumming around with the boys, and owed the tailor for the clothes on my back; when I went riding every Sunday with a livery rig, and did not pay my board; when I thought it an evidence of smartness to buy cigars and drinks for other people, but now I think it an evidence of sound sense for a man to save the money for which he is compelled to work, in order that he may realize something from it. For this I am called stingy, but I can stand it; in fact, I rather enjoy the title, for there are so many shiftless fools in this town who imagine that they are good fellows, hoping to realize on their wanton waste of money, that I am glad I cannot be classed among them. Ask the bill collectors about the good fellows. The bill collectors will tell you a story worth listening to and they will also tell you that the stingy men pay promptly. There was a lot of old good fellows in Atchison who have not money enough to bury them, and there are stingy fellows in Atchison who began life under more unfavorable circumstances than the good fellows, and the stingy fellows are rich. I recommend that the young fellows deserve the name of being stingy, for a stingy man seldom stints himself or his family, but he often refuses to throw his hard-earned money away, and very properly. A stingy man is seldom bothered for donations, and, altogether, I like the name."—(Found among the papers of an Atchison man who died rich.)—Atchison Globe.

KEEPS STRICT TAB ON CIGARS.

Melancholy Man Tells of Drawback to Wife's Gift.

"My wife," said the melancholy man, "always gives me a box of cigars on my birthday. No; I'm not going to say what you expect me to. They are excellent cigars; they ought to be, for I always give her careful instructions as to what to get.

"The trouble is that she can't seem to separate herself from the gift. I presume it is feminine human nature, but she exercises a watchful guardianship over that box. She has a notion that it ought to be like the widow's cruse of oil, which, as I recall, lasted for a considerable time. Because the cigars are expensive the taking of one of them becomes in her eyes, an event. I have tried to smuggle other cigars into that box, but I've always been caught. Her proprietary interest increases as the number of smokes diminish.

"Why don't you exert your independence?" the melancholy man was asked, "and tell your wife that you will smoke those cigars as you like, at home, or take the whole box to the office?"

"You don't know my wife," replied the melancholy man.

Test Case.

"I'm a 'beauty doctor,'" announced the stranger with the hand satchel full of cosmetics and massage machines. "Do you think I could get any practice around here?"

"Yeou make ugly things pretty, don't yeou?" drawled the old farmer in the specified dirt.

"That's my business, sir."

"Wall, if yeou'll go down back of my barn yeou'll find an old slate-colored cow with one eye and one horn missing. Yeou like cows all over her face. She's the ugliest cow in seven states and if yeou can make her pretty I'll agree that yeou be a 'beauty doctor' an' give yeou a dollar."

Feminine Intuition.

They stood in the purple gloaming of the hazy twilight. Above them drooped the white stars, far afar drifted the fragrance of the dewy honeysuckles. It was an evening to inspire the heart and to thrill the soul.

"Evangeline," sighed Hector Montmorency, "I cannot begin to tell you how much I love you."

"You"—she hesitated—"you might at least try, mightn't you? If you give me but an inkling perhaps I can guess the rest."

He should have known better than to think of marrying a woman who was such a good guesser.—Judge.

Wary.

"So you heard my speech?" said the orator.

"Yes," answered Farmer Corntossel.

"And you enjoyed it?"

"Very much."

"And you agreed with my opinions?"

"Entirely."

"Then, of course, I can depend on your support."

"No. I've thought it all over, and I've concluded that as slick a talker as you are ain't to be trusted."—Washington Star.

Quite Likely.

"We thought," said the reporter, "you might care to say something about these charges against you."

"No," replied the crooked public official, "I believe that 'silence is golden.'"

"Well," replied the reporter, "perhaps the public might believe it's merely gilt in this case."—Philadelphia Press.

Insect Contrivance.

As Dr. Darwin was walking one day in his garden he perceived a wasp upon the gravel walk with a large fly nearly as big as itself which it had caught. Kneeling down, he distinctly saw it cut off the head and abdomen and then, taking up with its feet the trunk or middle portion of the body, to which the wings remained attached, fly away. But a breeze of wind, proceeding from the wings of the fly, turned round the wasp with its burden and impeded its progress. Upon this it alighted again on the gravel walk, deliberately sawed off first one wing and then the other and, having thus removed the cause of its embarrassment, flew off with its booty.

WHY HE SLAYED SELF

Mortified by Speech Impediment 'tis Said, Augustus Frentz Commits Suicide.

SCOTCH PLAINS IN MOURNING.

Amateur Ball Player Popular in the Village Which Grieves Over His Rash Act.

The suicide of Augustus Frentz, Jr., at his home in Scotch Plains, Friday, has cast a deep gloom over the town, especially among the younger people with whom he was popular. His condition was critical from the first and despite the combined efforts of Drs. Westcott and Pitts they were unable to locate the bullet which apparently had imbedded itself in the brain and he passed away without regaining consciousness.

*While the family is unable to as*sign a reason for the deed, there is strong reason to believe that an impediment in his speech was largely responsible for it. Mr. Frentz was greatly afflicted with stammering, and he was constantly being "jollied" by his many friends. It was a common occurrence for them to imitate him, and being of a sensitive disposition, it is known that he deeply felt the good natured raillery thrust at him. It is said that he had often tried to find a cure for his affliction, but without avail and the fact that he could get no relief preyed on his mind.

His home life was pleasant and his family declare that they noticed nothing strange about his actions that would lead them to be suspicious. Mr. Frentz was especially interested in the Plains baseball team and expected to do much pitching for the club this season. It was largely through his efforts that the team was organized and in past season's it was due to his great interest that the organization was so successful. He was the crack pitcher for the club last year when it was a member of the Inter-City Amateur League.

Mr. Frentz and his brother, George had been working together in the morning, putting up a new piazza at Henry Keuhn's house on Westfield avenue, and it was noticed that he was in a hurried way getting wood. He quit work at noon and on reaching home started to cut the lawn grass. Suddenly without saying a word to anyone he dropped the task and went to his room. The first the family knew of his shooting was when they heard the report of the pistol.

Rushing upstairs, Mr. Frentz's sister, Jennie, found him lying on the side of the bed, his fingers still working at the trigger of the revolver. Three chambers had been fired and discharged, but only one bullet, evidently the first, entering the head through the mouth and imbedding itself in the recesses of the brain.

The members of the family declare that the act was not premediated, as Mr. Frentz had written a friend to be sure and meet him at the baseball game this afternoon, so as to complete plans for a trip they were expecting to take tomorrow.

THE TALKING JACKETS.

There was an uneasy stir at one side of the closet. It was Lou's jacket. Finally it spoke in a tired, nervous voice:

"'Oh, dear! Lou has left me hanging by a loop, and my shoulders sag so that I can hardly get my head in. I don't know how I can ever look nice and fresh if I get no rest.'

May's jacket roused itself to answer:

"'You poor thing, I am so sorry for you! Now, my shoulders are resting so nicely on this coat frame. May is never in too much of a hurry to slip me well on it. To-morrow noon you will be sure to say to her, "How fresh and nice your jacket looks!"'

"'That's just it!' grumbled Lou's jacket. 'And they will say to Lou 'How wrinkled your jacket is! It doesn't seem to keep its shape at all well.' And all the time it is not my fault. How can I rest hung only by a loop, and that not a strong one? There's a button off, too, and a three cornered tear in one elbow that makes me very uncomfortable. I suppose when it is torn bigger her mother will see it and mend it for her. Oh, dear, this loop is giving way, and I am going to fall to the floor! I suppose that means dust and more wrinkles!'

While it said the jacket sat down, falling directly upon a pair of muddy overshoes.

May's jacket peeped down through darkness to where the other lay for a moment, then settled itself for a quiet nap. It looked so fresh and bright the next morning that no one ever dreamed it knew all about the troubles of Lou's jacket.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR SOMERSET ST. BRIDGE

At a meeting of the Somerset Board of Freeholders Friday bids were received and opened for the culvert bridge over Somerset street, near the Arlington hotel, in North Plainfield, as follows: Arthur E. Smith, $12 a cubic yard complete; Schuyler & Allgair, $8.75; J. S. Sutton, $9.90; J. W. Scott, $8.35; W. T. Kirk Co., $8.40. Andrew Lutkins, William Demler and Joel Codington were appointed as a committee to have charge of the construction of the bridge and the bids were referred to them, with the county engineer.

Mr. Scott, the lowest bidder, stated that he could not build the bridge within six weeks and the present structure being in a dangerous condition the committee, after a conference, recommended that the contract be awarded to the W. T. Kirk Co. This was done and the director was authorized to execute the contract.

The matter of the Culver street bridge, Somerville, was laid over until a subsequent meeting.

It was decided to build a new bridge at Harry Hill's on the Pluckemin road, with concrete or stone walls, 12 x 14 feet, concrete floor. Bids for same will be received the second Tuesday in May at the Court House.

A communication was received from the Standard Paint Works at Bound Brook in reference to the condition of the iron bridge in that place. Members Peter Smith, Andrew Lutkins, Joel Codington, Joseph Fitzgerald and Edward B. Hoagland with the director and engineer Dougherty, were appointed as a committee for the purpose of examining the bridge, with power to employ a competent and disinterested engineer to report to the board.

The board will meet Friday, May 8 at 10 a. m. Court House, to receive bids for the Watchung bridge.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL TO HAVE ANOTHER SCHOOL BUILDING.

In connection with the annual exhibition of pupils' work in the elementary department of the Hartridge School, Miss Emely B. Hartridge announced yesterday to a gathering of parents of the pupils that the day school would be held in a separate building another year and that plans were practically completed for the establishing of an up-to-date private school. No building has yet been definitely decided upon, but Miss Hartridge has several centrally situated places under consideration.

The exhibition of pupils' work, held in the elementary department building on East Seventh street, was largely attended and examples of the year's work in arithmetic, geography, history, spelling, English and art were shown. Aside from presenting a general report of the year's work, Miss Hartridge spoke of the growth of the school and outlined her plans for the coming year. An important feature will be the opening of the fifth, sixth and seventh grades with next year be in a separate department under the supervision of a master.

PRINCETON SMOKER PLANS ABOUT COMPLETED.

Arrangements are about completed for the smoker for Princeton men of Plainfield and vicinity to be given Wednesday night, May 20, at 8:30 o'clock at the Casino. There will be a quartet and chorus selections and every son of Old Nassau in this vicinity is expected to attend and whoop it up for his alma mater. There are about sixty-five Princeton men in Plainfield and efforts are being made by Robert Bridges Fleming, chairman of the committee, to reach every one.

Robert Bridges editor of Scribner's Magazine; McCready Sykes and William R. Wilder, a member of the faculty at Princeton University, will be among the principal speakers. Any Princeton man in this vicinity who has failed to receive an invitation to the smoker is urged to communicate at once with Owen H. Fleming, 1012 Park avenue.

Miss Conway Surprised.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Mary Ella Conway, of East Second street and Terrill road, Friday afternoon in honor of her eighth birthday. Several hours were spent in playing games, and Miss Conway's uncle, Nicholas Myers, gave violin selections, after which refreshments were served. Among the guests present were about twenty-one school friends who all remembered her with gifts.

Kenilworth College Boys Win Six Inning Game by Score of 9-4.

SCHOOLBOYS' POOR HITTING.

College Players Score Seven Runs in First Inning—P. H. S. Only Gets Two Hits, but Five Errors.

The Upsala College nine, "the slugging Swedes from Kenilworth," defeated the Plainfield High School team in a six inning game at Crescent Oval Thursday afternoon by a score of 9-4. This gives each team a victory, for when the nines met before the schoolboys won 21-17. The game was won in the first inning. When second baseman Upsalian crossed the plate. Four errors by the schoolboys in this one inning, together with two singles and a two-bagger by the husky rah-rah boys, were responsible for the runs. VanZandt started the game on the mound for the high school, but was given poor infield support and changed places with Murphy on third at the beginning of the fourth inning. This change steadied the infield. While in the box, VanZandt figured in a pretty double play. This came in the second inning, when he caught a hot liner and handled it to first in plenty of time. Murphy, as pitcher, figured in another double play in the fifth.

The schoolboys were painfully weak with the stick, Giddes and Murphey making the only two hits off "Jake" Jacobson, who fanned seven men, gave six bases on balls and hit two of the Plainfielders. The High School did not score until the third, when "Jake" gave three bases on balls, bit Doane and made a balk. This start from the box, together with a wild pitch and an error, gave the schoolboys two runs. "Jake's" hit in the Upsala half of the same session, scored Bergquist, who got his base on an error. Swanson's two base hit in the fourth, with Anderson's single, scored Lundgren in the fourth. The schoolboys scored another run in the fifth and Giddes' hit bounded Riffert home in the sixth. Rain stopped the game while the college boys were at the bat in the seventh, with one gone and two on bases.

The score and lineups:

BOND ISSUE FORESTALLED

Councilmen Told Money for New Fire House Cannot Be Obtained this Way.

COULD NOT BE LEGAL.

Corporation Counsel Declares the Sum Needed Must Be Charged to the General Fund Account.

The intended action of the Common Council looking to the purchase of the site for the new East End fire house on South avenue through the issue of bonds in the amount of $1,800, has been forestalled by Corporation Counsel Marsh, who informed the Council last night that it cannot legally do this. For the purpose of completing the deal for the land, Mr. Marsh submitted resolutions, one rescinding the previous action of the Council in the matter of issuing bonds, and another providing that the $1,800 be permanently charged to the account of the general fund.

Mr. Marsh explained further in his communication that the issue of bonds could not be authorized as intended unless the Council desired to provide for a sinking fund commission and that would require additional legislation. The suggestions of Mr. Marsh were followed by the Council and both resolutions submitted were offered and adopted.

In his regular report to the Common Council, Mr. Marsh stated that in the Southside sewer district dispute, in which Peter Morgan the city and tradesmen are implicated, counsel representing the various interests had agreed to a dismissal of the suit and the matter will be amicably adjusted.

Regarding the action of Ernest T. Hand against the city for the reduction of a tax assessment of property owned by Mr. Hand and located on Northwood avenue, Mr. Marsh reported that the appeal has been withdrawn and the assessment will stand.

In the case of Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers against the Overseer of the Poor of Readington, in which the care of a pauper was involved, Mr. Marsh stated that the trial was held at Flemington, the city winning the case, thereby being relieved of the support of the pauper. Mr. Marsh stated that the case of the American Sewage Disposal Company against the city remains status quo. He also stated that in the case of E. M. French against the city, in an appeal from an assessment the application being for a reduction of the assessment from $18,300 to $10,000, the appeal had been abandoned. In this matter Mr. Marsh employed the services of H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer at a cost of $10.60, which he approved and recommended be paid.

The corporation counsel reported adversely on the request of A. T. Gallup for the deduction of on assessment of shares of bank stock held by him. He claimed that at the time they were assessed they belonged to the estate of Charles Potter, but it appeared that without authority a change had been made in the matter of assessment. Mr. Gallup will be notified of Mr. Marsh's opinion.

BOROUGH GOVERNMENT WILL RENT ROOMS TO THE NEEDY.

Because Borough Overseer of the Poor Fred E. Becker has received so many appeals for aid from homeless families, Mayor Townsend announced today that the old Borough police station would be fitted up as a lodging house and given rent free to those who apply for aid. This action is the result of a consultation between Mr. Townsend, Chief Marshal Weiss and Mr. Becker.

The building is now rented by the borough to one family, but it is planned to fit up the lower floor as an apartment by removing the old cells so that the building will accommodate at least two families. The borough has been paying on the average about $12 a month toward the rent of otherwise homeless borough families, and Mr. Townsend believes he has solved the difficulty by founding the "North Plainfield Apartments."

Henry Molleson.

Henry Molleson, an old resident and veteran of the Civil War, died Saturday night at his home on East Second street from a complication of troubles. He had been ill seven months. Mr. Molleson was born at Samprown in 1843 and soon afterward moved to this city. After serving in the Civil War, he returned to Plainfield and learned the painter's trade, which he followed all his life, being employed for many years by Woolston & Buckle up to the time of his illness. He is survived by a wife, two sons, Henry L., and Chester D. Molleson, one daughter, Mrs. Nellie Canning, of Philadelphia; also two brothers.

NUMEROUS PETITIONS RECEIVED BY COUNCIL

Numerous petitions were received at the May meeting of the Common Council, last night, and were referred to the proper committees to be reported upon later. Among these were ones for three electric lights and four hydrants to be located in the vicinity of Randolph road, Cameron and Lennox avenues. Mrs. K. M. Stelle, of Union street, protested against the proposition to macadamize that street, on account of the present hard times. The petition of W. J. Allman and others for an electric light on Mason place, between West Third and Fourth streets, was on motion of Mr. Montgomery, granted.

W. H. Abbott and others requested the Common Council to use its influence to have the Public Service Corporation extend its electric light wires through Hillside and Putnam avenues. This was referred to the public affairs committee.

The resignation of Loss S. Kelly, as a regular fireman, was received and promptly accepted. Mayor C. J. Fisk appointed Andrew McConnell and Wesley J. Dunn as regular members of the fire department and the appointments were confirmed.

As secretary to the Mayor, Leon R. Thurlow through a communication, invited the Common Council and city officials, the Mayor Townsend and the Borough Council to attend the annual inspection of the city police and fire departments to be held at Mayor Fisk's home Saturday afternoon. The invitation was accepted, and the clerk instructed to forward the same to the Borough Council.

The April report of Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers, showed a total expenditure of $414.92. Horace G. Adams, as clerk of the district court reported receipts of $99.20 and expenditures of $30.62, with a balance of $68.67 for the past month.

Through a resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street and sewer committee, the committee was authorized to apply to the Court of Common Pleas for the appointment of commissioners of assessment in the matter of street improvement work here. The application will be made to the court on Wednesday, May 20.

On motion of Mr. Hibbard, Joseph Harrigan's petition for permission to erect a building of concrete at 929 South avenue, was granted, and a similar motion prevailed in the matter of the petition of J. Frod Macdonald asking for permission to remove a stable on East Front street from part of a lot to another. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company was also given permission to erect two poles on the fire department property at 149 East Second street.

Mr. Mygatt gave notice that at the next regular meeting he would move to amend rules 16, 29, and 38, correcting inaccuracies that exist in them. A communication from Alderman Charles Randolph authorized the alms committee to expend $400 for repairs at the Industrial Home.

On motion of Mr. Gloak, the ordinance providing for the macadamizing of certain streets was adopted on third reading, Mr. Mygatt alone voting in the negative. A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, authorized the Mayor and city treasurer to borrow $3,000 for street improvements, and another resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted provided for the transfer of $5,000 from the general fund to the fire fund and $1,000 from the general fund to the poor fund. Mr. Buxton also called up on third reading the tax ordinance and it was adopted.

When Robert Hall, chairman of the auditing committee, presented the bills, a question arose as to whether the firemen's increase of wages should be dated from January 1, as in the case of the police department. He said that he had been some criticism of the matter, but inasmuch as the policemen had received their increase from that time he saw no reason why the fireman should not be treated the same way. He had asked the corporation counsel for an opinion, but the latter had been unable to prepare it in time for the meeting. It was finally decided to pay the firemen the increased wages from January 1.

Councilman Frank Randolph moved that the Common Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night, May 11, to consider the bids for the erection of the new police headquarters' building.

P. H. S. FACULTY TO CONTROL THE SCHOOL ORGANIZATIONS.

Action giving Principal Ira W. Travell and the faculty of the Plainfield High School full power to control the various school organizations was taken at the meeting of the Board of Education last night, when a resolution to this effect was presented by Dr. Maxson and unanimously passed by the Board. The resolution is merely a formal announcement of what is already being done among the pupils in the management of the athletic, social and literary interests of the school.

In presenting his resolution, Dr. Maxson stated that the formal power should be given, because of the numerous and involved financial interests connected with the management of the school activities.

PUBLIC SERVICE "JOKER"

Councilmen Believe a Hidden Purpose Prompted Application for a Turnout.

THE REQUEST IS REFUSED.

Members Assert the Plan Is to Get a New Switch and Then Reduce the Number of Cars.

Believing that there is a "joker" in the request of the Public Service Corporation for permission to locate a turnout on the South street trolley line, near Liberty street, under the pretense of giving better service in the city, the Common Council at the May meeting, last night, refused to endorse the action after it had been reported by Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the public affairs committee. It was finally referred to the joint committees, streets and sewers and public affairs.

Among those who were skeptical about the change were Councilmen Charles C. Randolph, Herbert Buxton and H. B. Suydam. In the opinion of these members the Public Service Corporation wants to get an extra turnout at the point mentioned and then operate three cars instead of four on the Fourth street line.

It was explained by Mr. Mygatt that the company had informed him that with this turnout it would be possible to provide better trolley service; also to operate the Netherwood cars through business part of the city as far west as Grant avenue, giving seven minute service. This is not practicable now because the turnout on West Fourth street is too far away from the Watchung avenue stand.

In the opinion of Mr. Suydam the seven minute schedule on West Front street should go farther west than Grant avenue. That was his only real objection. "All things stop at Grant avenue," said Mr. Suydam, "and I think it is about time a change was made.

"I think there is a 'joker' in the move," said Councilman Charles Randolph, "and for that reason I will not vote for the resolution giving the company the privilege to locate the turnout."

Mr. Mygatt tried to show how the service would be improved. It would mean more cars and a seven minute schedule, but the other members would not see that. Finally on the whole matter was referred jointly to the street and sewer and public affairs' committees.

As chairman of the public affairs committee, Mr. Mygatt also reported on the remonstrance and investigation of the soft-coal nuisance in the city. He said that the committee had held conferences with the Public Service Corporation and it had promised to do all in its power to lessen the trouble. A letter was also presented from W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, who said that the matter had been turned over to the road foreman with instructions to the fireman to be very diligent while running their engines through Plainfield. For these reasons, Mr. Mygatt suggested that no further action be taken until it is learned whether conditions are bettered.

MRS. MARY J. HAWKINS SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Mary J. Hawkins, widow of the late Joseph B. Hawkins, died at her home on East Seventh street early yesterday afternoon from a complication of troubles. She was seventy-nine years of age, and had been ailing for some time.

Born at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Mrs. Hawkins moved to New Market when a girl, and later to this city, where she had a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Her husband died about fifteen years ago. Mrs. Hawkins has been for many years a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and was active in the various societies of the church and Sunday school. Her maiden name was Mosher, and she was one of eight children, three of whom,—two brothers and a sister, survive her. These are Henry Mosher, of Central avenue, Edward A. Mosher, of Newark, and Mrs. Edward A. Burdick, of Westerly, R. I. Mrs. Hawkins leaves a son, Joseph M. Hawkins, and a daughter, Miss Florence G. Hawkins.

The funeral will be from her late home on East Seventh street Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and from the Sunday school rooms of the Park Avenue Baptist church at 3 o'clock. Rev. A. E. Finn will officiate, assisted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., formerly pastor of the local church.

Plainfield A. C. Win.

The Plainfield A. C. defeated the Lincoln A. C., Saturday afternoon by the score of 12 to 4. Luthman struck out eighteen men and allowed only two hits. The feature of the game was McClinton's three base hits with three men on bases. The Plainfield A. C. will play the Dunellen F. C., Saturday at Dunellen.

ALUMINUM PRESS WORKS RESUMES OPERATIONS

The Aluminum Press Company's plant at Dunellen, which was recently purchased by R. Conklin, of New York, for $27,100, resumed operations this morning with a force of fifty skilled mechanics and they will work full time. Since the purchase of the plant the name has been changed and will hereafter be known as The Trinity Syndicate. P. W. Hall is the manager and Joseph White, of Hound Brook, who was formerly assistant superintendent here, has been made superintendent.

The news that the plant was to resume operations this morning spread rapidly, and was welcome to the many mechanics who have been idle for several months. It was taken as an indication that possibly other plants in the city who have been running on half time and with reduced force, would pick up and the old schedule would be again in force. It is understood that The Trinity Syndicate has received several orders which will keep the plant busy for some time to come.

TENNIS SEASON OPENS WITH MATCHES AT P. C. C.

Local tournament tennis started at the Country Club Saturday, when two rounds of matches in the men's singles were played on the club courts in the afternoon. There were thirteen teams entered in the play for the club trophies, and the winning pair and runners-up will receive cups. The courts were in good condition, and but few of the most of the matches in the first round were one-sided, the second round developed some god tennis.

Of especial interest was the match between T. M. Day and T. M. Day, third, who won by default in the first round, and P. W. Goddard, paired with Howard Carter. Goddard and Carter took the match after two hard-fought sets, when the scores ran to 9—7 and 8—6. Young Day, who is but sixteen years of age, played a heady game paired with his father, who is chairman of the club tennis committee. Both sets run to deuce and the boy's playing was applauded by an enthusiastic gallery. The matches:

First round—Harry J. Cochran and A. D. Beers beat H. S. Brown and Henry Brower, 6—1, 6—2; T. M. Day and T. M. Day, third, won from H. L. De Forest and Thatcher Brown by default; P. W. Goddard and Howard Carter beat Arthur Lovell and G. E. Cathcart, 6—2, 6—0; R. S. Rowland and Elliot Cutter beat H. H. Cox and C. Ames Brooks, 6—0, 6—0; W. L. and W. T. Glenney beat J. W. Merrihew and Charles A. Rink, 6—2, 6—3.

Second round—Cochran and Beers beat A. L. Otterson and G. S. Ring (bye), 6—1, 6—3; Goddard and Carter beat Day and Day, 9—7, 8—6; Rowland and Cutter beat W. L. and W. T. Glenney, 6—2, 8—6; H. B. Crane and Willard Wadsworth (bye), beat Wylie Brown and C. M. Crapo (bye), 6—2, 9—7.

Next Saturday afternoon the tournament will be concluded, when semi-final matches will be Cochran and Beers vs. Goddard and Carter, and Rowland and Cutter vs. Crane and Wadsworth. The finals will immediately follow these matches.

Y. M. C. A. NINE WINS IN ELEVENTH INNING

The Y. M. C. A. team started the season at Bound Brook Saturday afternoon by trimming the Laurel A. C. nine 3-1. It took eleven innings for the eagle of victory to decide where to light, and the local association broke the long tie by a happy combination of three singles in the eleventh session with the stick, caging up the eagle by shutting out the Bound Brook nine in their half of the inning.

The local nine played pennant ball although a young shaver at the start made the ball slippery and caused some errors. The local nine started the scoring in the first, when Will Schoonmaker scored the first run of the season. In the next session, the Laurels scored, another error when there was a man on bases, and a hit filling the bags. Scott hit the next batsman and forced the run. The local team used twelve players and all showed up well for the first game. Coswey, on third, was there in good style, taking thirteen chances with but a single misplay. Scott was replaced by Conover in the sixth, and the latter fanned six batsmen. Harbeson, at bat for the Laurels, weakened in the eleventh, but struck out thirteen of the Plainfieldites. Moynihan, wearing the big mitt, played a heady game.

GOLFERS BEGIN SEASON

Opening of the Country Club Course Made Under Auspicious Circumstances.

LINES IN GOOD CONDITION.

Play for the Spring Handicap Cups, Classes A and B, the Initial Competition.

Everything combined to make the opening of the active golf season at the Plainfield Country Club a success on Saturday. The course was in excellent condition, although the greens were a trifle slow. For this time of the year there was nothing to complain of, and a large field of players were out to enjoy their favorite sport. Not only did the course look fine, but the clubhouse, under the management of Dennis Hartz, the new steward, was made attractive for the reception of members and their friends. This service promises to be a feature during the season.

The initial competition on the course was play for the Spring Handicap cups, Classes A and B. This will take the place of the usual weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, of the past, and will continue until June 27, when special events will be arranged until play for the Fall Handicap cups begin in September.

In Class A, Dudley H. Barrows was low man with a net score of 76, while J. A. Lane and H. C. Munger were tied for second place with a 76. W. D. Riggs and C. C. Burke, Sr., were also tied with a net score of 78. In Class B, D. H. Rowland finished low with a 78, while H. B. Tyler and G. S. Clay finished second and third with net scores of 80 and 81, respectively. The following cards were returned for the day's play:

Class A-D. H. Barrows, 93, 14-75; J. A. Lane, 91, 15-76; H. C. Munger, 92, 16-76; W. D. Riggs, 96, 18-78; C. C. Burke, Sr., 93, 15-78; G. F. Schoonmaker, 89, 9-80; C. B. Morgan, 88, 7-81; H. G. Lapsley, 95, 14-81; S. H. Patterson, 98, 17-81.

LARGE GATHERING AT YOUNG MAN'S FUNERAL

Funeral services of the late Augustus French, Jr., were held from the home on Westfield avenue, Scotch Plains, yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. It was at first announced that the service would be private but there was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many young people with whom Mr. French was popular. Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body. The baseball team with which he was identified, was also represented.

Rev. W. R. Mulford, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, officiated at the house, while the Junior service in charge of Harvey B. Thorn, of this city, was conducted at the grave. The burial was in the family plot in the Baptist Cemetery.

The floral tributes from societies and friends were beautiful, and included four large sprays, one from the Juniors, another from the baseball team, another from the Clinton Avenue Club, of this city, and the fourth from the young men friends of Mr. French at Scotch Plains, with whom he had been associated since childhood. The pall-bearers were George Vanderbilt, Charles Eller and George Baldwin, representing the baseball team; Squier Reich, George Allen and Harry Flannery from Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.

CAMPBELL RE-ELECTED RECORDER.

DUNELLEN RECORDER.

David S. Campbell was re-elected recorder of the borough of Dunellen at the meeting of the Dunellen council last night. The vote of Mayor Harry Swackhamer, who made the appointment, was necessary to confirm the election which was held later in the meeting.

Political deals have kept Mayor Swackhamer from making this appointment before, for last night's meeting was the first full meeting of the council since the election. Councilman VanMiddlesworth was absent during the first part of the meeting, but came in late. The Mayor immediately made his appointment and put it to a vote. The vote was in favor, and Mr. Swackhamer's ballot was necessary to confirm the election. Campbell was chosen recorder at a meeting of the council several months ago, when the Mayor cast his vote to give him the needed majority, recognizing, believing the appointment to have been illegal. The Dunellen has been without a recorder since January 1.

Borough Officials to Attend.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, and Chief Woolston, of the borough fire department, have been formally invited by Mayor Fisk to attend the review and inspection of the city police and fire departments to be held on Mr. Fisk's lawn Saturday afternoon.

CLINTON AVENUES WIN FROM JUNIORS' NINE, 4-1

The Clinton Avenues won from the Junior O. U. A. M. team on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon by a score of 4-1. "Cliff" Randolph did the business, and was a puzzle for the lodgemen throughout the nine innings. Banks and Roester were the only two batsmen who could straighten the bends for hits, and a dozen Juniors struck out. The West End nine bit Ora Dodge's curves safely eight times, "Cliff" Randolph also helping each getting two hits. Dodge fanned but one Clinton Avenue batsman.

Schott scored the first run for the Clinton Avenues in the second inning and Glass single scored Randolph in the fifth. Hits by Schott and Randolph enabled Emery to come home in the sixth inning, and he scored again in the eighth on a couple of errors. The only run made by the Juniors came in the seventh, when Leslie Dodge crossed the plate. The summaries:

CONSUMERS' COAL CO. GETS SCHOOL CONTRACT

The contract for supplying 600 tons of coal to the various city schools was awarded by the Consumers' Coal Company at the meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education held at the High School last night. The firms bid was $3,233.30, the lowest of four bids submitted for the contract.

A discussion as to the possibility of having more than one direct wire telephone installed in the lines at some of the buildings was not acted upon. The Board has been receiving bills for so many excess calls that their monthly message limit is quickly exhausted. With a party line, this limit means but an average of two calls a day, but a direct wire line, while the tolls are more expensive, would give 800 calls a year, a number exceeding the present calls. The work of the school physician's office has brought the telephones into more use, and it is probable that direct lines will be installed.

The custodian of schools' report showed a balance of $28,532.42 on hand April 30, and the tax collected represents 98 per cent of the school money received during the final month. The report of the medical inspectors, Dr. T. H. Tomlinson and Dr. A. F. Van-Horn, showed that during April twenty-pupils were examined at the various schools. Those present at the meeting were President Leander N. Lovell, Messrs. Cave, Taylor and Woodhull, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson and Principal Ira W. Travell.

DUMONT SEEKS REDRESS

POLICE TO APPREHEND THEM.

Aggrieved Husband's Action Prompted by Desire to Secure Possession of His Child.

Oliver P. Dumont, husband of Mrs. Carrie Dumont, whose disappearance from the city Friday afternoon was simultaneous with that of Louis Kelly, a driver in the fire department, visited police headquarters this morning and swore out a warrant for the arrest of the pair. A serious charge is specified in the complaint and Chief Kiely announced that immediate steps would be taken to apprehend the erring wife and deserting husband. The police are in possession of facts that lead them to believe that the arrests will be made within a short time.

In speaking of the affair, Dumont, who is a motorman on a local trolley line and who has the full confidence of all his fellow-employes, stated that his work calls him out at 6 o'clock in the afternoon and that he is at home but very little of the time. He knew, he said, that his wife and Kelly were acquainted and that the latter occasionally called at the house but he had no idea that their friendship had gone so far. Mrs. Dumont's disappearance was as big a surprise to him as anyone and it was not until late Saturday that he fully realized that she had abandoned her home. His action in preferring a complaint, he said, was more for the purpose of getting back his child, who was taken away by the wife, than anything else.

It was reported from various sources today that Kelly and Mrs. Dumont had gone to Atlantic City but the police have no reliable information to this effect. While they are working on the case whereabouts has not been made public. Another story current on the streets yesterday had it that Kelly and Dumont had met in Newark and a shooting had followed but this had its origin in somebody's fervid imagination.

LEAP YEAR FEATURES IN HIGH SCHOOL MAY DANCE.

A May dance, into which were introduced many leap-year features, was held at the Plainfield High School auditorium Saturday evening under the auspices of the Girl's Athletic Association of the school. There were about seventy-five couples on the floor, and the card included four-teen dances. Music was furnished by Miss Mabel Maxson, pianist, and Arthur Mosher, violinist.

The dance was arranged entirely by the girls of the school, and each invited her "one best bet" and arranged the order card for the dances. In many cases, the girls sent the flowers, which were worn by their partners; the dance began later than scheduled, because, with girls as escorts, the couples lost time on account of the shower.

A "Paul Jones" was the feature of the evening's card. It was managed by Miss M. Elizabeth Pound, and proved the jolliest of the dances. A barn dance also featured, and the last dance of the card was called a "leap year dance," where the girls led their partners. The committee in charge of the affair included Miss Esther Crampton, Miss M. Elizabeth Pound, Miss Bessie Alpaugh, Miss Barbara Felming and Miss Eleanor Van Nest. Those who were assisted in receiving by Miss Katherine Ball and Principal Ira W. Travell.

ON CHRIST'S SUFFERING

Dr. Herring Speaks of His Persecution in Fifth Sermon of Special Series.

IT SHOWED WHAT SIN IS.

The fifth discourse in the series on "The Apostles Creed," was given by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night, his theme being "Suffered under Pontius Pilate," in which he brought out the important fact that notwithstanding that Christ was sinless and perfect "He suffered." Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"Last Sunday we were concerned with the unique features of our Lord's life. There were three unique features in that earthly life. First: The birth of our Lord was not the production of a new personality, but the entrance of the Son of God into earthly conditions of life. Second-ly: The earthly life of our Lord was as the life of no other man, it was sinless and sinless from the start. Lastly: In our Lord's earthly life humanity was seen in its perfection. We have come today to that part of the Creed which declares to us this fact that sinless and perfect as He was 'He suffered.'

"What a revelation of the sin of the world.—"He suffered." He who was the ideal of men, for no other man will ever be like Him or will he like Him, in sinlessness and the perfection of His humanity.

"One practical result of the sufferings of Christ therefore is this that they show us what sin really is. We judge a thing by its results, a stick of dynamite may be innocent looking. We don't judge of it by its innocent appearance but by the effect it produces when exploded. Sin crucified Christ, it would crucify Him today. I have read of a father who was a drunkard. His one friend was his son who sacrificed everything to save his father. One night the drunken father returned home and in anger felled his son to the ground with a blow. He thought he had killed him, then in an instant the fearfulness of his sin struck home and he hated his sin. Think of the earthly life of our Lord.—think of what that life must have been when the world moved and more to receive Him homage. You study His life and realize He was a man but far more than a man. You confess with the Centurion, 'Truly this was the Son of God.' Then think, think, think of the awfulness of the sin of the men that crucified Him. The Cross was not the price paid to the Devil for souls. It was not to transform the hate of God into love. There is a depth to the atonement that we do not perfectly fathom, but it does mean this, the malignity of sin. Think of all the beauty and holiness of that character and then read, 'He suffered' at the hands of men.

"Some one has written a book called 'The Happy Christ.' The writer endeavors to show that happiness was a distinctive mark of Jesus. 'Jesus was happy.' People therefore liked to be near Him. His whole idea was to make everybody happy. We are told twice of His tears but His smiles were too frequent for recording.' We fear the author has been trusting too much to his imagination, for the distinctive note in the life of Jesus is suffering and suffering because of the world's sin. He possessed joy and peace but it was in the midst of great sorrow.

"Our Lord's sufferings were caused by those who were selfishly indifferent to Him as well as by those who violently opposed and persecuted Him.

"The Creed has it 'Suffered under Pontius Pilate.' This clause stands out in great prominence, our Lord suffered under a man who let his political ambitions stand in the way of his principles. Pilate is pilloried in the Creed for not standing up for his convictions. He believed Jesus innocent, but his political job might have been endangered so he delivered Christ over into the hands of His persecutors, and mark you the men active in the crucifixion were the Sadducees, the Liberals, and not the narrow minded, bigoted rulers. Think it over. There is wonderful suggestiveness in this part of the Creed. Suffered under Pontius Pilate, the politician, who cared more for politics than he cared for truth and righteousness. You remember it was Pilate who sneeringly remarked, 'What is Truth?' Truth was not his ideal. Policy was. If Pilate had been a man such as Cornelius he would have said, 'I'll know more of the man Jesus Christ.' Why was Pilate not impressed as the Centurion was,—as Christ upon the Cross? Think of being in the presence of that personality and delivering Him over to His persecutors.

"A man does not believe Christ because his prejudice or his indifference prevents his making an honest study of that life.

"This part of the Creed reveals this truth that Christ has hallowed every condition in our lives. He was dead, buried, and descended into Hell. Put in the place of the word 'hell' Hades or 'the realm of departed spirits.' While the body of our Lord was in the tomb, His soul was in the realm of departed spirits.

"Says Westcott, 'He hallowed every condition of human existence. We cannot be where He has not been. He bore our nature as living. He bore our nature as dead.'

"He touches the sorrow of every life. He sympathizes because 'He suffered.' Some one has said, 'there are those to whom work is one half of human life and suffering the other half.' They are as their Master 'acquainted with grief.' They hate great ideals, but do not possess vitality sufficient to carry out these ideals, they are earth's suffering ones, but there is great consolation in the thought that 'he suffered' and therefore understands.

"It is in the very sufferings of our Lord that He conquers. You remember the words of Jean Paul Richter, 'with His pierced hands He has lifted the gates of empires off their hinges.' Yes, His throne was a cross, His sceptre a rod, his enemies placed in His hand when they would dishonor Him, and His crown of thorns, yet this is the Man of whom Emerson spoke when he said, 'He has not written His name in human history but has ploughed it in.' Yes, ploughed it in by His suffering, death, and resurrection.

"We have been marking the gradual descent of our Lord. We have brought Him in our thought from the throne to the depths. Let us ask ourselves, why? Because of sin. As we think of this descent does not the malignity of the world's sin impress us? Does not the love of Christ attract us to live the Christ life?"

GEORGE FISK GRAVES WEDS MISS TYRRELL.

Miss Mildred Tyrrell, daughter of Mrs. Julia E. Tyrrell, of East Fifth street, and George Fisk Graves, son of Mrs. Ellen A. Graves, of Liberty street, were married Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a company of sixty relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine and her bouquet was of white carnations. The couple was unattended. A pleasing feature of the affair was the singing of the "Bridal Chorus," Lohengrin, by Miss Etta Raybert, soprano, accompanied on the piano by Miss Mary Graves, sister of the groom. Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper was served. After a bridal trip the couple will reside on East Fifth street. The bride received a large number of gifts from relatives and friends. The groom is employed in this city by the Standard Oil Company, and both he and his wife have a host of friends.

Raho Rahs Take Double Header.

The Rah Rah Club nine took two games from the Third Ward Social Club on a West End diamond Saturday afternoon. The first was captured by the score of 8-4 and the second game score was 4-1. Kyle and McAfee were the battery for the Rah Rahs, and Kely and Wilson were the points for the Third Ward nine. James Mahoney starred for the Third Wards, making two three-baggers in the first game and the home run which formed his nine's only score in the second. Pierson and Caulfield, of the Rah Rahs were effective in the field.

First Y. W. C. A. Outing.

About a dozen members of the Y. W. C. A. went to the notch at Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon on the first of the summer's outings of the association. With the party were Miss Margaret E. Mosher and Miss Amy Tapping, the secretaries. A fire was lighted near the notch and coffee brewed in the woods. The party brought home a lot of dogwood and wild flowers. Another tramp is being arranged for next Saturday afternoon.

Agnostic.

The term "agnostic" was invented by Professor Huxley about 1885 to indicate the mental attitude of those who withhold their assent to whatever is incapable of proof. In regard to the divine existence, miracles and revelations, agnostics neither dogmatically affirm nor deny, but simply say "Agnosco" (I do not know; they are incapable of proof).

CYCLE CLUB HOLDS SEASON'S FIRST RUN

The season's first run of the Plainfield Cycling Club, organized about two weeks ago by Jack Horner, of Somerset street, was held yesterday, when a party of twenty-one members wheeled to Duke's Farm at Somerville. Meetings are to be held weekly, and plans are being made for a road race to be held Decoration Day. Various hill climbing and coasting contests are to be arranged for the near future.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. VanWinkle and has a large circle of friends here. Mr. Tice is employed by the Public Service Corporation as an electrician.

MAIN LINE CARS COLLIDE

PLAINFIELDERS IN THE LIST.

Accident Charged to Motorman Who Claims Drunken Men on Platform Interfered With Him.

Nine persons were injured in a trolley car collision on the Main Line of the Public Service at Cranford just west of the Rahway river bridge, at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, when two cars, going in opposite directions, crashed together on the single track which crosses over the structure.

The force of the contact threw the passengers on the eastbound car, which was heavily loaded with shoppers bound for Elizabeth and Newark, to the front end of the car with the result that several men and women were injured by others falling upon them. The front ends of both cars were wrecked.

Alvah Waldron, of this city, motorman of the westbound car, jumped and escaped injury. None of the passengers in his car were hurt. All of the injured were in the eastbound car.

Following is a list of the injured:

Reinhard Lanker, Huntington, Pa.; knee and shoulder hurt.

Samuel Hall, Roselle Park; shoulder and back hurt.

Mrs. Charles Nathan, Irvington; leg hurt and body bruised.

Mrs. Daniel Foote, South avenue, Cranford, left leg and back injured.

B. F. Van Cleef, Plainfield, bruised about body and ankle wrenched.

Miss Lucy Cold, Monroe avenue, Kenilworth; leg and arm injured.

William Badesch, of Elizabeth, was the motorman of the eastbound car and Henry D. Hassinger, of Newark, was the conductor. He was busy collecting fares at the time of the accident, as the car had just left Cranford. Motorman Badesch should have brought his car to a stop before crossing the bridge. He attempted to do so and saw the westbound car as he started across. He was interfered with by two drunken men who were on the front platform and, the motorman had just pushed them inside the car and had turned to put on all brakes when the crash came. The men were ejected by flying glass and his shoulder wrenched. According to rule, the westbound car has the right of way over the bridge. Motorman Badesch knew this and attempted to stop the car. Owing to a slippery rail and to the interference of the two men he was unable to do so.

All of the injured got away from the scene of the accident in other cars. They were first taken to the trolley power-house near at hand, and physicians were summoned to care for Messrs. Meuleck, Laner and Schindler and Mrs. Foote. Probably all will recover.

Alexander Meuleck was the most seriously injured. The physicians were late in arriving and did not reach the trolley power-house until two hours after the accident happened, owing to the fact that no doctor could be reached by telephone in the time.

Alexander Wolfe, of Newark, formerly of this city, and George Penelo, of West Front street, were among the passengers on the westbound car who were badly shaken up but not hurt. Muir had a suit case cut to pieces by flying glass. Fred Thompson, of this city, was conductor of the westbound car.

Inspector Hugh Higgins reached the scene of the accident on the first car up and immediately took charge. He set to work clearing the tracks before the arrival of the wrecking crew and had the schedule resumed inside of half an hour.

"Phil" Smith Attains His Majority.

In honor of the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday, a dinner was given Saturday night to Philip Smith, son of Judge and Mrs. W. E. Smith, at his home, Brookside Farm, South Plainfield. Covers were laid for twelve, the affair being intended for the members of the family. There were four generations present. Interesting features were a birthday cake which was baked by Mr. Smith's grandmother, who is in her ninetieth year, and the presence of Mr. Smith's nephew, Wilbur Dorland, of Larchmont, N. Y., who is two years his junior, who was there to congratulate him on the occasion. Another feature was the reading of an original poem by Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, dedicated to Mr. Smith in honor of the occasion.

Borough Pupils Plan Dance.

Invitations will soon be sent out for a reception and dance to be given by the junior class of the North Plainfield High School to the members of the senior class. The dance will be held at Truell Hall Friday evening, May 29. The committee in charge of the affair consists of William Herrman, Miss Marguerite Lee, Miss Gertrude Berkhan and Miss Florence Fowler.

CHARMING MUSICALE GIVEN BY KING'S DAUGHTERS

Under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters, a charming musicale was given at the Casino, Saturday afternoon, the program being arranged by Joseph McIntyre, pianist. The affair attracted a large audience of musiclovers and all the artists were given a cordial reception, and were obliged to respond to encores.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre, who favored the audience with delightful piano duets, the assisting artists were Clifford Cairns, baritone; Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; Harry Dorr, violinist, and Frederick C. Honson, reader. The program was of unusual merit and so varied that everyone was pleased. Miss Case was in exceptional voice and sustained her reputation as a soloist, while Clifford Cairns, who is somewhat of a stranger here in musical circles, made many friends by his excellent work.

Mr. Hanson charmed all by his recitations, giving some of James Whitcomb Riley's best poems. His work was true to the lines and hearty applause greeted him on every occasion. His selections, all of Riley, delighted the audience. His selections were of the sort that pleased and his renditions left nothing to be desired. As for Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre their work was of a high character, and as an accompanist Mr. McIntyre was perfect in every detail.

The program:

Overture, "Ruy Blas," Mendelssohn, two pianos, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre; baritone solo, "The Sands O'Dee," Clay, Clifford Cairns; reading from James Whitcomb Riley, "Knee Deep in June," "When de Folks is Gone," "Ike Walton's Prayer," "When Angelina Johnson Comes Stepping Down de Line," Frederick B. Honson; soprano solo, Aria from "Carmen," Bizet; "Annie Laurie," Miss Lucretia Case; violin solo, "Romance," Svendson, Harry Dorr; baritone solo, "A Border Ballad," Cowen; "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes," Mr. Cairns; readings from James Whitcomb Riley, "Old Aunt Mary's," "Hiram Calkins," "The Old Coast," "When My Ships Come Sailing Home," Mr. Hanson; soprano solo, "The Minstrel," with violin obligato, Hildach; "The Angel's Serenade," Miss Case and Harry Dorr; "Marche Orientale," Liszt, two pianos, Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre.

Animal Oddities.

A very good horse can in ten hours go sixty miles if the vehicle is light and the turnpike good.

The golden eagle is a great coward, and a tiny fish with the courage to attack it can frighten it almost to death.

A neat little knife is attached to the tail of the glowworm, and it is used to keep clear that part of the insect from which the light gleams so as to make it more distinctly visible.

The Caspian's Overflow.

Twice a year the Caspian overflows and strands millions of fish—sufficient to feed the whole of central Asia if advantage could be taken of these immense resources given by nature.

CARING FOR THE TREES

TOO MANY SHADE TREES.

Speaker Advocates Thinning Out the Trees for City's Health Betterment—Diseases of Trees.

Miles Roberts, chairman of the city tree commission, gave a short talk on trees before the pupils of the Plainfield High School in connection with the opening exercises at the school Friday morning. Introduced by Principal Ira W. Travell, who referred to the good work he has been doing in caring for the city's shade trees and keeping them free from disease, Mr. Roberts spoke as follows:

"In planning the setting out or care of trees, one usually has in mind some individual tree, or row or group of trees, of especial beauty or attractiveness. It may be a sugar maple with its great round dome-like top reaching to within twelve or fifteen feet of the ground and its huge arm-like limbs extending out perhaps twenty-five or thirty feet from the trunk all the way around; or it may be a great red oak, equally as large and symmetrical, under which we gathered acorns when little children and of them made tiny cups and saucers; or perhaps a solitary elm, with its stately form and great spreading branches; or a white oak, with its gnarled limbs, its slaty gray bark and dark green foliage, turning to a brilliant gold and crimson in the autumn. It may be some of the pin oaks in this immediate neighborhood, with their dropping lower branches and short stubby thongs from which the tree derives its name,—one of the prettiest of trees, especially for the lawn, where its small deeply-cut leaves and its perfect symmetry of form is sure to make it a favorite; or it may be one of our native sweet gums, with its star-shaped leaves and corrugated bark-covered branches; or perhaps the Gingko, or maiden-hair tree, with its slender form and perfect fan-shaped leaves.

Whatever tree it is, it is almost invariably one that stands in the open, or, if a row or group of trees, it is one in which each individual tree has plenty of sunlight, and neighboring trees do not crowd its top or rob its roots of nourishment and moisture.

A tree needs food, air, water and sunlight, and if any one of these is denied it, especially its top, the tree is dwarfed or warped accordingly. If we want beautiful trees and the greatest amount of comfort from them, we should develop the individual trees and then the aggregate result will be an orderly body of regiment in which each of the soldiers is a well-developed and well-trained man.

In setting out trees therefore, they should be placed such a distance apart that the branches of the one will not touch those of another at least for many years to come. The Board of Education has wisely recognized this principle in planting the pin oaks in front of this building, although they are perhaps farther apart than we would place them on a residence street. We see just the opposite of this in many of our streets, where the trees are so crowded that they have become unhapely; many branches have been suppressed and died for want of sunlight, and are continually dropping off and littering our lawns and park. Of course most of the trees in the park grew there naturally, but if half of those trees had been cut out a good many years ago, those remaining would have branched lower and formed great spreading tops—each an object of beauty—and would have afforded much better shade than the trees now there, from which cords of dead wood have been cut.

Right here let me call your attention to the way those branches have been cut off. If you will notice when you go out, you will see that they are all sawed off close to the trunk, so that it is almost as smooth as though it had been turned over a lathe. The reason for this is that a tree, unlike an animal, grows only from the outside. If therefore a branch is cut off close to the trunk, the tree will grow out over the wound and cover it up entirely with live wood. The heart or interior of the tree is dead wood, and is preserved from decay only so long as moisture and air is kept from it; but if a large branch is cut off a little distance from the trunk it will take many years for the tree to grow out over it.

Meanwhile the interior dead wood of the branch is exposed to the elements, and the result that it soon decays and thus leaves a hole which increases in size until the entire interior of the tree is hollow. There is one such hollow beech in this city park. These holes of course make homes for squirrels and owls, but we are not setting out trees for them. The same thing sometimes occurs when one or more chestnut trees grow up from the same stump of a tree that has been cut down. The young trees grow partially around the stump and when it decays it leaves an opening into the heart of the young trees and the decay in them forms a hollow which extends upwards until in some cases it is large enough so that a child or even an adult can stand within the tree. The proper treatment in cases of such holes or hollows is to cut out all the soft decayed wood and after treating the cavity to kill any fungus germs that may remain, fill it up with cement, as a dentist would a cavity in a tooth. If it is done properly, the new wood will grow out over the cement and completely envelop it.

As you know, trees, like everything else, have certain enemies that are continually preying on them and sapping their life. As in the human family, these diseases and enemies seem to increase with civilization. The reason possibly is that our manner of life and the crowding of large numbers into small areas upset the balances of Nature.

The worst enemy of our trees in Plainfield is at present the elm leaf beetle. If you will look up into the trees a little later and study the leaves of some of the elm trees, you will see that they are perforated with small holes like shot holes. This is the work of the adult beetle. The eggs are soon attached to the under side of the leaves, and when they are hatched the real harm begins. The young eat the leaves until nothing but the veins or framework of the leaves remain, and then they drop off in mid-summer and the trees are almost bare by August, when they should be clothed in green. The only thing to protect them from this pest is to spray the under side of the leaves with an insect poison, for if the elms are entirely stripped of their foliage for two years in succession the trees cannot survive this protracted cutting off of their breathing power. This is a comparatively recent pest and it will have to be conquered or kept in check, or we shall have no elms left. There are also the cotton maple scale, the oyster shell scale and a host of other pests which can only be subdued by constant vigilance and aggressive warfare.

The trees have done a great deal in the building up of Plainfield by attracting residents here but they are all the time growing larger and in some of the older sections they shut the sunlight out so completely that the houses and grounds have become damp and undesirable for residence, and will continue to retrograde unless some are thinned out. People dislike to cut down shade trees, but it is absolutely necessary that we thin out some of them if we would preserve the beauty and healthfulness of the city."

N.G.-OF N.J. TROPHY MATCH SET FOR JULY

Inspector-General of Rifle Practice Bird W. Spencer has recommended a regimental team match to be held at Sea Girt, July 3 and 4, to be known as the New Jersey National Guard Trophy Match, and the plan has been approved by Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall. The details of the shoot provide that preliminary practise shall be held July 3, which will be optional with the various organizations. The match will be held July 4 at 10 o'clock A. M., and the match will consist of teams of six men from each of the five infantry regiments, from each of the troops, from each of the batteries and from the Signal Corps and the Naval Reserve.

The distances and order of firing will be the same as those in the national match for 1907, as follows: 200 yards rapid fire, 10 shots; 200 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; 600 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; 800 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; one skirmish run, 20 shots; 1,000 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots. The ammunition will be issued on the range by the State, seventy-eight rounds per man for six men and four alternates from each organization, for preliminary practise, and seventy-eight rounds per man for six men from each organization for the match.

Scores which would qualify members of the National Guard as marksmen, sharpshooters or experts, made in the preliminary practise or the match, will be allowed. The entrance fee will be $12 per team. One transportation from home station to Sea Girt and return will be issued by the State on the basis of ten men and one captain, eleven in all, from each organization.

There will be six prizes, the first to be the New Jersey National Guard Trophy and $30 and the others as follows:

Second prize, $25; third prize, $20; fourth prize, $15; fifth prize, $10, and sixth prize, $5.

The match will be conducted under the auspices of the New Jersey State Rifle Association and Inspector-General Spencer will be the executive officer. It is intended that this match will be the means of developing candidates to be selected to compete for places on the State team in the national match of 1908.

Y. W. C. A. GYM EXHIBIT

GIRLS PLAY BASKETBALL.

Miss Margaret E. Mosher, the Physical Director, Leads Pretty Swedish Drills to Piano Music.

It was "ladies' night" at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday, for the physical department of the Y. W. C. A. gave an exhibition in the gymnasium, and the galleries were filled to the fullest seating capacity to witness the drills and floor work, led by Miss Margaret E. Mosher, physical director of the women's association. The numbers of the program were selected with a view of giving outsiders a clear idea of just what work is being done in the East Front street gymnasium, and the various drills showed careful training by the classes which took part. At the conclusion of the regular program, the North Plainfield High School girls' class played a lively basketball game with the Tuesday Night Class, and won out handily by a score of 20-14.

All the seats in the balcony were filled by visitors when all the members of the classes marched out on the floor, led by Miss Mosher and went through a series of marching drills to the music of the piano, where Miss Florence Wyckoff presided at all the drills. Following this the junior department came on the floor and went through a dumb-bell drill and the Clap Dance to music. Twelve of the younger girls took part in this, and the dance was a typical Swedish number. More Swedish gymnastics followed. More squad of young women next went through an elaborate series of steps and various movements known as Swedish frolics.

A squad of well trained women gymnasts went through some intricate movements on the flying rings. The work of Miss Margaret McCutcheon was especially commendable on the rings, and the "stunts" she did were appreciated by sustained applause. Some Swedish dance steps were prettily executed by the North Plainfield High School girls' class as the next number, and a squad of fifteen of the school girls also went through a wand drill. A dozen members of the Tuesday evening class next came on the floor for a dumb bell drill, executed to music as were the other drills of the program.

A relay race with a basketball was a feature of the closing number of the program. In this there were six young women on divided into two teams, one captained by Miss Lillian Fedderman and the other by Miss Harriet Madison. The members of each team lined up the length of the floor and passed the basketball from one to the other. The player on the end then ran to the basket at the head of the line and shot a goal, after which she took her place in front of the line and the passing and shooting was repeated until each member of the team had shot a basket. Miss Madison's team were the victors.

The North Plainfield girls outplayed their opponents in the basketball game, for the goals scoring class was only able to score two baskets while the school girls caged the ball ten times. At the end of the first half, the score was 14-4 in favor of the boroughites. Neither team scored from the foul line. The line-ups:

N. P. H. S.—Miss Marjorie Cooley and Miss Anna Daly, forwards; Miss Margery Hart, centre; Miss Helen George and Miss Ida Englehart, guards.

Tuesday Evening Five—Miss Irene Finn and Miss Myrtle Fedderman, forwards; Miss Ruth Wean, centre; the Misses Olive De Laney, Elizabeth Decker and Lena Becker, guards.

Descriptions in Prose and Verse.

Pass around slips of paper to each player. Each one writes his or her own name at the top of the paper and folds it over to conceal the name. These slips are olected and redistributed, with instructions to compose and write a rhyme or verse about the person whose name is on the paper—of course without looking or knowing whose it is. The apropos or malapropos hits make lots of fun. Then distribute slips to the young men only, each having the name of some girl present written at the top and folded over to keep it secret. The young men are to describe the girls from memory. Not knowing whom they are to portray, the naturally produce glaring misfits which are extremely laughable.

Leap Year Worries.

Tom—Oh, Miss Fainthearf keeps me guessing. She hasn't proposed yet.

Jack—But you told me you didn't intend to marry her.

Tom—And I don't. But, after all the time I wasted on her, I think she might at least give me a chance to refuse her.—Chicago News.

MOTORMAN'S WIFE GONE; A FIREMAN DISAPPEARS

Louis Kelly's Departure as Sudden and Unexpected as That of Mrs. Ira Dumont.

KELLY'S WIFE IS PENNILESS.

Mrs. Dumont Decamps With Hubby's Coin and Their Child—Kelly Leaves Wife and Child Behind.

Louis Kelly, who has been employed as a driver in the fire department during the past two years, and recently stationed at No. 3 house on West Fourth street, left the city Friday afternoon, and at the time, it is said, he was accompanied by Mrs. Ira Dumont, wife of a motorman on the Fourth street trolley. In his departure from the city, Kelly left his wife and a young child, while Mrs. Dumont, it is said, took her young child with her. As yet Mrs. Kelly has made no complaint against her husband or had a warrant issued for his arrest, although she has declared her intention of doing so.

According to the story of persons who were apparently acquainted with the movements of the pair, Kelly is said to have told his wife Friday noon that he had a day off and had planned to take her out riding. The couple came down town from their home on West Fourth street, and Mrs. Kelly remained with a friend, while her husband supposedly went after the rig.

Considerable time elapsed and Kelly not returning the wife became suspicious and decided to return home. When she reached home, it is said, the neighbors informed her that her husband had been there, obtained a dress suit case and had gone away.

In the meantime, it is said, Dumont went home to dinner and not finding his wife there decided to investigate. He went to fire headquarters and inquired for Kelly. There he was told that the fireman had tendered his resignation to Chief Doane two weeks ago and was not on duty at the time.

Those who talked with Dumont seemed convinced that he had no doubt but that his wife had disappeared with their child. Later, it was said, he had decided to break up housekeeping at once and sell all his household goods. He is heartbroken over the affair. Mrs. Dumont was Miss Carrie Wyhuskey, daughter of Charles Wyhuskey, of Dunellen, and is considered an attractive young woman.

Kelly was formerly employed as a motorman on the trolley, resigning to take a position as driver in the fire department. He is reported to have remarked frequently that he intended leaving the department, and it was said that he told his wife that he had been granted a month's vacation, after which he said that he had changed his mind and would ride his job. It is also said that he left a number of unpaid bills about the city, and that he received his wages in full from the city before going away.

It was said this morning that Mrs. Dumont had taken her husband's wages with her, in fact, all the money in the house, and it is said that she had been planning the disappearance for several days.

Considerable sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Kelly and her child. They have been left penniless and with no means of a livelihood." Before her marriage Mrs. Kelly's name was Miss Mowinkel, of North Plainfield.

Drama in an Omnibus.

In a motor omnibus in the Boulevard des Italiens, Paris, one day last winter a curious little drama was enacted.

A well dressed man wearing a silk hat and a coat trimmed with astrakhan entered the omnibus and was immediately followed by a less well dressed individual who sat opposite him and stare hard. After a little of this the first man seemed embarrassed and rose to leave, but the other jumped up and said: "Stay, is not your name Etienne Sagnard, aged thirty-eight, who was sentenced three years ago by the Rhone assizes to ten years' penal servitude, and have you not recently escaped from the penal settlement in French Guiana?"

The other man turned very white and uttered a protest. But his interrogator produced his card. "Inspector Mornet of the criminal investigation department," and a pair of handcuffs, and the two got out together.

SI A DAY FINE TO STOP BOYS "PLAYING HOOKEY"

On complaint of the truant officer, Miss Adelaide Ball, three small boys, George Blount, George Saydam and John Driscoll, were arraigned in the city court, Saturday, as habitual "hooker" players. When they lined up in front of Judge Shiel the parents were with them and after Judge Runyon had heard the testimony he addressed his remarks to the latter. He declared that he would hold them responsible for the future appearance of the boys at school and that punishment would fall on the parents at a repitition of the charge.

"This remaining away from school must be stopped," was the judge's comment, "and the best plan to bring it about is to let the punishment fall on the fathers and mothers. I want the parents here now to understand that if these boys are complained against any more I will fine them a dollar for every day they are marked absent."

The magistrate recently made the same disposition of a couple of truant cases and the plan of a dollar fine for each day seems to have effected a radical cure.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB CONDUCTS A MUSICALE

Under the auspices of the Current Evente Club, of North Plainfield, a charming musicale was given Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Otis E. Hovey, of West Seventh street. During the past year the club has been studying Scandinavian composers and this being the last meeting of the club for the season, it was planned to enjoy an hour of Scandinavian music by Joseph McIntyre.

The numbers were selected from among the best of Scandinavian composers and they were enthusiastically received by the members of the club. Mr. McIntyre's interpretation of the several compositions was charming and the rendition was perfect in every detail. Mrs. McIntyre gave the first number, a piano duet, in a delightful manner. Another feature of the musicale was the vocal selections by Mr. McIntyre. He gave four numbers and his singing was very pleasing. The assisting artist in this floor exhibition, whose work was also greatly enjoyed.

The program follows:

"Peer Gynt," suite, Grieg, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre. "Romance," for violin, Grade, Harry Dorr; songs, "The Bull," Sindung; "A Serdling Song," Soderman, Mr. McIntyre; "Norwegian Melody," for violin, Kjerulf, Mr. Dorr; songs, "The Old Song," Hauge; "The Swan," Grieg, Mr. McIntyre; piano solo, "La Tristesse," (Finnish) Sibelius, Mr. McIntyre.

After the musicale a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served. The officers of the club are: President, Mrs. Samuel St. John McCutchen; vice-presidents, Mrs. A. E. Faber, jr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen; secretary, Mrs. H. P. Reynolds; treasurer, Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer.

REED ADVISES COUNCIL

THE TAX ASSESSOR'S MISTAKE.

Over Assessment by Dr. Cooley to Be Refunded by Him—G. A. R. May Lose Next Year's Appropriation.

The presence of Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed at the session of the borough fathers Friday night and his participation as legal advisor in the business of the meeting prevented illegal rulings by the Council in two instances and has saved much legal discussion as to the rights and privileges of the body. As a result, Tax Assessor J. H. Cooley will have to make good an over-assessment of $2.50, and the annual donation to the G. A. R. for Decoration Day observances may be diminished or cut off another year. Mr. Reed did not expect to go to the meeting with the idea of acting in official capacity, but gave his opinion freely as a borough official when called upon by Mayor Townsend.

In the matter of the over-assessment, Mr. Reed's advice was positive to the effect that the borough should not stand for the rebate of $2.50 made necessary by Dr. Cooley's statement that a borough tax-payer had been over-assessed. The case is that a borough woman was assessed too much for personal property. The rating was the same as last year, and Dr. Cooley has since learned that sickness has caused the necessity for selling considerable of the property, so that the high rating is unjust. The assessor brought this matter up, coming to the meeting for that express purpose. The woman taxpayer did not enter any protest within the legal time, but since then the matter has been brought to Dr. Cooley's notice. The matter was discussed by the Councilmen, and Mr. Reed was called upon for advice. He stated that in his opinion the assessment was certainly illegal, but as the time for protesting values to the borough had expired, Dr. Cooley should make up the difference, refunding the excess assessment. Mr. Reed pointed out that it was a matter which the borough could take no stand in because of precedent which might be established, and the Council ruled according to his advice.

Another legal point was raised when the communication from Captain W. C. Smith, of Winfield Scott Post was read, asking for the borough's appropriation of $25 to defray Memorial Day expenses. The appropriation was voted, but Mr. Reed said that it was only a partially legal measure, defended by a law now on the statute books, but rendered illegal by Paragraph 19 of Article 4, Section 7 of the State constitution. This forbids borough governments from voting money to any organizations or individuals.

When the Councilmen were about to vote on a request for a building permit, Mr. Reed interfered on the grounds that the buildings mentioned would be outside of the borough fire limits, stating that no action was necessary by the North Plainfield fathers in the case. The petition came from George W. Arndt, who asked for a frame building on Westervelt avenue, between Fairview and Jackson avenues. In the discussion of the petition before Mr. Reed's ruling, it developed that the Councilmen were opposed to granting it, because of the statement that the ground was too small to warrant the erection of so many houses without crowding. Aside from the Mayor and Mr. Reed, Councilmen Smith, Van Ardsdale, Waldron and Woolston were at the meeting.

Senator Ackerman Lectures.

A good-sized audience greeted State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman last Friday at the Y. M. C. A., when he lectured for the benefit of the local Christian Endeavor Union. He displayed over 100 beautifully colored slides of various lands and visiting by proxy remote places in many parts of the world. They included interesting scenes in Nassau, Trinidad, St. Kitts, Madeira, Lisbon, Syria, Java and Ceylon, as well as in China and Japan. The views were considered about the finest ever seen here and the audience thoroughly appreciated them.

Good Intentions Gone Wrong.

"Aren't you going home?" asked a fellow with a broken arm.

"Not for several days," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I'm going to give my family a chance to forget. You see mother and the girls have been trying to educate me to an appreciation of classical music. This afternoon I heard a terrible racket on the piano. So, being anxious to please, I half closed my eyes and said, 'Isn't it perfectly beautiful?'

"'Wasn't it all right?'

OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY

TAKES PLACE AT CASINO.

Reception and Luncheon—Address of Welcome by the President, Mrs. H. M. Maxson.

The Monday Afternoon Club has had many delightful anniversary occasions in the past, but perhaps none more successful than the celebration of its twentieth anniversary Thursday in the Casino. Believing that a literary club should be literary even in its diversions, there may have been a lurking thought in the minds of some that the luncheon to be announced was hardly worthy of a literary club numbering a score of years. Yesterday's programme successfully carried out, showed that the executive and entertainment committees were wise enough to keep their own counsel, human enough to enjoy a good luncheon and literary enough to have played in an admirable manner a couple of scenes from "The Merchant of Venice." This drama was a fitting termination to the past winter's club study of Venice. Even the afternoon sun, as it poured in on the Casino roof, was a pretty accompaniment to Portia's speech on Mercy. It dropped as the gentle rain from heaven upon the place beneath." The club members and guests were received in the reception rooms of the Casino by the president, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, and the vice-presidents, Mrs. James R. Joy and Mrs. Gates Willard.

The Casino Hall where the luncheon was served, was decorated with apple and cherry blossoms and the thirteen tables had for baskets of white sweet peas in the centre, the whole color scheme being green and white. The menu and programme were bound in a dainty leaflet with the insignia of the club on the cover. The table for the honored guests was on a raised platform, at which sat the president, Mrs. Maxson, Mrs. Henry H. Dawson, president of the State Federation, Miss Kenyon, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Isaac Miller, Mrs. Sterling, Mrs. J. M. Whitton, Mrs. Lowry, Mrs. S. St. J. McCutchen, president of Current Events Club, Mrs. Israel C. Pierson, president of Rasoras Club, Mrs. Tennant, president of Sesame Club and charter members, Mrs. Tiffany, Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Harmon.

The twelve other tables were presided over by Mesdames James R. Joy, Gates Willard, E. H. Hatch, M. Illman, L. C. Goodrich, D. M. Van Vliet, H. C. White, Leighton Calkins, W. H. Murray, E. S. Barrows, F. D. Warren and Miss Cahoone.

A very delightful luncheon was served by Wimley of Philadelphia, after which Mrs. Maxson gave the following address of welcome:

"Members, friends and guests of the Monday Afternoon Club, we gladly welcome you to our birthday party.

We are twenty years old today. Just out of our teens, and you know what that means to a young girl. It is not that we have felt particularly girlish, but now we begin to feel the dignity of our years.

Our club was organized, you know, for intellectual and social culture and we have tried to keep this in mind during all this time. We feel that it is a matter for congratulation that we have still enrolled eighteen of our charter members.

It may be interesting to look back for a moment, and see what we have accomplished in there twenty years. We have studied the lives and works of the great men and women of the past and the present. We have learned of the history and art of different countries and have discussed and settled questions that would have puzzled wiser heads than ours. The sciences have found a place in our plan of work and even as early as our second year, socialism occupied a large part of our year's work.

While we have not neglected our own country, we have wandered far afield. England, France, Holland, Spain, India and Iceland have been visited by us in our study, while we have paid brief visits to Russia, China and far Japan. Sometimes, a single city has held our attention for a whole year. Florence once gave us pleasure and profit for that length of time and for nearly all of the past year, we have basked in the sunlight of beautiful Venice.

The questions of every day life have, by no means, been forgotten, and problems of interest in home and state have supplied us with abundant interest.

We have, of course, left much undone and there are many things yet to be desired. The story of the coming years will reveal how much we may be able to accomplish.

Again, I welcome you all in the name of the Monday Afternoon Club.

Mrs. Henry H. Dawson then made pleasing address on the work of the State Federation. She claimed that the benefits of the Federation were for those clubs closely associated with it in their study of the subjects,—art, literature, civics, legislation, forestry, sanitation, pure food, libraries, education, reciprocity, civil service reform, industrial conditions of women and children and household economics. For illustration she contrasted the rivers with tides and the puddle that was self sufficient. "Rivers," she said, "bear the world's commerce in their flow, but the fate of the puddle is to dry up."

Mrs. Maxson in a few words expressive of appreciation for Miss Eliza E. Kenyon, the founder of the Monday Afternoon Club, presented her with a large bunch of American Beauty roses and the following resolutions adopted by the club at a previous meeting:

"Whereas, The Monday Afternoon Club of Plainfield, New Jersey, now completing its second decade of vigorous and useful existence, largely owes its inception, early development and later prosperity to the foresight, wisdom and gentle strength of character of Miss Eliza Elvira Kenyon, its founder, first president, and steadfast counselor; be it

"Resolved: That on this, the Twentieth Anniversary of the Organization, we, the members of the Monday Afternoon Club, do hereby with one accord testify our personal esteem for Miss Kenyon, and our appreciation of her work, by granting to her the Freedom of the Club, the highest honor in our gift, constituting her an active member for life, whereby she may invite her friends at will, without dues or other obligations, save to continue to our Association, and to participate freely in all its activities, intellectual, literary and social."

Miss Kenyon graciously responded, thanking the club for the honor done her while she was still able to enjoy its privileges. With pleasantry she referred to the mule famous in Grecian history, which after long service in bearing burdens of stone up the hills of the Acropolis was given his freedom. The first time after his gift of freedom, when he saw a team of mules drawing slabs of marble up the hill, he put himself by the side of the burden bearers, thinking he was lessening their labors. She said in conclusion the first use of her freedom would be when no toasts were to be given, to propose Rip Van Winkle's famous toast, "May you live long and prosper."

All the guests standing sang an anniversary song written by Mrs. Isaac L. Miller and sung at the 15th anniversary of the club.

The excerpts from "The Merchant of Venice" were charmingly given the stage setting, Venetian costumes and skilful rendering of the parts giving great pleasure to the enthusiastic audience. Mrs. Lemuel Serrell who took charge of the dramatics, made a charming Portia, being assisted by Mrs. George Stuart Ring as Nerissa in the first act, and she also took the part of Antonio in the fourth act. Mrs. William M. Wherry, in gown and wig, made a dignified ducal judge, even her good husband, Henry C. White in this scene was a loveable Bassanio. Mrs. Allen Cowperthwait an admirable Portia costumed at Doctor of Laws. Mrs. D. Mellor as testing Gratiano and Mrs. Harold Pender as Shylock impersonated the greedy, revengeful and baffled Jew as very few women could have done. Before and after the play the following musical programme was rendered assisted:

Duet, Hungarian Dances—Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, (Brahms), Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury, Miss Susan Corey: Duett, Overture—Die Schone Melusine, (Mendelssohn), Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard.

The committees in charge were: Entertainment—Mrs. Leighton Calkins, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. C. A. Marsh, Mrs. Cox, Miss Ethel Titsworth. Decorations—Mrs. F. D. Warren, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. Tomlinson, Mrs. Wallace, Keating—Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch, Mrs. Leighton Calkins.

J."

By placing the speaking likeness of a woman in a locket it can be shut up.—Chicago News.

EVENTFUL CAREER ENDS

WAS A RETIRED MINISTER.

Had an Active Life in the Episcopal Church—Was Bethlehem, Pa.'s "Angel of Mercy."

Rev. William Bryce Morrow, who retired from the active ministry in the Episcopal church six years ago, because of impaired health, died at his home in East Fifth street early Friday. He had been failing for a long time but had been able to be about as usual until three weeks ago. At that time he began to suffer from rheumatism and complications which resulted in death.

Rev. William Bryce Morrow was born at Manchester, England, February 13, 1839, the son of Bryce Morrow. He was educated at Harrow school and after two years of commercial life in London, during which he continued classical reading under a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, he came to the United States. He became acquainted with Bishop McIlvaine, of Ohio, and through his influence determined to enter the ministry. He graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New York, in 1863, among his classmates being Rt. Rev. Ozi Whitaker, Bishop of Pennsylvania.

In 1864, Mr. Morrow served as a chaplain, under the Christian Commission, to the sick and wounded soldiers on Blackwell's and David's Islands, New York. In 1875, Governor John F. Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, appointed Mr. Morrow chaplain, with rank of captain, of the Fourth Regiment, Infantry, Fifth brigade, Second division, National Guard of Pensylvania, the commission being for five years. His first charge was a temporary one at Trinity church, Newark, in 1863, where he officiated during the absence of Rev. Dr. J. C. Eccleston. After this he became assistant to Rev. Dr. A. Cleveland Coxe, of Calvary church, New York, and later assumed charge of the Church of the Reconciliation on East Thirtieth street. He resigned because of too great a tax on his health in mission work and went to Greenbush on the Hudson, N. Y., ministering there until 1867.

His succeeding restorships were at St. Stephen's church, Milburn, N. J.; Trinity church, Easton, Pa.; St. Paul's church, Peoria, Ill.; Reading Memorial church, Reading, Pa.; the Redeemer, Sayre, Pa.; thence to St. John's church, Carlisle, Pa., and lastly to St. James' church, Bristol, Pa., where he retired in 1900, because of failing health, coming to Plainfield immediately afterward.

Mr. Morrow was called to Trinity church, Easton, in 1875, when the parish's church edifice was in the hands of a sheriff on the foreclosure of a heavy mortgage. Being granted three months by the mortgagees, he left his parish and went among personal friends in New York and Philadelphia raising the necessary $20,000 within the given time and clearing the entire debt.

While Mr. Morrow's work as a clergyman won for him an enviable record in the Central Pennsylvania Diocese it remained for the smallpox epidemic in South Bethlehem, Pa., in the spring of 1882 to reveal that he was a man of undaunted principles and devotion to duty. When the loathsome disease was claiming scores of victims it became known that the rectorship of the Episcopal church in that city was vacant, and and at the call of Bishop M. A. De Wolfe Howe, Mr. Morrow volunteered to enter the infected district to minister to the sick and to bury the dead, and though he was liable to be stricken he devoted himself day and night to the sufferers, nearly all of the poorer class. When the scourge was finally removed, the clergyman was hailed everywhere as the "Angel of Mercy." To show their appreciation, the employes of the Bethlehem Iron Company and other grateful citizens of Bethlehem, where he had risked his life, arranged a public reception at which he was presented with a gold watch valued at $1,000. Previous to going to South Bethlehem he had been stationed at Reading, where he was canon of the Episcopal cathedral.

At the request of Robert Asa Packer, of railroad fame, Mr. Morrow went to Sayre, Pa., in 1882, the death of the former occurring soon afterward. A year following his demise, his immense property, then valued at $250,000, was placed in Mr. Morrow's hands by his surviving sister for the purpose of founding and conducting a general hospital. The rector accepted the task and successfully established what is now known as the Robert Packer hospital, of Sayre, at the present time one of the most important institutions of the kind in Central Pennsylvania. Mr. Morrow was its warden for the first five years.

In 1886, Mr. Morrow was a deputy to the General Convention of the Episcopal church in America and in the same year the Board of Trustees of St. Mary's school, Knoxville, Illinois, of which the three bishops of the Episcopal province of Illinois are ex-officio members, conferred on him the degree of Bachelor of Music, for services to the church in the science of sacred music.

In 1860 Mr. Morrow married Miss Elizabeth Wright, of Cincinnati, O., daughter of the late Robert Wright, an officer in the British army, who died in garrison at Hamilton, Ont. Her death occurred eight years ago. There were four sons and two daughters in the family, and but two survive, Miss Edith Morrow, of New York, and Ralph Leighton Morrow, of this city.

"ART EXHIBITION" FOR KINGS' DAUGHTERS BENEFIT

Mrs. H. G. Runkle, of West Eighth street, opened her home Thursday for a private view of the important art collection formed by the well-known amateur, A. A. Hokes, prior to its public exhibition and sale in New York city. The affair was given for the benefit of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp. All of the tickets were quickly disposed of and the City Union King's Daughters will receive a large sum in support of its work.

The collection of pictures, a choice one, included notable paintings by old and modern masters, rare Kakamonos belonging to an ancient dynasty and an exceptionally fine example of "Peasa Blow." The success of the exhibition of pictures was largely due to the work of George Wharton Edwards and T. Randolph Mercein, the artists, who posed them. During the evening a charming musical program was given by Miss Grace Carroll and Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto and mezzo-contralto, and Willard Wadsworth, baritone. A feature was Haydn's great nature "Symfonie in C," by the Kinder Orchestra under the direction of Herr. Von Tinkenheister, who appeared in the person of Daniel Runkle.

The program opened with the "Symfonie in C," those taking part being Miss Molly Perkins, Miss Katherya McCutcheon, Miss Dorothy Fisk, Miss Anna Fisk, Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Miss Mary Gray Runkle and Roy Cox, Percy Brown, Willard Wadsworth, Ames Brooks and Daniel Runkle.

Those pictured were then shown as follows: Mrs. Siddons, "Gainsborough;" Miss Molly Perkins, "Three Guardsmen," T. Randolph Mercein; Percy Brown, Daniel Runkle and Roy Cox. Miss Grace Carroll then sang "The Message," by Tosti. The preceding two additional pictures, "Promise of Spring," Alma Tadema, by Mrs. and Mrs. Daniel Runkle, and "Lady Teazle," Ian Van Beem, by Miss Anna Fisk. The next number was a baritone solo, "La Donna Mobile," Verdi, by Willard Wadsworth.

Two of the best pictures were "The Prize Tulip," George Wharton Edwards, by Miss Katherine McCutcheon and Willard Wadsworth, and "Pair of Kakamonos and Peach Blow," by Miss Dorothy Fisk and Ames Brooks. Another musical number was a mezzo-contralto solo, "The Three Thoughts," (memories, night and morning), Neidlinger, by Miss Winifred Carroll. The concluding number was "Eine Nieltere Schlittenpartie," Chantal, by the Kinder Orchestra.

The large and fashionable audience was generous in its applause and appreciation of the fine program, and a great many encores were given during the evening.

"SPOTLESS TOWN" PLAY BY BETHEL CHAPEL BOYS

A novel advertising play, "Spotless Town, a Home Drama in Three Acts," was presented at Bethel chapel Thursday by members of the chapel Boys' Club, in connection with a program of songs and recitations in which those who took part "did themselves proud" and showed the results of careful coaching. The rain kept many away and on this account the performance will be repeated at the chapel tonight.

The familiar "Spotless Town" characters appeared before a scenic setting representing a street in the Bethlehem Iron Company's plant and the play followed closely the incidents of the advertising verses, said and sung by the characters. The following took part:

Rufus Tildon, the mayor; Clifford Tilden, the latter's son, Petwyn Robinson, the policeman; Julius Smith, the butcher; William Jeter, the maid; Clarence Jeter, the doctor; van Shipey, the baker. The program also included recitations by Percy Simmons, Arthur Parsons and Horace Miller, his latter number a series of mystifying tricks in magic."

After the play, there was a sale of articles made by the members of the club, who had an excellent exhibition of basket work, weaving and carpentry. Ice cream and candy were sold by members of the club, and Walter Robinson presided at the fish pond. The club is composed of eighteen members, and the proceeds of the entertainment will be used for the purchase of materials for their work.

ELKS' MINSTRELS A HIT

GREETED BY CAPACITY HOUSE.

Many Local Gags Enlivens the Elaborate First Part—Topical Song a Feature.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., presented its second annual minstrel show at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday and in so doing marked another epoch in the upward trend of black-face entertainment of the variety local people appreciate. Arranged carefully to the minutest detail, staged elaborately and presented by a capable company of performers, the program surpassed anything of the kind that has ever been seen in the city. It was witnessed by an audience that packed the playhouse and was unlimited in its applause.

In the customary first part, the curtain rose after an overture by Professor Harry Wettin's orchestra on the entire troupe with the exception of the end men. The latter were six in number and swung in later while the chorus sang, "Way Down in Colon." Charles Bliss, Harry Messersmith and William J. Dond handled the tambos while John H. Cose, William J. Counihan and Tom Muir crackled the bones. They were gold-braided, lace-bedecked Colonial costumes, matching a resplendent outfit of the same style that garbed George O. Stevens, occupying the interlocutors chair. The other members of the troupe were in conventional evening dress, the contrast making a striking effect.

Following an opening chorus comprising a medley of popular airs, the fun started in earnest, and there were merry quips, ballads and end songs for nearly two hours. Harry Messersmith was the first soloist and got a rousing encore by his rendition of "Got Me Where I Want Me." The show," backed up by a clever dance. John V. Todd sang "Neath the Old Grape Arbor Shade, Mary Dear," in fine voice, and Tom Muir got away with a "gag" song, "Somebody Lied." One of the cachiest, swingless numbers of the evening was "Summertime," rendered by Elmer D. Cutting, after which "Bill" Counihan got a "rousing hand" on a double effort. He first sang "Mariutch" like a veteran and when the audience yelled for more, he handled with a George Primrose waltz clog that "brought down the house." The people insisted on an encore and would have kept him dancing all night but for the fact that the time was limited. Joseph C. Martin rendered a bass solo, "The Wanderer," William Doud did himself proud in telling the people he was "Bon Bon Buddy," and Fred Miller contributed a ballad, "Sweetheart Days," a quartet taking up the refrain.

A Plainfield minstrel show without a topical song is like bread without salt and last night's production added another successful composition to the long list credited to Judge William N. Runyon. It was entitled, "See a Doctor," and was sung by John H. Cose. There were six verses in all and somebody or something got hammered in every one of them. Mayor Fisk, Councilman Suydam, the Common Council, the Watchung Hunt Club and Mr. Cose himself were touched up. The last end song was a winner and was given by Harry Blimm in a darky style that almost put him out of the amateur class. The title was "If You Don't Change Your Living, That's the Way You'll Die," and when Harry "stepped some" as the chorus joined with him, getting off a typical coon shouter's dance. The first part closed with "Under Any Old Flag at All," solo by Horace J. Martin, Jr., and ending with a most effective patriotic display, the curtain going down on a huge American flag made up of strips held by the members of the troupe from the sides and occupying the full stage.

The end men's gags while the half circle was on were all crisp and snappy and comprised a total of local hits. Mr. Counihan and Mr. Stevens got off an especially good one in a burlesque on the whipping scene from "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It led up to the point where Mr. Counihan as "Tom," was being beaten by two delegates, of which half will be laymen. The general conference is the chief legislative body and supreme court of the Methodist church.

DR. MITCHELL MAY BE ELECTED A BISHOP

Methodists of Cleveland and vicinity have launched a boom to elect Rev. Dr. Charles Baynard Mitchell, formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, this city, but now pastor of the First M. E. church at Cleveland, a bishop at the General Conference of the church to be held this month in Baltimore.

Dr. Mitchell's candidacy was announced at the meeting of the Methodist Ministers' Association held this week amid enthusiasm. The support of the East Ohio Conference delegates is practically assured for him. The opinion was expressed that it would not be difficult to send the entire Ohio body of lay and clerical delegates to Baltimore, pledged to work unanimously for Dr. Mitchell's election as the episcopacy. At a meeting of the ministers' association resolutions bearing on this subject were presented and adopted.

When the resolutions were adopted Dr. Mitchell, who was present, expressed his appreciation of the honor but declined the nomination. It is probable that there will be seven or eight bishops elected at the Baltimore General Conference. The exact number is to be decided by the delegates. Since the Los Angeles conference, which elected Bishop Hamilton of the Methodist church, three died. It will be necessary to replace them as well as to increase the total number of bishops, or general superintendents, as they are called by the church. Dr. Mitchell's career in the ministry has been a brilliant one. After he graduated from Allegheny college he began in the ministry in Kansas. Later he was called to Pittsburg. Since then he has served prominent churches in Plainfield, Kansas City, Mo., and Minneapolis, Minn. He has been pastor of the First Methodist church in Cleveland for seven years. He is a lecturer of ability and it is especially through this activity that he has become well known over Ohio and in other states.

The Methodist general conference meets every four years. The last session was at Los Angeles. As the conference in Baltimore next month there will be between 800 and 900 delegates, of which half will be laymen. The general conference is the chief legislative body and supreme court of the Methodist church.

"GUS" FRENTZ A SUICIDE

DIED TWO HOURS LATER.

No Reason Can Be Given for Young Man's Act, Committed During the Noon Hour.

Without any known reason, Augustus Frentz, a well-known young man residing on Westfield avenue, Scotch Plains, committed suicide shortly after noon Friday by shooting himself in the mouth with a revolver. He died about 2 o'clock without regaining consciousness.

Frentz, who is a carpenter, had been working with his brothers on a new house near his home, and at 12 o'clock, he left the job to go home to dinner. Nothing strange was noted about his actions at the time, but upon reaching the house he went straight to his bedroom and sitting on the edge of the bed placed the revolver to his mouth and fired.

The report of the revolver aroused the members of the family who were down stairs and rushing to the second floor found the young man lying unconscious on the bed, with the revover close by. Hurried telephone calls were made for physicians, Dr. Albert Pittis being the first to arrive. He used every effort to save his life but to no purpose. In the meantime Dr. H. W. Westcott reached the house and he, too, was unable to do anything.

Mr. Frentz was very popular among the young people at Scotch Plains, and had achieved considerable fame as a pitcher for the baseball team at that place. So far as known he never had any trouble and his family are unable to account for his taking his life. He is survived by a father, Augustus L. Frentz, three sisters, Mrs. William Pfeil, Mrs. William Hasel and Mrs. Frank Futcher, who had married at this city, and three brothers, Charles, Henry A. and George Frentz, of Scotch Plains.

PRIVATE FUNERAL OVER EDITH HARDING CASE.

The funeral of Edith Harding Case, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Case, of Dover street, was held Thursday afternoon at the parents' home, and was private, there being only relatives and near friends present. Rev. Dr. A. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church conducted the very simple, but beautiful service. He spoke tenderly and impressively of the young life that had gone out and in connection with his remarks, he read a beautiful poem, symbolizing the fact that the tenderly called had been opened to welcome the little one to Heaven and that she was now with the angels.

During the service there were two selections, "Jesus Loves Me," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," sung by Marion D. Hale and Marguerite K. Barkalew, neighbors and playmates of Edith.

The remains rested in a full length white casket, surrounding which was a profusion of floral tributes, including a beautiful piece from the officers and directors of the Plainfield Trust Company, with which Mr. Case is identified. The bearers were the four uncles of the sweet little girl, Samuel Case, Joseph Case, Willard Case and Howard Case. The burial was at Hillside Cemetery.

PUPILS' CLUBS MUST GO

"NUCLEI OF FRATERNITIES."

So Says Mr. Travell In Speaking of Three Societies of the School.

—The History of the School Clubs.

Open war against three socalled "secret fraternities" existing in the Plainfield High School was declared by the Board of Education at their meeting at the High School last night, when a resolution forbidding members of any such organization whose existence is detrimental to the welfare of the school from taking part in any of the athletic, musical or dramatic activities of the school was unanimously passed by the Board. The resolution was framed by Principal Fre. W. Travell, who believes that the tendency toward establishing school fraternities should be immediately checked.

With the resolution, Mr. Travell presented to the board a digest of the research he had made on the subject of school fraternities, and a book full of clippings and letters showing the detrimental effects of such organizations in public schools all over the country. The matter has been occupying the principal's time for several weeks past, and he stated the conditions very fully in the preamble to his report. The resolution suggested was made by E. M. Cave and seconded by ex-Councilman Tyler, the new member, and was passed unanimously passed without discussion. Mr. Travell's resolution follows:

"Resolved, That any pupil of the Plainfield High School who shall be, or continue to be, a member of, or in any way connected by pledge or otherwise with, any fraternity, sorority, club, society, or other organization composed wholly or in part of pupils of the High School, whose influence among the high school body is, in the judgment of the principal and teachers, injurious to the best interests of the High School, be prohibited from representing the school or any class by participation in athletic, dramatic, literary, musical, or other school activities, and from attending the instruction and privileges of the class room and other rights to which the pupil may be entitled by law. And be it further

"Resolved, That any pupil, who, when requested by the principal to do so, refuses to declare whether or not he or she is a member of or is in any way connected by pledge or otherwise with any such fraternity, sorority, society, club, or other organization, be prohibited from such representation and participation in the same manner as if he or she were such member as aforesaid. And be it further

"Resolved, That the principal and teachers of the High School be instructed to carry the foregoing resolutions into effect."

In presenting the resolution, Mr. Travell said:

"Man is a social animal and this is an age of organization. It is admitted that there is in the youth of high school age an instinct for social activity and for social organization, and that this instinct should be satisfied for the best development of the child. This is well provided for in the Plainfield High School. We have four class organizations, the two athletic associations, the school paper, the musical clubs, the debating society which are normal, controlled by elected boards from the student body, under the advisory control of teachers appointed by the principal to steer them away from the serious mistakes into which the immaturity of their members might lead them.

"It would seem that among such a number of organizations as we now have in the school, there is not only no need of the so-called fraternity, but even that there is no place for it. There is certainly plenty of opportunity for any pupil here who possesses a consuming passion for organization to gratify that passion in a healthy and normal way. The social instincts of the child have no less opportunity of satisfaction in our school. During the course of the year, numerous receptions are given by the various classes of the school, and if anything, there is a protest that too many social events are allowed in our school life interfering with its more serious side.

"The objection may be made to such societies that they are not select enough. But the public school is founded upon the principle of democracy, and in its whole nature is not in harmony with the existence of any exclusive set or clique whose boundary is determined by anything else than personal ability.

"Evidence collected from all over the country, from those whose experience has given them the right to speak with authority, shows that in not more than a half dozen schools in the country, among the hundred from which evidence has been contributed—in not more than a half dozen schools where fraternities are established are they regarded by the authorities as anything but harmful. The advice offered by those consulted, without exception, is to prevent the entrance of such organizations into schools. Within the last two years town after town has passed regulations refusing graduation and participation to all the activities of the school aside from the regular classroom work to those who belong to such societies. Several States, too, have legislated for the abolition of secret societies in the public schools.

"Some of the evils which these societies are claimed to bring in their train are indifference to and united resistance against the constituted authorities because of their allegiance to the group rather than to the school, and the pupil's reliance upon the support of the group even if at fault; a desire to promote the interests of the society above those of the school; an exaggerated idea of his own importance on the part of a fraternity member because he belongs to a select group; envy on the part of non-members; poor scholarship, owing to absorption in things other than study; the expense of supporting the organization; the development of the loafing habit by a common meeting place; the tendency to propogate immorality and the use of tobacco; the habit of concealment from the parent by the child. Some, if not all of these consequences may be expected if such school socities are allowed to exist in the school.

"Here we do not have to deal with secret societies of long standing, with prestige of long-standing and a strong band of alumni. With us, it is a mere matter of providing against the entrance of the evil, even though the school be temporarily disrupted by the attempt."

The news of the Board's action caused but little surprise among the members of the three clubs at school today, for the opposition by the school fathers has been expected and on the part of Mr. Travell. He said today that his policy in the matter would be conciliatory, but would not state what action he would take in any of the three cases. The members of the school faculty will act as an advisory committee with Mr. Travell in deciding what action will be taken with each of the organizations. Mr. Travell said that no action would be taken until after tomorrow.

"There are at present three so-called "secret fraternities" perfectly organized in the school—two of the boys and one of the girls. The idea of secrecy in connection with the school clubs gained ground after an upperclassmen club, known as the "Tuxedo Club," adapted the name of "Sigma Delta Phi" shortly before Thanksgiving and appeared at the school with the Greek letters embroidered in white on purple hat bands on white outing hats.

The "Sigs" are now a perfectly organized club, comprising fourteen members, all but three of whom attend school. The government is in the hands of an executive committee, composed of F. Clyde Deane, W. B. Van Arsdale and William C. Rafferty, pupils at the school. Paul R. Collier, Egbert Bogardus, Jr., and Chas. E. Loizeaux are members of the club not attending school, and the pupil members are Arthur Benjamin, Gulick Foundin, Taylor, Stanley Robins, John Riffert, Russel Morris, Augustus Nash and David Smalley. The "Sigs" meet regularly at the homes of the various members and are all leaders in the social and political life of the school, among their members being the captain and manager of the basketball team, captain and manager of the baseball team, two players on the basketball team and two on the baseball team, as well as members of the school orchestra, glee and dramatic clubs.

About a month ago, another "fraternity" or social club cropped out among the boys of the freshman class, including two members of the Stillman school. These boys are known as the "3. X.'s," and Roy Titsworth is their president. The members are Gordon Moy, Ernest Van Zandt, Leslie Bond, John Todd and Kenneth Runyon in the high school and Albert Allen and Donald Gaston in the Stillman school. This club has dues.

Among the girls is the oldest of the school organizations, but the one that has made the recently developed similitude to a "fraternity." Yesterday morning, eight of the leading girl pupils of the school appeared wearing pins bearing the Greek letters, "Phi Theta Delta." The pins are of gold, bearing the name on a black enamel ground, and are oval in shape. Miss Barbara Fleming is president of the "Phis," and Miss Ruth Mauger, a pupil at the Seminary, is the only out-of-school member. It was the recently developed similitude to a "fraternity." "The organization was founded about four years ago as the "Girls' Sewing Club," when the present members were in the grammar grades of the local schools. Later it became known as the "Saturday Afternoon Club." Like the "Sigs," the "Phis" include the leaders of the school. Among them are the captain of the basketball player, the manager, and several girls prominent in the social and dramatic life at the school.

POLICE STATION BIDS

THE ENTIRE WORK FOR $17,510.

Contract Will Be Formally Awarded at Adjourned Council Meeting Monday Night.

There was sharp competition at the May meeting of the Common Council, last night, in the bidding for the contract of erecting the new police headquarters' building. In all eight bids were received, three from this city, one from Newark and one from a state concern. Alexander Milne, of this city, was the lowest bidder for the whole contract, his figure being $17,510. W. H. Connolly, of Newark, was the next lowest, at $17,787, while the other two Plainfield firms, Wyman & Haberle, bid $18,995 and Rimmer, Apgar & Cuzen bid $19,832. The other bidders were much higher.

There was but $200 difference between the bids of Mr. Milne and Mr. Connolly, a fact that was interesting to all those concerned. With the exception of the New York firms, the others bidding submitted figures for the sub-contract work from local concerns, George J. Tobin, Dennis Galbraith, Albert Pangborn, Charles Burton and A. H. Enander furnishing estimates on the various branches of the work.

The complete list of bids follows:

Alexander Milne, Plainfield, $17,510; W. H. Connolly, Newark, $17,997; Wyman & Haberle, Plainfield, $18,995; Rimmer, Apgar & Cuzen, Plainfield, $19,832; Northeastern Construction Company, of New York, $21,959; J. H. Parker Company of New Jersey, $22,758; Henry Houghton, of New York, $24,113.86; William Young Company, of New York, $26,000.

The plans for the building were prepared by Tracy & Swartout, architects of New York, and were presented last night during the reading of the bids. It is expected that the contract will be awarded at the adjourned meeting of the Council Monday night.

When the bids for furnishing crushed stone, crosswalks and culverts were called for there was considerable surprise when it was learned that the Watchung Stone Company represented by Warren H. Travell, did not submit a sample of stone to be furnished. Five bids were presented, but only two samples of stones were submitted. This called forth a vigorous protest from John Y. Wilson, one of the bidders, who objected to the bid of the Watchung Stone Company being considered, or even opened, on the ground that it had not complied with the requirements.

The "joker" in the matter was soon apparent, when it was learned that the company had not present a bid for furnishing crushed stone. This fact became known after the other bids were in, and the laugh was on Smalley Brothers for they had submitted a very low bid, even lower than at the previous meeting. When questioned afterward about the matter, Mr. Travell said that his company had decided not to seek the contract this year, inasmuch as it had already plenty of crushed stone on hand in the vicinity of Plainfield. One large contract is that of macadamizing the Washington Valley road.

The bid of Smalley Brothers for stone submitted on sample, was as follows: Screenings, 89 cents; half inch, 89 cents; one and one-half inch, 80 cents; two and one-half inch, 70 cents. They also submitted another bid for stone equal to that furnished last year as follows: Screenings, 75 cents; half inch, 80 cents; one and one-half inch, 75 cents; two and one-half inch, 69 cents.

The bid of John Y. Wilson for crushed stone was as follows: Screenings, $1.20; half inch, $1.10; one and one-half inch, $1.05; two and one-half inch, $1.

Bids were submitted by the Watchung Stone Company, J. W. Manhattan and Andrew Roach for furnishing crushed stone and culverts and the result will be determined at the meeting Monday night. All of the bids were referred to the street and sewer committee and the members together with City Engineer Gavett will consider them in the meantime.

SNEAK THIEF STEALS

MRS. FRAZEE'S JEWELRY.

While Mrs. Sidney B. Frazee and her mother, Mrs. Young, were engaged in housecleaning at their home in the Manning building on West Front street, yesterday morning, a sneak thief entered the front of the apartment and stole Mrs. Frazee's jewel box. It contained a gold watch, diamond ring and several trinkets. The thief made a quick getaway as both women were in and out of the front room every little while.

The loss was discovered about noon but no report was made to the police until 5 o'clock. Detective-Sergeant Flynn was placed on the case and is working up one or two slight clues.

LAST SAD RITES OVER REV. W. BRYCE MORROW

Attended by many of his former parishoners and old personal friends from New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Milburn and other places, the funeral of Rev. William Bryce Morrow was held in Grace church, yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, assisted by Rev. Alexander Stewart, rector of St. Albans church, Newark, and Rev. William H. Nelson, of this city. The choir under the direction of William E. McClymont, rendered several of Mr. Morrow's favorite hymns.

There were over a score of floral tributes, many of them being large set pieces sent from distant points. Those who acted as pall bearers were Mayor Charles J. Fisk, James E. Marcine, Judge William N. Runyon, Rev. A. C. McCrea, Rev. J. O. McKelvey and A. L. Force.

The body rested in the church until this morning when it was conveyed to Carlisle, Pa., where interment took place this afternoon in the family plot in Ashland cemetery. The service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Dr. Alexander MacMillan, rector of St. John's church, Carlisle. The vestry of this church acted as pall bearers.

THE ART OF SHOPPING.

"Show me," a doctor once said, "a woman who does not like to shop, and I will venture the assertion that there is something radically wrong with her mental make-up. Shopping is distinctly a feminine vocation, and the joy that every true woman takes in it is to her credit."

But there are ways and ways of shopping—more bad ways, it is to be feared, than good. Too many women return home after an expedition to the city footsore and weary, even the thought of bargainst which they may have acquired barely sustaining them. Instead of their minds being filled with the new things they have seen in the course of a break in the daily routine, they look back at the hours spent over the counters as a dreary round, after all, fatigue crowding out every other impression. So-tired they may have become that they are doubtful about their judgment and if this is not a pitiable ending to a day, what is? Their families are made to feel the strain to which they have been subjected, their nerves are uppermost, and they show it.

Such women, it will be found, have as a rule, no well-defined plan in a shopping campaign. They rush madly from place to place, looking at things they do not by any possibility intend to purchase, and then have not sufficient time to buy what they really do want. It has not occurred to them to list the things intended to be bought. A little headwork would save saved their heels, to say nothing of their dispositions.

Again, if the shopping is an all-day affair, it is quite likely that they do not stop for a while about noon and take something sustaining for lunch, giving themselves a half-hour or so for rest. They are always too busy for this sort of thing. True, they may stop for a bite, but that does not satisfy the requirements. Along about 2 or 3 o'clock they will complain of feeling faint, or be forced to acknowledge that a headache is developing. Often this is warning is not always regarded; they think by persevering that they will make up in some measure for the failures of the earlier part of the day, with the result that when the home is reached they are discouraged with themselves and the world in general. A view of affairs which the waiting ones in the house will probably not be long in adopting.

In contrast with these luckless individuals is the woman who come through a shopping expedition almost, if not quite, as fresh as when they started out. How do these latter women work the marvel? By following, consciously or unconsciously, some such simple rules as these:

Map out the day's tour well before hand.

Start early before the stores are crowded. This will help you and the salespeople as well.

If you are pressed for time, have purchases sent C. O. D. rather than wait for your change.

Do not allow yourself to be confused by looking at too many things, especially when there is little, if any, intention of purchasing.

If it is a question of getting lunch, remember that food will do you more harm than good if eaten hurriedly. Also, it is false economy to deny yourself that which you may need. The judgment is not good when you are tired or hungry.

Remember that others may be nervous or fatigued as well as yourself. Think of the golden rule in your dealings with clerks.

Keep your mind alert to what is diverting, whether in the trolley, on the street or in the stores. A sense of humor is the best kind of balance wheel.

Finally do not attempt too much in one expedition. Other days are coming.

Twenty-four members were received into the Monroe Avenue church at the communion service yesterday morning, twenty on probation and four by letter. Previous to the Eucharistic service, eight persons were baptized. This is the largest number of persons to be received into the church at a single communion. Rev. C. S. Kemble, the pastor, preached a powerful sermon before the communion service, outlining the conditions of church membership and urging a more universal alliance with the church.

Now, Our Army is Formed.

The average citizen, it is safe to say, has very hazy idea concerning the size and constitution of the United States army. A writer in Harper's Weekly gives some interesting facts bearing on this matter. The government dreams of an army numbering 70,000 men. The present strength is 57,000. Of the theoretical 70,000 soldiers the fifteen regiments of cavalry, which never lack their full complement, comprise nearly 14,000 officers and men; the six regiments of field artillery 15,500, the coast artillery corps, close upon 20,000, the thirty regiments of infantry 27,000, the engineers 2,000, and the remainder consist of the staff corps, Indian scouts and a small number of native soldiers in Porto Rico and the Philippines. The total number now commissioned officers amounts to about 3,900.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL

PIONEER LOCAL EXPRESSMAN.

Born in Bernardsville in 1832 and Spent Most of His Life in This Vicinity.

George Conover, one of the pioneer express and moving men of the city and borough, died suddenly late last night at the home of William Jones, at 117 West Second street, to which place he was taken after an attack of heart failure on the sidewalk. He was seen to drop by several men who carried him into the house and then summoned physicians. Drs. Zeglio and Probasco responded quickly but he passed away at about 12 o'clock as they were working over him. The police were notified that it would not be necessary to call County Physician Westcott, as death was due to natural causes. He had been subject to heart trouble for a long time.

Mr. Conover was born at Bernardsville in 1832 but came to this city when a young man and always remained. He started the express and moving business thirty years ago and carried it on continuously until the time of his death. He was the first local expressman to use the familiar large moving vans in this city. For the past ten years his son, Walter Conover, has been associated with him in the business. He was known as an enthusiastic horseman and generally owned a trotter or two that was entered in the local race meets.

Mr. Conover married Miss Emma K. Philpott, of Brooklyn, who survives him and who, at the present time is in a New York hospital. There are also four sons, Horace, Walter, George, Jr., and Herbert, all of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Albert King. There are two brothers, David and Barzilla Conover, and six sisters living; the latter are Mrs. [illegible] Moore, Mrs. Winifred Allen [illegible] and Phoebe Conover. The funeral will be held at his late home on Jackson avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

F. J. BLATZ ENTERTAINS KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

In honor of his recent marriage, Francis J. Blatz entertained the members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus at their hall on East Front street, last night, with a "spread" and plenty of cigars. It was the first opportunity that Mr. Blatz had for entertaining his many friends and it was a delightful occasion, during which the host received the congratulations of all.

A feature of the evening was a fine address by James Dunn, missionary worker for the Apostolic Mission House, Washington, on the subject: "Why You Are a Knight of Columbus." It was a masterly discourse and at the close Mr. Dunn favored the members with a song entitled "Sixty Years Ago." Other vocal selections were given by John Traynor and Charles Ward. At the banquet which followed the entertainment, Andrew E. Kenney was the toastmaster, and in a short speech took occasion to extend the best wishes of the Council to Mr. Blatz and his bride. The affair was under the direction of J. J. Varley, lecturer for the Council.

Thieves Enter Tallman's Store.

Nothing else was disturbed. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Tallman when he opened the store yesterday morning and he reported the robbery to the police at once. Thus far there is no clue. The thieves entered the place through a rear window.

FRENCH DOLLS.

PATRON AT ONE HOTEL FOR FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS

During his long career as a hotel proprietor, W. J. Poulson of the Hotel Kensington, has had many experiences, but there were none he enjoyed more fully than the one he had while owner of the Globe Hotel, Red Bank, which place he left to come to this city. Among his permanent guests at Red Bank was Charles Preston, one of the oldest residents he lived at The Globe, which speaks well for its management. He moved to Red Bank from Shrewsbury over sixty years ago. He was born at Cream Ridge and at the age of seven years moved to Shrewsbury.

When a young man he learned the carpenter's trade and has worked at it ever since. Mr. Preston was never married and for that reason he selected The Globe as a most desirable place to board, going there in 1850 as one of the first permanent guests and has remained there ever since. The hotel has changed hands ten times since then. Mr. Poulson purchased the hotel from Daniel W. White, who on two different occasions was the proprietor and before coming to Plainfield it was sold to the present owners, Charles DuBois and Charles W. Jones. Mr. Preston has occupied most of the rooms at the hotel at different times and is paying about the same amount for board as he did fifty-eight years ago. He never stays out late at night and has not smoked for fifty years. The current issue of the Red Bank Standard contains an interesting story about Mr. Preston, also an excellent picture of the old gentleman at work in his shop.

A vote will be taken upon the adoption of an amendment to the constitution providing for an assistant secretary.

The chorus choir of the local Christian Endeavor Union will meet for rehearsal in Trinity Reformed church Monday night, May 18. Commencement at the Theatre.

The committee from the North Plainfield Board of Education having charge of the arrangements for commencement exercises on Friday night, June 19, has leased the New Plainfield theatre for the affair, it having been decided that the Y. M. C. A. Hall is too small. The change meets with the approval of the entire board. It is also probable that the commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School will be held at the same place on Thursday night, June 18, instead of the First Baptist church, as heretofore.

The house and a large barn on the John McGinley farm on Terrill road were completely destroyed by fire which broke out mysteriously at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. GOLDEN WEDDING OF SCOTCH PLAINS COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr., of Scotch Plains, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday at their home on Park avenue, that place. The affair was attended by a number of their relatives and friends who called during the afternoon to extend best wishes. Last night a reception was held and supper served. This was attended only by the relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride and groom of a half a century ago received a number of gifts in gold in honor of the event. Among those at the reception were Mrs. Jane Darby, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Jane Paff, of Long Island, both of whom were members of the bridal party. Mr. and Mrs. Paff were married at Hempstead, L. I., May 12, 1858, by the Rev. Lorenzo D. Rushmore. For several years they resided at Hempstead, later removing to Plainfield, where Mr. Paff was in business for a number of years. This he disposed of to enter the hotel business, purchasing the De Laud Hotel at Scotch Plains, which he conducted for a great many years.

Retiring from the hotel business he became a real estate and insurance broker, being the pioneer in this line at the Plains. He is still actively engaged in business and is considered an expert in determining realty values.

HOSPITAL KIRMESS PROVES A REVELATION

CAPACITY AUDIENCE APPLAUDS

Moving with a smoothness and finesse usually foreign to an amateur effort, Plainfield's Kirmess for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital opened at the New Plainfield theatre last night and proved a revelation to a capacity audience. Every dance went through without a perceptible hitch and in the phraseology of the dramatic editor, the "production was an instantaneous hit." If the initial performance is any criterion, the participants will be in the professional class before the week is over.

The pantomime, of which Mrs. L. W. Serrell, is the chaperon, opens the program and may be construed as the "feature" of the whole affair. It calls for a cast of thirty four, out of which three stand prominently. First and foremost is little Miss Adelaide Parker, who as a mechanical French doll, will be remembered long after nearly everything else in the Kirmess is forgotten. She is letter-perfect in the part and was greeted with a whirlwind of applause that almost upset the "mechanism" that made her dance and say "Mamma." She divides honors with Miss Elsa Schwed, another very little girl, who as "Dottie Dimple," keeps the toy attendants in a turmoil, and Philip Phillips, appearing as "Buster Brown," a prototype of the mischievous comic supplement boy. All three fit into their respective "roles" as though they had been written for them.

There were eleven dances in all on last night's program and to say which carried off the honors would be a very difficult matter. The Rustic came first and everyone declared it would be "hard to beat." Whether it was or not is a matter of opinion. The girls in this number were perhaps the most graceful of all and went through almost gyrations perfectly at ease. They were followed by the French dolls, eight in number, who make up the cutest "Pony ballet" ever seen at the theatre. Somehow or other they have absorbed a string of little stage movements and its worth the price of two front seats alone to see tiny Miss Eleanor Tredell quickstep into line for the ensembles. The audience refused to let them go without responding to an encore and even then the people were like Oliver Twist.

The Tarentella, with a clever and fascinating sole by Miss Marion Hall, was third on the list, and will remain as one of the features of the Kirmess. It was followed by the Indian braves and the Japanese, they have absorbed a song solo with individual dance. Miss Florence Smalley was the singer and Miss Aimee Emmons gave a series of graceful steps in accompaniment. It was very prettily done and the girls retired with prolonged applause following them. The Marsovian was exceptionally clever but it remained for the Dutch dance to produce a hearty laugh and keep young and old clapping and even stamping in their enthusiasm as it proceeded. The costumes of the Hollanders have been reproduced from caps to wooden shoes and the "Helnies" and "Katrinas" clattered about with musical rhythm. They also sang "Hi Lo, Hi Lo," as they sing it at The Hague and taken it all, "its hard to beat the Dutch."

The White Hussars gained applause for their costumes before they had given a figure and the dance was in keeping with the attire. The participants are young men and women as are also the Steeplechasers,

KEEP THE ROOSTERS MUZZLED.

Simple Contrivance That Means Much to Light Sleepers.

They were like fairy helmets—little wire helmets no bigger than a walnut.

"They are rooster muzzles," said the city farmer, as he led the way past the pea beds on the window sills, the potato field on the back porch and the flourishing mushroom crop under the outhouse.

"Eyes so. Muzzles, not to prevent roosters from biting—for even the gamest fowl has never been known to snap—but to prevent them from crowing. See here."

They had reached the tiny chicken run. The city farmer caught a rooster and gently slipped a muzzle over its fierce head.

"Now," said he, "it can't crow. It can't wake the neighbors with its cries at daybreak. Hence, thanks to this muzzle, it is at last possible to keep chickens in the most crowded city quarters.

"Harrison Weir invented the rooster muzzle. A rooster, to crow, you see, stands erect, flaps his wings, throws back his head and opens his beak wide. If he can't open his beak no crow can come from his little red throat."

FOR SAFETY IN THE SCHOOLS.

European Schemes Intended to Guard Against Disaster.

How to guard against disaster in schools in case of fire is a subject which is receiving much attention in the large cities of Europe. Some of the preventive measures suggested by correspondents of a Vienna paper make interesting reading for Americans. One man writes that in one of the small towns in Bohemia the school sessions are held in two old buildings which were once residences. By an iron door one may go from one building to the other, and in case of fire in one house the children have but to go to this door and find safety in the building in which there is no fire. This plan should be adopted, he says, for all the city schools. "They usually stand among dwelling houses, and from each there should be an exit to the house next door. That would make the schools safe and prevent panics." Another man writes that the expense of placing new doors on the schools to prevent a catastrophe would cost too much. "All danger could be obviated," he says, "by leaving the doors to the street wide open while the schools are in session." No correspondent suggested fire escapes.

Settled the Whole Question.

Rev. William Carter discussed at a dinner in New York his successful experiment of conducting services in the Belasco theater. "One of my theater auditors," he said, "was a Scot from Peebles. This Scot told me that the sight of a clergyman in a theater reminded him of an experience he once had in London. He went to a melodrama at Drury Lane. A man in front of him looked familiar. To his surprise he recognized in this man his minister at Peebles. He leaned forward and laid his hand on the minister's black coat. 'Oh, Dr. Saunders McIntosh,' he whispered, 'what wad the session dae if I should kirk say it I tell't them I saw ye here?' 'Deed, they wadna believe ye,' Dr. Saunders answered quickly, 'and ye needna tell them.'"

Moth a Hypnotist.

"Did you ever know," said the hypnotist, as he played with a curious glittering, hypnotizing machine of crystal and silver, "did you ever know that hypnotism is practiced among insects?

"Well, it is a fact. A queen bee can hypnotize her whole hive whenever she wants to. She makes a curious humming sound, and within a moment or two every bee in the colony falls into a hypnotic trance.

"The death's head hawk moth is also a hypnotist of great power. This creature, indeed, makes its living out of hypnotism. Entering a hive, it makes a sound not unlike the queen bee's note, and the bees immediately sinking into slumber, the moth proceeds to plunder at its leisure."

Juvenile Logic.

Marie is a very bright kindergarten pupil. She came home to her parents the other day and told them that the kindergarten teacher had said she will grow up to be a very nice looking young lady if she is a good girl, but will grow up to be a very ugly woman if she is a naughty girl. "Is that true, mamma?" asked Marie, and she was informed that if the teacher said so it was true. Marie sat still for a while pondering seriously. "But, mamma," she suddenly burst forth again, "why was the kindergarten teacher so naughty when she was a little girl?"

Ins and Outs.

"What's that noise?" asked the visitor in the apartment house.

"Probably some one in the dentist's apartment on the floor below getting a tooth out."

"Ah! then it's probably the Popleys' baby getting a tooth in."

Proud Papa's Observation.

"It's hard to make some people remember," said the tiresome talker, "that they mustn't look a gift horse in the mouth—"

"Yes," interrupted Popley, "but I'll bet it's still harder to make our baby remember that he mustn't put a gift horse in his mouth."

REMINGTON'S INDIAN STORY.

The Winnebago Reservation Chief Didn't Work Well.

Frederick Remington, the artist-author, has had about as strenuous a career as any man that ever touched pen or pencil to paper. He has spent a great deal of time among the Indians in the west. On one of his visits he ran into a story which he is fond of telling.

For some years there had been a Presbyterian mission at the Winnebago reservation in Nebraska, but there were few converts. The missionary hit on a brilliant plan. There were some bucks on the reservation who had been at the Carlisle school, where they had studied singing. He organized a quartet. The bucks liked to show off their hymns. One of them had a yellow dog that always accompanied his master to church.

At first the Indians liked the singing. Then they grew tired of it. Even the choir lost its religion. It became a trio; then a duet; finally the solo quit. A new missionary came into the field. One day he ascended the pulpit and looked around. The only sign of life in the pews was a yellow dog. Calling to the sexton, he said, "Put that dog out!"

"Excuse me," replied the sexton mildly. "I'd rather not. The fact is, he is the only convert."—Saturday Evening Post.

AUTOS AT A COYOTE DRIVE.

California Hunt Not as Successful as Had Been Hoped For.

A large crowd of San Joaquin county residents assembled at the Bollinger ranch, in the eastern part of the county, and enjoyed a coyote drive, which was not as destructive as the people had hoped. Hundreds of coyotes have been killing sheep, pigs and chickens. The scarcity of dead animals has caused the coyotes to invade the ranches and give the farmer a lot of trouble. As a general rule, these animals seldom attack stock, but when driven to starvation they become bold.

It was with the hope that a large number would be killed that a general invitation was extended to the people to assemble and make a roundup. All kinds of vehicles, from the old fashioned top buggy to the latest in automobiles, were in evidence, and many men appeared on horseback and joined the chase. One drive was made in the forenoon and another in the afternoon, lunch being served between the two trips. Later another effort will be made to exterminate the troublesome animals.

Homes for Birds.

The birds islands and remote tracts that are their favorite haunts is a humane and perfectly feasible plan of the Audubon Society in this direction recently received official indorsement from President Roosevelt. This project of enlarging birdland by purchasing from private citizens breeding places in the inland and coastal region of the Atlantic, Pacific and of the gulf and of providing the birds in their homes with human guardians is one that may be depended upon to provide every race among our nation's birds with ample quarters for all time. And it is only by such thorough and wide-flung measure that this desired end may be assured. The aid of every American citizen is justly sought that the best success may attend the efforts of the Audubon society in this direction.

Correspondence.

Swift, alluding in a letter to the frequent instances of a broken correspondence after a long absence, gives the following natural account of the causes: "At first one omits writing for a little while, then one stays a little while longer to consider of excuses—and at last it grows desperate, and one does not write at all. In this manner I have served others, and have been served myself."

Lord Rosebery's Farm.

The produce is raised almost exclusively for seed purposes, and in nearly every country on the globe, as well as in several of the colonies, Lord Rosebery's seeds have been utilized by grain and root crop farmers.—London Chronicle.

The mineral water product of the United States during 1902 was 48,518,395 gallons, valued at $1,574,590—a very considerable increase over the previous year. These figures cover only the natural mineral waters taken from springs having some medicinal qualities.

"Oh, yes I do," rejoined the old bachelor. "If mine were gifted with second sight the result would never fail in love."—Home Magazine.

NO MUSIC IN THE JAPANESE

As a People They Are Not Moved by Melodious Sounds.

There is no music in Japan except that made by the birds, the wind, the running streams and the roaring waterfalls, says a writer in the Milwaukee Sentinel. The people have no music in them, they do not sing or even whistle, or play any musical instrument worthy of the name. They are not moved by the "concord of sweet sounds." They have a few rude instruments, but the sounds they give forth are harsh, inharmonious and altogether unmusical. There is a dinner band at the Grand hotel, Yokohama, and there was a brass band at the Imperial garden party, the only bands I have heard in all Japan. Even at the geisha dances, the most popular in Japan, the music is primitive and discordant. And the dances are worse than the music. It is not in any sense dancing as we know it, it is simply a series of postnings, accompanied by the flirting fans, the handkerchiefs, but lacking the motion and inspiration that thrills and fascinates in the merry mazes of the cotillion and the waltz. The religious dances are slow, dignified and impressive, but have none of the life and intoxication that gives interest and charm to the participant or beholder.

WHITE DEER WAS STONE DEAF.

Remarkable Animal Encountered by Hunters in the Woods of Maine.

Speaking of blindness, deafness and dumbness among cats and dogs, Dr. H. D. Gill, veterinary surgeon and horseman, told incidentally of a remarkable wild animal, a deer, that was once encountered by two friends of his who were hunting near Moosehead lake in Maine.

Out with a guide, the hunters came to a spot from which they could see within shooting distance four deer grazing, one of the four being white, an albino. The hunters fired and shot two of the deer of natural color, the third one at the report of the guns springing away to safety, while the white deer remained stock still.

The wind was toward the hunters and they had not been heard or scented, and apparently the white deer had not heard the guns. But in a moment it turned its head and then it bounded away after the other surviving deer.

It seemed clear to guide and hunters that the white deer was stone deaf.

Sharpened Feminine Barb.

Difficult subjects require careful handling, and for this reason a room clerk at a woman's hotel must have special qualifications, says a New York letter. One of the many applicants to approach a clerk of this class was a woman who, a few days ago, walked to the desk and hesitatingly asked if a room could be had at moderate price. "Would you like a room at a dollar and a half a day?" was the startled look she replied, "I want one at three dollars a week." "We have rooms at that price, but none vacant. You can see that the office is full of guests, and it is not probable that we shall have such a room as you desire until one of our guests dies—or gets married." Sweeping the office with her eyes, the young woman replied, sweetly, "Oh, then, it is hopeless!"

The Waist Came Back.

"The other day I hung my prettiest waist out on the line at the kitchen window," said the flat-dweller, "after I washed it. Then I forgot all about it, and when I went to look for it two days later it was gone. I rushed frantically down to the janitress, and we climbed together over the coal into the bins to look for the waist. I lamented deeply. It was a beautiful waist. We couldn't find it. The janitor came from the next house and helped us look, but there was nothing doing. I came sadly in at the window took over the coal and ascended to my apartment flat.

"The next day I looked in the drawer of my chiffonier and found the waist there. Say anything to the janitress? Well, I reckon not."

The Rural Guest.

"So this is a first-class hotel?" drawled Uncle Hiram Hardapple as he carefully flung his weather-stained hat on the corner of a radiator.

"Yes, sir," replied the polite waiter with a low bow.

"Got any cut-loaf sugar?"

"There is a bowl full at your elbow, sir."

"Got a lead pencil?"

"Oh, no, sonny. I just want to mark points on these blocks of sugar, so we can have a sociable game of dominos when Mandy comes in. I calculate it will be some time before dinner is served."

Two Views.

"They were already discussing their summer vacations.

"But, don't you think," said the athlete, "that everybody ought to learn to swim?"

"Of course not," said the dyspeptic. "What would you think of a fish that insisted upon learning to walk on dry land?"

Quite So.

"Julius Caesar, young gentlemen, reformed the calendar. What may we surmise from this?"

"That he was a good politician and stuck to harmless issues," answered the class as one man.—Exchange.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 17, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Being a Christian—II. At home and in school.—I Chron. xiii. 13-14; Isa. lv. 13. (Union meeting with the juniors.)

In the subject of the home and the school we probably come more directly in touch with the lives of Endeavorers, especially the Junior Endeavorers, than in the discussion of any other practical topic. The duties of their lives revolve very largely around the home life and the school life, and here their characters are being formed for the future for contact with a larger world, where they will not be surrounded by the prayers of parents and the instruction of teachers. It is the formative period of life, and the period is more important, for few characters change after they have been definitely formed.

1. Being a Christian in the home. This subject needs to be discussed more than it usually is. In no place should our religion manifest itself to better advantage than in the home. A real Christian home is the sweetest foretaste of heaven to be found upon earth. God in the home is one of its greatest blessings. When the ark of God was in the household of Obed-edom, God blessed all he had, because it was there. In the home where God dwells the family altar is erected and the spirit of Christ prevails; there the blessing of God abides in large, rich measure. But do we always manifest the Christian spirit in the home? Are the courtesies with those nearest and dearest to us? Sad to say, all Christians do not. They can put forth a fair front before the world or before their friends, but when at home they feel at liberty to give free reign to their evil tempers, unkindnesses and even to anger. How polite we are to strangers and how often impolite to the members of our own family! We carry flowers to the sick stranger and none to the sick at home. We speak kind, gentle words to our friends and companions and cross and angry ones to fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters. How many children are disobedient at home who would willingly run an errand for a neighbor! For such should not be the case. We love our dear ones. No doubt about it. What we need to do is to manifest that love not in quarrels and harsh words, but in kindness, in forbearance and in the gentle spirit of the Master.

2. Being a Christian at school. This seems easier of accomplishment, yet is it always so? Are our lessons always prepared? Do we always show proper respect to our teachers? Do we never speak ill of our fellow pupils? Have we never cheated in daily recitations or in examinations by copying from a classmate or by using a help especially prepared for the assistance of those who are dishonorable enough to use them? If we have not refrained from these things, are we Christians at school? Is disrespect for superiors evidence of a true witness against sin? Is false witness against schoolmates evidence of honorably Christian? None of these characteristics makes for a Christian life. We may have given no serious thought to the subject. If not, let us do so now and carry the spirit of Christ into the schoolroom. If so, many a weary teacher's burden will be much lighter and many a school fellow's life will be made sweeter and happier. And this is really one of our missions as Christians—to make happier and better the lives of others.

Tribute to Secretary Shaw.

[The following veracious verses were sent to Secretary of Agriculture Shaw, the general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavorers, at the recent Iowa Christian Endeavor rally. Two great churches filled with 2,300 Endeavorers thoroughly enjoyed them.]

Who is fleet of foot and speech,
Who the hidebound parties reach,
Who to saints and sinners preach?

Who can make Endeavor hum,
Who can address the dumb,
Who can re-create the bum?

FARMHAND KILLED BY A VICIOUS BULL

FRANK HALLMAN, ATTACKED BY ANIMAL, BATTLES VAINLY FOR HIS LIFE.

AX HANDLE HIS ONLY WEAPON

Is Trampled to Death as Help Arrives —Brute Breaks Out of Pen and Runs Wild Through the Fields.

Chicago.—Armed only with an ax handle, Frank Hallman, a farmhand, fought for his life with a maddened bull on the farm of C. G. Besley, at Park Ridge, the other afternoon.

For 15 minutes the unequal battle waged, both man and beast using all the cunning in their make-up to win a victory, and then the man, exhausted from exertion and loss of blood, fell unconscious at the feet of the animal to be gored to death and tossed over a fence at the feet of fellow workmen who had come to his assistance.

Gladiatorial contests in the heyday of the old Roman empire, when trained warriors went forth to do battle with wild beasts, were hardly more dramatic than this fight on the lonely farm, where the combatants were alone, unaided sparring for the telling blow, the bull charging, the man dodging, with horn and hoof pitted against human ingenuity and a hickory stick, and each contestant fighting to the death.

The bull, a huge Durham, was known to be a dangerous animal, and was kept tied to a stake in a small inclosure. The other day the hemp fell from the iron ring in the beast's nose, and with a rush he crashed through the fence that lay between him and liberty.

Gaining his freedom, he ran rampant through the fields, chasing cattle, horses, and chickens to shelter, and destroying everything that lay in his path.

Hallman, wearing a red flannel shirt, passed across the lot as the bull was bellowing in triumph on a little hillock. The bright color caught the animal's eye, and with tail in air and head to the ground he charged upon the farmhand at full tilt.

Hallman stood as if riveted to the spot, the ax handle poised over his shoulder. As the beast bore down upon him he jumped nimbly to one side and brought his crude weapon with all the force at his command down on the head of the animal.

The blow served only to further enrage the beast, and, wheeling about, he again charged full upon Hallman. Another nimble jump and another fall of the ax handle met this second onslaught. The man's aim was untrue and the stick only struck the tip of the animal's horn.

The bull wheeled about, planted his fore feet in the soft earth, threw his head high in the air, bellowed a fierce challenge of defiant rage, lowered his horns for the third attack, and again charged on the little man, who stood bravely awaiting the onslaught. Charge after charge was repeated in those few minutes, until the man fell helpless to the ground.

By this time other farm hands, attracted by the bellowing of the animal, came to the pasture and ran to the assistance of Hallman, but before they reached the fence that separates the field of combat from the orchard, the animal advanced to the prostrate man, drove one of his sharp horns into his temple, and then, tossing the body at the feet of the would be rescuers, scampered off across the fields.

Hallman's body was taken to the asylum morgue at Dunning, and the case was complicated by five men and returned to his pen.

The Lion's Face.

"No one can look into the face of the king of beasts," says an animal trainer, "without receiving a more or less conscious uplift. His face is the absolute embodiment of strength, determination, power and fearlessness. He is the only king on earth that looks the part. There are lines of majesty and of power in repose in his countenance not found elsewhere except in the sphinx and in the somewhat idealized portraits of Washington."

The Kingbird.

The kingbird owes his name to the fact that he is the one small bird who ventures to attack the marauding crow and that he always comes off victorious. Rising above his foe, he drops upon his back, attacking him with beak and claws until the unlucky intruder makes off in ludicrous consternation.

PLAN A CATHEDRAL FOR N. J. DIOCESE

Before the diocesan convention of the Episcopal church of New Jersey, which met in New Brunswick, came to close Thursday, it is stated the delegates adopted a resolution to appoint a committee of five clergy and five laymen to consider the plan of erecting a cathedral in the diocese. The resolution met with unanimous approval. While no details were adopted, it is assumed that the cathedral will be erected in Trenton, the see of the episcopate.

The committee is to be appointed by Bishop Scarborough and will be named later. The matter will be taken up again at the next convention, to be held in St. Mary's church, Burlington, the first Tuesday in May, 1909.

TRINITY BOYS HELP MISSIONARY CAUSE

A successful entertainment and sale was held in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church, Friday, under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band for the benefit of the cause of *missions. Despite the in*clement weather there was quite a good attendance and the patronage was liberal.

Those taking part in the entertainment were Reginald D. Young, cornet; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Mr. Manning, violin; Mr. Driggs, drum and triangle; Miss Estella Boss, piano. The various numbers were greatly enjoyed and several encores were given.

A sale of ice cream, cake, candy and lemonade and an exhibition of burnt wood-work followed the entertainment. A feature was the "Eighth Wonder of the World," the art gallery, in charge of Edson Woodhull. The ice cream and cake booth was in charge of Arthur Gaskill; while Russell Hoagland was in charge of the sale of home-made candy, and Millard McAfee the pop-corn; George Hummell the lemonade and Ernest Stevens displayed the burnt wood exhibition. The committee in charge of the affair was as follows: Harold Schenck, chairman; Edson Woodhull, Russell Hoagland and Ernest Stevens.

BEQUEST OF $15,000 IF HE CHANGES FAITH

The will of Miss Alice T. Booth, of New York city, filed at New Haven, Conn., Friday, gives nearly her entire fortune of about $15,000 to the Rev. Henry Dawson of Canton, Ill., on condition that he become a Catholic. As he is married and has a family he cannot join the priesthood, but his tendencies are toward extreme high church, and many of his ecclesiastical friends here believe that he will comply with the provisions of the will.

He left the Congregational church to join the Episcopal body. He was graduated from Yale in the class of '94, which he led in scholarship during most of the course. Miss Booth is his cousin. She became a Catholic convert five years ago. For some time she had been a worker at the St. *Rose settlement, 257 East Seventy-*first St., New York, where she died of pneumonia last week. She was a Wellesley College graduate. Her will provides for a bequest of $500 for the settlement, $1,000 for the Rev. Father Paige of St. Jean Catholic church, for "The Blessed Sacrament Propagation of the Faith," and leaves the residue to the Rev. Mr. Dawson.

In case he declines to join the Catholic church the estate will go to his mother, Mrs. Sydney Dawson of New Haven. It is understood that the will will be contested by relatives of Miss Booth on the grounds of mental incompetency.

HOMEOPATHS IN FAVOR OF LOCAL OPTION LAW.

Resolutions urging the Legislature at its next session to pass a local option bill were adopted Friday at the annual meeting of the New Jersey Homeopathic Society in Princeton. This action was taken to refute the assertions of the liquor leaders before the legislative committee at Trenton in the recent session that the physicians favored the use of liquor.

Many papers were read at the two sessions of the society, the principal ones being on "Early Diagnosis of Pulmonary Tuberculosis by Means of X-Rays," by Dr. Lewis G. Cole, of New York, and "Medicine and its Curative Powers in Tuberculosis," by Dr. George Laidlow, of New York. Dr. Cole illustrated his paper with stereopticon views to show the presence of the disease in the lungs long *before the patient showed any out*ward sign of serious illness.

Dr. Ella Eventius Upham, of Asbury Park, the retiring president, read an exhaustive treatise on "Women in Medicine," tracing their beneficient activity to before the Christian era.

MISSING LINK IN ARGENTINA.

Vertebrae Classed as Oldest Human Remains Found in the New World.

The oldest human remains on the American continent have been discovered in the Argentine republic. Some five or five years ago a skeleton was dug up in the neighborhood of Monte Hermoso and deposited in the museum of La Plata. There it attracted the attention of the director, a German, *Herr Lehmann-Nitsche. He recog*nized it as having strong resemblance to a human cervical or neck vertebra and also some relation to the bones of the higher apes, without exactly corresponding with either.

Then he compared it with some other bones in the collection, and the result of his study was the hypothesis of a new type, neither human nor ape, but related to both. The curve of the spine indicated by the bones suggested an animal that walked upright, but the size and formation of the bones made it clear that the head they supported was small and light, with very small brain capacity.

The remains resemble certain bones of a primitive race of men found in Java more closely than any other nonhuman or near human specimens. They represent together the oldest type of humanity, if human they are, ever found in the western continent.

HAVE KEEN EYE FOR BEAUTY.

Instinct of Design Seems Planted in the Japanese.

When a Japanese cannot mold the shape of an object, when he cannot redeem it by a design, when, in fact, he has no control over its creation at all, but it is placed in his hands as it is, finished, says the author of "Kakemono," he will still contrive to add beauty to it merely by arrangement.

"I first noticed this on board the steamer going out," says Mr. Edwards, "where the Japanese boy arranged the extra blanket on the berth in a new design each day. He folded it into lotus leaves and chrysanthemums, into half-opened fans and half-shut buds. He had one wonderful arrangement which, being patriotic, was more often repeated than the rest. The blankets of the steamship company had at top and bottom two wavy red lines on a white ground. By some wonderful twist of his fingers the boy could fold that blanket in the rising sun, with the four red lines coming out of it like blood-red rays. He did it so perfectly that I recognized the flag of Japan the moment I saw it."—Youth's Companion.

Art in Spanish Bank Notes.

To baffle the counterfeiters, who are both numerous and cunning in Madrid, the Bank of Spain has pursued the policy of changing its notes with great frequency and retiring each issue as soon as possible.

The bank has now determined on a new plan. It has placed an order for a series of notes with an English concern, and it will rely for safety upon a special color process. In addition the notes are to present pictures of well-known buildings in Spain, executed with a perfection that will defy counterfeiting.

"The pictures are to be so beautiful that amateurs will be tempted to frame them," says one Spanish newspaper. "Hardly," rejoins another, "the cost of the set will be 1,675 pesetas, you see." To the Spanish mind $338.50 is a great deal of money.

Revived in His Coffin.

A strange case of revivification was that of Adams, of Dell Rio, East Tennessee. Adams is a mining engineer and one morning he was found in bed apparently dead. A physician said it was a case of heart failure. The body was made ready for interment and relatives and friends in Philadelphia were notified. A check was received from Philadelphia in payment of the undertaker's bill, but the undertaker declined to accept anything save the bald cash. This caused further delay, and while waiting the coming of the money by express the eyes of the "corpse" opened, there was a yawn and there likewise was a sudden disappearance of the undertaker and others from the room. Mr. Adams recovered and is still alive.

Living Up to His Name.

A teacher in a mission school in Boston had among her pupils a colored boy named Ralph Waldo Emerson Longfellow. As he was absent one Sunday she asked him if any one knew the reason for his absence.

"I reckon I do," said one small serious-looking boy.

"What is the reason, Johnnie?"

"I guess he's home writing poetry," responded the boy, with a delighted chuckle.—Youth's Companion.

Its Lasting Effect.

"Ripsling, did you ever convert anybody to your way of thinking by your street-corner oratory?"

"I know of one, anyhow, and it made a changed man of him."

"What is he doing now?"

"He's in the insane asylum, Ruggles; in the insane asylum. A glimpse of the truth was too much for his modernized intellect."—Chicago Tribune.

The Ideal Wife.

"What is your idea of an ideal wife?"

"One who will cook the meals, do the washing, look after the furnace, make her own clothes and—and—"

"And what?"

"Keep herself looking as young and as beautiful as an actress who pulls down $400 a week in vaudeville."

DOUBTFUL OF THE GUARANTEE.

The Arabs, and, indeed, all Moslems, have the practice of enforcing promises by adding to their word of honor the Arabic phrase, "Inshallah—please God." How that meaning it conveys in some lands of the east is told in the pages of "In Moorish Captivity."

The pious proviso is a very useful formula to the Moors, and is frequently used in making promises that have no intention whatever of keeping, as they can then take refuge behind the Almighty when they are taxed with their breach of faith.

There is a story told of a man who kept a shop in Gibraltar, and who knew the ways of the Moors. To him one day came one of the faithful, who was desirous of buying some cloth. On being informed that the price was two dollars a yard, payment in 60 days, he replied:

"Ah! right, I will take so much and will pay you in 60 days, Inshallah."

"No," said the vender, the price is two dollars, payment in 60 days. For 60 days, Inshallah, the price is two dollars and a half."—Youth's Companion.

MUSICIANS OF TENDER YEARS.

Many "Youthful Prodigies" in the World of Melody.

Like so many of the world's great composers, Sir Edward Elgar was a "youthful prodigy" of exceptional gifts, as was proved by a recent performance of a suite composed by him at the immature age of 12. Between Sir Edward and Mozart there is a precocious as one of his English predecessors, Samuel Wesley, who at his eighth year heard a regimental band play a march which he had composed for it. At 11 Franz Schubert had already pieces, several songs, string quartettes and piano pieces to his credit. Handel's first attempts at composition were made at eight, and Mendelssohn, who began to scrape the strings of a tiny fiddle at two, is said to have been even more precocious. Sir Charles Halle was only four years old when he played in public a sonata expressly composed for him; Liszt was a public performer at nine, Chopin and Rubenstein at eight, Lady Hallé and Joachim at seven, while Meyerbeer composed a piece of music almost too difficult for his father to play.

Women's Rights in Brazil.

"The curse of Brazil lies in the great illiteracy of its men and women," says Dr. Morris, an Englishman who has been many years a resident of Rio Janeiro.

"According to the official government figures the illiteracy is 80 per cent. Certainly a country where only one man in ten can read and write and only one woman in 30 has cause to blush at the ignorance of its people. A country of enormous area, yet with a population of only 14,000,000, Brazil is sadly handicapped by lack of modern enterprise and an enlightened citizenship. One of the most discouraging features of the country is the low esteem in which woman is held. A great many Brazilian girls marry by the time they are 12 years old and are grandmothers long before they are 30. Woman is considered as a chattel, and in many a household of the republic never open their mouth except at the bidding of her husband."

Cotton as a Food.

Absorbent cotton is practically pure cellulose and can be easily converted into a grape-sugar by the action of sulphuric acid. Cellulose and starch are identical in formula to the chemist. When we have learned to actually and cheaply transform cellulose into starch, says Red Cross Magazine, absorbent cotton will become a source of food, and the struggle for existence for want of food will be at an end. When bread and cakes are made from absorbent cotton there will be no more "corners" in breadstuffs, famines, and no high-priced food.

Looking for the Angel.

A new city settlement worker was going the rounds of her district one bright spring morning, in a crowded tenement some five or six little children gazed inquiringly at her as she entered. "Well, well, children," she said, "I never saw so many soiled faces in my life. Why don't you use some soap and water?" We are waiting for the angel, mum," replied Tommy Tuff. "And what angel?" asked the young woman. "Why, de lady dat come frue here last week and give one of de kids a nickel to wash his face."

The Brain After Fifty.

The brain usually stops growing at about 50 and from 60 to 70 it is more likely to decrease. It has been related by Canon MacColl that Mr. Gladstone's head was constantly outgrowing his hats. As late as the Midlothian campaign, when he was nearly 70 he was obliged to have his head remeasured for this reason. Canon MacColl's conclusion that this continual growth of brain contributed to Mr. Gladstone's perennial youthfulness appears not unwarranted.

A Little Vague.

"Is it far from here to the next town?" asked a tourist of a man he met on a rural road.

"Well, it ain't so very far, nor it ain't so very nigh, as you'd say, it ain't as nigh as might be if it wa'n't so far as it is. Still, it'd be further if it wa'n't so nigh, so I reckon as how might say that it is betwixt an' be'ween for an' nigh."—Lippincott's.

The local nine were outplayed in all departments of the game, no player seeing third during the whole game. Brennan, who was on the slab for the visitors, had everything his own way, and was a nine-inning puzzle to the local batters.

Van Zandt was in the box for the local team, and was touched up for nine hits, two of them good for two sacks. He was given poor support at critical times, four slo errors were scored against the Plainfielders. The visitors made their runs in the third and the ninth. In the third inning, Grief's single and Lockwood's two-bagger scored Higgins and Grief and Bushman came home on some loose fielding. CARL STEINER CHAMP IN S.S.A.L. SWIMMING MEET

Carl Steiner, representing the Congregational church in the Sunday-school Athletic League swimming meet held Friday, won first place in all the events in the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool, scoring fifteen points for victory for his church team. C. Vail, of the First Baptist church, and Lee, of the same church, together scored ten points on second and third places, and the point won by Hoagland in the 50-yard swim, put the First Methodists in third place.

The event was the first swimming meet even attempted in this city and proved a success. The best time made last night in the various distances will constitute a set of records, and other meets are to be arranged. But one contestant competed at a time, as the pool is small, and the winner was determined by the timers, after all entrants had swum. The distances had to be cut down several feet on account of the length of the pool, and the contestants were allowed a diving start. There was but a single contestant in the underwater swim, which was not counted in the summary of events. Vail, of the First Baptist church, swam under water for a distance of 35 feet, 2 inches. Brower, of the Crescent Avenue church, was the only boy entered in the junior events. He swam the 22-yard race in 39 3-5 seconds. These stand as the records. The summaries of the contested events:

44-yard swim: Won by Carl Steiner, (Congressional); second, Vail, (Baptist); third, Lee, (Baptist). Time, 29 4-5 seconds.

50-yard swim: Won by Carl Steiner, (Congregational), second, Vail, (Baptist); third, Hoagland, (First Methodist). Time, 37 3-5 seconds.

Starting, Dr. Norman H. Probasco; time, George L. Listman.

QUITS HOSPITAL BOARD

J. Evarts Tracy, Active Member for Twenty-six Years, Now Honorary Governor.

HOUSE PHYSICIANS NAMED.

Maurice Hansell and Joseph Scal Are Elected—Medical Director's Report.

J. Evarts Tracy, who has been connected with Muhlenberg Hospital for twenty-six years as a member of the Board of Governors, tendered his resignation to the Board at the May meeting Monday. Mr. Tracy removed to New York several months ago and for this reason felt compelled to relinquish his duties here. The resignation was accepted with regret, and in view of his long and faithful services, he was unanimously elected an honorary member.

On the recommendation of the medical board, Maurice Hansell, of the graduating class of the University of Pennsylvania, and Joseph Scal, of Bellevue Medical College, New York, were appointed as house physicians. It is expected that Mr. Hansell will enter upon his duties in July and Mr. Scal in January next.

The report of the medical director for April follows:

PYTHIANS TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE

Partial arrangements have been made by Perseverance and Unity lodges, Knights of Pythias, for an elaborate memorial service to be held in the New Plainfield theatre, Sunday night, June 21. It will be conducted on lines similar to the annual lodge of sorrow observed by the order of Elks and which is one of the most impressive gatherings of any fraternal organization. The program will be semi-religious in character and is designed to fittingly commemorate departed brothers.

Past Grand Chancellor Cobb, of Salem, who is one of the best known Pythians in the State and a speaker of wide reputation, will make the principal address on the occasion and further remarks are to be made by Rev. Dr. Dean. A male quartet will render vocal numbers and instrumental music by a stringed orchestra will strengthen the program. Admission to the service will be by invitation.

As has been the custom in previous years, Crescent Company, No. 13, the uniformed branch of the local Pythians, will hold memorial exercises in the afternoon of the same day. The graves of Pythians in the Plainfield, South Plainfield and New Market cemeteries will be decorated with flags and flowers and the company will attend the theatre gathering in full uniform. It is probable that delegations of uniformed companies in Newark, Jersey City, New York, Brooklyn and Port Chester, N. Y., will accept invitations to be present.

The arrangements for the service are being made by a joint committee appointed by the two lodges and composed of the following: V. W. Nash, Jr., Berthold J. Schreiner and Manning F. Gano, from Perseverance; Jere Van Winkle, Jr., Frank Pfuntner and Amos Andrews from Unity. The full program will be announced within a week or two.

First Baptist Congregation of Montclair Subscribes Sum at Service.

Members of the First Baptist church in Montclair on Sunday at once evince pledged themselves for $54,000 with which to erect a new edifice. Payments will extend over a period of four years.

Architects' plans for a new $90,000 church were prepared several months ago and submitted to the members of the congregation for their approval. These plans have been agreed upon with slight modifications. The new church will be built on a site at Church street and Trinity place, which cost $17,000. It is the intention of the congregation and the pastor, the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, to erect the church without going into debt.

GRACE MEN'S BANQUET

GEORGE S. CLAY, PRESIDENT.

In Rector's Honor Colors of His Alma Mater Are Adopted—Membership Now One Hundred and Eight.

Interesting reports of the past year's work, election of officers and several addresses, one by Hugh Hastings on "Grant—the Man and Soldier," combined to make the annual meeting and banquet of the Men's Club of Grace church, a delightful affair, Monday. The meeting, held in the parish house, was attended by seventy-five members and friends of the club.

The business session was held at 6:30 o'clock, with President Howard Fleming in the chair. He gave a resume of the year's work, which was followed by the report of the treasurer, E. F. Feickert. This showed the receipts to be $302.24 and the disbursements, $272.98, leaving a balance of $30.26. Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, as secretary, present his annual report, which was a brief review of the meetings of the year. The average attendance was fifty-six and the membership has been increased by twenty-five, making the total 105. These officers were then elected for the coming year: President, George S. Clay; vice-president, Thomas Beard; secretary, Dr. Harold D. Corbusier; treasurer, E. F. Feickert; executive committee, G. M. Holstein, Howard Fleming, R. M. Huse, J. C. Moore, F. W. Iredell, C. G. Monro, Herbert E. Jackson and A. Willis West.

The by-laws were amended making the regular meeting meeting night of the club the first Monday instead of the second Monday in the month, except that the annual meeting shall be held on the second Monday in May.

The address of the evening was then delivered by Hugh Hastings, tax commissioner of New York, who gave a paper on "Grant—the Man and Soldier." It was a masterly presentation of the most important facts in the career of the famous general, citing many interesting incidents in his life as a man and then recounting his heroic deeds as a soldier and leader of the Union forces throughout the Civil War.

Some pleasant remarks were made by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who was a guest of the club. He spoke in a general way, incidently congratulating the organization upon its fine showing. Thomas Beard also spoke concerning the work of men's clubs, showing how important they are today in the church.

Features of the affair were several baritone and tenor solos by Arthur Chamberlain King and Allan which is one of the most impressive gatherings of any fraternal organization. The program will be semi-religious in character and is designed to fittingly commemorate departed brothers.

Past Grand Chancellor Cobb, of Salem, who is one of the best known Pythians in the State and a speaker of wide reputation, will make the principal address on the occasion and further remarks are to be made by Rev. THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

ATTENDED BY MANY FRIENDS.

Rev. and Mrs. William C. Nelson, formerly of North Plainfield, Monday celebrated their fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on Passaic avenue, Nutley. Friends were received Monday afternoon, and last night a reception was given in honor of the couple at the Nutley Methodist church, which Mr. Nelson, now retired, was at one time pastor. Bishop John H. Vincent presided at the exercises and made an address. Rev. Dr. Thomas O'Hanlon, of Ocean Grove, also spoke. Both the Bishop and the Ocean Grove clergyman were members with Mr. Nelson of the class of 1855, New Jersey Conference.

A feature of the exercises Monday night were the presentation by the Bishop of a purse of gold to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, as a token of esteem on the part of conference friends of the former. Others who were present at the exercises besides the Bishop and Dr. O'Hanlon, were Rev. Elam M. Gorton, of Summit; Rev. Elbert Osmun, of Arcola, and Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of Hackensack, all former pastors of the Nutley church.

COMMON COUNCIL'S WORK

Two Patrolmen, Recently Reduced in Rank, are Quickly Restored to Grade.

SPECIALS ARE MADE REGULARS.

Brick Paving Contractor Wants to Have a Claim Assigned—Sidewalk Regulations.

Being indebted to the Fanwood Stone Crusher and Quarry Company in the sum of $691.05, a judgment having been obtained against him for that sum, and wishing to settle the matter, Charles M. Meeker, who has the contract for the brick pavement in the city, petitioned the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday evening for permission to make an assignment of money due him from the city to the company to the extent of his indebtedness. The matter was referred to the finance committee to be reported upon later.

Two special policemen were added to the regular force, through appointment by Mayor Fisk. Those appointed were Cornelius McCarthy and Tobias Nolan, both being made specials in February, 1907. In making the appointments Mr. Fisk stated that the men had performed satisfactory service and no charges had been preferred against either since entering the department.

On the recommendation of the Mayor, Patrolmen Nicholas Meyers and John Payne were promoted from Class E to C for good behavior and faithful service. These men were reduced in the ranks a few months ago for infractions of the rules of the department.

For the purpose of obtaining more uniformity in the laying of sidewalks in the future, Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, offered an amendment to an ordinance, which would provide for first and second readings, providing for the several distances from the curb line in the laying of walks, according to the width of the stone. This excepts walks of four feet and under. These twenty feet or more shall be eight feet from the curb; twelve feet or less, six feet from the curb; ten feet or more and not less than twelve feet, four feet from the curb; ten feet or less, an equal distance between the property and curb line, except on Johnston and Watson avenues, where on the former street they shall be thirteen feet from the curb and five feet on Leland avenue.

The funeral will be from Mr. Day's late residence in New Market Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. S. Phelps, rector of Holy Innocents' church, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Frank Pletcher, of Atlantic Highlands, formerly pastor of the New Market Baptist church. The interment will be in the South Plainfield cemetery.

HOLY CROSS NINE BEATS PLAINFIELD A. C. TEAM

Fast Field Game Saturday Afternoon—Score 15-6.

The Holy Cross Club nine trimmed the Plainfield A. C. team by a score of 15-6 in a one-sided game on the Clarke Field Saturday afternoon. The outcome of the game was never in doubt after the sixth, when the church nine hammered in ten runs. At the start of the inning, the score was a tie, but five hits and a series of expensive errors, allowed fifteen players to face the Plainfield A. C. pitcher Mosier, of the church nine, who came to the bat twice in this inning, hit the ball for a two-base hit each time.

For the Holy Cross nine was conceded to be the best batsman, eleven players batting and giving but two bases on balls. Lutaman, for the Athletic Club, struck out nine and gave five passes. He was given good support, eleven errors being tallied against the Plainfields. The lineups and scores:

BROOKLYN Y.M.C.A. NINE FORFEITS SCRAPPY GAME

The game between the Y. M. C. A. nine and the team from the Twenty-sixth ward, Brooklyn association, broke up in an argument on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, and the local boys won a laurel-less 9-0 victory when umpire William O'Loughlin declared the game forfeited in the eighth inning. O'Loughlin's job was no cinch, for his decisions were hotly disputed on two occasions, and Manager Litsman's failure to have a rule book on the grounds made perhaps delay in the game an unpleasant feature.

The final dispute, which broke up the game, came in the eighth. Banks hit a line drive which struck the umpire, but Liljander, who was in the box, winged it to first and caught the runner. O'Loughlin had turned to second to give his decision on a steal when he was hit, and did not feel the ball, which grazed his coat. He declared Banks out, but changed his decision when he realized he had been hit by the ball. Captain Kraus of the Brooklyn nine claimed the out because there was no rule book on the field to prove the point. He withdrew his men from the field and when he refused to continue the game within a time limit of three minutes, declared it forfeited to the local nine. The actual score at the time was 9-8 in favor of the Brooklynites.

O'Loughlin's decision at home, when he called Frank, of the Brooklyns, out at the plate in the first part of the game, was another point hotly contested by the visitors, and this caused a long, argumentative delay. Rain interfered at the start of the play and it was 6:15 when the nines left the field after an afternoon of debating and some baseball between times.

Both teams played with schoolboy suddenness at critical times. After a ragged start in the fifth inally in controlling the wet ball, Scott pitched consistently good ball for the locals for five innings. George Conover, who succeeded him in the box, was very unsteady, and the visitors got two runs in the three innings he passed out the others. Liljander pitched steady ball, but got rocky support. The actual score.

DEATH OF STANLEY DAY

Old Resident of New Market Passes Away After But Two Weeks' Illness.

FOUNDED MAIL ORDER BUSINESS

Prominent as a Newspaper Man and President of Long Established Firm, Mr. Day Was Well Known Here.

Stanley Day, president of the Stanley Day Advertising Agency, the pioneer mail order business in this country, with offices in New York city and New Market, died at 1:10 Sunday afternoon at his home in New Market after an illness of ten days. Mr. Day was in his seventy-sixth year and death was due to a complication of diseases. He had been ailing for the past two years, and his end was hastened by the news of his brother's death in England, of which he received word a few days ago.

Mr. Day was for many years prominent as a newspaper man, having worked on the editorial staffs of the New York Tribune, Chicago and Canadian papers. He was born at Ormsby, St. Michael, England, and came to this country fifty years ago. He lived in New York until 1871, when he moved to New Market. Shortly afterward, he went to Chicago, in the year of the Chicago fire, when the house which he was to have occupied there was burned. While in Chicago, he worked as a newspaper man and later was employed on the editorial staff of a Canadian paper. From 1883 until 1888, Mr. Day was advertising manager of the Police Gazette and shortly afterwards founded the mail order business which he turned over last July to his daughter, Miss Irene Day, of New Market, for management. He is well known all over the country as founder of this business.

A resident of New Market for the past twenty-eight years, Mr. Day was a member of the New Market Board of Education and was held in highest regard by the community. His wife died two years ago, but he is survived by four sons and three daughters. The sons are George W. Day and James Day of Dunellen, and Postmaster Charles S. Day and Stanley Day, Jr., of New Market. Miss Irene Day, a daughter, is living at New Market, as is Mrs. Frank Van Nuis. The third daughter, Mrs. A. E. Abrens, of Stratford, Ontario. Mr. Day is also survived by a sister, living in England.

RAIN INTERFERES WITH LOCAL GOLFERS

There were just twenty entries in the weekly competition for the Spring Handicap cups. Classes A and B, at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday, but the shower during the afternoon prevented several from finishing, while one contestant failed to return his card. Three other contestants returned cards not attested, and it may be interesting for them to know that according to the rules they will be disqualified from engaging in next Saturday's play for their neglect.

In Class A, the point-winners were Frank Reinhart, H. G. Lapsley and W. T. Glenney, while those in Class B were D. H. Rowland, W. B. Tyler and Edward J. Patterson. Again low scores were the rule and the contestants were evenly matched. The putting greens are rapidly getting into condition and will soon be ready for regular play. There was a goodly number of members at the clubhouse during the afternoon to enjoy the social features.

These scores were returned in the competition:

Reading Brakeman Injured.

James Troy, aged thirty-one years, of Bound Brook, employed on the Reading Railroad, as a brakeman, received a lacerated wound of the right leg and an injury to his foot, the result of a fall from his train Saturday afternoon at Bound Brook. He was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he is now under treatment. His injuries are not serious and he will be able to return home within a few days.

Father Bogan at Golden Jubilee.

St. John's Roman Catholic church of Newark, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the consecration of the edifice on Sunday last, and the eighty first anniversary of the founding of the parish with elaborate services on Sunday. Rev. Bertrand M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church in this city, preached the sermon at the vesper service Sunday evening.

Kelley Secures Bail.

Lewis Kelley, who eloped with Mrs. Oliver Dumont and waived examination when arraigned in the city court, succeeded in securing bail, Saturday night. The amount, $500, was furnished by his father-in-law, William Mownlie, and brother-in-law, Charles Delahunt.

NEGRO'S VICTIM BURIED; SUSPECT IN THE TOILS

The funeral of John Bussi, the aged Mount Bethel resident who died as the result of the murderous assault committed upon himself and his wife by an unknown negro, Tuesday night last, was held at his late home Sunday. The service was conducted by Rev. George Howers and was attended by scores of farmers from all parts of Somerset county and many friends from this city. Burial was afterward made in the Mount Bethel cemetery.

After the casket had been lowered in the grave, fifty of the mourners armed themselves and organized a posse to hunt for the old man's assassin. Every section of the surrounding country was made but without any success. The men kept to the woods until late last night and many of the men took up the hunt again this morning. County Detective George B. Totten is actively engaged in the case and the police of the nearby cities have sent the negro's description all over the State. A man was arrested at Hackensack late Saturday night on suspicion of being the assailant and is being held until he can be identified. He gives his name as George Lane and claimed to have just come from New Orleans.

Coroner Joseph Herbertman, of Warrenville, conducted a postmortem examination of the body, Saturday, before a jury. It was composed of John C. Cooper, Fred Coddington, Rudolph Sachs, M. E. Blazier, Robert Terkibel and Adam Sachs. It was found that death had resulted from concussion of the brain produced by a blow on the head from some blunt instrument. The condition of Mrs. Bussi is still critical.

PUPILS MUST OBSERVE NEW ATTENDANCE LAWS

In order to facilitate the work of the truant officer in North Plainfield, Superintendent of Schools C. Kreba of the Somerset county schools, today issued a statement outlining the requirements of the law, for public school attendance. In speaking to a Daily Press reporter of the provisions of the school act, which has recently been raised, Mr. Kreba said:

"The last legislature passed a law which radically effects the compulsory education act and makes a great step in the direction of more extended education. Formerly pupils were only required to attend school until they reached the age of fourteen years, but hereafter they are required to continue in the public schools until a year later.

"If a pupil has not completed the grammar grades by the time he has reached the age of fifteen, he must attend school until he is seventeen. If he completes the grammar school work before he reaches the age of seventeen, he may leave school, provided he has some useful occupation. On the other hand, if he completes the grammar school course before he is fifteen years old, he must go to high school at least until he is fifteen."

This new law is not familiar to many families both in the borough and in the city, and Richard MacDonald, truant officer of the borough schools, as well as Miss Adelaide Ball, who holds the same position in Plainfield have been having trouble enforcing it.

H. R. M. A. Seconds Trimmed.

Although the Plainfield High School nine was shut out by the first team of the Hudson River Military Academy, the Stillman School nine rolled up a score of 14-1 on the cadets' second team. The visitors seconded their only run in the first inning, when an error by the schoolboys allowed the tally. The Stillmans were shut out in the first, but scored in every succeeding session at the bat. The score by innings:

Stillman	1	0	3	2	4	2	1	1	2	—18
H. R. M. A.	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1

Highlands Won at New Market.

The Highland A. C. nine went to New Market Saturday afternoon and trimmed the New Market Field Club team by a score of 9-1 in a well-played game, marked by light hitting by both teams. Wanderlich and Waters were the battery for the Highlands, and Fenton and Carll controlled the curve department for their opponents. The score by innings:

Monos Win at Dunellen.

The Monos A. C. nine opened its regular season at Dunellen Saturday afternoon by defeating the Dunellen A. C. team 7-1. Conover and Bird were the points for the Monos, the former fanning twelve Dunellenites and allowing but four hits. Groves and Dodwell, who were the big mitt for P. H. S., were the points for the Dunellenites, and the line-up included Jesse Dutcher, former left fielder of the local high nine.

GEO. H. LELAND, SR. COMMITS SUICIDE

Despondent, Well Known Man Drinks Carbolic Acid with Fatal Effect.

HIS DEATH QUICKLY ENSUES.

George H. Leland, Sr., a well-known resident of the city for many years, committed suicide at his home on West Second street shortly before noon Monday by drinking carbolic acid. He was found in his bedroom at 11:30 by his granddaughter, Miss Miriam Hall, and Dr. Hollin Tomlinson reached the house within a short time in response to a call. The physician did all possible to offset the effect of the acid but without success and death ensued at 12 o'clock.

Mr. Leland, who was in his seventy-sixth year, had been acting in a despondent manner of late but on leaving the house Monday morning seemed to be quite cheerful. He spent several hours about town and evidently planned to kill himself while he was out as he returned home a little after 11 o'clock with the bottle of acid, purchased in a local drug store. He went direct to his room on the first floor and must have swallowed the contents immediately as he was writhing about in agony when Miss Hall went to the room to call him for something.

The young woman summoned her mother and other members of the family and telephone calls were sent for physicians, Dr. Tomlinson arriving a few minutes afterward. Despite the quickness with which he applied emetics and other treatment, the suicide had taken too much of the acid to give any chance for relief and he died without giving any statement.

Mr. Leland was a tinsmith by trade and had conducted a business in town for many years. He gave up his downtown office and store some time ago and had since been working only intermittently. He is survived by a son, George W. Leland, Jr., of Newark, and Fred Leland, of Boulder, Col., also two daughters, Mrs. May Hall and Mrs. Emma Bird, with whom he lived. He was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P.

County Physician Westcott was notified by the police and he issued a burial permit after viewing the body.

DR. MOTT QUITS MINISTRY; WILL STUDY SOCIOLOGY.

With a view to devoting his time to the study of sociological problems the Rev. Henry Elliott Mott, D. D., pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, in Elizabeth, handed in his resignation. Dr. Mott's resignation came as a surprise to almost every member of the congregation. It will be acted upon at the next meeting of the Elizabeth Presbytery, to be held in the First German Presbyterian church in this city in June.

Asked yesterday regarding his resignation, Dr. Mott said:

"I have tried on several occasions to take up the study of sociological matters in connection with my pastoral duties, but found it impracticable. My resignation is merely the first step in the gratification of this desire. I have not matured any plans as yet, but I intend to study sociology in New York, as I think that is the best place."

Dr. Mott has been pastor of Westminster church for the last eight years. He came to this city from the Central Presbyterian church, Buffalo. The congregation of Westminster church has in it the wealthiest residents of Elizabeth.

T. A. B. ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Association held the thirty-sixth annual meeting Monday, at which the following officers were elected: President, M. D. O'Keefe; vice-president, Edward T. Lynch; recording secretary, Joseph F. McCure; financial secretary, Clarence H. Walden; treasurer, J. C. Carney; sergeant-at-arms, M. J. Higgins. Three new members were elected.

Following the business session, a smoker was held, during which Rev. Father B. M. Bogan made an address and members of the association contributed vocal selections.

George W. Edward's Water Color.

Among the pictures attracting much attention at the exhibition of the American Water Color Society in the Fine Arts Building, Fifty-seventh street, New York, is the "Fair Amain," by George Wharton Edwards of Franklin place. The New York critic pronounces it "rich in coloring and so high in key that it blithely sings."

FIREMEN AND POLICE SIGNALLY HONORED

THOUSANDS VIEW CEREMONY.

Though Jupiter Pluvius dipped in now and then and made things a little damp with intermittent showers, Plainfield's first real inspection of its police and fire departments was accomplished Saturday afternoon with all the military pomp planned to make it a highly successful affair. Thousands of citizens viewed the parade of the men in line to and from Mayor Fisk's home and the ceremonies on the residential lawn met with the hearty approbation of a distinguished gathering of local and visiting officials. The program combined was a fitting and signal honor to the city's protectors and did more than anything in years to show their strength.

According to the arrangements, the police, in charge of Chief P. S. Kiely, and the firemen with the apparatus from all three houses, headed by Chief T. O. Doane in his run-about, assembled at North and Park avenues at 2 o'clock. After lining up for a few minutes, La Vere's military band of eighteen pieces struck up a lively march and the departments proceeded to the mayor's home at Seventh street and Arlington avenue. Arriving on the premises, where an immense crowd had gathered, the men formed in review opposite the main veranda, where the inspection proper took place. The mayor proceeded about each detachment, followed by the president and other members of the Common Council, noting every detail of the men. They presented a handsome appearance in spick-and-span uniforms and after a few weeks of drilling gave them the touch of military bearing sufficient to induce rounds of applause. The mayor was highly delighted with the array and addressed the departments in complimentary terms. Following his remarks, His Honor complimented the men of the two departments on their splendid appearance. Fine feathers, he said, do not always make a nice bird, but in this case the records count and he declared that he felt sure that the records were fully as good as appearances. The duties of the men in the two departments are entirely different, but both are important. The discipline, he added, had been very strict, and that fact gave him all the more pleasure in giving formal recognition of the high standard of the two departments by presenting medals to those having clean records since he took office. These had never had any charges preferred during the whole time of service.

In presenting the gold medal to Chief Doane, the Mayor said that he was a natural born fighter and that after fighting for his country in 1865, he realized as a fire fighter, having served continuously since then. When Chief Kiely got his medal the Mayor said that he had come up from a patrolman to the head of the department. Mr. Kiely, he added, was appointed in March, 1890, and had made the department famous in this section of the country. Captain Frederickson was applauded when Mr. Fisk announced that he was one of the men who had never had a charge against him and that he did not know what fear meant.

As the mayor concluded his remarks, Chief Kiely and Chief Doane were called to the porch, where each was presented with a gold badge in honor of faithful service. As an added compliment, Chief Kiely's trophy was pinned in his coat by Mrs. Fisk, while the mayor's daughter, Mrs. L. E. Waring, attached Chief Doane's. It was a very pleasing part of the proceeding and added greatly to the pride of the recipients.

Following the decoration of the chiefs, the firemen, who had occupied the front of the assemblage because of seniority, moved to the left of the rank and other members of the police department were called forward to be honored. A bronze badge was presented to Captain Frederickson by Miss Anna G. Fisk, who also appended one on the coat of Sergeant Herbert Overbaugh. Detective-Sergeant John Flynn was pinned on by Miss Dorothy Fisk, while Patrolman Morris Higgins received his from Mrs. Fisk. After that the patrolmen who have meritorious records were called forward one at a time and decorated with bronze badges.

With the police roll call concluded, the firemen moved back and all the regular members of the department received one of the coveted trophies, Chief Jennings and the captains being summoned first. Afterward the call men who have answered eighty per cent. of alarms since their appointment, also received badges. The full list of men who were honored is as follows:

During the presentation ceremony, the departments were officially photographed by P. Frank Stone and when this part of the program was concluded, the police gave an exhibition drill. It was accomplished in a creditable manner and elicited numerous sincere compliments from the visiting officials. Formal dismissal ended the manoeuvers and the departments reassembled in marching order and headed by the police band the ceremony was used in plighting their troth. The bridal party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the bride's home and a wedding supper served. The decorations at the church were simple but pretty, white and green being the predominating colors. At the house the colors were, dining room, pink, and the rest of the house being in white and green, as at the church. During the reception Mr. and Mrs. Rainer left for a two weeks' trip. Friends from Many Points Witness Ceremony at the Scotch Plains Church.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Westcott, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Westcott, of Fanwood, and George Smith Ranier, of Westfield, were married in the Scotch Plains Baptist church Saturday night at 6 o'clock. Rev. James B. Braker, of Lyna, Mass., a former pastor of the church, officiated and the ceremony was witnessed by a large gathering of friends.

Promptly at the hour of 6 o'clock the bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Florence Nichol, the bride leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. They were preceded by the four ushers, Edwin Fancher, Harold Todd, Victor Todd, all of Fanwood, and Howard Gilmour, of Princeton; two bridesmaids, Miss Christine Bettman, of Fanwood, and Miss Emmonor. Miss Mildred Bass, of Paterson, and the flower girl, little Miss Edith Fancher, a niece of the bride. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Elmer Mainer, of New York. The Episcopal ceremony was used in plighting their troth. The bridal party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the bride's home and a wedding supper served. CRAGIN AND WADSWORTH WIN CLUB TENNIS TITLE

W. B. Cragin, Jr., and Willard Wadsworth won the men's doubles championship in tennis at the Country Club Saturday afternoon by defeating Harry J. Cochran and Albert D. Beers in a hard fought match which took five sets to decide. As winners of the title, the members of the winning team received silver cups presented by the tennis committee of the club, and Cochran and Beers, as runners-up, also received cups.

Saturday's play was in the semi-final and final rounds of the tournament begun last Saturday with sixteen entries from the club. The play began late, on account of the rain, and the courts were heavy and slow for the first matches, drying out in good shape for the finals. The wind was somewhat of a hindrance. Cochran and Beers had an easy time in their semi-final match, trimming F. W. Goddard and Howard Carter by scores of 6-4 and 6-4. Cragin and Wadsworth defeated R. Story Rowland and Elliott Cutter by scores of 6-3 and 8-6, with some fast tennis in the second set.

The title winners took the first set in the final round by a score of 6-2, but Cochran and Beers developed speed after losing this set and captured the next two by scores of 6-3 and 6-2. One more set would have given them the title, and realizing this, Cragin and Wadsworth played hard tennis in the fourth set and completely out-pointed their opponents, winning by a score of 6-1. The "rubber" set was marked by some first-class serving and hard net volleying on both sides, and the score ran to four all. Cochran and Beers were broken in the end, and the title winners took the match by a score of 6-4.

Alexander Milne's Bid of $17,510 Accepted for Proposed Headquarters.

BONDS ARE TO BE ISSUED.

Council Provides for Twenty-five Thousand Dollars Issue to Defray Expense of Erecting Structure.

The contract for the erection of the new police headquarters' building at East Fourth and Sycamore streets was awarded to Alexander Milne at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, his bid of $17,510 for the whole work being the lowest of several submitted. Mr. Milne will do the general contract work, while the sub-contractors under him will be George J. Tobin for plumbing and heating; A. B. Laing for electrical work and Tallamy Brothers for the mason work.

Mr. Milne submitted his surety, Daniel DeWitt Brokaw and Mrs. Isabel Milne, who furnished bonds in the sum of $10,000 for the faithful performance of the work. The bonds were approved by Corporation Counsel Marsh and accepted by the Common Council. It is expected that the work will be started at once.

The contract was awarded to Mr. Milne through a resolution offered by Councilman Frank Randolph, chirman of the police committee, and was also approved by Tracy & Swartout, architects be engaged to superintend the construction according to their accepted plans. The firm is to receive five per cent. of the cost of construction and the fire and building committee is to represent the city and confer with the architects from time to time as necessity arises. The bids of the unsuccessful contractors were ordered returned to them.

In the connection Mr. Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, offered a resolution providing for the issuance of $25,500 worth of bonds to meet the expense of erecting the new police headquarters' building. They are to be coupon bonds of $500 denomination, payable 4½ per cent. interest, payable semi-annually, and are to run from July 1, 1908 to July 1, 1928, and are to be sold for not less than par value. The resolution was adopted.

This was followed with a resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, the contract for furnishing crushed stone to the city for the coming year was awarded to N. R. Smalley & Co., at last night's Council meeting, that firm's bid being the lowest, and the contract for furnishing culverts and crosswalks to Andrew Roach, his being the lowest for that material.

The bid of N. B. Smalley & Co., which was accepted, was for the stone like submitted to sample the prices being as follows: Screenings, 89 cents; half-inch, 89 cents; one and one-half inch, 80 cents; two and one-half inch, 70 cents. The clerk was authorized to execute the contract with the firm in the usual manner.

ATTEMPTED TO WRECK TRAIN NEAR RARITAN

An attempt to wreck a fast freight train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey was made Sunday morning between 12 and 1 o'clock by placing a fishplate on the rails just west of Raritan station.

The train struck the fishplate and shoved it along the rail for some distance, but met with no mishap. The train was stopped and a search made by the train crew in the vicinity of the would-be train wreckers, but none could be found. It is supposed to have been the work of tramps.

ADMONISHES HIS CLERGY

UNITY THERE IMPOSSIBLE.

Rev. Mr. Stevenson's Report on Sunday School Work is Enthusiastically adopted After Debate.

The convention of the New Jersey Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church which was brought to a close at New Brunswick at noon Wednesday with a parting address by Bishop Scarborough was one of the most important in the history of the diocese. The Bishop in his address disapproved of those in the pulpit who had their eyes turned toward the Vatican and declared there was no need to look for external unity in the source. He declared that such in the church were a source of weakness to it.

One of the lively discussions was brought about over the report of the Sunday-school commission in which the broad views and progressives waged battle. The Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, this city, spoke for the report, which commanded the commission to sending the Rev. Thomas J. Conover of Bordentown as a delegate to the Summer School of Methods at Asbury Park last year. The Rev. W. N. Bailey, of the Asbury Park church, was against this, declaring that he had received the Rev. Conover with open arms and then had to witness the spectacle of seeing the prayer book of Christ's church opened "for every one to root through." He did not favor joining hands with other sectarian churches. Others did and the recommendation of commendation was enthusiastically adopted after a warm debate. The matter of sending a diocesan delegate to the various parishes and of appointing a commission of ten for this work went over to the next convention.

An amusing question discussed was as to whether the diocese was "he, she or it." This matter came up in the shape of a resolution for a telegram of sympathy to be sent to the Washington diocese in the loss sustained by the death of Bishop Satterlee. The diocese was referred to as "her." Bishop Scarborough said this should read "it" and not "her." They were all males and he did not see how "her" came in. Others questioned the expression and the word of sympathy was not qualified by either "it" or "her." Later a second resolution was introduced in which "them" and "their" were used. This was a telegram of greeting to the Pennsylvania diocese.

The report of the finance committee with respect to the new plan for levying assessments upon the respective parishes for the purpose of make up the fund for the Bishop's salary, held that the present system is unfair and distributes the burden unequally by providing that each parish shall be assessed a sum equivalent to 7 per cent. of the rector's salary for the Bishop's salary. Some parishes, it is alleged, took advantage of their right to give a bond based upon the rector's salary at the time the bond was given, thus the 7 per cent. assessment at a permanently low figure, unchanged by subsequent increases in the rector's salary.

To effect a change it will be necessary to have 60 per cent. of the parishes approve the necessary change in the canon of the diocese covering that point. The new plan is simply to have the trustees of the Episcopal fund abrogate and surrender all the bonds held by them and permit the churches to abrogate the old bonds. Thereafter the Episcopal fund will be raised by a direct annual assessment based upon the amount paid the rector for salary, the amount of the assessment to be determined by the convention. The basis on which the assessment is figured will be changed annually, as rector's salaries are increased or diminished, as it is believed a 7 per cent. assessment now will be sufficient.

When the report came up for consideration yesterday morning two amendments were presented with the report, to make the changes effective. These made the necessary changes in the constitution and the canon.

The outcome of all the discussion was to so amend the constitution that the change was approved, but the reform will not go into effect until the consent of the parishes has been obtained. The final vote on the change will be taken next year, when the matter of amending the canon will come up.

The consensus of opinion was strongly in favor of the change, and there is no doubt that next year the canon will be amended.

The convention of the Trenton diocese of the Episcopal church will meet next year at St. Mary's church, Burlington. St. Paul's church, Camden, also extended an invitation to the convention, and the convention will probably meet there in 1910, Camden withdrawing this year in favor of Burlington.

Bishop Scarborough announced the receipt of the resignation of the Rev. Charles E. Merritt, of Mount Holly, through illness. Mr. Merritt was renominated and re-elected, the Bishop declaring that he saw one of the "old guard," being one of the five who elected him when he came to New Jersey, thirty-four years ago.

The Rev. Charles Fiske, of Somerville, was re-elected secretary, and he selected the Rev. Howard E. Thompson, of Freehold, as his assistant. A telegram of congratulation was received from Bishop E. J. Knight, of Western Colorado, and a return greeting was sent to him.

The Rev. James Stoddard, of Mount Holly, for the committee on new parishes, reported three new churches during the year in the diocese—St. Stephen's, at Cranbury; Holy Trinity, at Ocean City, and St. Luke's, at Newbold, Gloucester county.

These officers were elected: Trustee of infirm clergy and widows and orphans' fund, the Rev. B. F. H. Shreeve; trustee of missionary fund and church property fund, the Rev. William D'Oller, Burlington; committee on episcopal residence, the Rev. J. C. Sturges and the Rev. Joseph H. Bruere and the Rev. H. M. Black; committee on constitution and canons, the Rev. Otis A. Glazebrook, Elizabeth; the Rev. W. Dutton Dale, New Brunswick, Bayard Stockton and the Rev. Rudolph E. Brestell, Camden.

Bishop Scarborough in his annual address referred to the good work done during the year and to the bequests to churches in the diocese during the year just closed. He also referred to the bishops who had died, naming Bishops Coleman, Satterlee, Worthington and Capers.

The Bishop had this to say about those in the pulpit with a longing eye toward the Vatican for recognition:

"I do hope that the next general convention will either undo legislation about which there is such room for difference or introduction may give such definition of its intent as will make its meaning clear, and thus relieve the consciences of those who are distressed by the present seeming looseness of practice under the guise of law. If the church mean what is ordinarily understood by the phrase "an open pulpit" let it be so stated clearly and distinctly in plain words and free from obscurity.

"There is a spirit of unrest abroad in the Christian world today manifesting itself in many directions and various forms. Quite recently it has come to light, though long suspected, that there is some ministering at our altars in apparent honesty who are looking with longing eyes to the fellowship for recognition, anxious to ally themselves with the Papacy and accept its every dogma, old or new. Such men are dishonest and betrayers and a source of weakness to the church while they remain in it. We long and pray for the restoration of church unity, but it will never come from that direction. Rome will make no concessions. She will not recognize any baptisms, confirmations or ministry as valid. There must be absolute and unconditional submission, and they who are looking and hoping for any compromise in that quarter will surely be disappointed in their hopes. An honest men, however, who is honestly torn between two opinions, but boldly make the venture which their consciences seem to approve and demand and seek more congenial associations."

W. C. T. U. MAKES BETTER MOTHERS THEY DECLARE.

The Middlesex County Spring Institute of the W. C. T. U., was held in the Presbyterian church at Perth Amboy on Thursday. Mrs. Owen Swain, Mrs. Joseph Barnard, Mrs. Thomas Hulley and Mrs. Crouch attended from this city.

The institute was presided over by Mrs. Emma Bourne, State President, of Newark. There were only twenty-five delegates present.

Ten minutes were given by the representatives of the different unions present for belonging to the W. C. T. U., and the strongest point brought out in the answers given, was that in belonging to the W. C. T. U. better mothers were made; that is mothers formed a protection of the home and the Nation against the liquor traffic.

Mrs. Mary Teak, president of Essex county, gave an address on the W. C. T. U.'s work. Another address that was appreciated was that on "A Mother's Responsibility in regard to temperance in the Home," given by Mrs. Probasco, of Jamesburg. A question box was conducted by Mrs. Bourne, who answered all questions propounded by those present.

An address on "Emigration" was given by Mrs. Orr, the Temperance Missionary to Ellis' Island. Mrs. Orr told of meeting the girls and women upon their arrival and of her endeavor setting them upon the right path.

The evening session was given over to music under the supervision of Mr. Cox, organist at the Presbyterian church. Vocal solos were rendered by Messrs. Flake and Conklin, of Perth Amboy and by Mrs. Owen Swain, of Middlesex.

Addresses were given at this session by Mrs. Bourne and Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, former probation officer of this county.

CARRIAGE HITS CAR; COUPLE THROWN OUT

Caught between the edge of the trolley tracks and a main westbound trolley car, a rig in which Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haberle, of Park avenue, were driving, collided with the car at Park avenue and Front street, yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and the occupants of the carriage were thrown out, sustaining slight injuries.

Mr. Haberle, who was driving the horse, was in a quandary when he reached the corner, as he had his choice of backing his carriage off the tracks, where excavations had been made for the brick pavement or running into the car. The result was that the rig struck the trolley car midway, breaking the shaft, releasing the horse and upsetting the carriage. Mrs. Haberle was thrown over against the car, while her husband fell out on the opposite side.

The couple were assisted to J. J. Kelly's store, and later were able to return home. Aside from general shock and a few scratches and bruises, the injuries were not considered serious. The carriage was considerably damaged and had to be taken to a repair shop. The horse, which ran away, was caught after going a short distance.

Several persons who saw the accident were not inclined to blame the motorman of the trolley. They claim that the car was practically at a standstill when Mr. and Mrs. Haberle came along. On account of the street improvements but little space was left at that point to turn around, and a collision with the car seemed inevitable.

UNEARTH POT OF OLD COINS UNDER A CABIN

While Edward Cotty, of Rindy, N. J., was Friday engaged in digging a cellar under the Lukns cabin, which is situated about six miles east of Millville, near Camp Snyder, a boulder was found about a foot beneath the surface. Assisted by Andrew Snyder, the veteran deer hunter, the boulder was removed, and they found an old iron can, containing a considerable sum of money in coin and some valuable papers, including several old deeds, which, it is believed, will affect title to many acres of land surrounding the cabin, which are now held by non-resident sportsmen.

The men will not state how much money they found. The dates of the deeds, which are much faded, indicate that they have been buried for many years. The papers were placed in the hands of a lawyer, and a contest for title to the game reservation is not improbable. This building has been standing for almost half century, and has not been occupied for a number of years except by hunting parties, who when deer hunting would spend the night there.

ITALIAN COUPLE WED IN STATE BY JUDGE HAND

Tamasadi Nizenglio, a well-to-do contractor, living in Scotch Plains, and Marietta Ramuinolo-Eglio, also of Scotch Plains, were married Saturday in the local district court rooms by Judge Hezekiah Hand, when about twenty witnesses, including several of the city officials, were present and helped in the ceremony. Before uniting the couple from Sunny Italy a wedding which is destined to be recorded as one of the leading social events in local Italian circles.

To lend impressiveness to the occasion, the judge had the room darkened and the ceremony was performed by artificial light. Neither bride nor groom could "speka da English" to any great extent, so Gaetano Miele, a local contractor, acted as interpreter. The two were "in travelling costume," and there were many soft Italian love glances exchanged between them while the interpreter was translating the necessary data for the marriage certificate. When Dan Cupido's dart finally pierced and Marietta had shortened her name five letters by changing it, Tamasadi took a roll of bills out of his pocket and handed a ten spot to the "Marrying Justice." Stories as to the size of the groom's roll of bills, the smallest of which is positively stated to be a five, vary, but at all events, it may be said that the Scotch Plains contractor has in no way been effected by the financial stringency. It is reported that the couple will "take a steamboat" and go on a wedding trip before they settle down to keep house in Scotch Plains.

What They Did to Him.

"Why did Napoleon hate the English?" once asked an instructor in history in a public school of Cincinnati, to which question no immediate reply was given by any pupil.

"I'm sure somebody knows," said the teacher hopefully, scanning the faces before her.

"I think I can tell mum," finally ventured a dirty faced lad in the rear of the room. "He hated the English because they made him live an' die all by himself on the rock of St. Helena."—Harper's Weekly.

HUGE PLANT OF S. O. AT LINDEN PROGRESSING

The Standard Oil Company has increased its holdings in Linden for its big plant by the purchase of one-eighth of a tract, containing seven acres, from Harriet C. and William E. Shotwell, of Denver, Col., for $1,000. The tract is bounded on the north by the property of the Mountain Copper Company, on the east by Morse's creek, on the south by the lands of Swan, Finch & Company and on the west by the property of the J. T. Lord estate and others.

The work of building the various structures that are to make up the great refinery is being pushed with all possible vigor, and already a number of the receiving tanks for the storage of oil piped directly from the oil fields of the West have been completed.

The New Jersey Dock and Bridge Building Company is driving several thousand piles to furnish the support for the foundation of one or two large buildings.

It was said yesterday that the purchase of the South Front street property of the Bayway Refining Company with a frontage of 400 feet on Staten Island Sound was planned for the purpose of giving the company a shipping point with a good depth of water.

The property purchased in Linden has ample water frontage, but before it will be available a bulkhead will have to be constructed and acres of marshy land lying inshore covered with filling so as to make it solid.

There is a depth of only seventeen feet of water at high tide along this part of the waterfront, between the bulkhead line and the new 300-foot channel recently cleared by the National government, while a depth of thirty feet is available at the lands of the Bayway Refining Company, near the foot of Third avenue. This point is at a considerable distance from the Linden property, but there are spurs from the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the Linden location directly to the lands acquired from the Bayway company, which will greatly facilitate the transportation of oil products.

It is likely that the new front will be built a bulkhead is built along the Linden property, south of Morse's Creek. Some effort has been made on behalf of the company to start an agitation in favor of having the government dredge the channel in front of the Linden property to the bulkhead line. Thus far, however, this has borne little fruit.

BOROUGH PUPILS IN SUCCESSFUL OPERETTA

Clever acting, excellent singing and elaborateness and beauty of costumes in the presentation, assured the success of the operetta, "The Enchanted Palace" at the Park Club last night. Nearly 100 pupils of the grammar grades of the Somerset Street School took part, and despite the storm, the seating capacity of the club house was taxed to its utmost. The affair netted $110, which will be devoted to the purchase of pictures for the class rooms in the grammar department of the school.

The operetta was in two acts, with a typical fairy story plot, in which all finally ends happily for Prince and Princess. The costuming was especially elaborate for an amateur production and each of the principal characters deserves especial mention for their acting and singing. Howard Riley was an ideal "Prince Emerald" arriving just in time to rescue the Princess, whose part was ably taken by Miss Helen Roberts. George Ball, as the King's poet, deserves praise for his clever work and excellent stage business he used in his interpretation of the part. The complete cast of characters was printed in Thursday's Daily Press, and the musical score follows:

Solo and chorus of fairies, "Borne upon the morning breeze;" chorus of fairies, "Spirit! whose'er thou art;" chorus of fairies, "Lo! the maid of beauty rare;" trio (Wise Man, Jester and Boor), "Three servants are we;" march and chorus, "Hail to the King;" song (the Chancellor), "A beautiful scheme of taxation;" chorus, "O sweet Princess;" dance by the fairies; chorus of fairies (behind the scenes), "Peaceful through the starry night."

Part 2—Introduction and chorus, "We are the spirits of love and joy;" song (Prince Emerald) and chorus, "I have wandered o'er the mountains;" solo and chorus, "Ha! I see you!" (by the chancellor); solo (Princess Crystal), "Upon my couch;" final chorus, "With beams of love and golden smiles."

Herbert Lloyd, musical director at the school, led the operetta, and Miss Myra Emmons acted as accompanist at the piano. Assisting Mr. Lloyd and forming a committee in charge of the affair were Miss Laura M. Sydenham, Miss Mabel Trenbath, Miss Lillian A. Eldredge and Miss A. Margaret Speicher.

ERRING PAIR HELD IN BAIL

WRONGED HUSBAND PRESENT.

Mrs. Dumont Brought Back—Kelly's Wife Displays Her Own Weakness.

Mrs. Oliver P. Dumont, whose whereabouts is Philadelphia were made known by Louis Kelley when he confessed to Chief Kiely, was taken in custody at the address furnished, Friday, and agreed to return to Plainfield without requisition proceedings. She was kept at police headquarters over night and this morning was arraigned before Judge Runyon for a preliminary hearing. Kelley was arraigned at the same time and both waived examination. Bail was fixed at $500 in each case. The amount was furnished for Mrs. Dumont by W. G. Runyon, of Dunellen, but Kelley had failed to secure a bondsman at noontime.

In his statement to Chief Kiely, Friday, Kelley stated that he went away with Mrs. Dumont last Friday, meeting her by appointment at Bound Brook. They proceeded from there to Philadelphia and remained until Wednesday at 1,217 Arch street, where they called up a friend in Plainfield on the telephone and when informed that a warrant was out for the arrest of both, he decided to go to another address. He then went to the home of Henry VanNest, a former Plainfielder, who resides at 1,212 Sardine street, where Mrs. Dumont was introduced as Mrs. Kelley.

Detective-Sergeant Flynn went to this address Friay, accompanied by a Philadelphia headquarters man, and the young woman was found there. She demurred at first to being taken back home but when told it must either be that or go to local police headquarters she offered no further objections. Her two-years-old son, who she took away with her, was found at the same time.

Mrs. Kelley has been steadfastly remaining by her husband but Dumont refuses to have anything to do with his wife. He preferred the charge against the two in order to assist in getting his child back and this morning had Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer in court to look after his interests. The wife seemed to feel her disgrace keenly while in court and kept a heavy veil over her face during the proceedings.

Deposits Unclaimed.

The Bank Commissioners of Massachusetts are hunting high and low for George V. and Clara A. Seward, of Roselle, who some twenty years ago placed a sum of money in the North Station (State) Savings Bank. Today the accounts amount jointly to $1,680.70. The authorities of the State, as well as those where the money is on deposit, would like to hear from the depositors or some of the heirs. There is over one-half million dollars on unclaimed accounts in Massachusetts savings banks.

METHODIST FAVOR AMUSEMENT CLAUSE

Bishop Goodsell of Boston stirred the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Baltimore, May 6, when he read the Episcopal address Thursday recommending an amendment of the clause touching on the amusement question.

Bishop Daniel A. Goodsell of Boston read the episcopal adress to the conference. It notes a gain in the number of communicants during the past four years of 278,357, the greatest gain during any similar period for sixteen years. The total "pastoral army" numbers 20,161. These, according to the address, preach the Gospel in 130 languages and dialects. The address says:

"The total gain in church property for the four years last past is $22,678,431, while the total valuation of our churches and parsonages is $186,924,024. Our membership in the United States is now 3,036,000, while in the whole world the number is 3,203,275, at the close of 1907. Our foreign communicants number 267,000."

Touching the support of the ministry the address says:

"While we still insist that it is unwise to plan for emoluments in the church who are likely to make the accidents of salary and house more attractive than the work itself, it is of the highest wisdom to offer such support as secures freedom from anxiety, as well as modest provision for intelligent culture, and education of children."

The matter of ministerial appointments is treated thus:

"If there be increasing difficulties in any degree as to making appointments it is because of growing interference on the part of ministers and laymen with the judgment of the Bishops as to what is best for the work, since ministers demand to be kept within range of the more lucrative charges, because they have had a taste of them, and they feel humiliated and degraded if they are sent even to a small reduction."

It is declared that the church has not yet reached unanimity touching the removal of the time limit from the pastorate.

Recommendations on Amusements.

As to amusements and the book of discipline the address continues:

"We are moved by a profound conviction of duty in again calling your attention to the subject of popular amusements in relation to the character and conduct of spiritual life. We regret that the general prevalence of harmful amusements does not diminish. We reiterate what has many times been said, that the pernicious, and especially pernicous to youth. * * * We recommend, not that Paragraph 248 be stricken out, but that it be amended, leaving to the ground for church trial, in case of trial before a committee, that portion of the paragraph reading: 'Taking such amusements as are obviously of misleading or questionable moral tendency, or disobedience to the order and discipline of the church,' and especially our original rule, 'to taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus.' Grave injustice will be done if this recommendation is interpreted as an abandonment of our early opposition to worldly amusements. Indeed, it is a return to the principles and to the exact words furnished by John Wesley."

In the course of a discussion of civic righteousness the address says:

"We see clearly that within the next generation there are to be great social changes. The influence of wealth on political life and measures is to grow less, whether it be in the hands of individuals or corporations. The working class will have more power, the idlers less. With us, we must both lead and restrain by religious forces."

As to divorce:

"The consecutive polygamy permitted by the diverse laws of some of our States is a disgrace to our country. We greatly rejoice that the conscience of the Nation is being quickened on this subject, and that the demand for uniform divorce laws increases."

In the section devoted to child labor the address says:

"In the name of Jesus Christ we protest against the sacrifice of childhood on the altar of Mammon, whether by the greed of the parents or the greed of proprietors. We demand from legislators such laws as will, in securing freedom to children from exhausting toil, contribute to the vitality, the growth, and the moral power and the sense of all youthful employes."

The Bishops have quite a little to say as to workingmen, and the church and as to trades unions.

The address upholds the right of workingmen to form labor unions, and says that the church and unions should seek each other's help to uplift mankind.

"Whose."

"I'd like a glass of plain effervescing drink," said a tall, gaunt man. "You hat vanilla, or you hat raspberry?" asked the young woman at the counter behind the counter. "I was a plain drink, no flavoring—understand me?" responded the thirsty man testily. "Yes, but vat kind flavoring you vant him mitout? Mout vanilla or mitout raspberry?"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

MISS SANDFORD A BRIDE

AT A MILITARY WEDDING.

Rev. J. S. Zelie, Ph. D., Officiates—Groom Is Ordered to the Philippines.

Islands.

A charming home wedding of a decided military nature was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford, of East Front street, Muy of when their daughter, Miss Pauline May Sandford, became the wife of Captain Edward Harrison Yule, of Fort B. A. Russell, Wyoming. Although the ceremony was witnessed by only the relatives and intimate friends of the couple to the number of sixty, the reception which followed was attended by nearly 400 guests, including many military friends of the groom and scores of guests from out of town.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and the couple stood in a veritable bower of palms and white roses in the bay window of the drawing room. A large American flag formed an effective background for the floral decorations and the groom and best man, Captain M. Koehler, of the Coast Artillery Corps, both in full uniform. The bay window was screened off from the room by a curtain of smilax, and the entire house was lavishly decorated with apple blossoms and palms, the prevailing color scheme being pink and white. The bridal party entered the room to the strain of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by a string orchestra, and during the ceremony the musicians rendered "O Perfect Love" and "O Promise Me." The Episcopal form of service was used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin, trimmed with Duchesse and point lace. She wore a dainty tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms and carried lillies of the valley. Her bridesmaids were Miss Florence M. Tree, of New York city, and Miss Katherine C. Manning, of Dunellen avenue. These attendants wore pink chiffon cloth, over pink silk and carried pink roses. Miss Pauline Sandford, a niece of the bride, and Miss Sadie Sandford, a cousin, acted as flower girls. They wore white net, trimmed with white horn hats filled with pink sweet peas.

Following the ceremony was the wedding reception, for which 1,000 invitations were issued. The collation was by Day, of Newark. The groom's gift to his best man was a gold stick pin. The bride's gifts to the ushers were three gold pins, set with pearls. The bride received a wealth of wedding presents, including silver, cut glass and china.

Immediately after the wedding reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip. They will return to this city next week and will remain at the home of the bride's parents until June, when they will sail for the Philippines, where Captain Yule has been detailed for two years' service. Captain Yule is a graduate of Iowa State University; he served in the Spanish War with the Second Field Artillery Corps, and later spent two years with the military force in the Philippines. Before being ordered to Fort B. A. Russell, he was stationed at Fort Schuyler.

REV. A. E. FINN PREACHES AT MRS. HAWKINS' FUNERAL.

An impressive service held in the Sunday-school room, and a sermon preached by Rev. Arthur Finn, the pastor, marked the funeral of Mrs. J. Hawkins, held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Thursday afternoon. A large gathering or relatives and friends, including representatives of the various departments of the church and Sunday-school, in which Mrs. Hawkins had been an active worked for many years, marked the last solemn rites, and masses of flowers were given in tribute.

"Our Human Limitations" was the subject of Rev. Mr. Finn's sermon and he alluded feelingly to the many acts of kindness which had marked the life of the departed. Supplementing his remarks, Rev. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., secretary of the local church, also spoke briefly upon the association with Mrs. Hawkins in church work. Music was a feature of the service, and Mrs. William H. Sobring, of Merchantville, sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Peace, Sweet Peace." Miss Emily M. Runyon acted as accompanist at the piano, and Alfred S. Mosher played a violin obligato for one of the songs. Mr. Mosher also played "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

The pall bearers were George E. Hall, W. F. Lowry, William E. Mosher, Charles H. Dunham and Arthur S. Mosher. The body was placed in the vault at Hillside, and committed this afternoon. Floral tributes included tokens from the Sunday-school, Christian Endeavor Society, Home and Foreign Mission circles of the church.

UNION'S FREEHOLDERS PLAN MORE BRIDGES

Several matters pertaining bridges throughout the county were considered at the May meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth Thursday. A committee appointed to consider the advisability of building a bridge on Plainfield avenue, Rahway, recommended the same as a necessity. The structure will be 60 feet in length and is not to cost more than $1,500.

The committee appointed to examine the bridge over Cedar brook, at the junction of Jackson and Midway avenues, recommended that the structure be extended to conform to the width of the road on Midway avenue, the cost not to exceed $350. Resolutions approving the plans to improve and macadamize Terrill road, as previously outlined, whereby it is to become a State aid road, were adopted.

The report of the committee on jail inspection, stated that everything was found to be in a satisfactory condition. During the past month ninety-eight prisoners were committed and a total of 169 were cared for, four having been buried on hill. When the board adjourned it did so to meet on Thursday, May 28, at which time the yearly appropriations will be made.

"ROGERS BROTHERS" DRAWS RECORD BREAKING CROWD.

The New Plainfield theatre attendance record was broken Friday night by the big crowd that witnessed "The Rogers Brothers in Panama." Long before the curtain went up, standing room was at a premium and when at 8:30 it became necessary to and by 8:30 it became necessary for the police and fire department to stop the admission sales.

The performance met expectations in every way and the Rogers brothers and their company were in fine trim. They were on the stage the greater part of the three acts and handed out laughs every few seconds, beside getting off several eccentric dances. Miss Marion Stanley, who was seen with the brothers last season, was even more charming than before and sang and danced prettily. She received five encores on one song, "Under the Palm Tree."

Scenically, the production was beautiful while the costumes were a wealth of color. The chorus numbered sixty, mostly girls.

Pygmy Camels.

The western part of Persia is inhabited by a species of camels which are the pygmies of their kind. They are snow white and are on that account almost worshipped by the people.

PER CAPITA COST OF SCHOOLS HIGHEST HERE

According to the State school report for 1907 just issued, Plainfield is highest in the per capita cost of education of all the cities in New Jersey. From the figures compiled the expense to the taxpayers for each pupil is $40.55, just $4.82 more than that paid by any other municipality.

Plainfield	$40.95
Englewood	36.13
Montclair	35.80
Rahway	33.36
East Orange	29.46
Newark	25.84
Bloomfield	25.72
Hoboken	24.72
Atlantic City	24.09
Asbury Park	23.77

South Jersey still holds the unenviable honor of conducting the cheapest schools in the State. Bridgeton is the lowest city in the State, with $12.51 per capita.

PLAN A CHAUTAUQUA FOR COLORED PEOPLE

Plainfield is the birth-place of the Chautauqua movement, started and organized by bishop Vincent, which has become a popular and satisfactory system of education for the people in general. A valuable property for Chautauqua purposes has been offered The Bible Education Association of Camden, N. J., with branch offices at Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D. C. This property consists of 13 acres, with a frontage on the Delaware river. It has a hotel of 100 rooms, thoroughly furnished in every respect; a bathhouse of 80 rooms; a fine artesian well, which supplies the hotel; a spring which possesses medicinal properties; a trolley line extends through the property, with fine roads running in every direction; fishing and sailing in a bay and river nearby; a splendid community and all adjacent properties in first-class condition. This property is about two hours from New York and Philadelphia.

The property is valued at $150,000 but is offered to the association for Chautauqua purposes for the colored people of the United States, for $50,000. The association has accepted the offer and has received already a donation of $11,000 on condition that the balance, $39,000; is raised. It is proposed to raise this amount immediately in order to get the benefit of this donation.

A Chautauqua has been maintained in Point Pleasant for 15 years, in a small but eminently helpful way, by some particular friends in Philadelphia assisted by the professors of Lincoln university. It is to be enlarged to the assembling of 1,000 in session not less than two months in the summer * * * * * *, and shall consist of the regular work of a Chautauqua, with special attention given to a thorough course in the English Bible; also a normal course of ing for public school teachers; first-class lecture and entertainment courses; special studies in Sociology, and a daily programme of religious services. The professors of Lincoln University, who have been assisting in such work, together with other universities and colleges, will make the Chautauqua programme equal to any in the country.

The following are some of the officers and friends of the association, who most heartily support and endorse the Chautauqua:

David James Burrell, D. D. LL. D., pastor Marble Collegiate church, New York; Isaac N. Rendall, D. D., ex-President Lincoln University, Lincoln University, Pa.; Rev. John W. Lee, D. D., pastor First African Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. M. Balderston, 902 Spring Garden street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Asbestos Club to Celebrate.

Having tired of the name of "The Plainfield Social Club," the members at a meeting Friday afternoon unanimously voted to return to the former name, "The Asbestos Club," by which the association was known for so many years. It was the opinion of all that the original name was by far the best. Preliminary arrangements were also discussed for celebrating the anniversary of the club, to be held in the near future. Meetings are now held in rooms in the Babcock Building and the older members are faithful attendants at the daily sessions of the club.

Wedding Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sutder gave a wedding reception at their home in Muhlenberg place last Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. Hynos, Mrs. Nellie Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Compton, Mr. Jesse Brown, Beele Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Isaac Smith, Mr. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. Vale Horn were among those present.

AUTOISTS MAY REGAIN OLD LICENSE NUMBERS

Especially important to the motoring public is the announcement by F. L. C. Martin, of the New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles, to the effect that all of those who apply at Mr. Martin's office, 312 Park avenue, on or before May 31, can retain their old numbers, and that after May 31 no old numbers will be issued, for all numbers in existence at the present time, unless renewed, will be canceled upon that date. This ruling of the Department of Motor Vehicles is made to appease those autoists who are aggrieved on the fact that their numbers were among the first issued, and who expect to lose their old licenses under the provisions of the new Frelinghuysen law.

Twenty-five days of grace remain in which automobilists of these parts may have their present licenses renewed. Those who apply after May 31 will receive numbers above 38,000. While a man's license may not expire before July 1 or later, he may take advantage of the ruling and have his number renewed now. That is, every autoist who wishes to retain his present number, no matter when his license expires, by applying to Mr. Martin can have licenses renewed from date of expiration.

Since Commissioner Smith's ruling was received by Mr. Martin some doubt has arisen as to what shall be done in the case of those motorists who have already relinquished their old numbers unwillingly and have been assigned positions above 38,000. There are some twenty cases of this sort in the local district of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

To only one provision of the law has there been severe opposition as yet. The new Frelinghuysen amendment provides that all licenses shall expire on December 31, irrespective of when issued, which means that a man whose license under the old law runs out in August or September, 1908, will have to pay the full year's fee under the new and increased schedule for a permit to drive his car until December 31, 1908.

Motorists can see little justice in this arrangement, and, in fact, Senator Frelinghuysen's original proposition provided that drivers registered under the old law should have to pay only pro rata from the time their old licenses expired, up to December 31.

Preparing to Improve Streets.

Now that the ordinance providing for the macadamizing of a number of streets throughout the city has been passed on the third reading by the Common Council, the street committee will at once begin the preliminary work. It is not the intention of the committee to do all the work during the present year, but an effort will be made to do as much as possible. The property-owners will pay two-thirds of the cost, while the city will pay the other third, the amount to be assessed the former being determined by a commission to be appointed by the Council. Some of the streets included among those to be improved are in the residential section, which has been neglected for some time.

So penetrating is water at high pressure that only special qualities of cast iron will withstand it.

INVITE REALTY BOOMERS

Board of Trade to Entertain Members of N.J. and N.Y. Real Estate Exchange.

ENDORSE NEW PUBLICATION.

Advertising Proves Rich Investment —No Moving Picture Shows Are Wanted in the Town.

The heavy downpour of rain did not dampen the ardor of at least an even dozen members of the Board of Trade, who attended the May meeting, Thursday. While the numbers were small there was considerable enthusiasm. President H. W. Marshall was in the chair and through his efforts a lively discussion of various matters followed.

At the suggestion of Elston M. French, the Board voted to invite the Board of Governors of the New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange, to visit Plainfield and give the members a sight-seeing automobile trip of the city and vicinity. The date will be determined upon later. The purpose of the visit is to acquaint the real estate men with the advantages of Plainfield as a place of residence.

Francis K. Anderson, city editor of The Evening Times, of Elizabeth, appeared before the Board for the purpose of securing its endorsement of a monthly periodical, to be known as "The Site Seeker," which will make its first appearance about July 1. Mr. Anderson stated that he was associated with Elden E. Moore, of The Daily Press office, who will attend to the advertising business of the magazine, while he will direct the editorial department. It was explained that in return for the endorsement and cooperation of the Board of Trade, four issues of the magazine each year will be devoted exclusively to advertising Plainfield and the Board is to have the privilege of deciding what matter shall appear. The first issue will be distinctly a Board of Trade issue and will be fully illustrated with local views. It is the purpose of the publishers to circulate the magazine throughout the whole Metropolitan district, and so have a bona-fide circulation. This fact will permit the members of the Plainfield Merchants' Association to support the periodical and it will not affect them in regard to a resolution recently adopted refusing to advertise in only in newspapers having a bona-fide paid circulation. The magazine will contain thirty-two pages, size 6x9. The Board of Trade gave its unqualified endorsement and spoke highly of the proposition.

Three new members were elected, they being John H. Doane, A. E. Faber, Jr., and the Rev. Ward Hedges. Secretary C. S. Herr made a report on the trip of the representatives of the Board to the opening of the McAdoo tunnels, and he also presented a letter from United States Senator John Kean acknowledging one from the Board in respect to his efforts in introducing a bill for a public building in Plainfield.

The secretary also stated that he is constantly receiving letters of inquiry from all parts of the country from persons wanting information about houses and factory sites in Plainfield. This is the result of the newspaper advertising done in Metropolitan dailies. In this connection he read a letter from Edwin D. Wilcox, a resident of New York city, who wants information about a site here for a metal factory, requiring 25,000 square feet of floor space. The matter will be attended to by Mr. Herr. Another moving picture concern wanted to locate here, but the members decided not to reply to the communication.

BOROUGH POLICE NAB TWO SIDEWALK CYCLISTS.

In accordance with the edict of Mayor Samuel Thompson, of North Plainfield, the borough police are enforcing strictly the ordinance in respect to bicycle riding on the sidewalks in North Plainfield. A. M. Parker, Jr., of Franklin place, was arrested Friday for biking on the sidewalk on Somerset street, and paid a fine of $3 for violation of the ordinance at his hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night. George Melick, who also lives in Plainfield was caught by Marshal Kiernan on Watchung avenue early this morning and will be given a hearing tonight.

The arrest of young Parker, who is about 18 years old, was made by Chief Weiss, who raced with the rider on a trolley car and caught him near Fritz place. Marshal Keller, who first saw Parker on the sidewalk, warned him off, and the boy turned into the street. The bicycling about a block from the officer, he swung up on the sidewalk again, and it is said, turned and laughed at Keller. Chief Weiss was on a north-bound trolley car and had seen the whole affair. He tipped off the motorman and the car speeded up so that the Chief could get off and arrest Parker farther up the street.

P.H.S. PUPILS' SUCCESS

Cast of Senior Class Presents "She Stoops to Conquer" at the New Plainfield Theatre.

AN ELABORATE PRODUCTION.

Genuine Dramatic Ability Showed by High School Pupils, Trained for Their Parts by Miss Elsie Goddard.

Surpassing all other classes in the history of the school in the elaborateness of the production, members of the High School Presbyterian church, Sunday, in the series on "The Apostles classic English comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday night. When one attends amateur theatricals the interest is a rule centres in the persons acting and any shortcomings in their presentation are overlooked by the friendly critic. But Saturday's acting by the pupils left little to be criticised and held the interest of even a stranger to the clever interpretations of the various parts.

"She Stoops to Conquer," as rendered at the theatre was produced under the direction of Miss Elsie Goddard, to whom belongs the credit for a large part of the evening's success. With Miss S. Lena Bass, Principal Ira W. Travell and S. B. Howe, Jr., of the school faculty, as coaches with her, Miss Goddard has been working with the cast for the past three months, and the play was presented according to the professional interpretation, which differs in many respects from the acting by the class of 1904 cast, as given at the Casino four years ago.

Charles R. Murphey, taking the part of "Tony Lumpkin," the mischievous young son of "Squire Lumpkin," made the comedy hit of the night, acting with a spontaneity in good accord with the part and winning applause time after time by his clever play and stage business. As the Squire, Percy Mygrant deserves especial mention for his interpretation of a staid, though peppery-tempered, old Englishman. Perhaps the most conspicuous hole to a stranger was the ale-house scene in the second act, where Tony and his stablemen comrades are seen making a night of it. Arthur B. Titsworth, John B. Schofield, Moss Rubenstein, C. Wallter J. Hammond, to whom with Murphey in this scene did some excellent acting and made an even greater hit at the four house servants in a later scene, where the dialect and by-play of Titsworth won applause.

Of the girls, Miss Esther B. Crampton, as "Kate Hardcastle," was particularly successful in her acting. As the leading character of the play, she won the audience by her interpretation in the second act and received the loud[est] applause. "Kate's" bashful love, "Marlowe," was successfully played by Orlando G. Lounsbury. A particularly difficult part, that of "Mrs. Hardcastle" was played by Miss Sara Sanderson in a manner worthy of high applause. The emotional acting, calling for displays of anger and fear, was particularly well done. Miss Elsa M. Cook's playing as "Constance Neville," showed that she, too, had acted[ ] and needed in a rather difficult part.

Although the class was under an expense of nearly $400 for the presentation, of which the elaborate costuming was at large item, W. B. Caldwell and William N. Rafferty, managers of the production, announce that the net proceeds are about $300.

The complete cast of characters, with the class executive staff for the play follows:

"Sir Charles Marlow," and "gulngo," Landlord of the "Three Pigeons," Sallo M. Kahn; "Young Marlow," Orlando H. Lounsbury; "Diggory," Landlord of Percy Lalt, Mygrant; "George Hastings," Donald C. Mortimer; "Tony Lumpkin," Channcey R. Murphey; "Diggory" and "Tom Twist," Arthur B. Titsworth; "Roger" and "Slang," John B. Schofield; "Dick" and "Mat" Muggins," Moss Rubenstein; "Thomas" and "Jeremy," Walter J. Hammond; Bar Boy, Leslie N. Leland; "Mrs. Hardcastle," Sara L. Sanderson; "Kate Hardcastle," Esther B. Crampton; "Constance Neville," Elsa M. Cook; Maid and Barmaid in "Three Pigeons," Katherine Gray.

Business managers, W. B. Caldwell and William V. Rafferty; property managers, Arthur B. Kahn and Arthur B. Titsworth; property managers, Isidare Rothberg and Moss Rubenstein; advertising manager, G. H. Pound; chairman candy committee, Carola E. Hart; ushers, A. C. Nash, Henry Pound, William T. Lambert, John Dutcher and Wallace Pearce. The musical program by the theatre orchestra was under the direction of Charles M. Suhr and was well rendered.

WORKING FOR MISSIONS

Twenty-seventh Anniversary of Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity

REPORTS ARE ENCOURAGING.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson Makes Address—Musical Features During Service.

Encouraging reports of the past year's work from the secretary, Mrs. M. G. Woodruff, and the treasurer, Mrs. L. B. DuBrau, together with an appropriate sermon on the subject, "The Right Spirit," by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, combined to make the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, a pleasant and profitable event, Sunday. Over thirty members of the society attended the service in a body and occupied seats in the front of the church.

During the opening part of the services, the quartet choir, Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; Fred R. Cutler, bass and Edmund D. Young, tenor, rendered several anthems, with solo parts by Miss Raybert and Miss Carroll.

The report of Mrs. Woodruff stated that of the membership of forty-nine, many were kept from the meetings through the year by illness, but the average attendance was over that of the preceding year. There have been no deaths in the society. The sewing meetings have had a higher average of attendance. One box of useful articles was sent to Rev. Bernard Christian, of Rhinelander, Wisconsin, valued at $165.75. Another barrel valued at $21.92 was sent to Rev. Thomas Nanee, a colored minister working among his people at Lynchburg, S. C. In addition the usual barrels of clothing was forwarded to the Schofield School, Aiken, S. C., which contained all such articles that were deemed unsuitable to be sent either in the box or barrel, but which are always acceptable here in the work of making the negro self-reliant. Three were sent valued at $24.50.

Beside this medical supplies were sent to Grey Hawk, Kentucky, through the mission band. $25 toward the beginning of the work among the Mescalers Apache Indians and $30 for the general work of the Women's Board. The society also sent $40.50 and forty-one articles for the summer sewing guild for general work of the church, for the work. Grateful remembrance was also made of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, who recently severed his pastoral relations.

General fund—Balance on hand, May 1, 1907, $188.13; received during the year from special collections, proceeds of strawberry festival, musical and other entertainments, total $655.02. Disbursements on account of the above, $289.25, balance, $365.77. Missionary fund—Received from collections during year for missionary purposes, $60; special gifts to missionary fund, $35; total, $95. Disbursements—check to Mrs. White for work among the Indians, $25; Board of Foreign Missions to send out a new missionary, $3; Board of Foreign Mission for Arabian work, $5; Board of Foreign Missions, $30; Board of Domestic Missions, $20; total, $95. Sewing fund—amount collected during the year, $12.90; disbursements on account of same, $12.90. Poor fund—balance received from Mrs. Clark, $1.90; amount received during the year, $4.82, total $6.72, which has been transferred to the general fund.

Registration—balance received from Mrs. Clark, treasurer, $168.12; proceeds from strawberry festival and collection of fines and dues during the year, $181.60; moneys raised by special collections and musical and church purposes, $267.99; collections and special gifts for missionary work, $95; collections for sewing fund, $12.90; collections for poor fund, $6.72, total, $752.34. Disbursements on account of same, $586.57, with a balance of $165.77.

Following the reports Dr. Johnson delivered an impressive and interesting sermon on the theme, "The Right Spirit," in which he took occasion to commend the members of the Ladies' Christian Work Society and say "well done." He said that he did not doubt but that if the hearing of the women was keener they might hear the Blessed Master say "well done." He said he thought the women were next to the angels in the ranks of the G. A. R., who do not want fulsome praise, when they gather at such services, but rather want the cause they represent magnified, and all any praise is to be given it should be for those who suffered and labored hard and long.

"I realize that it is not fulsome praise you want," said Dr. Johnson, "but your spirit stirred to loftier aspirations and devotion to your work. The right spirit would be your desire and prayer to God for greater things in the future. In the history of the home church there is none so great as that of the weaker sex. To women in their puttering way, as some people chose to call it, have accomplished a great deal, collecting pennies, nickels and dimes, and the men of the church are catching some of that spirit and undertaking great things.

"In fifteen cities in this country the men of the churches have promised to raise five times the amount given last year for missions. I expect to live to see the time when we shall still hold the lead, at $5 a member. We were predestinat-1 to conform to the image of His Son. The spirit of the man shapes his character and it is most important what kind of a spirit he has. The actions of our daily life makes it important that we should have that spirit that is pleasing in God's sight."

In conclusion Dr. Johnson spoke personally of the way he had been inspired to loftier things by the helpful music of the choir in anthems and songs and by the unanimous support of the members of the church helping him to more clearly discern the will of God.

The church was simply, but appropriately decorated with flowers for the occasion by Mrs. George Cole and Mrs. L. B. VanCamp.

LAY PREACHERS IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

In Christ church, Broadway and Seventy-first street, New York, occurred Sunday night the commencement of a school which is unlike any other in America or England. It is the Church Workers Commons and was begun last January, somewhat as an experiment. The Rev. Dr. George R. Nelson, archdeacon of New York, presided and addresses were made by laymen from the school.

The Commons is unique in its assumption that there are business men in New York who after working all the week stand ready to go on Sundays and perhaps on a week night or two and conduct religious services in missions too weak as yet to afford the services of ordained men; that there are men also who are desirous of speaking and able to speak upon missionary work before men's clubs and at parlor meetings, even if they have never been to Japan or Alaska, or other mission fields about which they presume to tell others. No pay is offered to these men for their work. They are required to pay their own car fares and often to contribute to causes they might not otherwise be compelled to help.

That commencement of the school last night showed that there are such men in steadily increasing numbers. The school is confined to the Episcopal church. For its initial year more than twenty men enrolled as students besides a equal number of women, or a total enrollment of fifty-eight.

NOVELTY RACE.

Now that cycle racing has been placed on a firm foundation, as was shown by the big turnout at the opening meet at Vallsburg Sunday, the management of the new track intend to introduce a new style of racing next Sunday, with the idea of treating the fans to something novel in the racing game. It is an importation from France and is known as the Repecage Handicap. It will be a handicap for amateurs, and is said it will be the first occasion it will have been tried in this country.

The plan is to assemble the riders on their marks, the same as in a regular handicap, but instead of sending them all off at once, to have a separate heat for the combatants on the different marks, starting the limit men off first, and having only one to qualify in each heat.

In other words, if there were five men on the limit mark at 250 yards, the second mark in the first heat alone, and after they had crossed the tape the three men at 225 yards would be sent away, and so on down, with separate heats, to the scratch men.

Then, after all the heats had been decided, the men qualifying in each heat would go in a "repecage" heat and three from that would qualify for the final, with the others who had qualified in the regular heats.

This style of race has attained great popularity in France, and its novel qualities are expected to make it popular here.

There will be six races on the card Sunday, and they promise some good sport. It is the professionals there will be a ten-mile open, with a prize for the leader in each lap; a half-mile handicap, and a sixth of a mile sprint against time. In this latter event each contestant will get off alone and after doing one lap around, the man making the best time winning first prize, and so on for four places.

Beside the repecage handicap, the amateurs will have a half-mile open handicap for the three mile novice. Jake Deroiser, the Freeman boy will appear in an exhibition against time with a motor-cycle, as an extra attraction.

C. E. Mass Meeting at Trinity.

The joint union of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church for Thursday night, May 23, for a public mass meeting. A large chorus choir, under the direction of Charles L. Lewis, will sing. Arthur L. Titsworth will preside at the organ. Several prominent speakers have been secured for the occasion.

DISCOURSES ON CREED

AN INSTRUCTIVE SERMON.

Resurrection a Basic Truth of Christian Faith—Two Great Thoughts.

"The Resurrection and Ascension of Our Lord," was the theme of the sixth discourse by Rev. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, last night, in the series on "The Apostles Creed." Dr. Herring declared that the Resurrection is the basic truth of the Christian faith and emphasized the fact that the resurrection of body as well as spirit. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"The Resurrection of our Lord is the basic truth of our faith for if Christ did not rise from the dead, our faith is vain. That resurrection was not simply the resurrection of His spirit, while His body remained in the tomb; it was the resurrection of body and spirit. His body after the resurrection was recognized to be the same body that had been crucified. He showed to His disciples the print of the nails. For forty days subsequent to the resurrection, the body of our Lord while it was the same yet possessed new powers. In this form He was not always recognized. He had the power of revealing or concealing His identity. The disciples on the way to Emmaus did not recognize Him until He broke bread with them. He appeared in the midst of the disciples the door was shut. This indication of Scripture is that His body during these forty day had passed through a wonderful transformation; a further transformation awaited the body at the end of this time when our Lord ascended. Our Lord's material body then is the body that ascended and was glorified.

"There are two great thoughts that are suggested by the resurrection of Christ:

"Firstly, He glorified our humanity. He laid nothing aside that belongs to the fullness of human nature.

"Secondly, He revealed this truth that heaven must be a place, for Christ's body arose to that glorious world.

"This part of the Creed naturally emphasizes the Resurrection and Ascension of our Lord. It tells us that He is an ever-living Lord. In that magnificent picture in the first chapter of the Apocalypse we read our Lord's wonderful revelation to John. Among other things He said, 'I am He that liveth and was dead and behold I am alive forevermore.' Our Lord today is a living Christ. The symbol of our faith is an empty cross. We believe at a particular day in the history of our Lord He died and forty days after the Resurrection He ascended. That is history. The present inspiring fact is this—He lives, He sitteth at the right hand of God, the Father Almighty.

"He not only lives but He is actively engaged in the business of the world.

"Martin Luther had a very vivid conception of the devil. There is a spot on the wall of Wartburg Castle to this day, where Luther says he threw his inkstand because he saw the face of the devil. The devil, he said, was his constant tempter, who tempted him to gloom, doubt and despair, but he had just one way to conquer him and that was always successful. He would take up the book on his desk or if he had nothing else he would go to the wall and write with a piece of chalk. 'The Lord lives, the Lord lives' and said Martin Luther, 'The Devil never could stand that.'

"Perhaps you have never had such a vivid conception of the devil as that, but you do know from your own experience, the power of doubt. How shall you conquer it? By bringing to your remembrance the fact that the Lord lives.

"When the followers of John realized that he was dead, we read that they took up his body and buried it, and came and told Jesus. That was all. Three days after Jesus was buried, His disciples returned from the sepulchre with fear and great joy because He was not a dead Christ, but a risen, living Christ.

"This part of the Creed likewise declares this truth; that Christ today is Lord of the world. He sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty.' That is the place of honor and power.

"We are told of a certain great man whom the citizens of Florence in their enthusiasm would have made king. They said to him, 'To you, Ferrara, we owe everything: our lives, our liberty, our speech and our great city. We will make you King of the Kingdom,' but Ferrara said in reply, 'Men of Florence, I cannot be your King, but I will tell you of one who will if you let him be a King to you. Men of Florence, make Jesus your King;' and so on the doors of the Palazzo Vecchio there is this inscription, 'Jesus Christ is King of Kings and Lord of Lords.'

"When that remarkable man Henry Drummond was dying, he rose for a moment to confess Jesus as his Lord: 'This is his confession: 'I'm not ashamed to own my Lord or to defend His cause, maintain the honor of His word, the glory of His Cross.' To Drummond Jesus was King. Will not every man be better for recognizing the Kingship of the Lord Jesus over his life?"

JUDGE DILL SCORES A LOAN ASSOCIATION

Judge James B. Dill, in the Court of Errors and Appeals, filed a decision Monday at Trenton in which the officers and directors of the State Mutual and Building Loan Association of New Jersey, including some politicians of note in the State, are vigorously scored for malfeasance in office.

Dennis Ryan appealed to the Court from an order of Vice Chancellor Leaming, who refused to appoint a receiver for the insolvent association, but permitted trustees, selected by the shareholders at the instance of the offending directors, to undertake to wind up its affairs. Court of Errors reversed the Vice Chancellor's decision last week, but the opinion was not filed until today.

Judge Dill holds that the act under which the trustees were appointed is not applicable to insolvent building and loan associations, and is intended only to permit the winding up of the affairs of solvent corporations where the creditors are not involved, and where the shareholders can see that their own interests will be best conserved by the dissolution of the association. The opinion states:

"Insolvency was demonstrated. But, more than this, there was made a prima facie case of malfeasance on the part of officers and directors. The inference is strong that the appointment of these trustees by the chancellor was procured by the directors and officers with a view to covertly maintaining the control not alone of the assets of the company but as well of the institution and maintenance of legal proceedings to which officers and directors might be proper parties.

"If this be the fact, then the proceedings resulting in the appointment of the trustees was a palpable attempt on the part of the directors and officers to avail themselves, in consequence of the appointment of an independent receiver, whose duty it might be to call the officers and directors to account and to hold them responsible for the failure of the company to the extent they were

Officers and directors of the association, which had its headquarters at Camden, as shown by the last report made by the State Department of Banking and Insurance, were:—Judge Amber Harding, Camden, president; J. Willard Morgan, formerly State Controller, Camden, vice president; the Rev. E. B. Brace, Blackwood, treasurer; Israel G. Adams, Atlantic City; P. Bakey, Vineland; Harrell P. Cassell, Camden; Marry. KIRMESS A REVELATION who galloped on for the final number in hunting costume and closed this part of the program. The Steeplechasers is the most fatiguing dance of all but the performers never shirked a particle. This statement may be slightly amended by saying that Miss Helen Hooley refused to "take" a hurdle, an original conception that made a distinct "hit."

The steeplechase was followed by the voting for the most popular dances, an account of which is given elsewhere, and in conclusion a grand march and tableau were given. This served to show the large number of participants in the Kirmess and also revealed as nothing else could the contrast in costumes. To use an old phrase it was a "riot of color" and as the dancers moved about in the grand march figure it resembled a magnificent kaleidascope.

The Misses Fiorance, of Elizabeth, who arranged and have charge of the undertaking, were highly satisfied with the success of the opening and praised the young people in sincere terms. Mayor Fisk, the leading spirit in the affair, was also greatly pleased with the performance and enthusiastically declared, "Plainfield has never seen anything like it." In an opening address before the curtain arose he stated that he hoped to get $5,000 for the hospital as a result of the Kirmess and that he was sure what would be given in return would be worth the money. The mayor is chairman of the general committee and his assistants are J. E. Erickson, treasurer; Henry C. Hall, S. D. Lounsbury, W. C. Kinney, E. H. Ladd, Jr., Frederick W. Butler, L. G. Timpson and William R. Townsend.

In addition to the attraction furnished by the dances, the visitor to the theatre will find lots of other things to interest him at the same time add to the proceeds. The Women's Auxiliary has placed booths in the rear of the orchestra floor, and from these are sold flowers, lemonade, candy, souvenirs, ice cream and cakes for a good bit. Mrs. Fred Wright, Butler is the general chairman of this feature, with Mrs. W. L. Glenney as treasurer, while the various booths are presided over as follows:

ON EVE OF HORSE SHOW

ENTRY LIST CLOSE TO 500.

Special Exhibit on Saturday Morning to Facilitate Judging—Time for Appearance of Classes.

The gentleman who gives advance information on the weather having stated that clear skies will prevail for the remainder of the week, nothing now stands in the way of complete success for the fifth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club which begins tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. With an entry list close to 500 and the pick of the blue ribbon horses and ponies in the various classes, it promises to be the greatest exhibition of equines ever witnessed outside of Madison Square Garden or St. Martin's Green. All the boxes and auxiliaries have been taken and the sale of reserved seats is exceptionally brisk. La Vere's band will furnish music at all the sessions.

As the first compilation of entries it was thought that morning sessions would have to be held on all three days of the show but it has since been found that this will be necessary only on Saturday. The judging will start at 10 o'clock and close in time to march before the regular afternoon program commences. Holders of tickets for this day can attend both sessions without extra cost. Tomorrow and Friday the first calls for entrance will be given at 1 o'clock.

A second special train bearing horses belonging to Judge W. H. Moore, Reginald Vanderbilt and Paul Sorg reached the city this afternoon. It came through from Philadelphia where all the above mentioned last week and brought also many thousands of dollars worth of vehicles to be seen in the ring with the harness classes. Special passenger trains will leave New York for the convenience of show attendants on all three days, 12 o'clock from Liberty street and 11:56 from Twenty-third street. The Arlington avenue trolley line passes the south gate of the grounds.

Beside the competition that will naturally take place between the Vanderbilt, Moore, Hooley, Watson and Sorg horses, keen interest has been aroused in the announcement that Sidney Halloway will bring all his hunters and jumpers to the exhibition. They are considered the finest string in the country and are generally ridden by the owner, an expert in putting horses over high barriers.

The following list of judges has been announced: Roadsters, Rensselaer Weston and Theodore Frelinghuysen, New York; harness horses and ponies in harness, James G. Marshall and Louis Haight, New York; saddle horses and ponies under saddle, Joseph Larocque, Jr., Bernardsville; Louis Haight, New York; hunters and jumpers, H. L. Herbert, New York; veterinary judge, Dr. E. R. Voorhees, D. V. S., Somerville. The horse show committee is composed of R. A. Fairbairn, chairman; W. J. Suttell, George Mellick, Charles W. Smith, Daniel Runkle, Edwin S. Woolley, Lewis R. Wood, Lewis G. Timpson and Harry L. Finch.

Following is the time-schedule for each day of the show as announced in the official program by the club:

SELECTING SITE FOR P.O.

FOLLOWING THE REGULATIONS.

Bids Will Be Advertised for in a Local Paper—Just How the Government Proceeds.

Now that the $100,000 appropriation for a Federal building for Plainfield seems assured, inasmuch as the bill passed by Congress now awaits the President's approval, many inquiries are being made by local property owners and business men interested in the upbuilding of the town as to how a site is selected. For the benefit of the local public, The Daily Press has obtained an official statement of the methods employed by the Treasury Department in securing such sites for public buildings.

The statement follows:

Upon the enactment of a law authorizing the acquisition of a site for a Federal building the Treasury Department invites, through a local newspaper, proposals for the sale or donation of a suitable corner. This advertisement gives such information as to the dimensions of the site and the general requirements as will enable intelligent preparation of proposals.

The offers are opened in Washington at the time stated in the advertisement, and as soon thereafter as practicable an agent of the Department is sent to make a personal examination of the proposed locations and such others as he deems desirable. Upon this report, together with representations in writing from other sources, the Department selects the site and, if the property is to be acquired by purchase, accepts the offer of the successful bidder, subject to the conditions stated in the advertisement and the Attorney-General's approval of the title.

When ever the Department is unable to purchase an acceptable site at a reasonable price, or where acceptable title can not be secured by voluntary conveyance, a selection is made and the title acquired by condemnation proceedings, in which the price to be paid is judicially determined.

The buildings (if any) on the site should be reserved by the vendor, to be removed upon notice after payment for the land has been made. Generally, notice to move is not given until the construction of the Federal building is about to begin, if the vendor is willing, pending such removal, to pay a reasonable ground rent.

Plans for public buildings are taken up in the order in which the titles to the sites therefor are vested in the United States, and the contracts for their construction are let at as early a date as practicable.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Bail Fixed at $300 Each in Cases of Italians Implicated in Stabbing Affray.

Frederick Periano and Loro Salvino, the two Italians implicated in the stabbing affray on Elm place, Sunday night, were arraigned before Judge Risley yesterday afternoon. They were charged with felonious assault and entered pleas of not guilty. Bail was fixed at $300 in each case. Periano, represented by Robert Newton Crane, secured the amount but Salvino is still locked up. Walter L. Hetfield is his lawyer.

John Mutti, the man who was stabbed, told the police at the hospital yesterday, that the fight was the outcome of a quarrel that had its beginning last summer and was renewed after a speaking party in the borough Sunday afternoon.

Missionary Work in Review.

Chamblin formed the main exercise of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. The subject for the devotional service was "Bible Characters, our Teachers and examples" and the comments of Mrs. Chamblins were full of interest and instruction. By request, Mrs. B. J. Shreve read the report of the work for foreign missions of the Baptist women of New Jersey, presented at the annual meeting held at New Brunswick May 7.

MISS WHITNEY'S RECITAL

Nearly 600 People Hear Piano Selections by Her Pupils at Truell Hall.

WM. N. SEARLES, JR., ASSISTS.

Newark Basso Cantante Sings Several Selections—Meritorious Work of Miss Whitney's Pupils.

Pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney rendered a delightful program of piano music at Truell Hall last night, at the annual recital of the class. The ball-room of the hall was crowded with music-lovers, who came in great numbers; it is estimated that nearly six hundred people were at the hall for the recital, which ranks as the most successful of the class.

William Nelson Searles, Jr., basso cantante and precentor of St. Paul's church, Newark, assisted in the recital by his rendition of "Vision Fugitive" from Massenet's "Herodiade," and Bailey's "The Calm and the Storm," as well as two songs in the second part of the program. Mr. Searles has sung before Plainfield audiences several times, but his work last night was of exceptional merit, the selections being especially suited to his large range and establishing him as a most effective singer.

Of the pupils, Miss Frances Rittenhouse, who played selections from Chopin and Liszt, and Miss Muriel Collins, who rendered one of Chopin's ballads, deserve especial mention for their playing. Miss Helen George showed perfect appreciation in her two selections. The playing of the other pupils showed careful interpretation of the pices rendered. All the playing was from memory and played with accuracy and expression of careful instruction.

The rendition of "The Evening Star" from Tannhauser" by Miss Elizabeth Martin was one of the most enjoyable features of the program, which follows:

Andante from Sonaina Op. 4, No. 1, (Lichner); "Curious Story," (Heller), by Miss Dorothy Stelle; Berceuse, (Grieg), Octave Study in A, (Preyer), by Miss Martine Weeks; Rondo in F. (Clementi), "The Tulip," (Lichner), by Miss Mildred Burnett; Minuet in B Minor, (Schubert), by Miss Florence Dickerson; "Vision Fugitive" from "Herodiade," (J. Massenet), "The Calm and the Storm," (E. H. Bailey), by Mr. Searles, accompanied by Miss Whitney; "The Evening Star" from Tannhauser," (Wagner-Spindler), by Miss Elizabeth Martin; Berceuse, (Thome), Air de Ballet in G, (Chaminade), by Miss Mary Radford; Valse Chromatique, (Leschetizsky), by Miss Ethel Pryor; "The Ghost in the Chimney," (Kallak), Gavotte in B Flat, (Handel), by Miss Julia Rawley; "Oh, Promise Me," (De Koven-Rogers), Norwegian Bridal Procession Passing By, (Cheig), by Miss Marguerite Van Zandt; Romanze, (Orth), Valse Entraint, (Wachs), by Miss Edith Hamilton; Impromptu in F sharp, (Chopin), Le Regats Venazands, (Liszt), by Miss Frances Rittenhouse; "Forest Song," (Conradin Kreutzer), "Asthore," (H. Trotere), by Mr. Searles; "Hark, Hark the Lark," (Schubert-Liszt), Chromatique Valse, (Godard, by Miss Helpen George; Ballads in A Flat, (Chopin), by Miss Muriel Collins.

His counsel, Robert Newton Crane, made an earnest appeal in behalf of the defendant that was taken in consideration.

In passing setence, Judge Atwater mentioned the gravity of the offense and stated that the maximum penalty, fifteen years and a fine of $2,000. Wilbur is forty years old and was employed for a time by a local slate roofer. He left the city just previous to the time the charge was made against him and was arrested at Asbury Park.

DECREASE IN DISEASES

Board of Health Reports Show That May was a Healthful Month.

BARBER SHOPS INSPECTED.

Nineteen Tonsors Get Licenses for Another Year—Population of City Gains Six.

According to the reports presented at the June meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, there was a decided decrease in the number of cases of communicable disease for the month of May. The epidemic of measles prevalent in the spring has subsided. The different diseases reported for the month are as follows: Scarlet fever, 3; Diphtheria, 1; typhoid fever, 3; measles, 10; tuberculosis, 3; total, 20. One case of communicable disease was removed to the isolation ward at the hospital.

An inspection of all the drug stores, grocery stores and places where ice cream is being manufactured or sold, was made, special attention being paid to the source of the milk and cream supply used in the manufacture of ice cream and the cleanliness of the conditions under which ice cream is made. The inspector reported that generally speaking all the places were found in good condition.

As all the barber shop permits expired on June 1, a thorough inspection was made of all the shops in the city. With one exception, all those applying for a renewal of their permits have complied with the requirements of the ordinance regarding barber shops, and the following permits were granted:

J. F. W. Bamberger, William Feirling, Joseph Clement, Charles G. Mann, P. J. Kreitling, Donato Di Lorando, Spencer Kelly, William C. Burns, Edward B. Maynard, Frank Tritsiano, Michael J. Devine, Brown & Bill, William B. Randolph, Nicolas Rocco, Charles Suhr, Antonio Brancati, T. A. Kurzhals, George Richter, and Alfred Seidel. The following barbers have failed to put in their applications for a renewal of their permits: George Kesselring, James H. Bolling, Raffey Tozze and Caruso & Co., and they were given until June 15 to make application. Upon failure to do so their shops will be closed.

The population of the city, however was laid on the table for one month, in order to give time for certain improvements to be made and the applications of D. J. Thompson and Cyrus W. Alton for permits to conduct soda fountains in the Park Theatre.

During May sixty-three samples of milk were analyzed, twenty-seven being taken from stores. The quality of the milk was good, but the bacteria, compared with the previous month, was high, due probably to the hot weather.

These plumber's bonds were ordered filed: A. S. Giles, J. J. Heidloff, Harry Taub, A. H. Enander, J. J. Leahy, Jacob Voehl, Jr., and D. W. Littell & Son.

These applications for permits to sell milk were granted:

Plainfield Milk and Cream Company, E. P. Gavin, W. W. Drake, Chris. J. Kelly, Swenson Brothers, William Olson, Peter Rose, J. Herbermann, C. W. Squires, A. R. Philipi, P. J. Regan and Hiram Tompkin. To sell milk from stores: Mrs. Margentino, Metropolitan Grocery Company, S. Sharkey, F. J. Skinner, P. H. Firebrook, P. Zimmerman, James Clawson, Soloman Mann, Thomas Callahan & Son, Kalmen Rottberg, Samuel Kline, C. O. Smith and W. W. Wilson.

The applications of Edward Coughlin, John H. Flick and John McCarty were referred to the health officer with power. The application of Freeman Strait to collect garbage was laid on the table for a month and the application of George Becker for a renewal of his permit to carry on the business of scavenger, was granted. These returns were made to the office during May: Marriages, 12; births, 29; still-births, 1; deaths, 23; total, 75.

No Decision in Contract Case.

No decision has been given as yet in the contract case of the Ransom Concrete Company against C. M. Meeker, in which the company seeks to recover $225 for the rental of a concrete mixer. Judge Newcorn instructed counsel in the case to file briefs, and this has not been done yet. When it is Judge Newcorn will decide the case.

WELCOME NEW SECRETARY

HE OUTLINES HIS PLANS.

President J. W. Gavett and Charles R. Scott, of Newark, Also Speak at Reception of Welcome.

Welcoming Charles B. Batchelor, the new boys' secretary at the Y. M. C. A., who began his duties as successor to L. A. Soule at the local association today, sixty members of the boys' department turned out to a reception in the new secretary's honor at the Y. M. C. A. last night. As president of the boys' cabinet of the department, G. Stanley Robins made the formal address of welcome, assuring Mr. Batchelor of the support of the boys in his work here.

In his remarks in response to this speech, Mr. Batchelor said it was not his policy to talk of his plans at the outset, but to get right down to work and make the growth of the department speak for him. "In order to be successful in my work here," Mr. Batchelor continued, "I want the cooperation of each and every member of the department. I want every member of the department to regard me as a personal friend at all times. There is an opportunity here to greatly increase the membership of the department, but in planning this growth, I look to the boys for support. I am still a boy myself and am here to get right in with the fellows and show them how to have the best kind of fun."

President Gavett, of the association, was another speaker, outlining the growth of the department and welcoming the new officer. State Secretary Charles R. Scott, of Newark, spoke briefly of the plans to inaugurate a Jersey Coast association of the boys at the seaside for the summer months. He also spoke of Camp Wawayanda, the summer camp for association men.

During the evening the boys' department orchestra of ten pieces rendered several selections. The program was in charge of Philip V. Van Arsdale. Refreshments were served by the boys' work committee of the Women's Auxiliary. The members of the committee were Mrs. J. W. Gavett, president, Mrs. Roger F. Murray, Mrs. Mary Jenkins and Mrs. C. B. Steiner.

Mr. Batchelor, who graduated from Columbia University in the class of 1906, comes to this city from the West Side Y. M. C. A., where he has been associate director in the boys' department.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother after which Mr. and Mrs. Carroll left for a wedding trip with Schenectady, N. Y., as the destination. They will be gone ten days and on returning will make their home with Mrs. Moran. The young couple received many handsome wedding gifts, including one from Mr. Carroll's fellow firemen.

APPROVE SEWAGE SCHEME

MR. FLORANCE INTERVIEWED.

New Brunswick's Chief Executive, However, Declines to Express Opinion Until Officially Notified.

Mayor Fisk's special message to the Common Council advocating an investigation of a scheme for a joint sewage disposal plant for Plainfield and the surrounding communities, as announced yesterday, has met with popular endorsement in both the city and the borough. His idea is that Plainfield should join forces with South Plainfield, North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Dunellen, New Market, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick in this movement. According to the scheme the plant would be located below New Brunswick and the sludge would be carried in scows to deep sea.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who advocated such a scheme during his last years as the head of North Plainfield's government, is enthusiastic over Mayor Fisk's message on the subject. In speaking of it today he said:

"The plan is all right but should be investigated before Plainfield spends any more money on its present plant and before North Plainfield signs that proposed agreement with Blainfield for the city to care for its sewage. Improvements to the Plainfield plant from time to time are only a temporary nature and mean a heavy burden for the taxpayer. In my opinion the day is not far distant, considering our rapidly growing population in this section of the State, when this question must be solved once and for all.

"The most satisfactory solution of the vexing problem of sewage disposal," continued Mr. Smalley, "would be in the sensible and economical way that Mr. Fisk suggests. A joint plant for a large territory means less cost to all taxpayers concerned and the result would be more satisfactory all around. This plan has long been advocated by public men and I am glad to see Mayor Fisk revive it. You may depend upon it that if I can be of any service to Plainfield's mayor in this movement, he'll find me ready and willing. What is needed is action not words at this time and I believe in work and not talk."

Mayor Townsend, of North Plainfield, today said "That is a bully scheme of Mayor Fisk's. I heartily approve of such a plan. From time to time more restrictions will be placed on various cities as to sewage disposal methods, and every year this will face new problems therefore, I believe that Mr. Fisk has struck the right idea."

When Mayor W. Edwin Florance, of New Brunswick, was asked today what he thought of the plan he declined to say, for the present at this time. "It would not be proper for me to express an opinion," said he, "before I am officially notified of the plan by the city of Plainfield."

The mayor's message was referred to the committee of the whole, of which Councilman Mygatt is chairman, by the city fathers on Monday night. It is understood that this committee will formally notify Mayor Florance.

BOY FISHERMAN LANDS ALLIGATOR IN STONY BROOK.

While fishing in Stony Brook yesterday afternoon, Andrew Carney Jr., of A. L. Carney, of Lincoln place, son of A. L. Carney, of Lincoln place, landed a fourteen inch alligator with a hook and line. The reptile had been hooked like a fish and caused no end of surprise by its appearance when the boy reeled in. Andrew quit fishing right there, and took his final catch home in state. He is planning to keep it as a pet.

Stories of how the gator came to be in the brook were rife in the borough yesterday, and some folks stated that they thought they saw its ma, wandering around on the bank. It is most probable, however, that the little fellow escaped from some aquarium and has been lying dormant in the mud all winter long.

Rev. Dr. Johnson in Charge.

Rev. Dr. E. R. Johnson, acting pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will have charge of the preparatory service at the church on Friday night, and the elders will meet after the service to receive persons desiring to unite with the church. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed Sunday morning.

ENIORS BEAT FACULTY

H. S. Teachers' Nine Defeated by 1908 Class Team 16-11.

BURLESQUE BALL GAME.

Pupils Turned Out in Force to See Annual Faculty Game, Where Pedagogic Baseball Proved a Failure.

High class baseball was played at Crescent Oval Thursday afternoon when the nine representing the Plainfield High School faculty went down a defeat before the senior class team of the school, by a score of 16-11. The senior class is the highest class in the school,—that's the only excuse for calling it a high class game. Be it said, nonetheless, that if the faculty error column had been the run column, the defeat would have been changed to an overwhelming victory for the pedagogues.

It was a gala day for the High School. Everybody turned out to see the game, the seniors supporting their team, and the rest of the student body cheering the lucky plays of the teachers' nine. The ticket office was transformed into a booth, decorated with the senior class colors, and lemonade, candy and cake were served the schoolboys by Miss Elsa Cook, Miss Marjorie Harris and Miss Cornelia Lounsbury. Lemonade for the faculty players was dispensed by Miss M. E. Perry and Miss Helen Pope, assisted by Miss Sara Sanderson and Miss Esther Crampton.

"Ben" Evans, Professor of Cleanliness at the school, was on the slab for the faculty, and after the schoolboys had scored fourteen runs in six innings off his delivery, the pedagogues came to a mathematical conclusion that he had been batted out of the box in the second inning. He was accordingly transferred to second base, and Lindsey Best, of the science department, worked out the remaining baseball formulae from the box. Best used to go to Hamilton College and still remembers some practical baseball, so the seniors got but three hits off his delivery.

Seeing the teachers change their pitcher, "Mose" Rubenstein, who had been on the slab for the pupils, retired to give Francis Foster a chance. Then things happened. With the score 14-9 in favor of the seniors, Foster, assistant in the Macnab commercial department, and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson bases on balls. S. B. Howe, Jr., the next batter, made history for his school course by hitting a beautiful single. As a result Mr. Maxson romped in approved drill manual fashion and Dr. Maxson canteped around the bags and finally across the rubber 'mid the wildest cheering. Howe afterwards scored on "Otter" Dunne's two-bagger, and the danger of a shut-out was past. In the eighth, "unsteadiness" on the part of the seniors, let in eight faculty runs, and dozen men came to bat before the third out was made. Principal Travell, Hubbard, of Harvard, Macnab and Howe solved the formula of Foster's delivery and made base hits. George Broadhurst, assistant in the dust analysis department of the school, got excited at this stage of the game, and "vowed" it was almost as exciting as cricket, "'pon my honor." After he made his run, he went all around the crease,—no, the diamond,—trying to "place a wager."

In an effort to support Governor Hughes in his campaign against betting, Hubbard, Macnab and Dr. Maxson quit figuring on Foster's delivery and struck out, ending the game. The seniors scored two runs in the seventh. By action of the Board of Education, the box score for the faculty has been suppressed, but it is said that those official cards are so low that all members of the faculty except Principal Travell are ineligible to play next year.

FARMER EASY FOR THIEVING BEARS

ROBBED OF APPLES, CORN AND HONEY BECAUSE HE FEARED A FINE IF HE SHOT.

COSTS HIM HIS DOG, TOO

Trout Run, Pa.—Michael Cromister, an aged farmer in the wild Bobst mountain district, has suffered severely from the ravages of a family of black bears, which he was not permitted to kill under the game laws.

Cromister is past 70 years of age. He and his aged wife live alone on a small farm, their house being nearly two miles away from the nearest neighbor, while just beyond their place begins the wild wooded scope that extends far away into southeastern Tioga county, embracing the famous Blockhouse and Nauvoo hunting territory. Cromister has been a hunter and trapper all his life, and has many a nick in the butt of his old-fashioned rifle to show the number of deer and bear slain. He is still a sure shot, despite his years.

About two months ago he read in his county newspaper that a farmer in the Nauvoo country had been arrested, and fined $50 under the provisions of the new game law for killing a black bear. This bear was believed to be one that had killed two sheep belonging to the farmer in question, as the farmer had no proof of identification he could not have the fine remitted. Old Mr. Cromister did not know that the law permits the killing of thieving bears when caught upon the premises.

Three weeks ago, one night, the Cromisters were awakened by the loud barking of their dog, which was chained to a kennel in the yard. The old man, lighting a lantern, went down to investigate, and found that a family of black bears, three in all, had taken possession of a red astrakan apple tree just over the fence from the house, and while one of the thieves was up among the boughs shaking the fruit down the other two were greedily devouring it. He started for his rifle, then thought of the Nauvoo farmer who was arrested and fined for killing a bear, and concluded that he hadn't $150 to waste on three bears, though he and Mrs. Cromister had reckoned on making five dollars clear off the apples on that red astrakan tree. He set the dog loose, but the bears turned on the animal. Next the bear in the tree broke a fine limb from the trunk and practically ruined the tree in its hurry to get down to join the fight.

Cromister, by this time almost beside himself with anger at the audacity, thievishness and destructiveness of the bears, resorted to frightening the animals by tying a lantern on a bean pole and poking it toward them. This had the effect of putting them to flight.

Two nights later the bears were back on another foraging visit, and the old dog, this time thoroughly cowed, whined in fear instead of barking. Again the old man took his lantern went out. This time a fourth bear had joined the party, and the quartette was in a patch of sweet corn, not a stone's throw from the house. The roasting ears were in prime condition, and the bears seemed to appreciate them, for in their greed to help themselves they were destroying stalks and all. Cromister got the bean pole, tied his lantern thereon, and again put the marauders to flight. The corn patch in the morning looked as though a half dozen cows had been in it. It was practically ruined.

Cromister roundly denounced such a law as would prevent an American citizen from protecting his own property from thieves, be they men or bruins, and vowed that if the Cromisters were permitted to rest in peace. Then, about 12 o'clock one night they were awakened again by the dog's whining. This time Cromister armed himself with both rifle and lantern. He told his wife that unless Rover pounded up and gave fight to these bears he would shoot him; that he had to shoot something, and, if the law wouldn't let him shoot the bears, he would shoot the dog. And he did. He found that two of the bears had upset a hive of honey back of the house and were devouring it at a live*ly rate, except for the time that they* had to stop to cuff each other. The cowardly dog wouldn't go near them, and a bullet from the old man's gun laid him low for good. Then the bean pole and the lantern were rigged up and the thieving bears put to flight. The next day he came to town, eight miles, to get a justice of the peace to tell him the law about bears. When he learned that he had a perfect right to kill bears when they were discovered on his premises in the act of stealing, Cromister used language not found in the spelling book. He went back home, loaded his rifle anew—and since then not a single bear has shown itself around the Cromister premises.

CARRIED THROUGH SEWER THREE BLOCKS INTO RIVER

ROPE BREAKS AND TOILER HAS A THRILLING EXPERIENCE—

LIVES TO TELL THE TALE.

New York.—John Hoffman, 55 years old, an employe in the bureau of sewers, was dropped into a five-foot sewer in Third avenue, near One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, owing to the breaking of a rope, and shot through the sewer to its terminus at Harlem river and One Hundred and Thirty-first street. That he came out alive is considered remarkable.

With several other employes Hoffman was at work repairing the main sewer. They had almost finished their labors when a heavy rainstorm started. Hoffman was down in the hole about four feet above the swiftly flowing water. Around his waist was a rope, which was held by the men in the street above.

As the water poured into the various sewers leading into the main pipe, the water rose higher and the rope broke and Hoffman fell into the water.

His fellow workmen instantly dashed up the avenue to One Hundred and Thirty-first street, where the sewer runs into the Harlem river. Just as they reached the spot, Hoffman shot out into the river. He landed near a boathouse float, swam to it and held on until a policeman and workmen rescued him.

After being given dry clothes he went home. He told the policeman that he went through the sewer "so fast he did not have time to look at the scenery."

FAT PORKER LAMES MAN.

Runs Between His Legs and Packing House Worker Has Broken Hip.

Indianapolis. — Never—oh! never again, will William Main, employed at the plant of Kingan & Co., hess packers, allow a fat pig to run between his legs. On his little white cot at the City hospital Main now mutters softly in the extreme of disgust. He says mean things about a certain pig—a doomed pig—and he now and then calls himself a "stupid."

It happened in the pens of the packing company. The fat porker had done nothing to distinguish himself from the drove of his fellows. Perhaps he resented pain and a cruel moment in the driving process he decided to go somewhere else than to the slaughter pen. He went hard. Main was in the way. And he stayed there—stayed there with his hands and feet spread wide apart in the most approved pigstopping attitude.

The pig, however, noted the passage way between Main's legs and dived through it. It wasn't wide enough and in the mixup Main drew the lemon. The carried him away and the mess wagon came. Dr. Splinter, of the dispensary, officiated at the ceremonies, which concluded with the announcement that Main had a broken hip.

Prefers Suicide to School.

Chicago.—"I made up my mind to die because my mother tried to force me to go to a private school out of town."

In these few words Irene Glande, 16 years old, residing with her parents on North Paulina street, explained her unsuccessful attempt at self-destruction. She was found reclining on a bench in Lincoln park. Her unusual posture attracted the attention of Park Policeman Fox. He detected the odor of carbolic acid and noted her burned lips. She was taken to the German hospital. When her father and mother arrived she refused to talk.

FORMER APPRENTICE GETS JUDGMENT AGAINST EMPLOYER.

An interesting case on contract engaged the attention of the district court, Wednesday afternoon, when Louis Menzenbach sued J. H. Snyder, the mason and builder, for $82 which he claimed was due him as wages while serving his time as an apprentice. Walter L. Hetfield represented the plaintiff and Francis J. Blatz the defendant. The plaintiff was given a verdict for $24.50.

There was a question as to when the plaintiff was hired and the length of time he was to serve as an apprentice. The defendant claimed that the young man entered his employ in August, 1904, and continued until November, 1907, while the papers on file with the Union showed that he began work July 18, 1904, and continued with Snyder until October 18, 1907.

Counsel for the plaintiff claimed that after a certain period he was entitled to receive journeymen's wages, but the court construed that before he could do that there would have to be a new contract between him and his employer. For this reason he gave judgment for $24.50 which represented the amount which in the opinion of the court was due him for the time he served as apprentice.

The Color of the Ermine.

It is a popular idea that the ermine sheds its brown summer coat and that on the approach of winter a covering of snowy white for it takes its place. This was a natural conclusion, as a possibility of a change in the color of the fur had not occurred to scientists. Experiments, however, have been made, and the brown coated ermine has been placed in a very low temperature. Almost immediately a change was visible in the color of the fur, and without shedding the creature became snowy white.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS IN BIG UNION MEETING

The Warren Chapel Christian Endeavorers again won the attendance banner at the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union rally held at Trinity Reformed church Wednesday. The Warren chapel society had five more members out than the Trinity organization. The fifth largest society ranked third. Because of the absence of State President John T. Sproull, who was at a Union meeting in Hudson County, the vote on the place for the State convention to be held in 1909, was postponed until a later meeting. It is probable that the Union convention will be held in this city, as the local societies are anxious to be the hosts.

A. Harry Moore, vice-president of the State C. E. Union, and president of the Hudson County Union, was the speaker of the evening. The topic of his address was "The Strenuous Endeavorer," and he said that persistence, nerve, grit, untiring love and devotion for the Master and loyalty to the truth were the characteristics of the present day worker for the church. All the officers of the local Union were re-elected to serve for the coming term. Those are Clarence B. LaRue, president; Joel D. Dreyfoot, of Dunellen, vice-president; Charles F. Windfield, secretary, Charles Hummer, assistant secretary and chairman of the press committee; William Latourette, treasurer; Miss Cora Brokaw, chairman of the *prayer meeting committee; John Kri*ner, chairman of the missionary committee, and Frank Stiger, chairman of the lookout committee. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer, showing gratifying growth of the Union during the past year.

The meeting opened with a song service, led by the Union chorus choir of thorty-five voices, led by Charles L. Lewis. Arthur L. Pitsworth was at the organ. The devotional exercises were led by Rev. George H. Gardiner, of the New Market Baptist church.

G.A.R. VETERANS SPEAK AT SCHOOL EXERCISES

Memorial Day was observed by appropriate exercises at the local public schools Friday, when the pupils sang patriotic songs and heard addresses by local Grand Army men. The exercises at the Plainfield High School were at 1:30 o'clock this morning. After short talk, in which he emphasized that Memorial Day was becoming more a day for sports and games than patriotic observance, Principal Irs W. Travell introduced S. W. Reese, who spoke briefly, introducing J. N. Bogart, another veteran. Mr. Bogart's talk was commemorative of Civil War times.

S. W. Reese was the speaker at the North Plainfield High School exercises later in the morning, when the exercises were marked by the singing of patriotic songs. The day's exercises of the primary department at the Somerset School came at 2 o'clock, when W. W. Coriell made an address. A program of music and recitations were presented and those who took part were the Misses Ada Long, Bertha Bedine, Veronica Poling, Margaret Johnson, Ruth Small, Bertha Ingesohner, Grace Brewster, Madeline Blair, Millie Weintraub and Franklin Rowley, Jack Harper, Clifford Cathebrook, Russel Story and Jack Cannon.

Grand Army veterans spoke at the other schools as follows: Irving School, J. N. Bogart; Stillman School, J. N. Bogart; Whittier School, N. C. Pershington; Bryant School, Captain W. C. Hand; Watchung School, W. S. Coriell; Franklin School, Chief T. O. Doane; Washington, Marquette, Johnson, Ruth Small, Bertha Ingesohner, Grace Brewster, Madeline Blair, Millie Weintraub and Franklin Rowley, Jack Harper, Clifford Cathebrook, Russel Story and Jack Cannon.

Grand Army veterans spoke at the other schools as follows: Irving School, J. N. Bogart; Stillman School, J. N. Bogart; Whittier School, N. C. Pershington; Bryant School, Captain W. C. Hand; Watchung School, W. S. Coriell; Franklin School, Chief T. O. Doane; Washington, Marquette, Pennington, and St. Mary's Parochial School, Captain W. C. Smith.

Pupils' Piano Recital.

Pupils of Miss Gabriel's Academy gave a successful piano recital at the Park Club Wednesday afternoon. Those who took part included the Misses Marcella Wise, Mary Murphy, Marguerite Wales, Nettie Meeker, Jennie Dineen, Dorothy Smith, Sadie Lee, Margaret Towne, Nora Meaney, Irene Duschene, Theresa Hilt, Anna McCullough, Mary McCullough, Adeline Stiglitz, Henrietta Redefloue, Marie Tobin, Florence Hall, Clara Smith, Marguerite Windham, Grace Rafferty, Marguerite McDonough, Bernadette Duschene, Marie Sullivan, May Duschene, Theresa Mc-Clough and Mary McDonough, Alfred Seidel, Edmund Kenney, Chas. Beekman and A. V. McDonough.

To Harden Flabby Gums.

If one suffers from soft, flabby gums great care must be taken of the teeth will loosen and eventually fall out.

Rinsing with ice water is helpful for this condition; also, by way of preventation, one should make a habit of chewing once or twice a day such plants as cress or sorrel, which are anti-scorbutic in their nature.

If the condition is serious a dentist should be consulted at once, as bad results may follow. There are a number of anti-gum washes which are excellent for soft gums; any reliable druggist would be able to tell you one that will prove useful.

FISK HEADS COMMISSION

Excise Members Elect Him President at Organization This Morning

ALL SERVE WITHOUT PAY.

Plan of Work Discussed but Active Campaign Not Likely Until November.

The new State Excise Commission appointed on Wednesday by Governor J. Franklin Fort, met at the State Capitol Friday morning and organized by electing Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, president; Peter Backes, of Hudson county, corresponding secretary, and John P. Dengler, of East Orange, official secretary and stenographer. The members of the commission, seven in number, are to serve without pay, and Mr. Dengler's salary is to be fixed by the Governor. According to the resolution under which the commission was appointed, it is to report to the Governor not later than December 15, 1908.

After completing its organization, the first thing the commission did was to make a canvass of the boards in the State seeking such information as the State commission will need to complete its work of investigation into excise matters in New Jersey.

There was a preliminary discussion as to plans of campaign, which will be taken up more fully after a report from the sub-committee which will be presented at the next meeting of the commission at Trenton on Tuesday, June 9. It is not believed that the commission will do much work until after the National Republican convention, as that will call a number of persons from the State who will be needed.

The commission is given authority to hold its meetings wherever it is most convenient and it also has the power of subpoena, being empowered to compell the attendance of witnesses at its sessions for the purpose of obtaining such information as it may desire. The first meetings will probably be held in Jersey City and Newark, and the 14 in Elizabeth, Camden, Atlantic City and in such other places as the members may decide. The meetings will be open to the public for the purpose of obtaining all the evidence on the subject possible and anyone having business of importance to bring before the commission can arrange for a hearing by communicating with the secretary.

The schedule of meetings will be decided upon probably at the adjourned session of the commission on June 9, and until that is fixed little can be done. It is the purpose of the members to make a thorough and exhaustive investigation of excise matters in New Jersey and the report when presented to the Governor in December will be very complete.

NEW JERSEY RIFLEMEN GO TO OHIO IN JULY.

New Jersey riflemen who wish to take part in the trials for the American rifle team that will be sent abroad to compete in the Olympic games next July, will have to go to Ohio on June 10, 11, 12 and 13. Captain Frank E. Evans, secretary to United States Senator Briggs, has been selected by the United States Marine Corps, together with Lieut. Thomas Holcombe, well-known in New Jersey(as the representatives for that organization.

It is probable that Major William B. Margin, of Elizabeth, will be one of the Jerseymen who will go to Camp Perry for the trials. It is not known yet whether or not New Jersey will have any other representa*tives at the trials, although the* State has its share of first-class shots.

Lieut. Albert S. Jones, secretary of the National Rifle Association, and a former Jerseyman, says that the trials might have been held at Sea Girt, but that the communication of the association to the Adjutant-General of New Jersey was never answered, and therefore arrangements had to be made to hold the trials in Ohio on the range at Camp Perry, where the National matches will be held next August.

Wisdom is more to be envied than riches.

Smiles.

There are many kinds of smiles, each having a distinct character. Some announce goodness and sweetness; others betray sarcasm, bitterness and pride; some soften the countenance by their languishing tenderness; others brighten by their spiritual vivacity.—Lavater.

S.S. TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

W. D. MURRAY ALSO SPEAKS.

Interesting Program at Afternoon and Evening Sessions of Junior and Primary Teachers.

Improved methods and helpful suggestions in Sunday-school work were discussed at the thirteenth annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union in the First Baptist church, Wednesday afternoon, and at the first annual institute of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union held at the same place last night. Both meetings attracted a large number of officers and teachers. The feature of the afternoon and evening was the presence of Charles D. Meigs, of Indianapolis, who in addition to making two addresses, also gave talks on "How to Study the Bible."

Miss Nettie Beeching, president of the primary and junior organization, was in charge of the program at each service. In the afternoon, Mrs. F. R. Baker conducted the devotional service, after which Mrs. R. W. Barnes, secretary, gave a brief resume of the past year's work, telling of the increased interest.

"The Cradle Roll or Fishing for Minnows," was the subject of a helpful talk by Mr. Meigs. He said that during the fifty years he had been in Sunday-school work he had come in contact with every phase of it and had discovered four essential things a primary teacher should know: First, that she cannot be promoted; second, that there is as much divinity in a three foot cradle as in a seven foot bed; third, that she is probably the best teacher a child ever had, and fourth, that it does not require much knowledge to have much faith.

In the opinion of the speaker it is not necessary for a child to know everything in the Bible to be saved, and that primary teachers should be a great believer in child conversion. Boys reach the years of diversion easier than they do the years of discretion and it was his belief that a child does not have to accept Christ any better than it knows how. The speaker emphasized the importance of catching the children young and placing them on the cradle roll which he declared resulted in giving the child a better mother. During his talk he related many incidents to substantiate his opinions.

"The Influence of Birthday Letters," was the topic assigned to W. D. Murray, superintendent of the primary department at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday-school. He presented five reasons why a teacher should write such letters to her children: First, they take the place of a visit; second, they impress upon the child the importance of a lesson; fourth, they give the Sunday-school a place in the life of the child; fifth, they help the teacher to reach the parents. Mr. Murray told some of his interesting experiences in writing birthday letters and the excellent results. He said that he writes 150 such letters every year and draws about 250 pictures.

Miss Nettie Beeching, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. F. R. Baker, Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Lounsbury, Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, Mrs. L. R. Schofield and Mrs. Harold Serrell who have had similar experiences gave helpful incidents along this line.

Mrs. J. A. Powlison, primary superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, taught a "Children's Day Song" with the assistance of Mrs. Dudley S. Miller at the piano.

There was a piano duet by Lawrence and Elmer French, after which Mr. Meigs instead of teaching the Sunday-school lesson for net Sunday, gave an interesting talk on "How to Study the Bible."

Adjournment was taken for a social hour during which members of the Union served supper in the Sunday-school room. This was in charge of Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. S. W. Dunning, Mrs. Elvaine Van Name and other women conected with the organization.

The evening service attracted members of nearly every Sunday-school in Plainfield and vicinity, including many superintendents and teachers. The prayer and praise service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, after which Mr. Meigs gave another talk on "How to Study the Bible," during which he related the interesting story of Zacheus and Christ, applying the principal points to present-day Christianity, showing what a man will do when once he becomes a Christian and knows Christ.

After a brief review of the past year's work of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union by the secretary, Miss Minni Bock, and the offering, during which Miss Voorhees played a piano selection, Mr. Meigs delivered an address on "Fishing for Deep Sea Bass." His talk was intended chiefly for men and he laid great stress on the importance of organization as a means to attain success in Sunday school work. He dwelt at great length on the necessity of getting the men into Bible classes and related several incidents to show what the men in other parts of the country have done, starting with a membership of two or three and growing to thousands in membership. Among such organizations mentioned was that of the Baraca movement, which was started by Marshall A. Hudson, of Syracuse, N. Y. He also referred to the greatest baseball league in the world composed entirely of members of Bible classes in Cook county, Illinois.

In conclusion a few remarks were made by J. E. Church, of this city, who is State president of the adult department of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association. He explained the method of organization and urged all the Bible classes to join the State movement. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Herring after which those present remained for a social time.

COMPLETING PLANS FOR THE FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL

Jos. J. Berger, and J. W. Boyd, representing Berger Amusement Company, are in town to complete arrangements and supervise the advertising for the Firemens' Carnival, which is to be held June 15 to 20, for the benefit of the Firemen's Pension Fund and Benevolent Society. John Berger, who has come to Plainfield, is one of the oldest carnival managers in the business, and has always been identified with the largest and best attractions of this nature.

The attractions are headed by the Ferari's trained wild animal show, which was a feature of the Jamestown Exposition last year. The other shows, twenty in number, consists of Shield's Lunette, the Old Plantation, a vaudeville show, and many others of similar nature.

The grounds will be located opposite No. 3 Engine house, brilliantly illuminated by countless electric lights and when everything is in readiness will present an imposing appearance.

The committee appointed by the firemen to look after their interests consists of Chief Doane, Captain Townley, Captain Daly, John H. Cose, William Addis and Joseph Clark. An enthusiastic meeting was held last week, and from the present indications the carnival will be one of the greatest successes in this line ever held in Plainfield.

There will be three free attractions afternoon and evening with several bands in attendance all the time during the Carnival period.

There will be a Queen of the Carnival who will be chosen by popular vote, the various candidates of which will be selected from among the various Fraternal Organizations of Plainfield. Ballot boxes will be stationed in a number of prominent business houses in the city, and the result of the contest will be announced from day to day through The Daily Press. Votes will be one cent each, and the successful candidate will be presented with a beautiful diamond ring, and will be crowned Queen of the Carnival on Friday, June 19.

STORING FURS FOR SUMMER.

A cedar chest makes an excellent receptacle for all winter garments.

Either camphor or turpentine or chamber serves as an excellent prohibition against the attentive moth.

The furs should always be first wrapped in layers of tissue paper.

White furs must be laid in blue tissue paper, as white causes them to assume a yellow tinge.

Camphor should not be used on either sable or chinchilla, as it spoils the color of both.

Black furs do not require the same tender care as do gray, brown or white ones.

It is a mistake to put away white or gray furs when they are soiled.

Powdered chalk or cornmeal shaken well in and dusted out the next morning will cleanse the fur.

A Delicious Blanc Mange.

Half a pint of milk, half a pint of strong, clear coffee, two ounces of cornstarch, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Put the coffee and half of the milk into a saucepan to heat. Mix the cornstarch smotohly with the remainder of the milk and add to it the hot liquid in the saucepan. Stir over the fire until boiling and boil slowly about ten minutes. Add the butter, sugar and vanilla and mix well. Pour into a wet mold and set aside until cold. A little cream added to this is an improvement. The coffee used should be very strong and clear.

After Disinfecting.

In entering a room in which a disinfectant has been burning for several hours one should cover the mouth and nose with a wet cloth to shut out the fumes.

Care should be taken that the windows were not locked before the sulphur is started, as otherwise they cannot be opened quickly and it is dangerous for a person to remain long in the stifling atmosphere.

If the windows are on a porch or roof they should be opened after disinfecting from the outside, thus avoiding all danger to the opener.

MIXER CAUSES A MIX-UP

Contractor Meeker Hired the Machine and Owner Brings Suit for the Rental.

CASE IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Defendant Asserts the Apparatus Was a Failure and Ignored Bill for $223.

The session of the district court Thursday was almost wholly occupied with the hearing of the case of the Ransom Concrete Company, of Dunellen, against C. M. Meeker, in which the plaintiffs seek to recover $225 for the rental of a concrete mixer to the defendant last fall, when he was using the machine in the work of putting down the brick pavement on Park avenue. The company was represented by W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, while Walter L. Hetfield was counsel for Mr. Meeker.

It was the contention of Mr. Meeker that a representative of the company interviewed him on the street one day while the pavement work was in progress and suggested that he try a mixing machine. He is said to have informed Mr. Meeker that the company had a second-hand machine which was good as new and in perfect order, and that the use of it would save him considerable money over the method of mixing by hand.

Mr. Meeker visited the company's plant in a day or two and there made an agreement for the machine, also several carts for carrying concrete. After the machine was delivered to Mr. Meeker on Park avenue, he claims that it did not work as represented, that it broke down every day for a number of days, that employes of the company were called to repair it, and that it would not keep up steam. He finally abandoned the machine, he said, and notified the company to come and get it. Upon their failure to do so he removed it to a vacant lot on East Second street and some time later it was taken to the company's plant, after having been in Mr. Meeker's possession two months.

According to the terms of the agreement Mr. Meeker was to pay $100 for the first month's use of the machine, $75 for the second and $50 for every succeeding month. Thomas Fay was employed to run the machine. Mr. Meeker contended that the jar of the machine of the loosened the bolts and the roller broke, rendering it useless. Mr. Meeker admitted on cross-examination that he had never paid any attention to numerous bills and letters written to him by the company and the only communication he had with them was by telephone when he notified them of the breakdown of the machine and asked them to take it home.

Isaac Randolph, who was an inspector for the city on the concrete mixing part of the brick pavement work and David Rowden, also employed by the city at that time, were called as witnesses for the defendant and practically substantiated what he had said.

Arthur Ransom and Otto Wiedmeyer, of the Ransom Concrete Company, were called as witnesses and testified as to their part of the deal for the machine. Counsel for the company by his cross examination tended to show that the machine was in perfect order when delivered, but that the engineer employed to run it was not competent on that kind of a machine, having never run one before; that it was left in charge of Italians, who knew nothing about operating a mixer and frequently overloaded it which caused it to stop.

Mr. Youngley—Go ahead, dear; it will be even funnier the way you tell it.—Philadelphia Press.

AUTOMOBILES CRASH AT WATCHUNG AVENUE CORNER

A Winton runabout, driven by George Bartone, of Lake street, crashed into C. Wesley Holland's landaulette at Fifth street and Watchung avenue Wednesday evening, smashing in the front of the Holland car, driven by John Mottley. Mr. Holland and members of his family were in his car; but although they were badly shaken up, all escaped uninjured.

Mottley was running the landaulette east on Fifth street, close to the right-hand curb, but when Bartone's machine attempted to turn from Watchung avenue into Fifth street, the driver lost control and crashed squarely into the front of the east-bound car. Such was the force of the collision that the automator on the Holland car was badly damaged and the two cars were jammed fast together. Mr. Bartone acknowledged himself to be to blame for the accident and saw that the damaged car was taken to a garage for repair.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE PASSES 89TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, was 89 years old Wednesday. The celebration of her birthday was continuous from the time when she rose in the morning until she retired for the night. Emerging into the breakfast room, she found the whole house fragrant with flowers, gifts of her friends. As the day went on other beautiful floral tributes arrived. Notable among these tributes was a basket of Killarney roses from the Hellenic Society, the older members of which remember Dr. Howe and the part he took in the struggle for Greek independence. Among the hundreds of messages of congratulation which poured in from all parts of the country was one from Ambassador Bryce.

An informal reception took place in the afternoon at Mrs. Howe's house, 241 Beacon street. Mrs. Howe was assisted in receiving by her daughters and her granddaughters. Afterward there was a family dinner, at which Prof. Henry W. Howe of Columbia University, joined the group.

A very important guest, in Mrs. Howe's estimation, was little Julia Ward Howe Hall, well known to Plainfieldites, the first great-grandchild, now 4 years old. Mrs. Howe has ten grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A feature of the day was the publication of Mrs. Howe's songs, a copy of which had been sent to each guest at the reception. These songs had not previously been put in print.

200 ATTEND SPRING TEA OF NEEDLEWORK GUILD

Under the auspices of and for the benefit of the Plainfield Branch of the Needlework Guild, a charming spring tea was given Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John B. Dumont on Stelle avenue. The affair was considered a great success, nearly two hundred members and friends attending. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. John B. Dumont is the president of the Guild and she issued the invitations for the tea. She was assisted by a reception committe comprising Mrs. Jabez C. Gilbert, chairman; Mrs. Frederick W. Butler, Mrs. N. C. Barnhart, and Miss Kathleen Ryder. A number of young women assisted in serving.

During the afternoon there was a delightful musical program, Mrs. H. L. DeForest rendering piano selections; Mrs. J. M. Shellabarger and Mrs. George S. Ring, vocal selections, while Miss Cornelia Hyatt gave several violin numbers. The audience was very generous in its applause and several encores were given.

P. H. S. NINE CHAMPIONS

Borough Schoolboys Defeated by Score of 15-4 in Game for Local Title.

BUT ONE HIT OFF VAN ZANDT.

Winning Team Bats Heavily, but Eight Errors Give Its Opponents Four Runs.

The Plainfield High School nine clinched the local interscholastic baseball championship by defeating the borough school team 15-4 in a well-played game at Crescent Oval last Wednesday. Van Zandt, who was on the slate for the city schoolboys, pitched classy baseball, and allowed but a single hit. He was given poor support in the early part of the game, eight errors being tallied against P. H. S. During the last five innings the winning team played like veterans, making the outs in one-two-three order.

The boroughites were weak in the box, where Day and Smith both showed unsteadiness. The heavy hitting of the city team was a feature of the game, eleven hits telling the story of the North Plainfield twirlers' downfall. On the bases, P. H. S. showed the results of good coaching, the only larceny total amounting to fourteen bags in the course of the game. The winners' errors responsible for all four runs of the over-the-brook nine, which scored in but two innings.

Plainfield started the run getting in the first, when singles by Giddes, Dey and Murphey, and a glaring error at second let all three cross the plate. Their opponents' unsteadiness in the field gave the boroughites a chance to score two in their half, when Pierson Bailey and Smith came home on errors, and Powlison and McClintock scored on more errors in the fourth. The heavy hitting came in the seventh, when P. H. S. got ten men at bat and four clean hits brought in five runs. Russell Conroy made the only hit for the boroughites and eighth but was neatly nabbed at second. The summaries:

Spider's Great Appetite.

The spider has a tremendous appetite, which defies all human competition. A scientist who carefully noted a spider's consumption of food in twenty-four hours concluded that if the spider were built proportionately to the human scale he would eat at daybreak a rhinoceros, by 7 a lamb, by 9 a young camelopard, by 1 a sheep and would finish up with a pie of 200 birds.

When a woman starts out to buy a collar she returns exhausted with a new silk waist, a pair of gloves, some skirt binding, a cake of soap, paper of pins, some window curtains, a sewing machine and a refrigerator. —Mark Twain in Tom Wood's Magazine.

TEMPLARS AT HOLY CROSS

Trinity Comandery, K. T. Attends Evening Services in a Body.

A TALK ON CHRISTIANITY.

Rev. G. A. Warner Preaches Against Neutral Christians, Who Are Not Active in Church Work.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, preached a powerful sermon on militant Christianity and Christian neutrality at a special Ascension Day service attended by Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar Thursday. There were about thirty-five members of the order present, in charge of Eminent Commander Clarence Goss. The Knights were in full uniform and marched to the church in a body, where special seats were reserved for them. Music was a feature of the service. The full vested choir was in attendance and H. Raymond Loder, of New York, was at the organ. The offering was for the rector's poor fund.

The text "He that is not with me is against me," was the keynote of the sermon. "Just how far a man or a nation can be neutral or non-interfering, said Mr. Werner, 'is a question which perplexes earnest and thoughtful people today.' Perhaps we are coming to realize that our worst sins, especially of the educated and cultured people, are the sins of omission; if we're not for a good cause heart and soul, we are only too frequently against it by our inactivity and ingratitude. Because politics have been dirty, some men have said that they will have nothing to do with them and these men fail to see how much their withdrawal or negligence has been against good government. Neutrality on the part of a nation through desire to avoid war is not always a good policy. It ranges that nation against a cause by its silence and indifference to the struggle going on.

"The Christian church needs workers. It needs thinkers, writers, preachers, the open purse, the life given up to the cause. There may be neutral men, not opposed to Christianity, honoring, perhaps reverencing it, but I tell you these men are against Christ if they do not work for his cause.

"The home life is where Christianity should be taught, the home should have the source of its religious life and its inspiration in the church. It is a matter of fact, how it is with the neutral, the man who has never come out openly for Christ? His children watch him. Father or 'Dad' isn't much interested in what the church is doing. There are half a dozen or more just like 'Dad' in the community. Does Sunday-school or church become a very attractive thing for the young, ster? Not much. There is a distaste for Christian church and Christian training, a disinclination to receive instruction or training. If father lives without much religion, and all these other men, why should I be different? I see nine-tenths women in church congregations, and I guess religion must be for women. Do you thing the man who is not for Christ is against him?

At the conclusion of the service the Knights marched in a body back to their hall in the Babcock building, where a social hour was spent and refreshments were served.

GOING BACK TO SENSIBLE TRIMMINGS.

Back from her lace, embroidery and her ruffety, fluffes to plain straight up and down tucks, has come the up-to-date lingerie maker.

There are also most attractive lingerie dressing gowns and short negligees trimmed in this fashion. In some of these garments all the material used is tucked, while in others the tucks are used merely for trimming.

It is also quite fashionable to trim these garments with jabots all the way from the neck to the bottom of the skirt, many of these not being trimmed with lace, but merely hemmed. The sleeves will then be trimmed with rows of little ruffles in the jabot styles, possibly with half running up and half running down, or two ruffles will be put together to decorate the sleeve like a little ruche.

If the garment is trimmed with tucks instead of ruffles and jabots, then the sleeves are also tucked, but they may be edged with tiny ruffles also.

The finest material is used for this sort of garment. All its charm depends on the quality of the material, since no lace or embroidery is used and neither ruffles nor tucks are sufficiently decorative unless made in fine material. Needless to say, all such garments should be made by hand if possible. There is no place in the world where hand work, and that of the finest, shows to such great advantage as in the making of these fine garments of thin white material, especially when the sole distinction lies in the exquisite fineness both of material and hand work.

The home that is not cheerful is a failure.

Maund and Maunder.

Neither maund, a basket, nor maunder, to whine or grumble, is obsolete. Both are still in common use in South Notts and Leicestershire, at any rate. The former is used only, however, of a particular kind of basket, used for carrying butter to market. The basket is nearly square in shape and has two lids opening from the middle part, where the handle is, and it is called the "butter mawn" (maund). Maunder is usually heard in such sentences as "What are you maundering at?" A Northumbrian will say, "He's maundering old fool," when the man of whom he is speaking strings words together in a senseless sort of way somewhat akin to maudling.—London Notes and Queries.

FEAST OF STRAWBERRIES

Season's First Strawberry Festival Held at Trinity Reformed Church.

PRETTY MILITARY PANTOMIME.

Members of Young Women's Mission Band, Who Netted Neat Sum for Missions, Take Part in Successful Drill.

The season's first strawberry and ice cream festival, held Friday night in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band of the church, proved a decided success, and the receipts will be devoted to the work of the organization in aiding foreign and domestic missions. The affair was of a patriotic nature, American flags predominating among the decorations, causing much favorable comment.

During the evening a military drill by sixteen young women of the Band was given as was also a pantomime in connection with the reading of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," by Miss Etta Raybert. This drill proved a feature of the affair, and was most creditably executed by a squad of sixteen girls, "uniformed" in blue dresses with white straps. They wore regulation fatigue uniform caps and carried swords. They went through various marching and charging manoeuvers which won merited applause. Miss Helen Woodruff and Miss Ethel Vail were the leaders and the others taking part were the Misses Helen Roberts, Madoline Strader, Rosamond Rogers, Helen Crane, Gertrude Mitchell, Hazel Patrick, Edna Oliver, Edna Stillwell, Emma H. Ryno, Cora Gano, Alice Vroom, Edna Coles, Edith Richards. These young women also acted as waitresses, assisted by the Misses Edna Debele, Juliet Hill, Amelia Wilson, Florence Wilson, Miss Maas and Miss Dennis. During the evening Elmer and Lawrence French played a piano duet, which was well received.

Another pleasing features was the singing by sixteen sweet young girls all dressed as fairies. Those taking part were the Misses Madeline Blair, Emma H. Ryno, Dorothy Martin, Bertha Bodine, Mary Bennett, Mildred Conover, Irma Codington, Marjelle Dunham, Margaret Hoagland, Helen Hummel, Flora Krause, Julia Rowley, Florence Small, Mattie Smith, Zeta Voorhees, and Helen Woodruff.

Candy was sold at a prettily decorated booth in charge of the Misses Mary VanPleet and Aechah Holmes; at the cake table were Mrs. A. Krymer, Mrs. Cora Ryno, Mrs. H. Cook and Mrs. A. Zeiss. Miss Lillian Dunn and Miss Edna Cole were in charge at the lemonade well. Costumed as Uncle Sam, Raymond Cutter acted as keeper of the grab bag. The decorating committees included Mrs. G. Mantz, Mrs. L. Townley, and Mrs. William Olmsted, and those assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. H. C. VanBenthuysen, Mrs. A. Davis, Mrs. L. Townley and Miss M. Wilson. The general committee in charge of the affair was composed of Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Miss Lillian Force, Miss Etta Raybert and Miss Edna Dilts.

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS COMPETE IN MEDAL PLAY

The chief event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday was a thirty-six holes, medal play, handicap, with prizes for the lowest gross and net scores, and out of a field of nearly forty players, several good scores were returned. Many who started out in the morning were caught by the rain and did not return in the afternoon to finish. The course was thoroughly water-soaked, making record playing impossible. However, there were players who braved the elements and went eighteen holes.

In class A, W. Lester Glenney won the best gross score prize with a 159, while Frank O. Reinhart received the prize for the best net score, with a 154. In Class B, D. H. Rowland was awarded the prize for the best gross score, a 191, and Hugh F. Fox received the prize for the best net score, a 167.

The best scores are as follows:

Class A—W. Lester Glenney, 159, 8-151; Frank O. Reinhart, 162, 8-154; H. D. Hibbard, 173, 18-155; W. T. Glenney, 167, 10-157; C. B. Morgan, 178, 14-166; Leighton Calkins, 183, 16-167; Dudley H. Barrows, 179, 8-171.

While the players were on the course contending with the elements there was a large crowd at the clubhouse enjoying the social features. Steward Hartz served a great many luncheons and in the evening a number remained for dinner and the social features provided by the house committee.

Too Sweet.

END THEIR CONFERENCE

East Association of Seventh-Day Baptist Churches Close Four Days' Session.

ADOPT ELEVEN QUESTIONS.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Main Chairman of Committee Which Presents Articles on Church Polity.

The conference of the East Association was continued at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Sabbath morning with a sermon by Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, followed by an offering for the mission, tract and educational societies. In the afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, the Bible School session was held, conducted by Orra S. Rogers, superintendent, with an offering for the Sabbath-school Board. At 3:45 o'clock the Young People's Board hour and Christian Endeavor Society was conducted by Miss C. Isabel Randolph, of the home church. This service was a memorial to Rev. Dr. A. C. Davis, of West Edmeston, N. Y., who was killed last week in an accident at that place. He was president of the Young People's Society of the church, and greatly beloved by all. The burial took place at Shiloh on Saturday, Rev. D. B. Coon, the pastor of the church there, being called to officiate.

Sabbath evening following a praise and prayer service, the Women's Board hour was conducted by Mrs. Reune Randolph, associational secretary. In connection with this several papers and letters were read, one from Miss Susie Burdick, of Shanghai, China, telling of the mission work there; a paper by Miss Ethel Titsworth on "Missions and Mission Study;" a letter from Mrs. G. H. F. Randolph, of Fouke, Arkansas, concerning the women's work in the west, and a paper by Mrs. Orra S. Rogers on "The Organization of Women's Work in the Churches," all of which were exceedingly helpful and contained many practical suggestions for the advancement of women's work.

These papers were followed with an able address by Mrs. William Steele, who is in charge of an orphanage at Knoxville, Tenn., which is supported by the denomination. She gave a very interesting talk of her work there which aroused the sympathies of all who heard her.

Preceding the regular morning service Sunday, there was a brief business session, but as several matters were left over for report, they were deferred until later in the day. The service began with praise and prayer, preceding the Missionary Society hour which was conducted by Rev. E. B. Saunders, corresponding secretary of the board, of the past year was reviewed and helpful suggestions offered. The sermon of the morning was preached by Rev. A. J. C. Bond, delegate from the Western Association, which was followed by an offering for the missionary, tract and education societies.

After a praise and prayer service in the afternoon, there was a brief discussion of "Eleven Questions," suggested by the "Committee of Fifteen," led by Dr. A. E. Main. According to the action taken previously in the conference these questions were referred to a committee of three of which Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner was the chairman, and they formulated a report which was unanimously adopted.

They referred particularly to denominationli polity and are intended to more clearly define the relationship between the churches and the General conference and re-arranges the committee. They have been dicussed at other conferences and for that reason were referred to a committee to save time in discussion.

The afternoon service closed with a sermon by Rev. W. L. Burdick who took Rev. D. B. Coon's place on the program, the latter having been called to Shiloh.

The conference closed Sunday night with a prayer and conference meeting, conducted by Rev. Judson G. Burdick, and was purely of a religious character. The sessions which were chiefly for the development of the spiritual side of the church were very helpful and the conference was considered one of the best yet held by the denomination. All day yesterday the attendance was large, many members being present from New York and New Market.

To Whiten Handkerchiefs.

To keep handkerchiefs a good color, instead of dampening them in the usual way before ironing try this method: Put two quarts of tepid water put five drops of blue and a small piece of lump starck. Pour in a basin. In this mixture dip each handkerchief separately, thoroughly wetting it and then squeezing it as dry as possible. When all the handkerchiefs have been treated in this way spread them out smotohly on a clean cloth or towel until they can be ironed.

To Be One of the Two Finest in the State—Improvements to Be Made in Edifice.

In memory of her husband, the late Charles H. Hyde, former president of the First National Bank, Mrs. Hyde, whose daughter is the wife of State Senator Everett Colby, has arranged to give a handsome new organ to the Crescent Avenue church, of which her husband was a member for many years. The organ, which will rank with the finest in the State, the instrument at Peddie Memorial church, Newark, is to cost between $15,000 and $20,000, and will be installed in connection with extensive interior changes to be made at the church.

The announcement of the gift was made by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the church, at the morning service Sunday. The contract for the construction of the instrument has not yet been awarded. The organ will be in three sections. Of these one will be on either side of the pulpit and the third will be the echo organ above the back gallery. This echo organ will be equipped with a full chime of bells. The new instrument will be as fine as the one now at Peddie church acknowledged the best in the State.

Further details of the new organ will be made public at the special meeting of the Crescent Avenue church congregation to be held Wednesday night, at which time carefully prepared plans for the renovation of the church will be presented, and such steps taken as may be deemed advisable to provide means for carrying out the plans submitted.

LITERARY

Five hundred photographs of President Roosevelt all assembled in one big double-page picture, 13 by 19½ inches in size, is an extraordinary feature of the June Woman's Home Companion. The two hundred photographs were taken in almost every state in the Union, at all periods of Roosevelt's public career, and show his wonderful versatility and energy.

In the June Companion appear the first chapters of Harvey J. O'Higgins' great story, "A Grand Army Man," based on Belasco's famous play of the same name, in which David Warfield starred all last winter.

The June number of Scribner's Magazine begins Will H. Low's "Chronicle of Friendships," which is almost the first example of artist memories in American letters. Low's recollections have to do with the remarkable group of American artists, many of whom are at the height of their career. It is a charming circle into which he introduces the reader in the first number—Theodore Robinson, R. A. M. Stevenson, Ridgway Knight, Wyatt Eaton,—with the life in the studio of Carolus-Duran, and in the court where these artists lived with their foreign fellow-students. The paper is fully illustrated some of the sketches by contemporaries.

Lincoln Steffens heads the list of contributors to the Fifth Anniversary number of Everybody's with a powerful exposition of the views of President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and Senator La Follette, upon "What the Matter is in America, and What to do About It." He has put a lot of leading questions to these men, and their answers are wonderfully instructive. The article has been illustrated by remarkable photographs, taken specially for the magazine. There is also an article by Charles Edward Russell.

PARK GOLFERS PLAY DESPITE DRIVING RAIN.

Despite a driving rain throughout the afternoon there was a good field out at Park Golf Club Saturday, to take part in the various competitions. A portion of the course was covered with water, but this did not prevent the contestants from finishing and returning fairly good scores.

The events included the qualifying rounds for the Hydewood Park Challenge cups and four other challenge trophies; the same to be subject to challenge at any time. Those who qualified for the five trophies are as follows:

Hydewood Park cup, Walter M. McNaughton; trophy number one, W. V. Byard; number four, Dr. A. W. Anderson.

In the regular play for the President's and Golf Club cups, the leading scores were as follows:

Walter M. McNaughton, 110, 18-92; W. R. Fater, 108, 12-96; Charles B. Morse, 112, 12-100; W. V. Byard, 113, 13-100; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 120, 15-105.

Owing to the weather conditions the approaching and putting contest was postponed for one week, the women who expected to take part deciding that the course was too wet for them.

URGE FULL ASSESSMENT

State Tax Board Will Enforce Law for Full Valuation in Somerset.

MEANS MORE SCHOOL MONEY.

Mayor Townsend, Senator Frelinghuysen and Major Lentz Speak at Somerville Meeting Friday.

As the result of a meeting of the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes and the assessors of the various taxing districts, held at Somerville Friday, the county board will make an effort to have assessors all over the county make their assessments at full valuation, in order to secure a larger share of the railroad tax money for the public schools. At the meeting were Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, Tax Assessor Justus H. Cooley, Maj. Carl Lentz, president of the State Board for Equalization of Taxes, Former Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the Board, and State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

Mayor Townsend, Senator Frelinghuysen, Major Lentz, P. V. Van Doren, S. A. Kenney and Former Mayor Smalley went to Somerville Friday morning and spent the morning in an automobile tour of several of the adjacent taxing districts. They visited Raritan, Bedminster and Bernardsville, inspecting properties and comparing the assessment values submitted. After lunch, they went in conference with the county assessors, among whom was J. H. Cooley, of the borough.

At the afternoon session, Mr. Townsend, who is an active worker to bring an increase in the railroad tax apportionment to the borough, spoke, stating that the increase, to be effective, must be the universal action of all the assessors. He spoke of the rivalry between the assessors and the attempt of each one to force his neighbor to assess on a higher valuation. "All assessors should all pull together," said Mr. Townsend, "that these values may be raised. The best interests of the county demand this."

President Lentz, of the Board, spoke of the State law requiring full assessments, and stated that the Board would get after the assessors in an effort to secure the enforcement of this law. Senator Frelinghuysen had some definite figures about certain properties which were obviously under-assessed, and his remarks were in explanation of the duty of tax assessors. He quoted figures showing that Somerset is not receiving its full share of school railroad money, because of this practise of under-assessment.

SOCIALISTS ANGRY OVER SOME ARRESTS

The Socialist Party at its State Convention in Elizabeth Sunday passed resolutions instructing its State Committee to begin a vigorous fight against the acts of Patterson, which recently had the temerity to lock up a couple of Socialist agitators. The resolutions adopted denounce Mayor McBride and urge a fight to a finish. The State Committee will meet tonight in Newark, and will arrange for another speaker to defy the Paterson authorities. They will then have a lawyer on hand to take care of their interests. The convention adopted a State platform containing the usual Socialistic planks and voted for the retention of voting machines.

They came pretty near not having any place to meet on Sunday. Hugo Baum, who runs Saenger Hall, thought he would not have to be particular what he got up for a lot of Socialists, and served a dinner on Saturday night. Baum found out his error. Such a rumpus in fact, that at 3 o'clock Sunday morning Baum said he wouldn't have a Socialist in his place. However, the Trenton delegation used its persuasive powers and at 8 o'clock Baum agreed to let them have have a small if 125 men agreed to pay 40 cents each for dinner. They did.

H. K. CARROLL ENDS EIGHT YEARS SERVICE

Elections for the remaining secretaries and for the assistant secretaries of the various boards of the Methodist Episcopal church were contigued at the general conference of that denomination at Baltimore on Saturday. The Rev. Dr. A. B. Leonard, for twenty years secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, was retained.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Nicholson, president of Dakota Wesleyan University, at Mitchell, S. D., was elected secretary of the new Board of Education, which will have its office in New York city.

The Rev. Dr. J. F. Maveety, field secretary of the former Board of Education, Freedmen's Aid and Sunday School Union, was named as the additional secretary.

Dr. Homer C. Stentz was elected assistant secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, displacing Dr. H. K. Carroll, of North Plainfield, who had held the office for eight years. Dr. Stentz has been assistant secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension.

The judiciary committee has dismissed the charges of maladministration brought by the Rev. George A. Moore, Jr., and Rev. Jewell on rulings adverse to Mr. Cooke in the matter of his charges against Chancellor Day and others at the annual conference presided over by the bishops named.

An invitation was extended to the General Conference to hold its next quadrennial session in Salt Lake City.

DOGS SNAPS AT SMALL BOY, NARROWLY MISSES HIS EYE.

Edward Brown, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, of Somerset street, has bitten on the left cheek by "Rags," a hound belonging to Mr. Gould, who lives in the same apartment, Decoration Day morning.

Young Brown, with the Gould lad, was playing on the porch of the Gould apartment with the dog at about noon, when the animal made a dive and his teeth scratched Edward Brown, making abrasions of the skin above the eye and piercing the eyelid. Dr. Clawson was summoned by telephone and cleaned the wound, carefully bandaging the eye. The dog's teeth missed the eyeball by the merest fraction of an inch.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL PLAY

SOME DELIGHTFUL MUSIC.

Before an assemblage of five hundred people, including guests from New York, Philadelphia and the Oranges, The Hartridge School presented its bi-ennial open air play Friday afternoon at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mali on East Front street. This time the young actors gave the Pastoral opera in two acts of "The Winter's Tale." The weather, which was threatening during the morning cleared before 3 o'clock and the effects of light and shade were beautiful.

Preceding the play was a prelude, the Haydn Largo, charmingly rendered by a string quartet. Dr. Leonard Waldo took charge of the music for the entire program and obtained the services of A. M. Weingartner, concert-master of the Lehigh Valley Philharmonic Orchestra. Others who kindly assisted were Dr. Waldo's daughter, Mrs. Beech, Miss Patterson, Miss Hyatt and Miss Seward.

This was followed by one of the Gilbert School dances, the tiny dancers being dressed as jesters in yellow and white costumes. One of the actors then gave a synopsis, and the play began. Miss Elsie Goddard, who coached the players, deserves warm congratulations for the unqualified success of the performance. Not only were the girls' lines perfect, but they took their parts with spirit and with real feeling. Following is the program:

Polixenes, Alice Ross; Camillo, Alice Gernon; Autolyeus, Helen Bessler; Clown, Dorothy Adams; Florizel, Florence Stiles; Perdita, Helen Shepherd; Shepherd, Anna Rumpus. Such a rumpus in fact, that at Frances; Iredell; Mopsa, Gladys Chase; Leontes, Helen Potievent; Herminone, Edith Mellick; Paulina, Margaret Drayton; Phocion, Margaret Rushmore; Cleomenes, Clara Fitch; Archadanus, Florence Zeile.

During the play various dances were given, one of the most attractive being that of the Satyrs, sixteen little boys dressed appropriatly in brown costumes with shaggy skins over their shoulders and reed pipes in their hands. The corresponding dance were sixteen little girls dressed as wood fairies. The older pupils as shepherds and shepherdesses performed a country dance and the play closed with a minuet by the court ladies and gentlemen. For these the children were trained by Miss Lasra M. Kennish, teacher of calisthenics in The Hartridge School. Following the play Miss Hartridge entertained her guests in a delightful manner. Refreshments were served and the social features were greatly enjoyed.

SHERMAN HABERLE WINS CYCLE CLUB'S ROAD RACE

Sherman Haberle, riding scratch, won the ten mile handicap road race of the Plainfield Cycle Club, held early Saturday morning in a drizzling rain. He covered the couree in 29 minutes, 11 seconds and received a Crawford bicycle as first prize. Fifty feet from the finish line, he sustained a puncture and crossed the tape with a flat tire. Harry Green, scratch, Partridge, who also rode scratch, finished second.

Despite the heavy condition of the roads, there were seventeen starters in the ten mile grind, and the scratch men started from Netherwood avenue and East Front street at shortly after 8 o'clock. Edward Bimble and George Adams were the only contestants to sustain accidents, both taking tumbles. Adams was but slightly hurt, but Bimble was painfully cut about the face and arms. He pluckily remounted his wheel and finished seventh. Prizes were awarded the first nine riders to cross the line. The order of finishing with the handicaps, follows:

Sherman Haberle, (scratch), Robert Partridge, (scratch), Harry Hook (1 minute), Henry Vlebrock, (1 minute), Harry Warren, (1 minute), George Adams, (scratch), Edward Bimble, (2 minutes), Percy Haberle, (2 minutes), Eugene Caffery, (3 minutes), Walter Cubberley, (1 minute), Aaron Higgins, (3 minutes).

To Enforce Spitting Ordinance.

The North Plainfield Board of Health ruled at its meeting last night that the anti-spitting ordinance be strictly enforced by the North Plainfield police. The police will also put the "kibosh" on the farmers' wagons, which leak and will take special precautions against the careless transportation of garbage through the borough streets.

WATCHUNG CLUB'S RACES

Mud and Rain no Barrier to the Fourth Annual Steeplechase.

BIG CROWD IN ATTENDANCE.

Despite the fact that the track was a miniature canal and a driving rain at times almost hid horses and jockeys from view, the Watchung Hunt Club conducted its fourth annual race meet at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon. It was almost impossible for the runners to keep their feet on the turns or jumps and spills were frequent though no serious accidents occurred. The grounds about the Park were one vast sea of rich, oozy, juicy, Jersey mud and the only half-dry place was the grandstand where at least 500 enthusiasts cheered their favorites on.

Six races were on the card, three flat and three steeplechase, and although the conditions were against good time, the results were well worth the drip out. The best event was undoubtedly the steeplechase for the Watchung cup, won by Charles W. Fisk's speedy little brown gelding, "Apple Jack." Five horses faced the starter with the winner and W. H. Wildey's "Silver Twist" the favorites at odds of 2 to 1. "Silver Twist" took the lead at the start and held it twice around the course but was overhauled in the finish by "Apple Jack." The two came down the home stretch neck-and-neck but the Fisk horse went under the wire slightly in the lead. The cup must be won twice to become the winner's property and as Charles D. Freeman, who took it with "Strongheart" last year, is no longer eligible to compete, Mr. Fisk has first leg on it.

In the first race, five furlongs on the flat for the Netherwood cup, there were four starters. At the second turn, George Watson, Jr's. "Merry Kiss," slipped in the mud and threw her rider, Harvey Fisk. He rolled clear of the others but the horse continued on around the track and went under the wire at the finish at the heels of the winner. Charles Pfizer's "Spring Beauty" took first money, after a sharp go with H. A. Bourne's "Mrs. Bessie Fullum."

Seven horses were entered for the Middlesex cup, the first steeplechase, but three were scratched. Singleton VanSchaik's "Cayotte," Charles Pfizer's "Gen' D'Arme" and Rufus C. Finch's "Mercy Me." In this race, Harvey Fisk was again thrown twice. He lost his hold in the jump in the south field of the course, regained the saddle only to be pitched off at the in-and-out barrier. His mount, Miss Mabel Hooley's "Maid-of-all-Work," swerved suddenly at the second take and he was hurled against the bars, dazing him for the time being. He was also thrown from course and was covered within a half hour. W. C. Eckerson's "Rollo," at odds of 2 to 1, was the winner although Peter Hauck, Jr.'s. "Modiste" would undoubtedly have gone under the wire first but for his refusal to take the jumps.

There were only four starters in the Farmer's event and as in previous years, it was filled with excitement, most of it furnished by Richard Curran on a bay skate called "Dick." Directly after the first turn, Curran lost both stirrups and in his efforts to bring his mount to a stop he broke a bridle. The animal was running away by that time and Curran saved himself from a bad throw by wrapping himself around "Dick's" neck and clinging there until the race was finished. Scott Terry's "Gray Billy" took first money and W. H. Clark's "Dexter" second. Third money went to "Dick," supposed to belong to a Richard McCullough," of New Market, but an investigation would probably show that the owner is an East End hackman.

The race for the Union cup, one and one-half miles on the flat, brought out five starters and served to introduce Marcus Hoyt as a jockey, having secured a special dispensation for rifle for the day. It was a good event closely contested, but Hoyt's horse, "Ida G," was handicapped in being smooth-shod while the others were spiked up. Hoyt was compelled to keep in the rear to avoid a fall down in front and as a result came in fourth with two acres of the track in the form of mud clinging to him. Charles Pfizer's "The Miser" surprised the wise ones by beating out the favorite, John Shield's "Hunter Raine." The latter was in the lead much of the way and "The Miser" pulled up while the run was over one of the hardest parts of the course.

The sixth and last race, steeplechase for the Somerset cup, was the only finale on the card. The starters dwindled from five to three and the contest narrowed down to Martin J. Aylward's "Rosebank," ridden by Marshall Clapp, and C. F. Wildey, Jr.'s. "Harry Baylor" carrying W. H. Wildey. Leonce Fuller's "Golden-Arms," Charles Bulkley up, was left behind almost at the start and after once around the course threw his rider at the in-and-out by falling. "Harry Baylor" repeatedly refused to take barriers and "Rosebank" won in a walk.

The ultimatum issued by the Hunt club that no book-making would be tolerated kept all betting under cover. Several "bookies" were on hand, one member of the craft coming all the way from Scranton to get some "easy money," but the presence of Middlesex county officers put a damper on their efforts to quote odds. A little of it was done some distance away from the grandstand and runners placed the money.

The summary of the races:

First race—Netherwood cup; for Galloways, fifteen hands or under. By subscription of $10 each, of which 60 per cent and the cup to the winner and 40 per cent to the second. THE AGREEABLE WOMAN.

Any One Can Be Pleasant When Life Is Merry.

Whatever else you are in life, be agreeable.

There is so little sense in being anything else.

It doesn't pay in any kind of coin to be snappy or sarcastic or backbiting. Whether you are in business, pleasure or wisdom bent you will find the woman who goes out of her way to be nice to others carrying off the prizes of social, literary or financial life.

It's really no more trouble to be agreeable once you get into the way of it than to be disagreeable. If it does not come natural to you to say or do the pleasant thing (unfortunately there are some of us who are downright "ugly" by nature), then practice it.

Don't put off that practicing either till another time when you are feeling more in love with your fellows. Begin at once.

Any one can be pleasant when life is as merry as the fellow who has just been paid a bad debt, but remember,

"The man worth while is the one who can smile when everything goes dead wrong."

So begin trying to be agreeable the next time existence seems to have just about as much humor as some comic operas. You will be surprised how much better you will feel, not to speak of those who must put up with you.

It isn't really hard to be agreeable, especially if your digestion has not been trifled with. All that is necessary is to think pleasant thoughts and then put them into working order.

If you can't be agreeable, be as agreeable as you can.

You will be surprised to find how soon it will become easy to be pleasant all the time instead of snarly and generally hateful.

It will be an equal surprise when you find you are liked instead of detested and that the popularity you once professed to despise makes this world a much more agreeable place to worry along in.

—The Optimist.

Why think of April, which is dead?
Why contemplate May with a sigh?
Think of the June that lies ahead.
And if it turns out to be a disappointment you can still look forward to July.

DISCOURSES ON CREED PREACHED TO VETERANS

Rev. Dr. Herring Interprets Meaning of "I Believe in the Holy Catholic Church."

THE NINTH OF HIS SERIES, DURING PATRIOTIC SERVICE.

The Pastor Argues That the Word "Catholic" in This Connection Means "Universal."

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, delivered the ninth sermon in the series on "The Apostles Creed," at the church, Sunday night the theme being "I believe in the Holy Catholic church." Dr. Herring emphasized the importance of one having the proper belief in the Christian church and the significance of this part of the Creed. He spoke as follows:

"Perhaps you are not quite so sure of the clause in the Creed 'I believe in the Holy Catholic church.' Do you believe in the Holy Catholic church? You think of the Catholic church as a church distinct from the Protestant church—perhaps the particular variety of the church to which you belong, say Presbyterian,—but there is something very significant in this part of the Creed and you should say it and say it from the heart. Let us start to study it by first saying, 'I believe in the church itself,' and why do you believe in the Christian church? Perhaps you say you can be a Christian without the church but our Lord founded the church and organized it for the purpose of bringing the Gospel to the world. The church then is His plan for gospelizing the world. If I am interested in His truth I should be interested in His plan.

"Paul spoke of man as the symbol of Christ's relation to His people; Christ is the head, the body with its members is the church. As there are many parts of the human body, so there are many parts of the Christian church. They are mutually helpful as the various parts of the body are mutually helpful, but are all under the control of the head, and Christ is the head. You believe in the church then because it is God's method of ministering to the needs of the world.

"Again you believe in the church because you know you cannot be religious alone. God rules His people by association. Your association with religious people stimulates the religious feelings. Our Lord Himself said that "where two or three are gathered together in My name there am I in the midst." He therefore urged religious association as a stimulus to religious life. A Christian who tries to separate it from the mass of burning coal, will soon die out. It maintains its heat by association. Spiritual life is maintained by association.

"Of course the church is not perfect, neither is the human body perfect; but we bear with the imperfections of the human body and so should bear with the imperfections of the body of Christ, i. e., the church. Paul says, 'Bear with them until we come to the perfect man.' He means by this the church in its perfection.

"We go a step farther and say we 'believe in the Catholic church.' The Standard Dictionary thus defines the word Catholic as that which is 'universal in reach.' It is said that 'the church is historically Catholic and only incidentally national.'

"The name Catholic was applied to the church in the Creed long before there was any division of churches into Catholic and Protestant. The though therefore in the minds of Christian thinkers at that time, was simply this, that the Christian church was to be a universal church. You can conscientiously subscribe to that though; you believe in one universal church. You do not believe that Buddhism is good enough for China; Hinduism for India, and Mahommedanism for Turkey—but you do believe that dominion of Christ is to be to the ends of the earth. There is a missionary thought therefore in that word 'catholic,' for the word is nothing but another word for universal.

"You add further this thought that the church in which you believe is 'holy.' Is the church holy? Why shouldn't it be so? It is the body of Christ and as devoted to Him, it is holy. The church of Christ is His force for conquering the world. You have just stated your faith in the Holy Ghost, and have said that the important work of the Holy Ghost is to make men holy. The Holy Spirit's activity is spent in the church and He makes the church holy. What is the church?—the body, of which Christ is the head. That body consists of the whole number of Christian believers; of men of like calibre with Peter who confessed that Jesus was 'the Messiah, the Son of the living God.' Upon confessors like Peter the Lord builds His church, and our Lord assures us that this church will never be destroyed, for the Gates of Hades shall not prevail against it.

"The whole body of devoted Christian believers in the world today is Christ's force for the conquest of the world. That force is under the power of God's Holy Spirit, and is going forth conquering, and to conquer until Christ is King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

Dr. Johnson Gives Brilliant Sermon on "Fidelity" at Trinity Church.

Local Grand Army Men Present in a Body—Edifice Decorated with Flags and Patriotic Music a Feature.

With a delegation of forty members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. and the Women's Relief Corps in attendance Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson preached a powerful and dramatic sermon on "Fidelity" at Trinity Reformed church Sunday night. The service was in connection with the local observance of Memorial Day, and the church was handsomely decorated with American flags, large and small. Music was a feature of the service during which patriotic airs and hymns were impressively rendered by the quartet, choir of the church, Organist Arthur L. Titsworth officiating.

In his discourse, Dr. Johnson emphasized the militant duty of the Christian soldier to God and the church, drawing a parallel with the faithfulness of the American soldier in service to the country. Taking his text from Revelations 2:10, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." Dr. Johnson said in part:

"Fidelity is the one infallible test of life; it is the safest test because it is the simplest, the highest, because it is the severest and the fairest, because the broadest. The fidelity of the American soldier is a fidelity that fears nothing in the self-sacrifice or following where duty calls. A fidelity that perseveres unto death is required by Christ by the patriotic soldier and by the Christian soldier, each of whom must discharge his duty unshrinkingly.

"There is no calling that so exemplifies the divine sacredness of life as the soldiers calling. Would that we could make the military simile most realistic, realizing our Lord's commands as orders, not as mere suggestions. There can be no real greatness or goodness to anyone who has not learned to obey. Soldiers have a reverence for duty and for those who command them; it is so too with the Christian,—what he learns to obey, he learns to revere and worship.

"The soldiers of '61 and '98 have given a new lesson of the meaning and mission of our flag, and as long as their memory is fresh, that banner shall be dear to us. The fidelity of the dead soldier has led him to learn to be faithful unto death, to hold life not dear unto himself if only he can lead his course to his Commander. The spirit of personal abandonment of self to the cause shall impregnate the Christian soldier as well as the American soldier. Great blessings come to us only by the self-sacrifice of others, and the more we make our lives a blessing to others, the more we will be honored, respected and loved.

"Those who have sacrificed their lives that our flag may be preserved are not absolutely dead and forgotten. It doesn't need even Decoration Day to keep their deeds fresh in our minds. Those dead soldiers are still members of the living body of the Republic, only they are camping now on the Plains of Peace. Be then faithful unto death, and thereby win the crown of life."

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED

Graves of Fallen Soldiers Decorated and Tributes Paid to Their Memory.

S. S. SWACKHAMER THE ORATOR

Patriotic Songs Rendered by Children's Chorus—Lincoln's Gettysburg Speech Read.

The observance of Memorial Day was almost wholly confined to the program as prepared by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps and John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans. Despite the weather conditions the veterans carried out their program as planned. Early in the morning a large detail under the direction of Commander J. F. Berg went to Scotch Plains, where Post services were held. The detail was accompanied by the Plainfield Band, which afterwards led the parade in the city.

The line formed on West Second street, right resting on Central avenue, when this line of march was followed: Central avenue to Front street to Watchung avenue to Chatham street to North Plainfield Cemetery; returning to Chatham street to Somerset street to Front street to Park avenue to Second street and Post headquarters.

The veterans were escorted by John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, and Company K, which has been the annual custom and although there was a notable absence of the veterans of the Civil War, several having died during the past year, there was a good attendance and all were filled with the spirit of the day.

The Post re-assembled at Reform Hall at 2:30 for public exercises at that place. The hall was filled with defenders of the Union, Women's Relief Corps, Sons of Veterans and public spirited citizens who thoroughly enjoyed the excellent program provided. The Plainfield Band was present and discoursed a number of patriotic selections. Commander Berg was in charge of the exercises which consisted of the reading of President Lincoln's Gettysburg address, the official Memorial Day orders from National Headquarters of the G. A. R. and the impressive ceremony of honoring the dead of the unknown dead, as well as paying due respect to the members of the Post who have died during the past year.

An enjoyable feature of the afternoon was the singing of patriotic songs by a large class of children, which was under the direction of the Women's Relief Corps.

The orator of the day was S. S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, who delivered a carefully prepared address on the scenes and incidents of the Civil War in which all of the veterans had a part. He recalled vividly important engagements and actions all tending toward the successful campaign on the part of the Union forces, referring in praise to the brave leaders and generals who so wisely directed the soldiers in their efforts to wipe slavery from the country.

Mr. Swackhamer did not omit the praise due President Lincoln for the part he had in freeing the negro from bondage and he aroused a deep feeling in the old soldier as he touched upon this and that incident which they so promptly recalled as having a great bearing upon the result of the conflict.

Following the exercises in the main part of the hall the children adjourned to the basement where they were served with ice cream and cake by the Women's Relief Corps. Many of the veterans, as well as the women in training the children for the exercises, they also gathered the flowers for decorating the graves and furthermore they presented each veteran with a bouquet tied with a small piece of white ribbon. The members of the band were also remembered in a similar way. During the exercises the orders for the day and those from National Headquarters were read by the adjutant, H. Craig Smith.

Rifle Shooting is Rain.

In a driving rain at the Independent Gun Club rifle range Decoration Day afternoon, Dr. C. W. Leonard won the first of a series of three match rifle shoots from Henry Haurand. He scored 123 out of a possible 150 shots and his opponent, who had a handicap of 30 points, scored 119.

Mental Struggle.

"A great struggle takes place in a woman's mind when another woman tells what her new gown cost," remarked the thoughtful thinker.

"What's the answer?" queried the unsophisticated youth.

"She's in doubt whether to cut the price in half and make the other woman envy her bargain, or double it and make her envy her affluence," replied the t. t.—Chicago News.

The Ambitions of Youth.

"Johnny, why don't you be a good boy like your brother Willy?" the mother was seriously admonishing her naughty son. "Willy here may be President some day, while you will have to dig in the sewer."

"But, mother," wailed Willy, "can't I dig in the sewer sometimes, too?"—Harper's Weekly.

Thief Stole Flag.

Leonard Young, a Somerset street barber, had a flag stolen from in front of is place Decoration Day and has reported the theft to the police. The banner measured 6 by 10 feet and was cut down from the halyards sometime during Saturday morning.

AIDS TO BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

Thin arms are often helped by being washed twice a day with a thick lather of soap, rinsed well, dried thoroughly and then rubbed vigorously. This treatment will bring the purple veins within and induce a healthy condition. At nights a good skin food may be rubbed in.

An excellent lotion for the skin, to take away the drawn feeling, is made from cologne one dram; fresh lemon juice, oned ram; elder flower water, one ounce. The face can be wiped with this every day or even twice a day.

It will often be found that acne pimples are caused by to coarse soap that has removed too much of the natural oil of the skin. Change your soap until you find one that agrees with your skin.

Care in Use of Colors.

While perfect harmony is the rule that governs the color scheme, many contracts are noted, as, for instance, the scarlet sunshade with the all-black costume. The vivid green vest against the whiteness of a linen or the electric blue leather belt with sombre brown. These little touches, correctly done, are smart in the extreme, but it is so easy to fall into error about them that many times it is beter to leave them out.

Slight Mistake.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Stubb, clapping her hands, "isn't the blizzard severe resaltste? Just listen to the wind howling through the trees."

"Sh, Maria!" chuckled Mr. Stubb, as he hid his face behind a program, "That's not the wind. It is a man moring behind a post."—Chicago News.

The Irrepressible Conflict.

"O Lord," prayed the Yale chaplain at the morning exercise, "we are poor, miserable creatures, not fit to address Thee, confirmed as we are in evil and unrighteous ways—"

"Say, Billie," whispered one freshman to another between his fingers, "what does the Revvy think we are, anyhow—a bunch of Harvard men!"—Life.

My Policies.

*"Is the phrase 'my policies' of re*cent origin?" asked the man from abroad.

"No," answered the philogist, "there is an impression that it originated during the present Administration, but it was really invented by a man in the insurance business named Hyde."—Washington Star.

Provocation.

"Why Jimmie, is it true that you gave little Bobbie a black eye?"

"Y-Yessum."

"What excuse have you for such a brutal act?"

"W-well, he provoked me."

"How did he provoke you?"

"He hit back."—St. Louis Republic.

Knew Her Way.

"That was a pretty parasol your sister had yesterday."

"Yes, my wife is going to get one like it."

"Did she tell you so."

"No, but I told her not to."—Philadelphia Press.

How it Happened.

"True, the night was dark, but he appeared to jump deliberately in front of the automobile."

"Force of habit. The poor fellow was an actor, and naturally dived for the spotlight."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Retort Courteous.

The Writer—Ah, laugh at me if you will, but I will write of you in my journal that which will make you sick!

The Artist—Everything that M'aleur writes makes me sick.—Life.

Unanswerable.

"Women have suffered in a thousand ways."

"There's one way they haven't suffered."

"How is that?"

"In silence."—Chicago Tribune.

More to the Point.

Conceited Amateur—I learned to play the violin when I was eight years old.

Crusty Professional—Indeed! How old were you when you forgot?—London Tit-Bits.

Its Uses.

Made a Detour.

"Yes," said Mr. Tambo, "I passed around the hat today."

"And why," inquired Mr. Bones, "did you pass around the hat today?"

Persistency.

VARIOUS HINTS ON HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

Towels—Never stint your stock of towels for silver, glass and china, and coarser grades for the pots and pans. Keep good soap and washing powder, a bottle of strong soda to flush out the sink pipes, a hammer and nails and a ball of cord, with a place for each and each in its place.

Dull Mirrors—If mirrors be very dull and speckled, the following method is excellent: Take a small portion of whiting and add sufficient cold tea to make a paste; rub the glass with warm tea, dry with a soft cloth; rub a little of the paste well on the mirror, and polish dry with tissue paper.

Finger-Marks on Painted Doors—These unsightly marks are a great annoyance to the tidy housewife, and should be removed with a soft flannel wrung out in water in which a few drops of ammania have been mixed, and then rubbed with soap. Having removed the stains, the paint should be washed with clear water and thoroughly dried.

To Keep Fish Fresh—Clean the fish and sprinkle the inside with brown sugar. Keep the fish in a horizontal position, so that the sugar may soak into it as much as possible. Half a ounce of sugar will be found quite sufficient for three pounds of fish. If fish is treated by this method before salting and smoking the flavor is much improved.

Brushes and Combs—Soap and soda soften the bristles of a brush and turn the ivory back yellow; a tablespoon of ammonia in a quart of warm water is sufficiently cleansing. Combs should not be washed if it can be avoided, as water is apt to split the teeth. They can be kept clean with a small brush which is sold for the purpose, and rubbed with a cloth or towel.

First Aid to the Corn.

For home treatment of corns remove all the hard skin that you can, then soften it in warm water and rub with cold cream, vaseline or any softening salve you prefer. Let this be done at night. The next night begin by softening the corn in warm water, rubbing with a pumice stone, finishing with cold cream. If you will persevere with warm water, pumice and salves every night you will be at peace. Even dry rubbing with pumice is good, with the salve both night and morning. When the feet are weary and tender, through long standing or walking during the day there is nothing which will give more relief than a warm footbath in which has been dissolved a handful or two of sea salt. Bathe the feet and legs with this for about ten minutes and then rub them well with a good rough towel. The effect is delightfully refreshing, and if you do this just before going to bed insomnia for that night, at any rate, is not likely to troubel you.

Pretty Slips for Summer.

The old-time slips for furniture of striped linen with seams bound in red braid have been supplanted by very much more decorative coverings These are made of pretty flowered cretonnes or art tickings and are fitted in with little plaits, thus avoiding so many long seams. The necessary seams are managed in a perfectly simple way. They are stitched upon the wrong side, creased, turned and stitched on the right side, forming a tiny welt, not an eighth of an inch in width. The bottom of cover for chair or couch is finished with a box plaiting. The effect is of an upholstered chair *rather than of a slip, which, how*ever, is really is, being made to protect the more costly covering and to give a color "feel" to the furniture for warm-weather uses. Adopting such slips might serve the purpose of hiding worn upholstering pending the time when one feels like having the furniture "done over."

Balzac and the Thief.

A story, said to be new, of Balzac is related by a French contemporary. A burglar gained admission to Balzac's house and was soon at work, by the light of the moon, at the lock of the secretaire in the novelist's chamber. Balzac was asleep at the time, but the movements of the intruder aroused him. The burglar, who was working most industriously, paused. A strident laugh arrested his operations and he beheld by the moonlight the novelist sitting up in bed, his sides aching with laughter.

"What is it that makes you merry?" demanded the burglar.

"I laugh," replied the author of 'Pere Goriot,' "to thing that you should come in the night without a lantern to search my secretaire for money when I can never find any there in broad daylight."—Westminster Gazette.

When You Are Tired.

Don't talk any more than you can help. Talking takes vitality.

Lie down in a dark place, if only for fifteen minutes.

Don't read anything in which you are not interested.

Don't feel that everything must be done in one day. There are 364 more.

Realize that it is better to leave things undone than overdo yourself.

Avoid people and their woes at that time. Seek some one frivolous.

Don't try to improve yourself. Give your mind a rest.

CREAM.

PRETTY NEGLIGEES TO BE MADE AT HOME.

Given a few scraps of pretty lawn and a few bits of lace, almost any woman can make herself dainty dressing sacques after this season's models. Indeed, an organdie, Swiss or any summer dress that has seen its best days can assist at the evolution of a fascinating little negligee and scarcely know itself in its new guise. It will pay you to put on your thinking cap and see if you haven't frocks long past their usefulness that can be utilized for this purpose.

The dressing sacques this year are short, reaching but little below the waist line. They are made of alternate bands of material and lace insertion, both back, front and the short fluffy sleeves—delightfully cool and filmy in effect, and equally delightful for using these dress leftovers, they hang straight like a box coat, but this prim effect is bewitching since they are otherwise so delightfully feminine.

For those who do not care for this style, r do not need to make their negligee as inexpensively as possible, the fitted sacques, belted in snugly at the waist with sewed-on embroidery or beading ribbon-run, the part below frequently being slashed like the venting of the sem-fitting coats. The effect is very smart.

Sacques with handkerchief collar and cuffs are again seen—a picturesque style.

A dainty trimming on a high-priced sacque which any woman clever with her needle can copy easily, is a yoke of bands of fine lace insertion united at the bottom with oval lace medallions. It is a most graceful ending of for the yoke and a little note of elegance as well for the sacque.

Of course the Japanese effects are seen in sacques, just a few broad folds of the goods over the shoulders giving the wide, lose armhole and the suggestion of a sleeve, a delightfully cool fashion, by the way.

The quintessence of sacque beauty is seen in lovely mazes of Cluny or Valenciennes lace and hand embroidery. But unless you can do this needlework yourself, you will part with a twenty dollar bill and more to own one of these aristocratic beauties.

The New Fad.

One of the most fashionable cults of the day is said to be caravanning. The thing has grown so popular that there is to be a grand caravan meet at Ockham in Surrey next week. Caravan enthusiasts are subject to much annoyance at times from people who still try to befriend and rescue them. One of the leaders of the movement, for instance, was besought by a friend to come in out of the rain and have a comfortable dinner and bed in a house near which she was encamped. She declined, of course, but her friends could not see the point and still urged their hospitality. The object of the caravanner is not to have a good dinner or comfortable bed; it is part of the excitement to go without these conventions, and this is what some outsiders cannot be made to understand.—London Saturday Review.

Noiseless Berlin.

Berlin is said to be the quietest city in Europe. Railway engines are not allowed to blow their whistles within the city limits, no cabs are to loud bawling of hucksters and the man whose wagon gearing is loose and rattling is subject to a fine. The courts have a large discretion as to fines for noise-making. Strangest of all, piano-playing is regulated in Berlin. Before a certain hour in the day and after a certain hour in the day and after a certain hour in the night the piano must besilent in that musical city. Even during the playing hours one is imposed for mere pounding on the piano.—New Orleans States.

Only One Way to Save the Party.

We have often said, in hope that the candidacy of Mr. Bryan will be abandoned at Denver. Unless it be true that he is really the only man in the party the convention at Denver will not put him at the head of the Democratic ticket. If it shall again sentence the party to follow his leadership there will be a new adjustment of party lines in the Presidential campaign of 1912. Unless the Democratic party intends to go out of business permanently as a militant political organization Bryan must be defeated at Denver.—Charleston News and Courier.

Buttons and Buttons.

Beware button trimming on your summer gown unless you have quantities of pretty buttons to use. Half a dozen buttons of ordinary style scattered on a blouse and a dozen more on a skirt make no showing whatever. On the summer coat you may use two or three large, showy buttons on the front, but if you are trimming a gown of any description you must have dozens of small buttons arranged in groups or designs. Neither are plain butons used except on severely tailored suits. The crocheted button is most popular.

What Light Does.

People still talk about the illuminations at the World's Fair. The recent illumination of The World building in New York on the occasion of their twenty-fifth anniversary attracted 40,000 people from residence districts many miles away. The outlining of the new Singer building tower attracts more attention than the Statue of Liberty, and the Great White Way has magnetized the world.—Illuminating Engineer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 7, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DEVYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart.—VI. What is true penitence.—Ps. li. (Consecration meeting.)

The Fifty-first Psalm is one of the deepest and sincerest expressions of repentance to be found in religious history. David had sinned grievously. He had broken two of the most serious commandments of God. God sent Nathan the prophet to him, who in a parable made David see and condemn himself, and when he saw what he had done he fell down in sackcloth and ashes and cried unto God for forgiveness and afterward expressed his repentance in the words of this psalm, which may well be taken as a type of true penitence.

Moreover, the subject of repentance is well worthy of our study, and especially today. The tendency of our age is not to emphasize repentance from sin. The John the Baptists who are crying, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sin," are not so large in number as they have been in the history of the past nor as they should be today, for without repentance it is impossible for the human soul to find salvation in Jesus Christ.

What, then, is true penitence as expressed by David in this psalm? (1) It includes consciousness of sin. No man will ever repent of what he is not conscious. If he is not convicted of his sinfulness, he will never seek God to pardon it and to forgive him. Time had elapsed between David's sin and his repentance. He went on living as he had done before, but when Nathan, under God's direction, convicted him of his sinfulness the first step had been taken toward true repentance. Our difficulty today is the absence of deep conviction of sin. In many cases sin is made light of. It has been called a weakness for which we are not responsible. It has been defined merely as the "absence of love" or human selfishness. But sin is a transgression against the law of God. David realized this when he cried out to God, "Against Thee, and Thee only, have I sinned." So did the prodigal son when he exclaimed, "I have sinned before heaven and in Thy sight." If you have never felt that you are a sinner, ask God to show you, as he did David, the true condition of your heart, and you also will be convinced of your personal sinfulness. (2) True repentance includes an apprehension of the mercy of God. David appreciated the fact that God was gracious and merciful. He had no fear in coming to Him. Much more should we apprehend the mercy of God today since it has been manifested in the gift of His Son as "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." (3) It includes confession of sin. This confession need only be made to God. No man needs to confess to a fellow man unless he can make restitution for a wrong done, (4) contrition or sorrow for sin, and this sorrow must mean hatred of sin and a turning away from sin. The man who truly repents must give up his sins; otherwise repentance is a farce and a mockery. But if we truly repent God is able and willing to forgive us our sins, for the dying man he hath an advocate with the Father, even Jesus Christ the righteous, who is the expiatory sacrifice for our sins."

BIBLE READINGS.

Job xiii. 2, 5; Isa. i. 16-18; Hr. 1-7; Mark i. 14, 15; Luke iii. 1-8; xv. 11-24; Acts. iii. 17-41; xxvi. 19, 20; Rom. ii. 1-4; II Cor. vii. 8-11.

More and Better.

Endeavorers, listen! Our glorious movement is not worn out. It has not seen its day. Through my specs I see nothing to discourage us but only the fulfilling of an irrevocable natural law, and already the receding tide is gathering itself for a mightier effort. The waters are gathering and swelling and rising and will surely, with a glorious onward movement, sweep farther and yet farther up the shore and over our national, social and religious life. We see with what pendulum-like regularity the law of action and reaction is executed in every phase of human life. In our national life we have our seasons of prosperity and commercial depression. In our church life we have our seasons of spiritual revival, followed almost inevitably by times of opposite experience, and who will not acknowledge the operation of the same law in his own individual spiritual life?

What is to be done, then? We cannot alter the law. No, but we can utilize it, and I think I may say that tide is the secret of all true progress, not in fighting against but in working with the laws which God in His wisdom has laid down for the control of all the forces of nature. The reaction has passed, and now we must set ourselves to make the utmost use of the immense force of this returning wave in our Christian Endeavor life and pursue a vigorous policy of expansion. —Australian Roll Call.

Filling Up the Ruts.

If it is a prayer meeting rut, fill it up with new voices.

If it is a committee rut, fill it up with new methods.

If it is a devotional rut, fill it up with new spirituality.

If it is a financial rut, fill it up with new consecration.

If it is a social rut, fill it up with novel sorts of socials.

If it is any manner of rut, fill it up with ingenuity, persistence and pluck. —Amos R. Wells in Irish Endeavorer.

Working For Things That Are Vital.

I wish you godspeed in your work, because the Christian Endeavorers are working for the things that are vital to the soul.—President Roosevelt.

The Seal Skin Coat

By MAB ERVIN

The first time John Crawford saw her he thought of his sister. Not that the fleeting glance he had of her piquant face was like Marie's, but there was something to the bird-like set of her little head, her height, and the trimness of her slender, swaying form, that carried him back to New York, and the sister, and home.

Though he was going in the opposite direction when he came face to face with her in the crowd, and caught a flash of brown eyes and red lips, and noticed a crimson rose in her black hair under the rim of her black toque, he turned and followed her. She went so fast he could not catch up with her, swaying gracefully to the motion of the crowd. Suddenly he lost her, and when he was trying to decide what shop she could have entered she came out of a confectioner's with a box in her hand he knew held bon bons. She looked him square in the face this time, and he caught the outline of small, delicate features, an oval face, and finely penciled brows above her flashing dark eyes, under the fine gauze of a complexion veil. She entered a cab, and he heard her give the order "Hotel Cecil." That was the last he saw of her in London, though it may be recorded that John Crawford frequented the Cecil for everything from dinners to cigars.

Crawford loafed around London for a month after, seeing the little lady, then decided to go home. Though Crawford never found it out, he had been the butt of the London shop keepers, and carried home trinkets of various design and price for all of his friends and his sister's friends. Chief among them was a seal skin coat for Marie. It was one of those long English ulsters, lined with white brocade, and with narrow collar and cuffs of ermine, such as English women of great wealth wear on the continent. It was made to come to the hem of a short skirt, and when he purchased it he smiled to think of the "dash" Marie would cut in it on Broadway. But his smile lessened when his friend, Lord Thurston, remarked as Crawford locked it away:

"Glad, old man. That coat will cost you a jolly fortune to get through the custom house on your side."

Crawford shook out the rich folds of bronzed gold skin and looked it over thoughtfully. The duty had never occurred to him.

"Tell you what you do, old chap. Get some woman aboard to wear it, and pass it through on her back. That's what I did once, crossing from France. I'd her checked in if I hadn't."

It was a good idea, and Crawford took it to heart. But the coat was made for such a little waist, he wondered about it.

Some men would rather cheat the government out of a dollar than find $50, and Crawford happened to be one of them. Besides, his purse was getting slim.

When he boarded the Majestic at Liverpool his keen eye singled out a trim little figure, in a close-fitting tailored black coat that touched her high-heeled boots. She was leaning over the rail watching the passengers come aboard, and the wind gave him a glimpse of white satin coat lining, a red cloth skirt, and billows of white lace, close about silk clad ankles and patent leather boots. Then his brain awhirl he crossed the gang plank. Small need to look twice to know it was she of the "Hotel Cecil."

"She for Marie's coat," he said to himself as he climbed aboard.

He saw her again at table a'hote, but it sat at the farther end of the table from him. He tried to attract her by his gaze, and just as she left the table she looked his way, and he saw a smile that was like a flash of pearl and was gone. At least she had recognized him.

That evening as the moon hung high and made shadows of opal on the waters that gently lashed the boat as it sped ahead like some great bird, he saw her leaning over the side of the boat looking at the sky. Her features were clear cut against the water, they seemed to be chiseled of marble, the expression of her long, dark eyes made him feel her thoughts were not of earth, while the soft wind blowing wisps of black hair across her cheek, gave her the appearance of a mythical goddess.

An hour later he was talking to her in the shadow of the grand salon, while the music from the stringed orchestra floated to them amid the music of the sea.

The next morning madam, who was an excellent sailor, wore on deck a long ulster of seal skin, lined with white brocade, and with narrow collar and cuffs of ermine. And Crawford took pride in seeing her wear it as if she had grown in it.

"If I had only promised it to Marie, I would give it to her, it suits her so well," he told himself.

Madam proved herself a coquette. Though she granted favors to none, she made many friends among both men and women. The greatest compliment Crawford received was from her was a slight pressure of the hand when he said good night, or met her on deck in the morning. She never forgot the pressure, and she never failed to wear the seal skin coat. She said she was going to New York to meet her husband who sang the tenor in the coming grand opera season, and she was all impatience to see him again. But her smile to Crawford belied her protested impatience. While he would have given her his bank account if she had demanded it, he did not offer to give her the seal skin coat —and only because he had written Marie about its beauty.

At last, much too soon for Crawford, Ellis island was reached and madam walked aboard in the seal skin coat. She paid a trifling duty on some laces, while Crawford paid well for his trinkets, and thanked his lucky stars madam wore the seal skin coat.

Another day, and the Majestic anchored in New York. Madam wore the seal skin coat down the gang way, amid the admiring glances of passengers, crowds, and newspaper men. She asked for a cab, and Crawford found her one.

"To the Netherlands," she said, and Crawford, with her permission, seated his humble self. A half hour, and she had obtained a suite of rooms, saying her husband would come within the hour.

"Now for the coat, and I'll go," said Crawford.

"Ze coat?" said madam. "What eez ze coat?"

"The seal skin I let you wear."

"M'sieur says ze seal skin coat eez hees? Pardon, et eez mine." Madam folded her small arms and looked at him laughingly.

Crawford took it as a joke and laughed, but a feeling of uneasiness came over him. He ordered madam a bottle of wine, and said to give him the coat and he would go. But madam protested she had no coat of his. "Ze coat ze last time, an opera coat, a black tailor-made, and a seal skin ulster, all of which she could prove were her own.

"But, madam, my seal skin coat for my sister? It is mine," said Crawford, beginning to see through madam's scheme.

Madam shrugged her small shapely shoulders half way to her ears, and coolly opened her traveling bag, produced a cigarette and lighted it, puffing smoke delicately into space, while he walked the floor.

"Then I will call the police," said Crawford, finally, with great sternness, "or I will call the police and have you arrested."

"Call ze gend'armes," said she carelessly. "If you try to prove zat beautiful coat eez not mine, I will zay zat you cheat ze government. Many people aboard will zay 'Yes, madam vore ze coat.'"

A footstep sounded outside just then, and madam pushed Crawford into the next room.

"My husband. He veal keel you," she said.

The coat was lost, for Crawford would never stand the scandal of arrest, and his name being mixed with that of an unscrupulous French woman. Crawford stood still with his hand on the door and listened. A man entered, and he heard madam give a cry of joy. He heard a passionate kiss, a loving greeting in French between man and woman, and then he opened the door, and went out unheeded and unheard.

It was a month later he saw madam again. She was at Sherry's with a party from the grand opera. She wore the seal skin coat over a gown of lace, and was the admiring ones he heard her say in French: "Oh, yes, but the duty on it was terrible, terrible."

HE MISSED THE HAMMOCK.

And the Discovery He Made in the Early Morning.

"I never go to bed in a sleeper in warm weather that I don't think of my experience on the way from here to Cincinnati summer before last," said Frank N. Conwell of Chicago.

"I caught a 9:30 train out of here one night—one hot July night it was—and I was tired as a jack horse, tired and hot and sleepy. I hadn't been on the train long until I decided to crawl into my lower seven and try to get what slumber was coming to me. I found it wasn't so warm in the berth with the window open, and I fired my things into the little hammock alongside of me, put on my nightie and went right after the sheeps.

"I've told it to you just the way I thought it was at the time. Next morning I woke up in Cincinnati and could not find my clothes, nothing but a pair of shoes, one sock and a necktie. Even my collar was gone. I stuck my head out to ask the porter who it was had robbed me, but before I shouted to him I took a look across the aisle and it all came to me. The night before when I thought I was throwing my duds into the little hammock I had been throwing 'em out the window. My wardrobe was probably scattered over nine different counties.

"It just happened that I had put my money and watch under my pillow and I had another pair of trousers and a clean shirt in my grip.

"And, say, the bunch in the car when they heard about it, all wanted to contribute something. I got enough stuff together finally so that I could walk up town without violating any ordinances. Then I bought a hand-me-down two-piece suit."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

On the Roof Garden.

She pointed to her wealth of golden tresses.

"My friends tell me my hair is a dream," she chirped.

"Ah, sister," replied the gaunt comedian, "I have always considered your hair a dream."

"And why have you considered my hair a dream, Percy?"

"Because it comes off every night."

And then, amid loud applause, the imported band struck up the tear-producing ballad, "I'd Rather Be a Pickle Than a Lemon Any Day."

THE SURRENDER OF ZED BILBRO

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

By WILLIAM H. HAMBY

Zed Bilbro's two most troublesome possessions were a violent temper and a pretty daughter.

The temper, like an active volcano, was always either in open eruption or gathering steam for a big explosion.

The daughter was aggravatingly obedient, and was as sweet and modest as she was pretty. She was so much unlike her father that one constantly wondered what an angel her mother must have been.

The disagreement which led to the tragedy was over Ben Hudson.

Zed suspicioned that Helen loved this young man, and she knew that her father hated him.

Ben had courted her a very short time when old Zed's temper had one of its most violent explosions. He ordered the young man off the place and swore by all his fighting ancestors that if he ever set foot on the premises again he would fill him so full of lead that he would not float in brine.

Those who knew intimated the old man's opposition was not by any means solely due to his hate for Hudson. Helen's mother had left her $5,000 which was to be used by her father until she married or attained the age of 20.

She lacked eight years of being 20.

But whatever the cause of his opposition, Helen knew, and Ben knew, and everybody else knew that it was simply a dangerous proposition to go up against Zed Bilbro's word. If he said he would shoot, shoot he would, no matter if he hung for it within 24 hours.

Therefore Ben, who, by the way, was a very excellent and prosperous young man, wisely stayed off the premises; and Helen went unaccompanied, if sadly, about her work.

Her face grew thinner, her cheeks paler; and there was a far-away look in her eyes that would have touched the heart of anyone but a stony old curmudgeon who wanted to hang on to the use of her $5,000.

But one Friday afternoon as she stood listlessly by the west window suddenly her eyes brightened and the color came back to her cheeks. Zed looked out just in time to catch the last wave of Ben's handkerchief as he rode by.

The next Friday Helen was at the window at the same time, and again Ben rode by and waved his handkerchief.

Although there was no response from Helen save in her eyes and cheeks, Zed swung up angrily and jerked the window blind down in front of her.

Quietly she moved to another window. Again he jerked the blind. Then without a word she walked out on the porch and sat down in a rocker. Whereupon Ben gave the handkerchief an extra swing around his head and tossed it triumphantly into the air.

Zed's face grew apoplectic and he looked longingly at his Winchester which hung over the door, but he he could not very well shoot a man down on the public highway for merely waving his handkerchief.

After that Friday afternoon salute became the weekly event for the girl, whose cheeks once more got back their pink and her step regained its old elasticity, and she went singing about her work.

But all the time Zed's impotent wrath smoldered under repression, growing hotter and hotter until he was in constant danger of explosion.

"Now, young lady, I want you to remember one thing," he said one Friday evening. "There ain't to be any elopin' 'round here. When you marry, you'll be married right here in this house. If you ever run away to get married, I'll kill him just as shore as a dog's got a tail."

Helen merely replied: "Yes, father. I'll remember," and went on about her work.

That made him boil all the more, for he had hoped for an excuse to pour out upon her the vials of his wrath, which were too full to be comfortable.

About 11 o'clock Wednesday night Zed awoke with the feeling that something had gone wrong.

He hastily got into his clothes and went to Helen's room.

She was gone.

He went down the stairs three steps at a time and got his rifle. When his hand was upon the door-knob he stopped. There were voices. He went to the window and looked out.

It was a fine June night, and the moon smiled on grass and roses and leaves.

There they were, in the shadow of the grape arbor. They were sitting on the bench, and even in the shadow he could see the young man's arm was about her.

A fit of anger swept Zed until the moonlight looked like blood.

Out of the door, across the porch and half-way across the yard he dashed before they noticed him.

They sprang to their feet. Helen screamed and started toward her father, but the young man stood his ground defiantly.

Crazy with anger, Zed jumped to one side, so the girl was out of range, threw up his rifle, and fired twice square at the young man's chest.

He fell forward on his face, lifeless.

With an agonized cry, Helen ran back and kneeled over him.

The old man returned to the house, put up his gun, finished dressing, deliberately; then went to the barn and saddled a horse.

He rode back to the gate and called to Helen, who still knelt over the lifeless body: "I am going to Martinville to give myself up." A heart-broken moan was the only response from the girl, and the father rode away.

It was 15 miles to the county seat, and daylight was just streaking the east when Zed presented himself at the sheriff's, told his story and surrendered himself to the law.

"I'll just guard you here in my house, Mr. Bilbro," said the sheriff, until a warrant is sworn out."

"Very well," assented the old man wearily. Now that his anger had died down and he must face the gallows, he confessed to himself the exceeding folly of his rash act.

The sheriff locked him in his room and went out to investigate.

For hours the old man waited his return, wondering if there would be any attempt to mob him. Ben Hudson was very popular, and certainly public excitement would run high.

But he did not care much if they did lynch him, it would be over all the quicker that way.

About four o'clock the sheriff returned.

"Mr. Bilbro," he said, "I just now had a 'phone message from out your way, and they say there is a large crowd gathered at your house."

"I expected it," said the old man, dismally. "But let 'em come, I don't care a fig which way I go so it is over with in a hurry."

"There has been a wedding out there," added the sheriff. "It is just now over."

"A wedding!" And Zed leaned forward in amazement.

"Yes, your daughter is married."

"Married?" repeated the astonished father. "Why, I killed her sweetheart last night.

The sheriff smiled. "No, Zed, that was a dummy you shot."

The relief that swept over him was so great he grew dizzy. But directly the blood rushed back to his head and he grew apoplectic with rage. To think they would fool him like that and make him the laughing stock of the whole country. He would never hear the last of it.

The sheriff saw the change and understood it.

"I haven't mentioned this to a soul," he said. "I promised Helen I never would."

"And have they?" grasped the old man with a faint glimmer of hope.

"No, and Helen told me to tell you if you would not make any fuss they would never tell it in the world.

"They are to have a big wedding party to-night—there is about 50 guests there, and she said if you agree to take it in good humor to 'phone her something so she will understand."

For a few minutes Zed struggled with his wrath, but before him stood the certainty of an endless joshing and guying wherever he went, if the thing became known.

He stepped to the 'phone and asked for his number on the rural line.

"This is Helen's. Well, say, Helen—" his voice was very fatherly. "I got the four gallons of ice cream all right, and will be out with it in time for the supper."

SPORTSMEN OF THE OLD ROCK.

Late English Duke Was a Fighter When a Boy.

To those who knew him in his later years it is difficult ever to think of the late duke of Westminster as a fighter. Yet he was very useful with his fists as a boy and the three who played so prominent a part in the celebrated fight between the duke of Westminster and the late Lord Derby have now each joined the majority. The spectator was the Hon. Francis Lawley, and the three boys were journeying home from school in a coach when at two miles' distance they fired one another and fought it out at the first inn they came to where the vehicle stopped long enough. The duke of Westminster, known as "Jock" in those days, and the most difficult youth at Oxford to get out of his bed in the mornings, proved himself the better man.

All three were at Oxford, and Mr. Lawley had $100,000 worth of engravings, all of religious subjects, in his anteroom. Mr. Lawley cared little for money and it was his habit to send a cleaning sweeper with his check to his banker. When this sweeper was called in a case which decided the ownership of Gemma di Vergy, and he had to look at the handwriting of a check he did so through a pair of gold rimmed eyeglasses taken from his waistcoat pocket.

Nelson's Signal Man.

It was in the winter of 1846 that Nelson's signal-man—the man who hoisted the famous "England expects," etc.—was discovered by one who had served as surgeon on board the Tonnant at Trafalgar. The signal-man, John Roome, was selling watercress and he recognized a shipmate. He had deserted from the navy after the battle, and this had disqualified him for a pension, but representations were made to Capt. Pasco, signal lieutenant on the Victory at Trafalgar, who used his influence in the old tar's behalf. Capt. Pasco was at first unsuccessful; he was informed by the authorities that there were many more deserving candidates for Greenwich. Shortly afterward, however, room was found at Greenwich hospital for old John. Had he lived in our time he probably would have received a princely salary for repeating the signal nightly at music halls.—London Chronicle.

AN ARMY EPISODE

By HAROLD OTIS.

[Original.]

MISS COLINNE STEPTOE was spending the social season with her aunt in the city. Miss Steptoe was the daughter of Colonel Steptoe of the United States army, commanding Fort Atkins, and while at home her social relations were limited to the officers on duty there and to the members of their families.

Though a true army girl, regarding the army her home, she was not averse to enjoying a round of balls and parties in the city, but the idea of marrying out of the circle in which she had been born never entered her head.

Civilians were well enough to dance with, but no man except a soldier need apply for her hand.

Among the young men with whom Miss Steptoe flirted mildly was one whose collar was higher and whose manners were more pronounced than any of the rest.

It was whispered among the ladies that he was the wildest young man in society.

This was certainly not indicated by his name, which was Pettypace. He was the son of a wealthy merchant who seemed to supply him with plenty of money to throw away.

Among those who presented themselves for what Miss Steptoe considered "a good time" none seemed to fill the conditions so well as Jack Pettypace, and just before the close of the season, when she was about to start for the fort, Mr. Pettypace completed what she considered "a good time" by proposing marriage.

"I am sorry you have so misunderstood me," she said in reply. "I am an army girl, and do not expect to marry unless in the army."

"What! One of those slow going fellows made to toe the mark like schoolboys?"

"The army is the home of many brave and dashing men," was the bristling reply.

"I think I'll try it myself."

Miss Steptoe laughed.

"I'm going to enlist in the corps under your father's command."

"And have three years of drudgery. Talk about the officers being schoolboys! In the ranks you'll be a prisoner in comparison."

"If I don't like it, I'll leave."

Again Miss Steptoe gave vent to her silvery laugh.

"Oh, I don't care a rap for your army fellows. I'm going to enlist, and when I want to get out of their toils I'll have no difficulty in doing so."

Miss Steptoe laughingly told Mr. Pettypace that if he would enlist in the army and get out of it without deserting, buying his discharge or using political influence, she would accept him for a husband. She limited him to two weeks to accomplish the feat.

Miss Steptoe had scarcely reached her father's quarters when she heard the women go siping about a recruit who had presented himself for enlistment dressed in the height of fashion and evidently a gentleman.

Many causes were suggested for his having entered the ranks, from a disappointment in love to cheating at cards.

The next morning she was startled at seeing Jack Pettypace walking post before her father's quarters. He did not recognize her, and she had agreed to keep his secret.

A few days later she heard it stated among the officers' wives that the gentlemanly private had gone insane and had been put in a straitjacket. This is a true version of how it happened:

One morning after a horseback ride one of the bachelor officers entered his quarters to find the sentinel who had been on guard before his door standing at the end of his suit of rooms pointing his gun directly at his superior's breast. The sentinel's eyes were wild, and he was muttering incoherently. As soon as his gaze struck the officer he ordered him to halt and stand at attention. The officer lost no time in obeying the order.

"Mutiny! Mutiny! Mutiny!" shrieked the private. "Do you come to your general's quarters to kill him? Turn out the guard! Death to traitors! Would you assassinate the czar?"

While firing these incoherent sentences the lunatic was cocking and uncocking his piece, pointing it at the officer's breast, laughing hysterically and muttering to himself.

"The mutineers are coming!" he howled. "They're going to murder their sovereign. I shall kill every mother's son of them, and then my title to the throne will be perfect."

"General—your majesty, I mean," said the officer, "shall I call a force to protect you?"

"Send the Swiss guard!"

In another minute the officer was at the telephone, calling to the sergeant of the guard to bring a dozen men with loaded guns to arrest an enlisted man who had gone insane and was howling in the officers' quarters.

Meanwhile the lunatic was taking a bracer from his superior's sideboard to keep him up to his work, and when the guard arrived he had purposely parted with his musket.

But he struggled and screamed as he was hurried off to the guardhouse and thence to a room in the hospital where he was confined by himself.

The insane man's father was communicated with, the soldier's discharge was made out, and he was sent under guard to a private sanitarium.

One morning Jack Pettypace, armed with his discharge papers, visited Fort Atkins and walked straight to the colonel's quarters. His arrival caused a sensation at the post among the officers, their families and the enlisted men.

It culminated when Mrs. Steptoe announced the engagement of her daughter with the insane private who, by outwitting the officers and the surgeons, had secured his discharge.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Buxton Acts as President and Wean as City Clerk During Lengthy Session.

MANY PETITIONS PRESENTED.

Team of Fire Horses to Be Purchased—Usual Monthly Reports Are Filed.

Numerous petitions were received at the June meeting of the Common Council Monday, and these matters, together with many more important ones which caused considerable discussion, made the session a lengthy one. In the absence of President Tolles, Councilman Herbert Buxton took the chair, while George R. Wean filled the position of city clerk in the absence of J. T. MacMurray.

Among the petitions was one from Ernest Sharp, asking for an adjustment of assessments on his property in the Netherwood section of the city, in the vicinity of Park Terrace. A portion of this property was formerly owned by Mrs. Edith Hyde-Colby, but now belongs to Mr. Sharp and he asked to have the assessment transferred. He also requested the refunding of an assessment paid in error on other property on East Seventh street and Leland avenue. The petitioner furthermore referred to the fact that Gresham road had been dedicated as a public thoroughfare and he had granted the right of way there for a sewer. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

The alleged nuisance of having the trolley tracks on one side of Arlington avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, instead of in the centre of the road, was complained of by B. F. and W. J. Tallamy, as well as other property-owners there and the petition was referred to the committee on public affairs.

Public hearings were granted on an amendment to an ordinance to improve sidewalks and the ordinance to vacate an unknown street leading out of Elmwood place, but no one appeared to speak for or against them. The ordinance to vacate the street was adopted on third reading.

In the general discussion on the subject, suggested by Mr. Montgomery and supported by Mr. Mygatt, it was agreed that the rules should be strictly enforced in that all petitions and communications should come to Common Council through the proper committees.

Protesting against the proposition of the Public Service Corporation to build a gas plant on property owned by the company on Watchung avenue, Charles H. Rand informed the Common Council that if he suffered any loss or damage in consequence, he would hold the city liable. This was referred to the fire and building committee.

The Rand Storage & Express Company which has been furnishing a team of horses for the steamer in the fire department, stated in a communication that owing to the fact that a number of fire boxes had been added to "steamer calls" it would hereafter make a charge of $50 a month for the team or $25 a month provided the city purchased the feed. The matter was referred to the fire committee. Later in the evening a resolution, offered by Mr. Hubbard and adopted, authorized the committee to purchase a team of horses for the steamer at a cost not to exceed $700.

The petition of W. J. Counihan for permission to build an extension to the front of Reform Hall, which he proposes to remodel into what will be known as the Orpheum theatre, was referred to the proper committee. He submitted a drawing of the proposed change and it is very attractive.

The Public Service Corporation informed the Common Council that electric lights as ordered had been placed on East Second street, West Seventh street, Denmark road and Hillside avenue.

Mayor C. J. Fisk appointed William Christensen a special policeman, it being at the request of residents in the Netherwood section. The appointment was confirmed. He also appointed Charles A. Peterson poundmaster, and the action was confirmed, Councilmen Montgomery and Buxton alone voting in the negative.

The appointment of Robert A. Meeker, S. P. T. Wilbur and H. B. MacDonald as commissioners to make sewer assessments, was confirmed, while an order of the mayor approving the appointment of Thos. J. Hughes, H. B. MacDonald and A. J. Gavett as commissioners in the assessment of macademizing was filed.

Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh submitted abstract titles and deeds of transfer in the matter of property purchased on South avenue for the proposed fire house and the property on East Fourth street for the new police headquarters building and the same were filed.

The granting of fifty-four sewer permits between April 1 and May 29, was reported by City Engineer Gavett. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the district court, reported receipts for the past month of $170.67, disbursements of $55.42, with a balance of $115.25. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that twenty-eight permits were granted in April and twenty-three in May, while Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayers reported total expenses of $410.21 for the past month. All of these reports were filed.

Mr. Hibbard reported back several petitions and on the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh they were denied. They included one from Julia V. Keely, administratrix, asking for the reduction of a sewer assessment. Another one was from the Highland Realty Company, similar request, and a third one was from C. K. Mason, asking that a dog tax be remitted. Mrs. Dorothy M. Stewart petitioned to have a sewer assessment refunded. In each case Mr. Marsh stated that the petitioners had their remedy in an appeal to the County Taxation Board, the State Board of Taxation or the Supreme Court, but had not availed themselves of the privilege.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gloak and adopted, authorized the street committee to place a circular curb at Arlington avenue and West Eighth street. Mr. Gloak also offered plans and specifications for the extension of the sanitary sewer system, under an old ordinance, and Monday night, July 6, was fixed as the time when the Common Council will meet to receive bids for the work. This action was approved through the adoption of a resolution.

In response to petitions from J. D. Loizeaux and others, Mr. Hibbard offered a resolution which was adopted, authorizing the placing of two hydrants in the West End, one on West Front street, between Rock and Jefferson avenue and the other at Clinton avenue and West Sixth street. On motion of Mr. Mygatt Council adjourned to meet on Monday night, June 8, to further the new school bond issue and arrange for advertising for bids.

AUTO CRASHES INTO TREE, DR. GESSWEIN IS HURT

Steering his automobile into a tree in an attempt to avoid running down Brunson McCutcheon, son of C. W. McCutcheon, of Rockview avenue, Dr. C. A. Gesswein was thrown head-on against the tree on Watchung avenue, at the Watchung school late Monday afternoon. His nose was broken, his left wrist sprained, his cheek painfully cut by his eyeglasses and his left knee bruised. Jess Morrow, the brother-in-law of Dr. Hamilton, Ohio, who was riding in the car with Mrs. Morrow, his wife, was not thrown out, but the two were bruised and cut by the shock of the collision.

The accident took place at Watchung and Mountain avenues at about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The doctor's machine was proceeding slowly on the right side of Watchung avenue toward the mountain. Young McCutcheon, who was riding his bicycle from Somerset street, on Mountain avenue, attempted to turn at the school corner in front of the automobile. Dr. Gesswein, who was at the wheel, turned the auto sharply into the curb to avoid running down the cyclist. The machine struck the bike, smashing the rear wheel and throwing McCutcheon, who was only slightly bruised. The automobile crashed into a tree at the curb and was badly damaged. Chief Howard Woolston, of the borough fire department, surveyed the accident and took Dr. Gesswein and the auto party home in his rig.

STREET BOND VETO EXPLAINED BY MAYOR

Collect Benefits First and Save Unnecessary Expense to Taxpayers, Says Mr. Fisk.

AS ECONOMICAL MEASURE.

Include in Original Cost, Asphalt Oil as a Binding—Some Logical Reasons Are Advanced In Message.

As foretold in The Daily Press, Mayor Charles J. Fisk returned to the Common Council, Monday night, without his approval the ordinance providing for the $17,000 issue of bonds for macadamizing streets. When announcement was made of this, Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, moved that the ordinance be referred to his committee. No further report was made on the matter during the evening, and just what action is proposed by the members is not known.

In this connection, Mayor Fisk set forth his views regarding street improvement work in a message to the Common Council, being particular to impress upon the members that he is not opposed to permanent improvement of streets. The message, which is as follows, was referred to the street committee, and the clerk was instructed to furnish each member of the Council with a copy:

Referring to the question of permanent improvement of certain streets in the city with macadam pavement, there are several matters that I desire to call to your attention.

I am not opposed to permanent street improvement, as it might seem by returning without my approval, the ordinance of May 4. I am opposed, however, to the method of raising money for such improvement of streets in the outlying sections of the city by the issue of short-term bonds and the appointment of commissioners to assess back the benefits on the property owners particularly benefitted. Especially when the request or petition to the Common Council to have improvements made only represent a small percentage of the property owners interested. In the case of the ordinance above referred to, an examination of the records in the City Clerk's office shows as follows:

Leland avenue: South avenue to Front street; property interested, 5,900 feet; petition only 1,359 feet.

Netherwood avenue: East Front street to East 2d street; property interested, 1,416 feet; petition only 350 feet.

West Eighth street: Monroe avenue to city line; property interested, 2,280 feet; petition only 1,207 feet.

West Third street: Monroe avenue to Clinton avenue; property interested, 3,280 feet; petition only 930 feet.

A large proportion of this property is unimproved, low-priced property and should not be loaded down with assessments for improvements unless agreed to or petitioned for by a large majority of the property owners.

Several of our nearby cities got themselves into serious financial difficulty, not many years ago, by issuing bonds for street, sidewalk and other improvements in the outlying sections of the city in advance of the requirements. Plainfield should take care and not make the same error.

A large majority of the streets in the city—between 35 and 40 miles—have been improved with macadam pavement without the issue of bonds. The method used up to a few years ago, was for property owners to petition the Council to improve the roadbed; this petition being referred to the Street Committee, and after the City Engineer or Street Commissioner had surveyed the street and made an estimate of the cost, the property owners would agree between themselves and the city to pay into the City Treasury a certain portion of the cost, which in most cases amounted to about two-thirds of the cost of the work. An ordinance was then passed directing the street to be improved after first applying the direct amount substituted by the property owners, city paying the balance. In this manner the money due from the property owners was collected and paid in advance of the work, without the necessity and expense of Commissioners appointed by *the court, and the expense of assess*ment maps, and the delay in collecting the assessments.

Under the plan now, and which has been in use for the last few years, an ordinance is passed for the improvement of certain street or streets and in order to pay the same, assessment-bonds are issued to run for a period of three years, and after the work is finished commissioners are appointed by the court to assess the benefits. The work is provided for by the statute must be advertised and given out by contract to the lowest responsible bidder. These contractors may be local men or men from out of town, and they may use local labor or labor from out of town, as most satisfactory to themselves, while the city is barred from doing the work themselves and employing local men even in the case where there are laborers in the city needing work and when the work could be done for less money and to better advantage directly by the city. I therefore advise that in all permanent street improvements, at least for this year, we return to the method used in former years, that of having the property owners portion subscribed for, and I feel sure that the city could do the work better and at less cost than they could by contract. The streets that have been improved by contract during the last few years, are not a success, some of them have already gone to pieces and are cut up into ruts, showing that there is some defect somewhere. I also advise that all new streets be furnished with an asphalt oil or some similar finish that will bind the upper surface and keep down the dust, and the cost of this be made a part of the original cost of the improvement. In regard to the repair of our present macadam streets, there are a number of miles of streets that need careful attention. Some of them have been opened and dug up for sewers and sewer connections, and for other reasons, and are in very bad repair. These streets should be gone over carefully and put in as good condition as possible with the funds at the command of the committee, and the surface on all out macadam streets should be treated, as rapidly as city funds will allow, with an asphalt oil or some similar preparation, not only to keep down the dust but to bind the surface and lessen the cost of repair. I am well aware that this cannot be done all at once, owing to the cost, but the main thoroughfares could be treated first and the other streets later, and in a few years we would be practically a "Asphaltic oil" and streets that would require a very small amount to keep in repair.

COUNTRY CLUB HOUSE COMMITTEE RESIGNS

At a meeting of the trustees of the Plainfield Country Club, Monday night, the resignations of L. G. Timpson, Henry L. Hall and Frederic W. Butler, comprising the house committee, were received and accepted. Willard Wadsworth was elected a trustee and also chairman of the house committee, taking Mr. Timpson's place. He was present at the meeting and will announce the names of the new members of the committee later on. The plans of the new committee will include the addition of several new social features this season, besides continuing the Saturday evening dances. It is also the intention of the committee to provide an up-to-date restaurant service.

George S. Ring was elected a trustee and chairman of the buildings and grounds committee. As previously announced, R. S. Rowland was recently elected a trustee and chairman of the golf committee. The resignations of Messrs. Timpson and Rowland were somewhat of a surprise. They hold similar positions at the new home of the Watchung Hunt Club, and take the position that they are not able to devote the necessary time to both.

The Country Club has just added about fifty active and associate members and many additional associate and junior associate members. The trustees expect in the near future to add to the eight tennis courts now in use at the club. The golf course is in fine condition that at any time in its history and prominent Metropolitan golfers, who have recently played here, pronounce it, up-keep and quality, the equal of all but two or three of the very best in the East, and as needing only additional length to make it in all respects a championship links.

Scratches on Furniture.

Where small scratches appear on highly polished furniture do not attempt to varnish the surface or you will ruin the piece. Instead, dip a small camel hair brush in shellac varnish and cover only the blemish. It will make a decided improvement.

FISK FOR INTERURBAN SEWAGE DISPOSAL BEDS

Mayor Outlines Scheme for Suggested Joint Plant for City and Surrounding Communities.

ONE PLANT FOR ALL HIS IDEA.

Includes Fanwood, Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville and New Brunswick.

One of the most important matters brought to the attention of the Common Council at its meeting Monday night by Mayor Fisk, was that in reference to the probable necessity of building additional contact beds at the sewage disposal works, not only to provide for the seven and a half miles of sewer extension recently installed, but North Plainfield as well, in case that municipality decides to join the city system as proposed.

It is suggested that one large plant be built and that Fanwood, Scotch Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick, together with Plainfield, unite together in one sewer and obtain disposal works at a suitable point below New Brunswick, where the sludge could be dried on scows and disposed of out to sea. Accompanying Mr. Fisk's message in reference to this subject, was a letter from City Engineer A. J. Gavett, who first called the Mayor's atention to the question. The message and letter, which is follow, were referred to the street committee:

"The Engineer of Sewers, Andrew J. Gavett, informs me that in the near future, probably within a year, it will be necessary to provide some additional contact beds, in order to take care of the seven and one-half miles (7½) of the sewers now under construction and about completed, and that the cost of the same will be about $40,000.00. Negotiations are now pending with the Borough of North Plainfield, which, if consummated, will probably require some further addition.

"I understand that the committee expects to have the advice of George W. Fuller on the question of cleaning and enlarging the contact beds above suggested. I also understand that Mr. Fuller is serving the Borough of North Plainfield in regard to their sewage system and system of disposal.

"The question of sewage and sewerage disposal is now under consideration with a number of municipalities in this community and while Plainfield has successfully taken care of this matter for a number of years, the time is not far distant when an addition to our own disposal works will be needed, and there will be various other plants located on the borders of the city, unless some arrangement can be made for the various places to join together in the use of one common plant.

"The problem of securing satisfactory locations for disposal beds is becoming very difficult and it seems to me that, if a site could be secured for a single large plant that the cost of operation would be much less than in the case of a number of smaller plants and that it would be much better, not only for our own city, but for the other communities, if we could all join together.

"I would suggest therefore that this matter be referred to a special committee with instructions to take up the subject with the Board of Health of the State of New Jersey, in connection with Fanwood, Scotch Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick, with the object in view of uniting together in one sewer, and securing disposal works at some suitable point below New Brunswick, where the sludge or heavy matter could be loaded on scows and disposed of out at sea.

"This, of course, would involve an investigation into various legal and engineering problems, which, if it could be brought about, would solve the question in this part of the State and be of the greatest benefit for all of the communities interested.

"I inclose a copy of the letter on this subject from our engineer, Andrew J. Gavett, who first called this matter to my attention.

Gavett's Reply.

Referring to our recent conversation in regard to the condition of the city's sewage disposal works, I would say that the upper contact beds will require cleaning soon, and as there will be many buildings to be connected with the sewer and a half miles of sewers now under construction, it will probably be necessary to provide some additional contact beds. The septic tanks will not need enlarging at present, their capacity being now equal to 24 hours flow of sewage. The committee expects to have the advice of George W. Fuller on the question of cleaning and enlarging the contact beds. Mr. Fuller is also advising the Borough of North Plainfield in planning a sewerage system.

Plainfield will probably soon have, in addition to her own disposal works, other plants on her border, (unless the towns join in the use of the Plainfield plant), viz.: those of North Plainfield, Fanwood and Scotch Plains. The two latter works would be naturally located not far above the works of the Plainfield Union Water Company). Would it not be timely to investigate the possibilities of a comprehensive sewerage plan for the whole of the Raritan drainage area.

North Plainfield is now considering the relative merits of disposal works located west of the Borough and of a connection with the city's system (provided the Common Council should agree to the latter plan). Lincoln and other towns were notified by the State Sewerage Commission to discontinue the discharge of raw sewage into the streams and no doubt the remaining municipalities in this watershed will be obliged to provide disposal works before many years.

"It is not probable that trunk sewers could be constructed which would serve Fanwood, Scotch Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick, with disposal works at some suitable point below New Brunswick.

"The problem of securing satisfactory locations for disposal works in the vicinity of towns is becoming increasingly difficult, and it would seem that the site for a single large plant could be more easily obtained and that the cost of operation would be much less than in the case of a number of smaller plants.

Of course it would be necessary, before approving such a plan, to investigate the various legal and engineering problems involved.

Yours respectfully,

ANDREW J. GAVETT.

APPROPRIATE $95,000 FOR A SCHOOL BUILDING

Rescinding all previous action as to the appropriation of $90,000 for the erection of the proposed new public school building at Darrow avenue and Essex street, which was requested by the Board of School Estimate, the Common Council at its meeting Monday night adopted a resolution authorizing the appropriation of $95,000 for this improvement. This change is in accordance with the new plans and the lowest bid received from Canning & Co., of Trenton, for building the school.

It was important that the Common Council should act on this matter last night as the Board of Education was in session at the same time and was unable to award the contract to the Trenton firm until an appropriation was made.

The resolution, which was offered by Mr. Hibbard, provided for an issue of $95,000 worth of bonds, bearing 4 per cent interest. They are to be of $1,000 denomination each and are to run from July 1, 1908, to July 1, 1958, payable semi-annually. Another section was also offered and adopted providing that the Columbia Trust Company of New York, prepare not only the bond for the $95,000 issue, but also for the $40,000 brick pavement bonds and the $5,000 worth of bonds for the new police building, the latter not to exceed $225, and Delafield & Squires, of New York, bond experts, were authorized to approve the bonds after they are made at an expense not to exceed $250.

Corporation Counsel Marsh was not quite ready last night to prepare matters so that a time for receiving bids for the bond issue could be fixed and it was arranged to hold an adjourned meeting Monday night, June 8, for that purpose.

ASK CITY FOR ONLY $35,000 FOR SCHOOLS

*In a communication to the Com*mon Council at its June meeting Monday, the Board of School Estimate presented a certified copy of the amount needed for its public schools for the coming year, the sum being $35,000, exclusive of that apportioned by the county superintendent of schools. The report was received and filed.

It was in the opinion of the police board at present, for its supervision, Councilman Ball of that body offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that the committee on police shall comprise the committee to look after the construction of new police headquarters' building. They will act instead of the fire and building committees, it being understood that the latter committee will exercise its authority in the matter as in all cases of building.

FOR UNDERGROUND WIRES

In Special Message, Mayor Argues City Should Place Wires Beneath Surface.

BOTH POLICE AND FIRE WIRES.

He Believes That Such Action Should Be Taken to Set Example to the Utility Corporations.

Believing that the city should not be derelict in making improvements required of electric light and telephone companies in the matter of placing overhead wires underground, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, in a message to the Common Council, Monday urged that steps be taken looking to the placing of the police system and fire alarm wires underground in the business section, at least. Mr. Fisk's position in the matter is set forth in the following message, which was referred jointly to the fire and building and police committees:

"I am pleased to say that every effort and doing everything possible for the protection of the citizens and property in the city, by having the wires used by the various public companies, telegraph, telephone, electric lighting, etc., placed underground in the business sections, and the wires properly strung in other parts of the city, it seems to me that we should look at once to the wires under city control, the Gamewell Police system and the fire alarm system. These are the only wires in the business part of the city, which are now overhead.

"The ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance granting permission to the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company * * * to lay and maintain underground conduits * * * ' approved Nov. 1, 1897," provides, Section 6, that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company shall provide sufficient space in said subways or underground conduits to accommodate like telegraph or telephone wires or feeconductors operated from time to time by the police, fire and other departments of the city of Plainfield.

"These conduits now cover very nearly the entire city and the Common Council should take the necessary action to, as soon as possible, have all police and fire alarms wires placed underground.

"If we expect other corporations to take certain action in regard to an important matter, as above referred to, the city must take similar action in having their own wires taken down out of the air. This matter is not only important for this reason but is of more importance for the protection of our fire and police alarm systems to prevent serious breakdowns, which occur nearly every time we have a storm."

CITY PATHERS CHANGE COUNCILMANIC RULES.

Three amendments were made to the rules of the Common Council at the June meeting, Monday, all being in accordance with suggestions made by Councilman Frederic E. Mygatt at a previous meeting. The first amendment to rule sixteen provided that an aye and nay vote may be called for by two members, instead of three as heretofore. Councilmen Buxton and Gloak voted against this change, but it was adopted, seven votes being cast in its favor.

The second amendment was to rule twenty-nine, and the words "prevailing side" were substituted for "majority," the object being to escape the possibility of a tie vote. Mr. Mygatt explained that the United States Senate is governed by this rule and the Common Council being a small body he thought it wise to adopt this provision. This change was adopted by a unanimous vote as was also the amendment to rule thirty-eight, which changed the word "lay" to "lie," referring to matters

EXCISE PROBERS' PLANS

Fisk Commission Holds First Formal Session at Jersey City, July 6.

ALL MEETINGS ON MONDAYS.

Hugh F. Fox Offers Body Use of Liquor Interests' Statistics—Communications Are Requested.

Gov. Fort's determination to make the excise inquiry a thorough one was evinced at Trenton yesterday, when the commission got together and laid out an exhaustive summer campaign of investigation. At the suggestion of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, president of the commission also formulated a series of questions, which will be sent to all excise authorities in the various counties with the demand that they be answered at once.

Jersey City, July 6; Paterson, July 13; Newark, July 20; Trenton, July 27; Camden, Aug. 3; Bridgeton, Aug. 10; Atlantic City, Aug. 17; Asbury Park, Aug. 24; Phillipsburg, Aug. 31.

The sessions have all been called for Mondays in order that, should the commission find good leads, they may be continued all the week.

Municipal authorities have been invited to attend the sessions and submit such evidence that they may have. All organizations for the suppression of the liquor traffic or its regulation, the brewing interests, as well as the liquor dealers, have been invited to attend every session. All citizens interested have been asked to send communications to Peter Backes, the secretary of the commission in Trenton. Particular attention has been called to the fact that in the North Avenue station in search of suspects for the Somerville robbery and assault case. He was found in under a pile or iron in a box car and told the officer he had taken a ride from Bound Brook and was on his way home.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD IN SOMERVILLE ASSAULT CASE.

William Conway and Thomas Carberry, of Elizabeth, two of the suspects arrested by the local police in connection with the robbery and murderous assault on Thomas Heller at Somerville, Monday afternoon, were taken in custody by County Detective George Totten, of Somerville, last night. He believed that they resembled the description of the assailants of the Somerville Brewery, being held. The other men caught were brought before Judge Runyon this morning and were let go after a warning to keep off railroad trains unless they paid their fares.

Heller, the victim of the assault, recovered from his stupor at the Somerset Hospital yesterday and last night was able to go to his home in Elizabeth. It was thought at first that he was fatally injured by being thrown off the railroad bridge to the bed of Peter's brook, twenty-five feet below.

The Pole was knocked out by the force of the blow and was removed to the shop, later being taken to his home on East Front street, in a carriage summoned from Dilts' livery on Dunellen. The injury consisted of a slight scalp wound, and the man will be "on the job" again tomorrow.

WORST BOY JAILED AGAIN; THIS TIME EMBEZZLEMENT

William McCarthy, the fourteen-year-old rough who rather glories in being called "Plainfield's worst boy," and who persists in committing petty crimes, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of embezzling $2.26 from W. S. Crook's South avenue grocer. The complaint was made by Chief Kiely and is only one of several that stand against him but was specified in order that he might be held for the Grand Jury. When the charge was read to him, he shrugged his shoulders and remarked simply:

"That's right; I took the money."

He was committed without bail and will be taken to Elizabeth this afternoon.

The boy is the son of very respectable parents who have tried in every way to curb his vicious tendencies but without success. In the past six months he has been in court on numerous occasions and the chances given him to do better were just so much sympathy thrown away. A few weeks ago he was sent to jail to wait the action of the Juvenile Court on the charge of incorrigibility but was released on parole by Mrs. Williamson, the probation officer, without the knowledge of the local police. The first they knew of it was Sunday night when a telephone message was received from Paterson stating that he had been arrested there as a runaway.

The boy was brought home by his father Monday morning and Monday evening was caught by Patrolman Saffron when seventeen policemen clambered over a freight train at the North avenue station in search of suspects for the Somerville robbery and assault case. He was found in under a pile or iron in a box car and told the officer he had taken a ride from Bound Brook and was on his way home.

COUNTY POLITICAL SLATE

E. R. Ackerman to be Renominated for Senate and C. B. Pierce for Assembly.

KIRKLAND FOR SHERIFF?

Two Candidates for Mayor's Place —Doubtful as to Kirstein —Smith's Statement.

That State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is a candidate for renomination for the Upper House from Union county became known today although the Plainfielder has declined to define his attitude as yet. At the close of the session, Mr. Ackerman's friends declared that he was not anxious to take a second term because he had practically devoted a large part of his time during his first term to the State's affairs at the cost of his own business interests. It was pointed out that his entire summer last year was spent abroad at his own expense collecting data for a Senate committee and that during the last session his whole time was taken up with Legislative work.

Recently, however, in response to urging on the part of friends throughout the county it is said that Mr. Ackerman would be willing to accept a renomination provided there was no opposition and that the party wanted him for the place. County Chairman Frank H. Smith said today that so far as he had heard everyone is for Mr. Ackerman and that wherever he went he had found the Republicans enthusiastic over him. Smith said that he had heard of both J. R. Covington and A. W. Schwartz being honored in Elizabeth for John R. Mosco's place but that Mosco had never said to him whether or not he intends to seek a third nomination.

"There seems to be a general understanding throughout our county" said Smith, "to do nothing until after the Chicago convention. In the meanwhile the boom of various prospective candidates for assembly, sheriff and other offices will continue to grow, I expect, but the people will be in a better position to decide better on candidates after the National ticket is up. So far as Senator Ackerman is concerned, I have never heard of a single reason being advanced in opposition to his renomination."

As for Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, it is said that there will be no opposition to his renomination as he made an enviable record during his first term. The same cannot be said of A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway for he cut little figure at the last session and it is possible that a stronger man will be picked for the place particularly as it is Presidential year.

There are two candidates for sheriff so far. The man who has the inside track so far is Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, one of the most popular men in Union county. W. H. Wright, of Rahway, is also in the field for the same plum.

WATER COMMISSION AT WORK ON ITS REPORT

The Municipal Water Commission held a protracted session in the office of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, last night, when there was a full discussion of the report which is to be presented to the Common Council within a short time. Mayor Fisk attended the conference and became acquainted with the details of the matter under discussion.

The report will be divided under three separate headings, the engineering, legal and practical, giving the opinions of the commission on these points. It is expected that the report will be of unusual interest and great value, although in the opinion of those in touch with the matter the commission will probably not recommend a municipal water plant for Plainfield.

Diplomas for the fourteen graduates of the North Plainfield High School were signed by the members of the Board of Education at a special meeting held last night after the cooking class dinner. N.P.H.S. COOKING CLASS DINES MAYOR AND BOARD

The cooking class of the North Plainfield High School acted as hostess to Mayor Samuel Townsend and members of the borough Board of Education last night, serving a bounteous dinner, cooked by themselves, in the manual training building. A napkin ballot after the meal showed that it was the unanimous opinion of those present that the teaching of cooking is the most important branch of the school work.

Covers were laid for a dozen diners, and those present were Mayor Samuel Townsend, President James R. Joy, Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs, Tax Collector George F. Brown, and H. A. Woodruff, C. F. Nichols, Herbert Case, J. H. Cooley, B. S. Boyer, Edmund Rushmore and District Clerk Albert Steiner of the Board. C. W. McCutchen, was the only member of the Board absent, and sent his regrets with a mass of flowers which were used as table decorations.

Everything about the meal was the work of the pupils. The table was set in the manual training building, where the free-hand drawing of the drawing class decorates the walls. The table cloths and napkins were hemmed by pupils of the fifth and sixth grades, and the bread was baked by pupils of the seventh and eighth grade. The menu and place cards were the work of the dressing class and the menu follows:

Canape a la Somerset, Consommie a la Townsend, radishes, olives, Miller sticks, flounder a la Krebs sauce Brown; roast lamb a la Joy, peas en Case, Nichols potatoes, Boyer sauce, "Our ship comes in," Rushmore salad, Woodruff sauce; Cooley pudding, cakes, demi-Steiner, toasted crackers, cheese. "Our ships" were dainty sherberis of lemon, served in half lemons and surmounted by tiny masts and paper sails.

Miss Helen Ingersoll, teacher of the cooking class, presided, and at the conclusion of the meal the Mayor and President Joy expressed the appreciation of the dinners in short speeches. The actual cooking was done by the Misses Edna Swain, Rae Voorhees, Edith Besenck, Nettie Steiner and Bessie Conroy, and the Misses Florence Fowler, Ida Eagleton, Helen George and Lois Dilman acted as waitresses.

EAST JERSEY BAPTISTS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Representatives from thirty-three churches in Plainfield, Elizabeth, Westfield, Rahway, Newark, New Brunswick and other nearby places in the State attended the sixty-seventh anniversary meeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Association in the Bethel Baptist church, yesterday. There were morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Rev. John V. Ellison, pastor of the East Baptist church, Elizabeth, was chosen moderator, and the Rev. W. F. Meyerand, of Newark, as conference clerk.

One of the important items of business was the decision against the adoption of the publication plan, which would have united all of the societies and organizations of the church in the conference program and made the session extend over two days. The plan was disapproved because a majority do not favor a two days' session. Rev. W. T. S. Lumbar, chairman of the committee to consider the matter, reported adversely on the proposition, which was the sense of the committee.

The annual conference sermon was preached at the morning session by Rev. Edward Wilson, pastor of the Emanuel Baptist church, Newark and at the closing session last night, Rev. George B. Lombard, of Newark, made the address.

Held for Juvenile Court.

George Suydam and George Blount, two West End boys, were arrested by Patrolman Saffron, yesterday, for stealing cherries and committing depredations on the fruit property at Seventh street and Lee place. They were committed by Judge Runyon this morning to await the action of the Juvenile Court. Blount has been in the city court for various offenses five times since last September.

Petit Jury Discharged.

The petit jurors appeared in the Somerset courts before Judge Scheuck yesterday and as no more cases were ready for trial they were discharged for the term, with thanks. Louis Jackson, who had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, was sentenced to two months in the county jail.

DROWNED IN BRICK POND

ALL NIGHT SEARCH FOR BODY.

Recovered at 5 o'clock this Morning by Captain Frederickson —Victim Was an Expert Swimmer.

Seized with cramps while bathing in the old brick yard pond on Leland avenue, near the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp late yesterday afternoon, William Harper, seventeen years old, sank in a treacherous hole twenty feet deep and was drowned. Twenty-five companions saw him throw up his hands and call for help but were powerless to aid him. The body did not come to the surface after the first disappearance and only after consistent grappling on the part of the police all night was recovered at 5 o'clock this morning by Captain Frederickson.

Young Harper was the son of William J. Harper, of 545 East Third street, and was employed as a painter's apprentice by James Hansen. He was at work all day yesterday on a house opposite the Netherwood camp and on quitting for the day decided to go to the brick yard pond for a "cool off dip." He was an expert swimmer and after going all the way across the sheet of water, turned to paddle back. He was directly in the middle when the fatal cramp caught him and rendered his lower limbs useless. The pond is fed by springs and it is believed that a sudden change from partially warm to extremes cold water caused the contraction of the muscles. The place has been a favorite "swimming hole" for several generations of East End boys and a number of other drownings have occurred there in the same way.

Witnesses to Harper's mishap gave the alarm and Chief Kiely went to the scene with several policemen. They adopted the ordinary methods to get the body from the water but all met with failure. Superintendent Amos Andrews, of the water works, finally located it at 8 o'clock and brought it to the surface with a grappling hook but it eluded back as several pairs of hands were stretched out to receive it. A boat was anchored over the spot and Patrolman George Dobson, who is thoroughly at home in aquatics, dived repeatedly to get the victim but the depth and extreme cold water five feet from the top baffled his efforts.

Captain Frederickson joined the searchers late last night because of his familiarity with the bottom of the pond. He lives a short distance away and had located the deep holes when the water was let out for clay digging. His knowledge served the purpose and the body was brought up with a grappler just at a period when the men were getting exhausted and planning new methods.

The victim was popular with his companions in the East End and was a member of L. W. Randolph's Sunday-school class in Faith chapel. Beside his parents he is survived by two sisters and a brother.

The funeral will be held at the parents' home on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CATHOLIC PRELATE VISITS MOUNT SAINT MARY'S

Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, and Monsignor Fox, of Trenton, were in Plainfield a few days ago and visited Mount St. Mary's College, in company with David T. Kenney, with a view to learning what progress had been made. They both expressed themselves as being well pleased and while the exact date for the institution and dedication of the college cannot be determined at present, it will take place early in September, when the students will begin their course of studies.

Possession of the college will be taken by the Sisters during the latter part of July or first of August and they will at once begin the work of preparation for the dedication in the fall so that everything will be in readiness for the event.

Miss Milne Wedded in New York.

Miss Adele Milne, for several years teacher of the kindergarten at the Somerset Street School, became the wife of Dr. Henry R. Linville, of New York city, at a home wedding in New York city last night. Only the nearest relatives and close friends of the couple were present at the ceremony, which was a quiet affair. The couple have gone to California for their wedding journey, and Professor Linville, who is biology lecturer for the New York schools, will give lecture courses at the University of California summer school.

VANDERBILT'S COLORS ARE LOWERED TO MOORE

Judge's Fine String of Noble Equines Capture Four Blues on Opening Day of Local Club's Greatest Horse Show.

BUTTFIELD'S PAIR WINNERS.

Miss Hooley's friends disappointed on First Day—Today's Program Include 16 Classes.

Weather that was almost ideal and a large attendance of society folk from this city and nearby places, combined to give Plainfield's fifth annual horse show at the Riding and Driving Club's grounds an auspicious start Thursday afternoon. Seventeen classes passed before the judges and the program proceeded along on schedule time. Predictions that the present exhibit will surpass anything of the kind attempted locally have already been sustained and complete success is assured.

First honors for the initial day were captured by Judge William H. Moore's entries. His horses took four blue ribbons, two reds, two blues and one white out of the nine classes in which they appeared. They were opposed every time by four-footed patricians from Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Sandy Point farm, these animals taking two blues, two reds, one yellow and one white. One of the biggest surprises of the day took place in Class 22 for the Thomas W. Lawson cup, when Mr. Vanderbilt's "Lord Burleigh" and "Lord Brooke" were beaten by Judge Moore's entries, "Pride o'Prides" and "King of Kings." "Lord Burleigh" and "Lord Brooke" won the trophy last year when they were the property of J. W. Harriman and if they had taken it again yesterday the cup would have gone to Mr. Vanderbilt permanently. He handled the reins himself but the pair failed to show up in the form expected of them.

A big disappointment to local people was the fact that Miss Mabel Hooley failed to land a blue on the first day. Her horses were shown with the pick of the big strings and though at times the decision was long in doubt they were placed second three times while in Class 31 for saddle animals, "Miss Mabel Bay" was awarded the white. Miss Hooley rode or drove every time and surprised the spectators by appearing in the jumping class with "Crusher," a new phase of horsemanship for her. She sent him over the barriers for several clean-cut jumps and captured a red.

W. J. Buttfield's well known team, "Miss Banahan" and "Miss Westcott" won the blue in the roadster class, although the preliminary applause from the grandstand indicated that M. F. and J. J. McDonald's pair "Huro" and "Hero" were the favorites. The latter were placed second. George Watson, Jr., started off well by taking two blues but Otto H. Kahn did not get his record on other years. His winnings were two reds, a yellow and a white. Miss Emily Bedford's "Miss Ann" was awarded the blue in Class 33 for saddle horses while the same animal was placed third in the combination harness and saddle class.

Other blue ribbon winners for the day were Moses G. Byer, J. T. Spratley, the Elsinore Farm, Mrs. H. Reeves Stockton and G. R. Cook, all of whom took one. The Westchester Farm's champion jumper, "Centennial," captured the blue in both classes in which he was entered while "Taconite" took a red. Sidney Halloway rode. Horses from the McCutchen stable were awarded two yellows.

The program for today's judging comprises sixteen classes and will include No. 23, which carries the Official Blue Book cup, for harness horses. It was won last year by Mr. Vanderbilt's "Dr. Selwonk" who will again compete today. In view of the fact that "Dr. Selwonk" was beaten yesterday for the first time in his career by Judge Moore's "Orator," in the Victoria class, and will be matched against him this afternoon, unusual interest is manifested.

30,000 CHILDREN IN SUNDAY SCHOOL PARADE.

Governor Hughes, with his military staff, was at the reviewing stand in the Long Meadow of Prospect Park and smilingly watched thirty thousand children of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union in their annual *parade Thursday. Several Plainfield*ers witnessed the unique spectacle.

"That was the most beautiful sight I ever saw," said the Governor as he turned from the stand at the end of the review. The children, six abreast and in their newest frocks, marched with precision, and after the Governor smiled and bowed continually.

In the seventeen parades held in different parts of the borough it is estimated that one hundred and fifty thousand children were in line. The Eastern District division, which the Governor reviewed after leaving Prospect Park, was one of the largest. The day is a holiday in all of the Brooklyn public schools through an act of the Legislature.

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

If all baking tins are greased with beeswax it will not be necessary to wash the tins after baking. The beeswax never becomes rancid and will never flavor the baking, as does lard or butter.

The crown of a crushed straw hat should be dampened with cold water and stuffed very lightly with old soft paper, then put to dry in a hot place It will be blocked in its original shape.

MARK SOLDIERS GRAVES

Union County Freeholders Provide for Headstones for Departed Veterans

WILL CARE FOR THE GRAVES.

Messrs. Wilbur, Cody, Smith, Pierson and Cladek Appointed as a Committee for Purpose.

The Union County Board of Freeholders at its June meeting Thursday adopted resolutions providing for the care and preservation of the soldiers' graves and plots in all cemeteries in Union county, and suitably marking the same with appropriate headstones. The resolutions were introduced by Freeholder J. Herbert Cody, of this city, and were unanimously adopted after general discussion. It was provided that the cost of headstones shall not exceed $15 each. A standing committee, comprising Freeholder Wilbur, Cady, Smith, Pierson and Cladek was appointed, to carry out the provisions of the resolutions.

It is the intention of the committee to confer with the county attorney, W. R. Codington, for the purpose of ascertaining exactly what right it has in the matter and then the work will be taken up.

The action of yesterday carries with it authority to place suitable headstones in the burial plot of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in Hillside cemetery, and the plans and specifications for these headstones to be furnished by the board were approved, and the clerk was instructed to forward a properly prepared draft in duplicate to the Adjutant-General of the State for his approval. This matter has been under consideration for some time, it having been brought to the attention of the board that in the past no one has been resuonsible for the care of soldiers' plots and the proper marking of the same. Under the action of yesterday they will receive every attention in the future.

NEIGHBORING MAYORS FOR JOINT SEWER PLANT

Since Mayor Fisk embodied is ideas on the subject in a special message to the Common Council on Monday night, two neighboring mayors have given their endorsement to the scheme to build a joint sewage disposal plant for Plainfield, South Plainfield, New Market, Dunellen, Wallwood, Scotch Plains, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Raritan, Somerville and New Brunswick. Mayor Townsend, of North Plainfield, was the first to stamp his approval on the suggestion. H. J. Swackhamer, as *mayor of Dunellen, is the other ex*ecutive who wants to see the plan accomplished.

In giving his views, Mayor Townsend has said, "I think that Mr. Fisk's idea is a very good one and is worth an impartial and thorough investigation. Sooner or later we will have to do something of the sort and I think Mr. Fisk's plan is about as good as any."

Mayor Swackhamer said today in expressing his willingness to cooperate in the movement: "The suggestion made by your mayor, Charles H. Fisk, published in your paper on Tuesday regarding the installing of a joint sewerage disposal system, is an excellent idea. It was advocated some years ago and I trust that now immediate action will be taken, and that all the neighboring boroughs and towns will join in helping to push it forward. There is no question but what such a system will have to be installed sometime, and in my opinion the sooner the better. I will do all possible for its promotion."

Mayor Florance, of New Brunswick, declines to make any comment until he is officially notified of the message sent by Mayor Fisk to the Plainfield Common Council.

MANY BIG FEATURES FOR FIREMEN'S SHOW

Among the many novelties to be shown at the Firemen's Carnival, June 15 to 20, the "Horse Show" deserves special mention on account of the many freaks of nature exhibited in that tent, foremost of which is "Blue Bet," a horse entirely without hair any place on its body; "Jessie," the cow with a human skin; "Hiram" the largest horse on earth, measuring 21 hands high, a little over 7 feet high, and "Admiral Dot," one of the smallest perfectly formed horses. There are twenty other shows headed by the Pesaris Trained Wild Animal show, eight cages of Forest bred lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, bears and so forth. This one show requires nine long railroad cars to transport it.

The firemen are meeting with a very liberal response in the sale of tickets and feel very much encouraged in their efforts to increase their Pension and Relief Fund.

The contest for queen of the Carnival is progressing satisfactorily, and some of the lodges have already appointed candidates to represent them while others will do so in the near future. The presentations consists of a solitaire diamond ring, sterling silver toilet set, and a gold handled umbrella.

ATWATER METES OUT A SEVERE SENTENCE

Following his trail Thursday, when he was found guilty on one count of stealing a bicycle belonging to Nicholas Thal, and his plea Friday morning of non suit on the other five counts, Ignatz Mryskovitz, of Dunellen, was immediately sentenced by Judge Atwater to two years at hard labor in State prison. Albert Harsen, who was indicted on one count, pleaded guilty of hot; guilty and he will be placed on trial Monday, June 15.

Mryskovitz was arrested several months ago and indicted on six different counts and was placed on trial yesterday. The case occupied the entire attention of Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represented the State and Alfred A. Stein was counsel for the defendant.

An important point was made by the prosecution when it presented a confession made by the defendant at police headquarters in this city, in which he admitted taking the bicycles. Thursday he claimed that not understanding English very well he did not realize what he was doing and then he contended that Albert Harsen was the man who stole the wheels and delivered them to him.

DRESS SAVES CHILD, INJURED BY A FALL

Miss Louise Fisher, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fisher, of New York, who is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ammon, of Duer street, was severely injured this morning while playing about an old cedar stump in the yard. She had repeated*ly attempted to climb to the top of* the stump, when she slipped and fell against the jagged edges, one of the sharp points striking her in the groin inflicting a three-cornered gash. Her screams attracted the members of the household, who rushed to her assistance.

The child was carried to the house and Dr. Albert Pitts was summoned, in his opinion the injury will not prove serious. The child's dress undoubtedly was the means of saving her life, preventing a more serious wound.

FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Witch hazel and rose water, half and half, is good for wind-tortured complexions.

WANT SPECIAL ELECTION

480 Borough Voters Petition Council to Decide Voting Machine's Fate.

ACTION IS STAVED OFF.

Corporation Counsel Instructs Borough Fathers that Affidavits as to Signatures Are Necessary.

Petitions signed by 480 borough voters, who object to the use of voting machines, were held up at the North Plainfield Council meeting last Friday and referred to law and ordinance committee to ascertain if the signatures of the signers were genuine. This action by the borough fathers brought about a stiff argument from Walter L. Linbarger, who presented the petition from the second district. Borough Counsel State Senator Reed was questioned by him as to the legal necessity of obtaining affidavits from the various signers and the two had an argumentative discussion about the point after the meeting. Mr. Linbarger claimed that the State law called for no such affidavits, but Mr. Reed stated positively that the Council would take no action upon the petitions, which call for a special election to decide the matter, until the affidavits were secured.

The matter of retention of the machines, which Linbarger claims "deprives the voter of his constitutional right to vote according to the dictates of his own conscience," has been agitated for some time past, and the signatures have been secured during the past two weeks. The petition from the first district was presented by Clement Taylor Place, and contains the names of 229 of the 735 registered voters of the district. In the second district, 251 of the 751 registered voters have signed. It is said that the signers represent the leading voters of each party.

Acting further upon this petition, which is signed by more than the legally required twenty-five per cent. of the voters, calls for a special election to decide whether or not the voting machines shall be retained at borough elections.

ASSOCIATION WOMEN AT DINNER IN Y.W.C.A.

Marking the conclusion of association activities for the summer months, about 150 members of the Y. W. C. A., gathered at the association rooms on East Front street for a "members dinner." The affair, arranged by Mrs. Elliott T. Barrows, proved a big success, and banquet tables were spread in each of the rooms on the second floor of the association building, as well as in the gymnasium, where seventy-seven members dined.

The table decorations, in charge of Miss Marion McCutcheon and Miss Marie Joy, were particularly effective. In the association building the general color scheme was yellow and white, and the tables were decorated with honey-suckle vines and masses of cut flowers. In the gymnasium, the decorations were pink, peonies and roses being used in great abundance. Seated at the various tables with the members of the association, were the women of the board of directors. Those present included Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. Charles Tennant, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. William A. Connor and Mrs. Frederick Andrews, who assisted Mrs. Barrows in the arrangements for the affair.

The various classes of the association were grouped together at the individual tables, where singing and table games made the banquet a lively one. The menu included fresh strawberries in nests of berry leaves, an iced tea punch, cold meats, potatoes a la Delmonico, chicken salad, ice cream and cake.

The Succulent Asparagus.

Now that fresh asparagus is plentiful again, do not make the mistake of covering up its delicate flavor with seasonings, such as mace, tarragon vinegar, etc. In a popular restaurant a guest from the country had not seen the fresh vegetable since last year. Later, planned a rare treat for himself and ordered a portion of asparagus. When it came his hopes turned to ashes at the first taste. The vegetable was seasoned with mace, and for all the flavor of the dish it might as well have been anything else as asparagus. A cook in a private family, when she makes asparagus salad, invariably adds a little tarragon vinegar to the dressing, but it serves to conceal its flavor. The up-State way of cooking asparagus is more economical than the city way. There it is served as peas are prepared out of town. It is cut into short lengths, cooked in a little water until it is tender and is then seasoned with cream, salt and pepper. Cooked in this way, asparagus becomes of necessity "spoon food," instead of "finger victuals!"

PYTHIANS PRESENTATION

Perseverance to Have Big Time When Pythian Altar is Brought Here.

RAISING THE COUNTY FUNDS.

State Grand Lodge Officers to Be Present.—History of Trip Through State to Be Kept.

On Friday night, June 19, Olive Branch Lodge, No. 78, Knights of Pythias, of Elizabeth, will make a fraternal visit to perseverance lodge No. 74. Olive Branch lodge will be accompanied on this occasion by large delegations from Harmony Lodge No. 99, and Volunteer Lodge, No. 110, of Elizabeth; Linden Lodge, No. 2, of Linden; Euclid Lodge, No. 153, of Woodbridge; Somerset Lodge No. 56, of Bound Brook; Lodge of the Castle, No. 72, of Somerville; as well as delegations from numerous other lodges in Newark and the neighboring territory.

The main feature of the occasion will be the presenting of the Pythian charity altar to the Plainfield Lodge by the Elizabeth Lodge accompanied by the usual ceremonies, entertainment and speechmaking, etc., of a nire kind that always accompanies these presentations of this altar as it goes on its rounds from lodge to lodge throughout the state of New Jersey everywhere imparting upon the members of this Fraternal Order the duties that Knight of Phythias in good health owe to those of their fraternity who after years of good work have grown old and infirm. At some near future date, the Knight of Pythias of this city propose to erect an institution that will be a credit to any order providing for the care of the aged Pythia, or his widow or orphan. At each and every one of these meetings there is something done for the cause and everybody those who attend go home remarkably impressed with the idea that a move of this nature is one of necessity.

Among the Grand Lodge officers who will be present on this occasion are Abram Kleiner, grand chancellor; Henry A. Heinrichs, grand vice chancellor and the prime mover or originator of this feature of visitations; grand prelate, A. Lewis Drucker, grand master of arms Harry C. Keeler; grand inner guard, W. H. Quick, grand outer guard Samuel A. Bobbins. Also supreme representative John H. Conger.

The committee in charge of the affair for Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, will endeavor to have all attendance records on this date and to that end they ask the co-operation and attendance of every Knight of Pythias who can conveniently be present. The Elizabeth boys are coming in special cars. The members of the uniformed rank will add color to the affair this evening. Unity Company No. 3, of Elizabeth, P. F. Shaley Co., No. 5, of Rahway, and Crescent Company, No. 13, of Plainfield will be well represented. General Superintendent William J. Zapf will be present in the department of the Jersey of P., will also be a visitor that evening.

The Pythian Charity Altar is a minature model of one of the handsomest triangular Pythian altars ever produced and as is admired by all who have ever seen it. To Pythians it means a great deal. It is made of hardwood and very handsomely painted, gilded, trimmed, monogramed and upholstered. Each side is of a different color. One is blue with a monogram "P" one is yellow with a monogram "C" and one is red with a monogram "P" neatly put in the centres. The top is made of three triangular pieces of silk plush with a triangular name plate in the centre engraved as follows: Pythian Charity Altar presented to K. of P. of N. J., by Henry A. Heinrichs, Grand Vice Chancellor, Feb. 26, 1908.

The proceedings of each visit of this Altar is recorded in a book for that purpose that accompanies the Altar. Every one pastor signs his autograph in that record book and thereby makes that act of his a part of the "History of the Pythian Home" of which this book of records and Pythian Charity Altar will in the future form a part and be relied highly prized by those unfortunate Pythians who through sickness or adversity should be placed in that proposed institution which is now almost an assured fact. Prominent Pythians of this city have been one of the best that has been brought out in New Jersey in years and that it ultimately will result in the erection of that proposed grand monument to the honor of the Pythian fraternity of the present era.

Asphalt Oil vs. Water.

Plainfield's wide-awake mayor is advocating the use of asphalt oil on macadam streets, to hold the surface firm and keep down the dust. In regards it also as the most economical means of repairing that class of pavement. Mayor Fisk also urges the Council to take up at once the matter of repairing streets by that method, in connection with the Public Service Corporation, which, he said, had agreed to lay the oil and bear their part of the expense on streets where trolley tracks are laid. It may be worth while for New Brunswick's officials to look into that subject.—New Brunswick Times.

MISS BARLOW A BRIDE

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow Becomes Mrs. Edward Hobbie.

REV. G. A. WARNER OFFICIATES.

Ceremony at Home of Her Parents —Miss Hartshorne Maid of Honor and Brother of Groom Best Man.

Miss Sophronia Barlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, and Edward Hobbie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hobbie, of Watchung avenue, were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. Owing to the recent death of the bride's grandfather, the affair was a quiet one, and only the immediate relatives and intimate friends to the number of about 150 were present to witness the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in striped brocaded satin, trimmed with point and chantilly lace, a family heirloom. She carried white roses and lilies-of-the valley. She was attended by Miss Kathryn Hartshorne, of this city, as maid of honor, who was gowned in white chiffon, with white picture trimmings and carrying pale pink roses; Miss Mary Barlow, sis*ter of the bride and Miss May Mur*ray, as bridesmaids, whose gowns were of white chiffon. Miss Barlow's gown was ornamented with pale lavender trimmings and that of Miss Murray's with pale yellow. They both carried bouquets of white roses. H. P. Hinriques, Jr., and William Barlow Stillman, nephews of the bride, were ribbon-bearers.

The best man was William F. Hobbie, Jr., brother of the groom, and the ushers were William Barlow, Jr., brother of the bride and Lawrence Breeze Smith, also of this city.

As the bridal party descended the staircase on its way to the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, the nephews led the way, followed by the ushers and the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. In the parlor they met the groom and best man. The wedding march was played by a stringed orchestra of six instruments.

The house was elaborately decorated with flowers and greens for the occasion, the colors having a rainbow effect. In the parlor there was a profusion of varied colored roses and palms. In the dining room the decorations consisted of pale yellow roses, while the bridal table in the library was garnished with pale pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper served. The bride and groom received the congratulations of the guests, after which they adjourned to the room provided for the display of wedding gifts and admired the numerous tokens of esteem given the bride, which included silverware, two complete sets of chinaware, cut-glass and furniture. In the exchange of gifts among those of the bridal party, the bride received a diamond brooch from the groom, the bridesmaids and maid of honor each received gold brooches, while the ushers were presented with gold cuff buttons.

The bride has been prominent among those of the younger society set at the Park Club and both she and Mr. Hobbie are favorites in a large circle of acquaintances. After a month's wedding trip, the couple will reside in this city.

Miss Emily Amee Cain, of Raritan, and Philip H. Speer, of Philadelphia, were married Wednesday noon at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, of Duer street, an uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods, pastor of the Somerville Baptist church. Miss May Cain, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. The bride was gowned in an embroidered net robe over white silk. The couple will take a wedding trip which will include Niagara Falls, Tacoma, Washington, Yosemite Valley and other points of interest and will reside at Raritan upon their return.

TO REMODEL ITS EDIFICE

Crescent Avenue Congregation Decides Upon Some Interior Alterations.

COST TO BE ABOUT $25,000.

Work on Improvements Will Be Started July 1 and Will Take About Four Months.

Extensive improvements, involving the re-modeling of the interior of the edifice and an expense of about $25,000, will be made immediately at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, according to plans accepted by the church trustees and unanimously endorsed by the congregation at a meeting held Wednesday. The work of re-construction will be commenced about July 1 and the improvements will probably be completed by November 1. Services of the church will be held in the Sunday school rooms during the summer months, and other arrangements are to be made in the fall.

A committee of eight parishoners headed by Rev. Alan Dr. J. S. Zelie, has had the matter of improvements under consideration for the past two years, and at the meeting last night W. A. Garrigues, of the board of trustees, and also a member of the committee, announced that the plans submitted by Price & Ware & Sons, of New York city, had been accepted as the most practical for the needs of the parish. Plans submitted by Squires & Wynkoop, of New York, ranked second in the estimation of the committee, but they call for a reconstruction more radical than the committee could approve. The trustees have acknowledged the value of these plans to Fred Squires, the local member of the firm a prize winner at the Beaux Arts, Paris.

The plans submitted by James E Ware & Sons were selected with the assistance of Professor A. D. F. Hamlin, head of the architectural department of Columbia University. They were explained by John F. Harman, of the session, at last night's meeting, and the resolution for their acceptance was offered by Ernest R. Ackerman. Mr. Ackerman, Percy H. Stewart, Leander N. Lovell, Andrew J. Gavett, J. W. DeGraff and J. W. Sandford spoke in endorsement of the reconstruction plans outlined. The motion for their acceptance was unanimously carried.

The improvements at the church will involve the raising of the interior ceiling to the height of the outer roof, elevating the central arch, and construction of a vaulted oak roof to the nave. The construction will be marked by the simplicity which characterized the English church and will be effective in its severity of line.

A feature of the alterations at the pulpit will be the installation of seats for each of the five ministers of the church. Back of the pulpit will be heavily carved walnut seats for the pastor, the ministers of Warren, Hope and Bethel Chapels and Rev. Gilbert Lovell, missionary from the church in China. This is symbolic of the Crescent Avenue church as the home of Plainfield Presbyterianism, just as much for the use of the congregations of the chapels as for the mother community. The choir loft will be changed from its present unsymmetrical position and in its place two choir galleries will be constructed in the gallery at the pulpit end of the church for the singers. These will be of hard wood, severe in design.

At the meeting last night, the congregation unanimously passed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Charles Hyde for the memorial organ, the presentation of which has proved a great incentive to the congregation in undertaking the desired alterations. Pipes of the organ will be placed at either side of the pulpit in arches on either side of the central arch, and the echo organ will be installed in the roof at the rear of the edifice. This section of the instrument contains the vox humana pipes and a set of tubular chimes, operated from the main key board.

New stained glass windows will take the place of those at present in the church and one of the most liberal givers of the congregation, whose name is withheld, has offered to give a set of stained glass windows. In connection with the reconstruction of the church and architectural changes, all structural wood work of the church will be re-colored to match the present black walnut of the pews, and there will be an elimination of much of the old work long since out of date. The walls will be entirely done over and fresh treatment will be given the pillars and trusses. The church will be recarpeted and the vestibule paved.

The accepted plans call for an expenditure of about $25,000 and in connection with the expense, it was stated today that about $13,000 has already been offered by about thirty members of the congregation. The remainder of the sum required is through canvas of the church, in which it is thought that every member of the church will have a part in the donations. The contracts for the work will be at once awarded by the trustees of the church and the actual work will probably be started within three weeks. The committee from the congregation in charge of the remodeling is composed of Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, H. G. Runkle, E. A. Ladd, Jr., W. A. Garrigues, John F. Harman, Mrs. I. C. Pierson, Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. J. G. Foster and Mrs. J. F. Harman.

WORKED FOR CHARITY.

Winnings of Horse Races That Helped the Poor.

The King of Sweden recently told a story of King Edward's charitable propensities. Just before the race for the Derby which the king's horse Diamond Jubilee carried off, his royal highness—as he then was—was watching the horses proceeding to the starting post. Suddenly turning to the King of Sweden, who was with him, he said, "I am most specially anxious to win today."

"Why so?" inquired the King.

"Because," was the answer, "I always give the princess whatever amount my success happens to bring me. With the stake money of the last Derby I won the princess provided 1,700 poor boys with a complete outfit—clothes, under linen, boots and all necessaries—and stamped on each article was 'From your friend the prince.'"

The Duchess of Portland some time ago presented to her husband a very handsome blotting book of Russia leather heavily mounted in silver. On the mountings are engraved the names of all the races won by that extraordinary racer Donovan, in 1859 Donovan won the Derby and the St. Leger, besides the Newmarket stakes and many other important races. The total sum won by Donovan during his racing career amounted to £70,000, and the whole of this large fortune the duke gave to his wife for the purpose of building almshouses for widows of the duke's tenants and a cottage hospital for the neighborhood.

Baron Hirsch was another great trufite most of whose winnings went to charity. During his lifetime he spent more than £50,000 of turf winnings on charity. All the winnings of La Fleche, amounting in all to £34,585, were devoted to various charities.

Dogs have done much for charity. The record in this direction is held by Tim, the famous Airedale terrier which belonged to Mr. Bush, the Great Western inspector at Paddington. For more than ten years before his death Tim trotted from train to train, inviting donations to the railway servants' benefit and orphans' fund. The total of his collections exceeded £800. The dog always knew when royalties were about to travel. He would sit down on the edge of the carpet laid on the platform and refuse to move until he had had a contribution to his hoard. On five separate occasions Queen Victoria placed a sovereign in his box, and many times the King has done the same. W. W. Astor gave Tim his record present—a check for £200—on the occasion of the coming of age of his son.

Other animals, too, have indirectly contributed to the cause of charity. At Amersham, in Buckinghamshire, the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday-school adopted a novel expedient for raising money for the Congo mission. He distributed among the scholars a number of young rabbits. These they had to fatten at home and when fit for market the creatures were sold, the proceeds going to the mission.

At Friedl, near Carlsruhe, a pig raised in lent 47 for charitable purposes. It was raffled for and then given back by the winner and sold again. In a Lancashire town a local butcher presented a handsome round pig to a bazar on condition that a church member, got up in frock coat and silk hat, should drive it through the village. The procession caused great amusement and a collection realized more than £3.—Tit Bits.

Embroidered Hosiery.

Embroidered stockings are in vogue. There are tan stockings embroidered in gold, while white have elaborate designs wrought out in silver thread. Floewrs follow the natural colors, while beads are introduced wherever possible. The single polka dot in a contrasting color makes a simple but effective decoration. For really striking patterns, the butterfly lends itself to brilliant colorings.

Rather Rough.

"Smooth-faced villain!" hissed the beautiful heroine, as she signed the papers.

"What a base canard!" mutered the villain under his teeth. "The manager wouldn't pay me off last night, and I couldn't even get shaved."—Chicago News.

SUGGESTIONS ON BUDGET

WILL FIX RATE NEXT WEEK.

Increase in School Money Will Make It Possible to Account for Deficit Without an Increase —Loss on Back Taxes.

To take up the borough budget for the coming year, the North Plainfield Council will convene for a special meeting next Friday night, at which time the figures submitted by the various committees will be gone over finally and the budget decided upon. A special meeting of the borough fathers was held in May to get the figures in shape, but there was no quorum present. Those who did show up put in several hours work over the figures.

In a special message to the Council at Friday night's meeting, Mayor Samuel Townsend took up the matter of making the budget as follows:

"At this time, when the budget for the year 1908 is about to be made up, I think it will be of assistance to study the condition of our finances as they stood at the close of the year 1907, and also to note any changes that have developed since that time, having a bearing on our work of estimating the amount that will be required to meet expenses for the current year. Our condition according to the annual report at the close of the year 1907 was as follows:

Current Assets.

Cash	$ 2,800.92
Unpaid taxes prior to 1906	1,895.37
Unpaid tax for 1906	1,050.04
Unpaid tax for 1907	14,192.37
Unpaid tax franchises and assessment	2,327.00
	$22,365.71

Current Liabilities.

Board of Health	$ 10.00
Special school tax	20,964.23
Notes payable	4,000.00
	$24,974.25

"This report shows that, even assuming the collection of all unpaid taxes, we started the year 1908 with a deficit in our $2,608.54. The raising of the previous year, viz: 1906, the annual report showed an excess of assets over liabilities of $58.70. It is therefore clear that we did not raise enough by taxation for the year to meet the expenditure, and this shortage should be made up this year. A review by the finance committee of unpaid taxes prior to 1907 resulted in their reporting an amount of $948.64 as being uncollectable, and not to be reckoned as a part of the asset. Therefore this amount must also be made up and as experience has proven that there is always a proportion of taxes that are never collected, it would seem the part of wisdom to make a further allowance of say $1,000, to meet this probable deficiency.

"I therefore estimate the deficit to be as follows:

Deficiency as shown by 1907 report	$ 2,608.45
Taxes prior to 1907 considered uncollectable	948.64
Estimated further shortage through uncollected taxes	1,000.00
Total	$4,557.09

"Under ordinary conditions the making up of this amount would add considerably to the burden of taxation, but it is our good fortune that the borough school fund will this year be increased $2,698.54 the money received from the State on account of the railroad tax, which tax, being a new source of income, will be received this year for the first time; consequently we are in a better position to make an increase in borough taxes than we would have been in previous years.

"There was voted for special school tax in 1907 the sum of $24,900. There has been voted this year for the same purpose $14,200, making a reduction of $10,700. It will therefore be seen that by the lowering of the school taxes the deficit in the borough fund can be made up and still show a saving in the total amount to be raised, provided there are no large increases in borough expenses as we have control of borough finances we would naturally like to make a good howing in our particular branch of work, but I feel that it is more important to place our finances on a sound footing, rather than pursue a policy that will be at the expense of a prudent business methods. While it is proper to borrow in anticipation of taxes that we may reasonably expect to receive, it is not economical to be continuously paying interest on money borrowed in anticipation of taxes, when the amount so satisfied such portion is practically uncollectable.

"In this conection I wish to say that a more rigid enforcement of the law governing the collection of taxes would seem to be desirable. The great majority of our people are perfectly willing to pay their fair share of the burden of taxation, but they may reasonably object to making up deficiences caused by the default of others. Owing to the absence of our collector through illness for some time past the work of following up delinquents has suffered. As he has now returned to his work, and is much improved in health, it is hoped that the collection of balances outstanding will be taken up and pushed vigorously."

CANDIDATES FOR QUEEN OF FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL

Following are the candidates for queen of the Plainfield firemen's carnival: Miss Margaret Townley, for the B. P. O. E.; Miss Margaret King, for the U. O. DON'T ISSUE BONDS SAYS GEO. P. MELLICK

George P. Mellick, formerly chairman of the Common Council's finance committee and a New York banker who has always lived in the forefront in civic affairs during his residence here, agrees with Mayor Fisk on his bond issue views. The mayor's veto of an issue of $17,000 worth of bonds for street improvements at this time, strikes Mr. Mellick as most commendable.

In a communication to this paper Mr. Mellick says:

"I have been much interested in the discussion regarding the veto of the street bond issue by Mayor Fisk and the explanation of our mayor as to his reasons for disapproving at this time. The bond issue before the Common Council providing for the $17,000 issue of bonds for macadamizing streets.

"It seems to me his arguments are sound and I believe it discreet on the part of the city not to raise money by increasing Plainfield's debt for the improvement of streets in the outlying sections of the city, unless practically all the owners of interested property signify their approval. The loading down of such property with assessments should not be undertaken unless a decided majority of the property owners approve of such assessments."

Philadelphia Record Feature.

The Philadelphia Record will publish, beginning Sunday, June 7th, a story by William J. Lampton, entitled "Onneta of Gnaden Huetten." This story is now published for the first time. It is a tale of colonial Pennsylvania at the beginning of the French and Indian War, and during the latter part of the active career of Conrad Weiser, the then famed but now almost forgotten Indian interpreter. This story should be of special interest to the Germans of Pennsylvania. It will be continued through June and July.

MORE SYLVAN NAMES FOR NORTH PLAINFIELD STREETS

Because two sets of streets in different parts of the borough have similar names and two more sets have names differentiated only by the distinction of "street," "place" and "avenue," an ordinance providing for new names for four of these streets proposed by Mayor Townsend, passed its first reading at the meeting of the borough Council Friday night.

According to an ordinance framed by Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, Prospect avenue, running southwest from Somerset street at the borough limits, will hereafter be known as "Edgewood avenue" to distinguish it from Prospect place. Mountain avenue, between Grove street and Jefferson avenue, is to be known as "Ridge avenue" in the future, to distinguish it from the one on Mountain avenue. Cedar avenue will be kept distinct from Cedar street by the new name of "Locust place." The Maple avenue that runs northwest from Greenbrook road to West street, is to be known henceforth as "Forest avenue."

The new names for the streets continue the policy of giving sylvan titles to the borough highways, and if the ordinance passes its second and third readings, the streets may be formally christened about August 1.

PETITIONS LAID OVER BY BOROUGH FATHERS

Several petitions presented at last Friday's meeting of North Plainfield Council were laid over until the special meeting next Friday night, when that body will make up the arrival budget. These include a petition from a dozen residents of Willow avenue requesting the repair of the roadway, constantly washed out by heavy rains so as to be practically impassible; a request for an electric light between Mountain and Codington avenues on Westervelt avenue; a request from the board of health for the proper drainage of a property on Somerset street at Hudson avenue; a request to move a frame building from Greenbrook road to Somerset street; and a long petition for the cancellation of interest on back taxes, presented by William Uhrhahn.

A petition for a fire hydrant at Codington and Watchung avenues was granted, as was one from Charles Worner to make a small addition to a building on Somerset street.

Councilman B. R. Waldron, chairman of the street committee, reported that during the month of May a section of Greenbrook road near the borough limits had been put in good condition, as had a small amount of work done on other borough streets. The usual budget of bills was ordered paid.

Mayor Townsend called the attention of the Council to a warrant for $17.10 sent from the State Medical Board to Dr. A. H. Dundon for the registration of vital statistics. This amount, at the rate of ten cents a name for each birth, death or marriage, is being temporarily held up. The reason for it is that the borough Board of Health pays the borough physician $1 for which he supposed to include such registration. The matter will be decided at the special meeting.

A petition from promoters of the Orchard Park Improvement Association asked the borough to intercede with the Public Service Corporation to have arc and electric light in the section was said over until the special meeting. The borough counsel will take up the matter with the corporation.

Real Estate Transfers.

Bernard Formes to Ellington to Robert C. Langdon, Denmark road 462 feet northeasterly of Ravine road, Plainfield $1

Former Plainfielders Wed.

Miss Marie L. Brower and Cornelius Lyle, former Plainfielders, were married at Miss Brower's present home, Prospect place, Brooklyn, Tuesday night. The bride formerly lived at Truell Court, and Mr. Lyle moved to Pittsburg from here, where he lived in the borough. Plainfielders at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Northrop, Miss Norma Northrop, Charles B. Morse, C. Wesley Abbott and Gordon Abbott. The couple will reside in Pittsburg.

BOROUGH MAYOR WANTS ORDINANCES COMPILED

Before the borough ordinances are compiled for publication in pamphlet form for the year, it is probable that several new measures will be introduced. Councilman Smith recommended a general changing of the fire limits and that matter was referred to considerable discussion, which Counsel Reed took active part. He objected to the extension of all limits and wanted to know the purpose of the change.

Councilman Van Arsdale recommended an ordinance forbidding the distribution of advertising circulars and booklets in the borough and this met with favor. Mr. Townsend spoke of the value of an ordinance forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons. Borough Counsel Reed explained that there was a necessity for such an ordinance, for the State law in the matter covered the case completely, but the Mayor stated that he believed a local ordinance would be of assistance to the borough police.

It is probable that some new ordinances will be framed and submitted to the Council at a meeting in the near future.

FIRST PRESBYTERIANS' STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

Under the auspices of the Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church, a strawberry and ice cream festival was held in the Sunday-school room of the church Friday. The affair, an annual one, was largely attended and liberal patronage was accorded. The rooms were attractively decorated for the occasion, and during the evening an excellent program of instrumental music was rendered.

The festival was in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Clarence E. Bond was the chairman. The other committees were as follows:

Shortcake—Mrs. John S. Johnston, Mrs. E. W. Poinier, Mrs. L. A. Hummel, Mrs. Charles M. Hammer, Mrs. John Brower, Mrs. W. R. Causebrook, Mrs. J. C. Allen.

Ice cream—Mrs. A. E. Hoagland, Mrs. Freeman J. Shotwell, Mrs. John Westervelt, Mrs. D. E. Young, Miss Jennie Abort, Mrs. J. L. Cadmus, Mrs. Campbell M. Kelly, Mrs. Geo. A. Ballantyne.

Cake—Mrs. W. W. Dunn, Mrs. H. A. Pope, Mrs. A. E. Hyatt, Mrs. Howard Martin, Mrs. Andrew Petrie, Mrs. J. Frank Cowperthwait.

Candy—Miss Clara VanFleet, Miss Julia Williams, Miss Lippencott, Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, Miss Louise Loundsbury, Mrs. H. L. Beebe, Miss Dorothea Bull, Miss Zilla Reynard, Miss Bessie Bond, Mrs. Addie Dierich.

Mrs. Harry Williams was in charge of the waitresses, comprising the young women of the church. The musical program was in charge of Miss Beatrice Miner and Miss Alice Miller and assisted by Edward Brainer, they rendered various numbers on the piano. A feature was a dialogue by Miss Ida Englehart and Miss Florence Fowler.

MOTORCYCLE HIT WHEEL; WOMAN SLIGHTLY INJURED.

Aigren Nicholysen, of Dunellen, was riding a motorcycle down Watchung avenue at 7:00 o'clock Friday, and as he reached the East Second street corner, Mrs. Clarence Giles, mounted on a bicycle, attempted to pass in front of him. Nicholysen's machine struck the rear wheel of the other one and Mrs. Giles was hurled against the obstruction placed on the new brick pavement work to keep vehicles off. It was thought at first that she was seriously injured and Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy had her carried to a nearby store. She received medical treatment and was afterward taken to her home on East Second street in a cab.

Nicholysen was placed under arrest by Patrolman Nolan and went with the officer to police headquarters. He remained there until 8 o'clock when Mrs. Giles reported that his wife was not seriously hurt and he was allowed to go. The young woman received a general shaking up and a few severe bruises.

Where It Can't Is.

The scene was a doctor's surgery, and a very parsimonious patient had just been prescribed for. The medico handed it to his patient, remarking half a crown therefor.

"Half a crown!" cried the man, "there isn't sixpennyworth of stuff in that bottle!" cried the man.

"No, I don't suppose there is, but I tell you what I'll do. The next time you come to see me just pay the sixpence and help yourself from all those bottles you see around you."

"Ah! but I shouldn't know what to take."

Auto Bus Promoter Further Explains His Plans—Board Pays Bills for Realty Exchange Outing.

The Board of Trade at its June meeting, Thursday, endorsed the proposition for the new Federal building to be built here and expressed itself favorable to the property at Watchung avenue and East Front street, as the best site for the structure. Secretary A. S. Herr stated that the property may be purchased for a reasonable figure. It appeared to be the general opinion of those present that a better location could not be found and that in the future the central point of the city will be in that vicinity.

There was a brief discussion of Mayor C. J. Fisk's proposition concerning a trunk sewer to include Plainfield and the surrounding towns. It was announced that a special meeting would be held in the fall for the purpose of discussing the plan and experts would be invited to give their opinions relative to it.

Milton Mendel, who is interested in the establishment of an automobile bus line between this city, South Plainfield and Metuchen, stated that he had interviewed members of the Plainfield Merchants' Association, and also Mayor C. J. Fisk and that both had given their endorsement to the scheme. It is proposed to incorporate a company and select officers from representatives of the Board of Trade and the Plainfield Merchants' Association. Mr. Mendel explained further that Mayor Fisk had made a good suggestion for a change in the route, that is to have the autos run through Front street from Plainfield avenue, passing the postoffice and turning into Park avenue. This will probably be adopted. Mr. Mendel also stated that he had interviewed the merchants regarding the bus line and they had promised their financial support. Other remarks favorable to the proposition were made by President H. W. Marshall and C. W. Runyon.

Francis K. Anderson, Alden E. Moore, W. J. Trenbath and W. H. Olmstead were elected to membership.

It was suggested by Mr. Anderson that there be a revision of the by-laws of the board and a committee comprising A. S. Herr, C. W. Runyon and Mr. Anderson was appointed to do the work. They will report in the fall, as the meeting last night was the last one until then.

There was a report from the secretary regarding the entertainment of the representatives of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, and the bill of expense was approved and ordered paid. The visit of the real estate men was voted a success.

Reference to the new publication, "The Site Seeker," was made by Francis K. Anderson, who is associated with Alden E. Moore in the enterprise, and it is expected that the first issue will appear the latter part of the month. Arrangements for mailing copies of it were decided upon, the board agreeing to take a certain number.

Friends Gathered to Celebrate Her Birthday.

In honor of Mrs. John C. Van Dyke, of East Fifth street, who observed the anniversary of her birthday, Thursday, a party of friends tendered her a surprise. There were guests from Somerville and this city. They met at the home of Mrs. John Brooks on Watchung avenue and proceeded to the home of Mrs. Van Dyke, carrying bouquets of flowers and parcels of good things.

This was the second surprise for Mrs. Van Dyke, the first one being at Bernardsville, while she was visiting her cousin, Dr. Fred Corlell Suthen. A company of twenty-five friends called on the occasion of the festivities of the occasion, including a sumptuous repast. Many of those present Mrs. Van Dyke had not seen in a number of years.

THURSDAY, JUNE 11.

In passing an ordinance providing for a bond issue for further street improvements at this time, over the Mayor's veto, no fault can be found with the Common Council. The members of that body are chosen to legislate for the best interests of the municipality and knowing the high standard of the body, no one will question their sincerity of purpose. The city's fathers today compare favorably with any similar body that ever represented the taxpayers for each and every one of them is a conscientious and able servant of the people.

We do not recede, however, from our position that the mayor was right in vetoing the ordinance for the very reasons stated in his message. It was indeed flattering to find among his honor's supporters such a representative body of citizens as was numbering those who urged the city fathers to heed the mayor's warnings. After the intelligent taxpayer peruses the list of names of those who remonstrated against the bond issue, we feely sanguine that he will agree that there was much merit in the mayor's argument.

These are but a few of the supporters of his contentions picked at random from the communications received by the Common Council last night: Alexander Gilbert, George P. Mellick, C. W. McCutchen, H. Somerville Team is Defeated Through Superior Fielding of the Visiting Team.

WON IN THE NINTH INNING.

Plains Bats Out Five Runs When Score Stood 6 to 2 in Favor of Somerville.

With the score 6 to 2 in favor of the West Ends, in the game at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, the Scotch Plains team came to the bat in the ninth inning and pounded Kraft for four singles and two two-base hits and when the hit-fest was over the visitors were in the lead by a score of 7 to 6 and won the contest by that score as the home aggregation was shutout in its half of the ninth inning.

The game which was the opening one of the season at Somerville was a heavy-hitting one throughout, Kraft and Ortlieb being touched freely, but the home team outclassed the visitors in fielding. No matter how hard the ball was hit it would always go into the hands of a fielder.

Scotch Plains opened the ninth inning with Flannery at the bat, who beat out a bunt. Baldwin followed with a single and Joe Albert met one and the scoring began. Prentz was there with a timely hit and Allen came to the rescue with another single. This continued until the Plains had scored five runs and won out. Many fans had left the grounds feeling sure that the home players would win. Both teams will meet again later in the season. The score by innings:

Scotch Plains....100100005—7
Somerville .....300200100—6

Batteries—Ortlieb and Alberts; Kraft and Justice.

Y. M. C. A. NINE LOSES LEAGUE GAME AT NEWARK

Careless base running, together with a collection of six glaring errors, caused the defeat of the Y. M. C. A. nine by the Newark association team at Newark Saturday afternoon. The score was 13-9. This puts the Newark boys at the head of the association State league, for they have won both their games. Plainfield is in second place, having won one and lost one. Summit won from Elizabeth by a score of 8-3 and is now tied with the local nine. The Orange Trenton game was postponed.

The Plainfielders had no trouble at all hitting Manual, the Newark pitcher, and got sixteen hits. Scott got a three bagger, and Craig, Loiseaux, Miller, Conover and Banks each hit safely for two bases. The local boys tried to stretch their hits for more bases than they earned, and several times got caught by trying to make another bag. Conover was effective for the Plainfielders, but got poor support. Conway having four errors charged up against him, while Craig and Loiseaux each contributed a misplay. The local twirler fanned two and gave two passes, while Manual proved a puzzle to six batsmen and gave a single base on balls.

After hte local nine had made two runs in the first inning, (from four safe hits), the Newark boys started to make runs, and in the second, third and fourth piled up a total of seven tallies, clinching the game at the start. The score:

MANY ATTRACTIONS LISTED FOR FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL.

Many novel features will be introduced during the Firemens' carnival, June 15 to 20.

The Southern plantation scene promises to be interesting and the band of Aztec Indians will doubtless come in for a lot of attention. A vaudeville, Fererris Trained Wild Animal Show, Comic Opera in Tabloid form, Moving Pictures, Camels, Elephants, and Oriental street, Genuine Egyptians, Turks, Hindoos, Bedouin Arabs, Moors will all take part in the carnival and all the incidents of an up-ti-date circus. Much interest is being manifested to see who will have the honor of being crowned "Queen of the Carnival." Miss Lillian Pauley, whose name was mentioned by the carnival committee on Saturday as one of the candidates, has withdrawn from the contest. Miss Pauley says she did not know that her name was to be presented.

Miss Antoinette S. Johnson a Bride.

Miss Antoinette Sophie Johnson, of 723 South avenue, and Carl Frederic Larsen, of Westfield, were married Saturday afternoon at 5:20 o'clock at the home of the bride, by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church. A small company of friends was present to witness the ceremony and attend the reception which followed. The bride is a graduate nurse and has been living at the home of Louis Beck on South avenue. Upon their return from a wedding journey they will continue their residence there. The bride received a number of handsome gifts from friends in this city and elsewhere.

Quietly Wedded by Dr. Schenck.

Miss Sue Pomp Berg, daughter of Dr. J. F. Berg, of Prospect avenue, became the wife of William Coulter Boyd, of Bayonne Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed at the home of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, who officiated. The wedding was a quiet affair, only the necessary witnesses being present.

CUP COMPETITIONS AT PARK GOLF CLUB

Ideal weather brought out a large field of golfers at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, to compete for the various challenge trophies, as well as those in weekly competition. The course was greatly improved over the previous week and low scores were the rule. The fact that there are several cups, subject to challenge each week, had the tendency of increasing the interest and stimulating the rivalry among the players.

Walter M. McNaughton, holder, defeated W. R. Faber, challenger, by 1 up for the Hydewood Park cup; Charles B. Morse, holder, defeated W. V. Byard, challenger, by 2 up and 1 to play, for challenge trophy number two, and Dr. H. K. Carroll qualified as holder for challenge trophy number five.

The events for next week include matches between W. R. Faber, who has challenged C. B. Morse for trophy number one; W. V. Byard, who has challenged Dr. A. W. Andersch for trophy number three, and Dr. H. K. Carroll, who has challenged Leon R. Thurlow for trophy number five.

The leading scores for the President's, Club and Summer cups, weekly competitions, are as follows:

Dr. H. K. Carroll, 93, 10-83; E. E. Gano, 95, 10-85; W. V. Byard, 102, 15-87; Charles B. Morse, 105, 14-91; A. W. Kenworthy, 106, 15-91; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 118, 18-100.

In the president's and putting contest, postponed from Memorial Day, Miss May Shreve and W. V. Byard were tied with Miss Grace Ten Eyck and J. B. Betts with a score of 5, and in the playoff, Miss Shreve and Mr. Byard won out by the same score.

CLINTON AVENUE TEAM WALLOPS ELIZABETH A.C.

The Clinton Avenues redeemed themselves on Saturday, when they defeated the Elizabeth A. C., on Crescent Oval by a score of 6 to 4. The first contest between these teams a few weeks ago resulted in a defeat for the locals by a score of 4 to 3, but Captain Eric Mueller was prepared for the county seat boys this time and refused to let them get away with a victory.

Clifford Randolph, who stood on the wring line for the home team, had everything with him and he fanned ten of his opponents, but in spite of this they succeeded in getting seven singles off his delivery, while Lloyd, who was in the box for Elizabeth allowed but six hits. It was the remarkable fielding of the visitors that prevented a worse defeat. Jack Martin was right on the job, securing a run, a hit and having two put outs and an assist. The whole team played championship ball and the exhibition was a creditable one. The only weak spot was behind the bat, Moffet allowing nine stolen bases.

Next Saturday the local team will go to Somerville and play its first games with the West Ends, postponed from Memorial Day, and Manager Dorflinger feels sure that his aggregation will return with a victory.

Highlands Defeat the Giants.

The Highland A. C., defeated the Giants on Hope Common Saturday afternoon duplicating the score they made against the Juniors, which was 15 to 2. Conshay, Wunderlich and Winters were the battery for the Highlands and Brown, Gouard and Willis for the Giants. Conshay pitched his first game for the Highlands and allowed but one hit in six innings. Wunderlich then relieved him and only one hit was secured from his delivery. The winning team collected five two-baggers, made by Brown, Conshay, Curtis, Hansen and Kyle. Gouard, of the Giants, played a fast game. Next Saturday the Highlands will meet the Climax A. C., at Scotch Plains.

FATHER DOGAN SPEAKS AT A NEWARK CEREMONY

Several thousand persons attended the laying of the cornerstone of the new St. Columbia's School on Pennsylvania avenue, Newark, Sunday and upward of 2,000 men and children took part in a parade and each carried a small American flag.

Among those present who made addresses was Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, this city. He said that many of the best educators admit now that a religious training is necessary in all schools, for children who were taught in school to obey the commandments of God would obey the laws of their country and be the future protectors of our great nation. It was wrong to permit children to grow up with no sense of responsibility to God, the Creator of the World and them and of all things. Some persons criticized the erection of fine Catholic school buildings like the one the pastor of St. Columbia's church was building, without the assistance of the city or the State, relying only on the contributions of the Catholic people and friends of education. But the school had proved a blessing to the city and the State, as parochial schools had done much for the entire country by teaching boys and girls to know and love God and to be loyal American citizens, for a good Catholic must be a good citizen.

Father Bogan asked the blessing of God upon the work of St. Columbia's church, upon the energetic, zealous and able pastor, and also upon all who had assembled to see the corner stone of a new Catholic school laid.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS ON P. C. C.'S COURSE

Despite the many other attractions including the horse show, the course of the Plainfield Country Club was occupied by a large field of players on Saturday and many good scores were returned. Frank O. Reinhart, Leigh ton Calkins and W. Lester Glenney, who took part in the championship tournament at Englewood Thursday and Friday and who were defeated in the semi-final rounds, returned home and engaged in the competition at the local course.

The chief event for the day was the weekly competition for the Spring handicap cups, Classes A and B. In the former class, W. D. Riggs won first honors with a 71 net, receiving eight points, while Wm. Patterson and Leighton Calkins were tied for second place with a net 74, each getting a point and a half. The leading scores follow:

W. D. Riggs, 83; 12-71; Stuart H. Patterson, 80 and 81; Leighton Calkins, 82; 8-74; Frank O. Reinhart, 79, 4-75; R. S. Rowland, 85, 7-78.

In Class B, W. L. C. Glenney won first honors with a net score of 77, while Laarens H. VanBuren and D. H. Rowland finished second and third with scores of 80 and 81. The scores of the point-winners in this class were as follows:

W. L. C. Glenney, 102, 25-77; Laurens H. VanBuren, 105, 25-80; D. H. Rowland, 99, 18-81.

While the play was in progress on the course of many social features provided at the clubhouse were being enjoyed. During the afternoon tea was served and in the evening many remained for the dinner dance, which has become a fixture at this popular place.

TALKS ON INDIA'S NEEDS "JEEMS" HIT COP NOLAN; THEREBY HANGS A TALE

Mrs. J. Heinrichs, a Missionary, Speaks on the Work at Yerkes Chapel.

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Tettu, Where Plainfield Edifice is Located, Is Filled with Heathen Idols—Much to Be Done.

An interesting service was held Sunday evening in the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the Young People's Society and the Temple Builders, a men's missionary organization of the church interested for years in maintaing the Yerkes chapel at Tettu, India. Rev. Dr. Chambliss presided at the meeting. F. S. Thompson, president of the Temple Builders, had charge of the Scripture lesson and offering prayer.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. J. Heinrichs, of Ramapatan, India, who for the past nine-teen years has been associated with her husband in missionary work in India and who have had charge of the Yerkes chapel at Tettu. Mrs. Heinrichs is an earnest and forcible speaker, and she held the close attention of her audience while she told of the peculiar condition in India resulting from the vast area its population, the enormous population of 300,000,000, the caste system, the evils of child marriage and the degradation of idolatrous worship for thousands of years.

Mrs. Heinrichs described some of the difficulties encountered by pioneer missionaries, gave an outline of her husband's work at the head of the theological seminary in Ramapatam, told some incidents of the recent great revival in India and of the need of the Yerkes chapel at Tettu, a small city full of heathen temples. She closed her address with earnest words urging the claims of the great commission, "Go teach all nations," on Christians who stay at home as well as on those who are called to service in foreign lands.

The closing prayer was made by Paul Scarborough, president of the Young People's Society. An anthem by Sullivan and "Crown the Saviour King of Kings," were beautifully rendered by the choir.

BOYS' WEIGHT IN CHERRY TREE

CAUSED ITS TRUNK TO BREAK.

In trying to unfasten a swing rope from a high limb on the cherry tree in the yard of their father, John Hummel, of Duer street, Friday afternoon, his two sons, George and Fred, got a bad fall when the big tree, overbalanced by their weight on one branch, broke off close to the ground. The boys, who are twelve and eight years old, hung on tight to the limb and were uninjured except for a few scratches.

The tree broke off about four feet from the ground, where the trunk was badly rotted through. Some thirty feet above the ground was a big horizontal limb where the boys had a swing. They had been told by their father to take it down and were out on the limb untying the rope when the tree broke off.

Dog Biting Cases in Court.

Mrs. Frederick Boland, of West Fourth street, appeared in the city court Saturday, as complainant against John Humes, of Dunellen avenue, claiming that a dog owned by him had bitten her nine-year-old son. It was proven to Judge Runyon's satisfaction that the boy was not on Mr. Humes' premises at the time and the latter was directed to pay the doctor's bill for treatment. Mrs. Cavanagh, of Richmond street, was also in court, Saturday, with a similar complaint against A. H. Parker, who owns a dog that bit her. The police were instructed to see that Mr. Parker has the dog muzzled.

DEVELOPING LAND TRACTS IN PLAINFIELD'S SUBURBS.

Real estate men in the suburben sections of the city started the development of tracts at Graceland and South Plainfield yesterday through free excursions from New York city. Graceland, the newly opened up tract on South avenue near Westfield, was visited by many New Yorkers who came out for the day on a special excursion. It is reported that the Central Railroad of New Jersey will erect a station at the tract and that the place will be re-named South Westfield.

Two large tracts of land at South Plainfield were formally opened yesterday, when special trains on the Lehigh Valley brought home seekers from New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City to inspect the sites. Samuel Scott, promoting the tracts and has opened a real estate office on the property. Four streets have been cut through and some houses are already in course of construction.

An Expert Coach Horn Artist.

Louis Anderson, the coach horn artist who simulated the classes at the horse show, attracted considerable attention by his performances on the instrument. He is considered the best in America and during the Barnum & Bailey tour of Europe was engaged as an exclusive feature for solo work.

FIRE GUTS HOME OF COUNCILMAN C. A. M'GEE

Fire, starting in the kitchen from an unknown cause, did damage to the amount of $1,000 to the home of Borough Councilman Clifford A. McGee on Willow avenue Sunday morning when the kitchen and bedrooms on the second and third floor at the rear of the house were gutted by the flames. The fire was discovered by Mr. McGee's six-year-old son Norman, who waked his father and mother and shouted the alarm at about half past eight. Mr. McGee sounded the alarm from box 153 at Willow and Grand avenues and the firemen confined the damage to the rear of the building.

Speaking of the work of the department to a Daily Press reporter, the Councilman said: "These boys did awfully good work. He looked to me as though the house was doomed, and I believe it was only saved by the promptness of the firemen in hitting the blaze. I am very proud of the North Plainfield fire department. My loss was due almost entirely to the flames, for the house is not damaged at all by water. A hydrant stream was used in the kitchen, but the firemen saved a lot of damage by water because they used a chemical stream on the second and third floors."

Mr. McGee denied the rumor that the fire was started by his son, who is reported to have been playing with matches in the kitchen. The little fellow was the only one awake in the house, for the maid had gone to church. There was no fire in the range or gas stove. The Councilman's loss is entirely covered by insurance. He will immediately begin the work of re-construction, which will be a restoration of the house as it was before the blaze. The roof was undamaged and the family is still living in the house.

Horse Show Big Financial Success.

The fifth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club was the most successful from a financial point of view in its history. The returns from admissions at the gate will reach nearly $2,000, while the money received from the numerous entries was over $2,200. It is estimated that the aggregate amount will reach between $6,000 and $7,000, all of which remains in Plainfield. In addition it is the conservative opinion that from a money standpoint the show was worth nearly $10,000, considering the amount spent here for the care of the horses, the army of men required to look after them and that expended by exhibitors in various other ways.

LAW-BREAKERS WARNED

Judge Runyon Declares That Foreigners Must Respect the City Ordinances.

A BAN ON WEAPON CARRYING.

Sends Three Men to Jail for the Offense and Punishes Others for Desecrating the Sabbath.

Aroused to just indignation by a large number of Italians arraigned before him on charges of disorderly conduct on the Sabbath and the carrying of concealed weapons, Judge William N. Runyon issued warning in the city court Monday that the foreign element in the city must obey the laws of the community.

"I want everyone to understand," he exclaimed, "that our Sunday is not to be turned into a day of revelry and as for the carrying of concealed weapons it will not be tolerated by this court. Unless a man is engaged in a dangerous occupation there is no need in this country for anyone to have a knife or revolver in his pocket and I will punish every prisoner brought before me for it. This applies to English, Americans, Italians or anyone else and the sooner it is realized the better it will be for everybody concerned."

The magistrate's remarks followed four cases in which a total of nine Italians were implicated. The first prisoner was Luigi Carminio, arrested Sunday afternoon by Patrolman Flynn for helpless intoxication at South avenue and Centre street. He was fined $8 and paid. After him came Carmone Consoli and James Popolli, arrested by Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant Flynn for disorderly conduct in the "pee hive" department house on Watchung avenue near the raceway. Popolli was sent to jail for forty days and Consoli for twenty.

The arrest of these two men led to another disturbance a little later in the morning by relatives accusing Popolli's daughter of being responsible for the police coming. Her brother and brother-in-law and several other men started to beat her on Watchung avenue just as Patrolman McDonald came in sight. Several of the assailants ran while others stood and at the woman's instigation the officer arrested Pedro Ramnael, Michael Mascagni and Dominick Matti. She declared they had struck her but when they were arraigned in court they changed their attitude and was positive it was the men who had run away who were the ones watned. There was nothing else to do but to discharge the three.

Another case brought out by second hitch of three men, Dominick Delallo, Guisseppe Amodio and Joseph Rigio, all residents of the Terrill road colony. They boarded an inbound Scotch Plains trolley Sunday night and got into a muss with several Plainfielders. The car was stopped at Sherman street and the Italians were put off but they ran after it as far as the Richmond street switch, throwing stones at the passengers on the back platform and threatening to shoot some one. Patrolman O'Keefe was called and captured two of them and the third was arrested later by Detective-Sergeant Flynn at Hunter avenue. A search of their clothing revealed two loaded revolvers and a razor.

"There may be some doubt as to who was to blame for the trouble on the car," said Judge Runyon in addressing them, "but you had no right to come into Plainfield with those weapons. Fifty dollars or fifty days for each."

The defendants had no money and will serve the last sentences. It was after they had been taken back to cells that the magistrate issued his warning and as there were a large number of foreigners in court it is believed his remarks will have a salutary effect.

DR. VAN DYKE'S LECTURES.

To Speak on Spirit of America at Paris and Other Universities.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton University has accepted the American lectureship in the University of Paris and other French universities for the coming year. The lectureship was tendered by the authorities of Harvard. His subject is announced by Van Dyke as "The Spirit of America: Its Influence in Literature, Education, and Social Effect."

Dr. Van Dyke has requested that leave of absence without salary be granted him by the Princeton University authorities, and expects to sail for Paris with his family after the marriage of his daughter at Avalon on June 20. He will occupy the chair filled during the past year by Dr. George Price Baker of Harvard.

A young negro giving his name as "John Smith," of Westfield, and standing six feet four inches in his bare feet, unsettled Ann Bleckler's saloon Saturday night, with the one fixed idea that he wanted trouble. He insisted on sitting on a table and when put off it two or three times, swung up to the bar and announced in loud tones that no white man would be allowed to have a drink over it. The negro's size drove thirst away from everybody in sight so a hurry call was sent for the police.

Patrolman Messler responded and after getting Smith to the street, was joined by Patrolman Nolan. The prisoner was still seeking trouble and made a break at the latter officer, smashing in his helmet. It was a bad mistake for John Smith. Patrolman Nolan has a reputation of hitting first and explaining afterward and his locust descended on the head of cranium with a dull, sickening thud.

"I'm cold," he yelled, and then another tap from the wood wa-med him up so quick he wanted to run all the way to Sycamore street headquarters.

When arraigned before Judge Runyon Monday morning, he admitted being in wrong but begged for mercy. he was sentenced to sixty days in jail.

After the trial was over, a young colored woman from Westfield, who owned up to being the prisoner's affinity, was asked by Chief Kiely what his name was.

"Ah dunno," she said; "Ah's been acquainted with him fo' two yeahs but ah only knows him as "Jeems" and she had a faraway look in her eyes that showed it would be useless to interrogate further.

Of talkers long—
You know the kind.
And for a while he was a prince;

WINNERS AT HORSE SHOW

Judge Moore Carried Away Biggest String of Blue Ribbons for the Three Days.

VANDERBILT TAKES TWO CUPS.

He Also Captures Numerous Blue Ribbons—All Exhibitors Said They Were Well Pleased Here.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's fifth annual horse show closed Saturday afternoon with Judge William H. Moore's stable triumphant in the number of awards. His big string of four-footed patricians carried off a total of twenty-nine ribbons in the three days, thirteen blues, nine reds, four yellows and three whites. Second place in the summary fell to Miss Mabel B. Hooley, of the borough, whose winnings aggregated twenty-one of the coveted trophies. Of these five were blue, six red, seven yellow and three white.

Although Reginald C. Vanderbilt's stable was third, the owner had the satisfaction of carrying off the Riding and Driving Club's $250 challenge cup for harness horses with his handsome chestnut mare, "Phoebe Watton." It was the feature class of Saturday's program and while there were five other entries, the choice for first place quickly narrowed down to the winning animal and Judge Moore's "Pride o' Prides." After the first line-up they were sent several times for further inspection, so close was the decision. The owners were driving and they did everything in their power to land the cup. "Phoebe Watton's" victory was received with generous applause.

Looking at the summary in another way, Mr. Vanderbilt was the most successful exhibitor at the show in view of the fact that of the three challenge cups offered as prizes in the harness classes he won two. His "Dr. Woolsey" brought home the Blue Book trophy on Friday, winning it two years in succession. Mr. Vanderbilt has announced that he will offer another cup to take its place next year. He declared Saturday that he was very well pleased with his success in Plainfield and that he would be a prominent exhibitor at the coming shows.

Class 37, for champion saddle horses, was another of Saturday's classes that called for careful judging and caused plenty of speculation among the spectators. Nine animals competed and according to the conditions in the event of a sufficient number of comparatively large and small sizes, they were divided. In the heavyweight class, George Watson, Jr.'s "Vesta Tilley," champion of the Philadelphia show two weeks ago was declared the winner, and Miss Hooley's "The Czar" was second. In the lightweight division, the judges passed the Philadelphia winner, Miss Emily Bedford's Miss Rogers and gave the blue to Rufus L. Patterson's "Durham." Udo M. Fleischmann's "Mayor" was awarded the reserve.

A murmur of approbation arose when three handsome equipages swung into the ring to compete for honors in Class 21 for Park four-in hands. Judge Moore handled the ribbons over his fine bays, "Diplomat," "Councilman," "Minerva" and "Senator;" George Watson, Jr., drove "Masher," "Ascot," "Empress" and "Princess" and a professional was on the box for Otto H. Kahn's "Sultan," "Khedive," "Pasha" and "Regent." First prize of $75 went to Judge Moore and second, $25, to the Kahn team.

Classes 43 and 45 for hunters and jumpers furnished lots of excitement. Several of the animals balked at the barriers and on one occasion John J. Kelly's brown gelding, "Keystone," scared the lawn promenaders by trying hard to jump the track fence. Victor Froment was thrown after taking the barrier directly in front of the grandstand by his mount, "Bally," stumbling, but received no more than a slight shaking up. In Class 43, the Westchester Farm's entries carried off three of the four ribbons. In No. 45, for the Watchung Hunt Club cup, Miss Hooley's chestnut gelding "Crusher," was first and Lewis Waring's "Grand Slam" second.

The attendance Saturday afternoon was the largest that has been noted at any time since the local show has been given. Everyone of the box holders had two or three visitors and the grandstand seats were nearly all taken. Several hundred people viewed the competitions from points of advantage about the lawn. The interest displayed was a source of satisfaction to the Riding and Driving Club members and it will mean still greater efforts for next year's exhibition.

BOND ISSUE ORDERED FOR NEW SCHOOL BLDG.

Following the action of the Board of School Estimate in determining that $35,000 would be needed for public school expenses during the coming year, exclusive of the amount apportioned by the county superintendent of schools, an ordinance was introduced at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, appropriating that sum and providing that it be made a part of the regular tax budget this year. The ordinance was presented by Mr. Buxton and was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, approved the form of bonds to be issued for the purchase of property and erection of the new police station. The amount of the bonds is $25,500. There are to be fifty-one, payable semi-annually and bearing four and half per cent. interest. Another resolution offered by the same member and adopted, fixed Monday night, June 29, at 8 o'clock as the time when bids will be received for these bonds, as well as for the $95,000 issue of school bonds with which to erect the new school at Darrow avenue and Essex street. The members decided to hold another adjourned meeting Monday night to approve the form of school bonds.

On motion of Mr. Buxton the certified check of Alexander Milne, who received the contract for building the new police station, was ordered returned, as his bond has been properly filed. Mr. Gloak as chairman of the street committee, offered for approval the bonds of N. B. Smalley & Company, who received the contract for furnishing crushed stone. They were approved and filed.

MISS MAXSON'S PUPILS IN SUCCESSFUL PIANO RECITAL.

Assisted by Mrs. Violet Tnrell-Johnson, violinist, a successful piano recital was given by the pupils of Miss Mabel A. Maxson at her home on West Sixth street Monday afternoon. A large gathering of parents and friends of the pupils were enthusiastic in praise of the playing of the nine pupils who took part in the program.

Mrs. Tnrell-Johnson rendered numbers from Wieniowski, Raff and Godard, and Miss Maxson played selections from Listz and Schubert, also acting as accompanist for the violin music. The pupils who took part in the program were the Misses Kelly, Ogden, Brown, Fawcett, Johnston, Stevens and Masters Lee, Gribbon and Hochberger.

THIS DOG BITES CHILDREN, BUT ALWAYS ON THE CHEEK.

"Black," the hound belonging to George Gould, of Somerset street, which bit five-year-old Edward Brown a week ago, snapped at the three-year-old son of John Hoagland, of Somerset street, Saturday evening, biting the little fellow on the cheek in front of his home and place as the Brown boy was bitten.

The injured boy was taken to Dr. F. J. Hughes' office, where the physician cauterized the wound, which proved but a scratch.

The boy saw the dog sleeping in the gutter in front of his home and started to play with it. The animal woke up cross and snapped, grazing the boy's cheek with its teeth and barely missing his left eye. Mr. Hoagland has requested that "Black" be killed.

UNWELCOME CRAMPS.

Who hasn't wakened in the dead of night with an excruciating cramp in the leg? Fortunately it does not last long, but the agony of even a minute or two of this particularly unpleasant nocturnal complaint—strangely enough it rarely makes itself felt out of bed—makes welcome any simple cure for its cure.

As a rule this cramp comes from a run-down system, often a weak heart, and a tonic will help to overcome the tendency.

It may sometimes be avoided by having the feet slightly elevated in lying down.

During the attack stretching down the ankles and toes as far as they will go will sometimes give quick relief. When the pain lasts longer than usual it is well to throw cold water over the part affected.

NEW IDEAS FOR PILLOW COVERINGS.

The woman who does not confine the cushions of her summer divans entirely to madras and washable cottons should have one of the new filet pillow covers which are much easier to make than they look.

The pillows should be quite small and flat, about the size used in baby coaches and the covers made of alternate squares edged with Cluny lace, should button on that they may be often washed.

Select for the linen squares an open work design in which eyelet work predominates; use only enough of the satin stitch to make stems or a few dots. Do not have too much work on these squares; the main thing is to have them quite open to show the colored silk or mercerized pillow cover beneath.

Even easier is one of the covers made from an entire filet square that just fits the pillow. The cover may be alike on both sides, or, if that is too expensive, the underside may be of sheer lawn or of inexpensive filet net.

Some of the imitation filet squares are very good looking and if dyed with tea to a creamy tint will make charming sofa pillows at comparatively little cost.

Sometimes these covers are finished with a narrow overcasted seam; more often they have an edge of Cluny put on flat, without gathering.

Linens Deservedly Popular.

Linen gowns are already being carefully considered in relation to the new summer schemes, and this season one of the favorite colors where the linen gown is considered is a warm and attractive russet, a little redder than the saticloth linen of whilom fame, but very nearly approaching its tint. These linen gowns will be fashioned in the simplest manner possible, the coat bodices opening over plaits of contrasting colored tolles powdered with large russet spots, or trimmed with soft, thick, white cords or with soutache to match. The hats designed to be worn with them are carried out in rustic straw, loosely woven in rush fashion, and trimmed with russet-colored shantung or velvet ribbon, and masses of huge purple plume covered with a soft bloom, or in place of this with clumps of crab-apples, bunches of huge white heart cherries or wreaths of ripe strawberries.

Manicuring Elephant's Foot.

Accustomed to the dry climate of the Indies, the elephants imported to temperate and rainy countries are subject to many diseases of the flesh and skin to which the veterinary surgeons of national and municipal zoological gardens are compelled to give the closest watch. The smallest minute or two of this particularly unpleasant nocturnal complaint—strangely enough it rarely makes itself felt out of bed—makes welcome any simple cure for its cure.

TENTH TALK ON CREED

Rev. Dr. Herring Explains Meaning of "I Believe in the Holy Catholic Church."

THE PRESBYTERIAN BELIEF.

The Church Is Household of God, Body of Christ, Temple of God and Bride of Christ.

"I Believe in the Holy Catholic Church," was the theme in the tenth discourse on "The Apostles Creed," delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church Sunday, and in his treatment of it he explained what Christ meant by the Church and presented a study of four figures in the New Testament which tells what the Church is. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"We have already spoken of our belief in the Holy Catholic church as one of the important elements in our Creed; important because Christ Himself established the church.

"That we may know what Christ meant by the Church, let us study the four figures in the New Testament which tell us what the Church is.

"First, The church is said to be the household of God. In other words the church is a home. That household may be as wide as the world. Your household is not circumscribed by four walls. It is not held together by similarity of thought, but by that indefinite something called relation, in which there is the thought of love. Your son may be in college in Germany—your daughter a missionary in India—and yet with the distance of the ends of the earth between you, you are all of the same household; so the church of God is a great household. We feel the same interest in the members of the family in distant lands that we feel in the home family. There are many things that separate the members of the family, there is the one thing that unites them. It is devotion to the Lord Jesus, the Redeemer and Master.

"The next figure is that The Church is the body of Christ, and Christ is the head of the body.

"Christ came to the earth in bodily form, lived here one thirty years and preached three years. On the Resurrection Day, that body arose from the dead, and yet He has left another body in the form of the church. The church in His living body which does the work of the Lord in the world. Christ, then, dwells in the world and is carrying on His work to completion. The church by what the gates of Death shall not prevail against it because He lives. He is the head—the church is His body. God's intimate relation with His people in the Old Testament is seen in the picture of the Temple. In the Tabernacle and the Temple there was the manifestation of God's presence in thee loud above the Ark of the Covenant. It was an indication that God was with Israel. Today God is with His people in the church.

"The third picture of the church is seen in the word 'ecclesia' from which we get the word esclesiastical. Ecclesia literally means 'called out.' The church is made up of those that are called out from the world as a force to win the world for Christ. It is in this sense that we say:

"'Like a mighty army moves the Church of God,' and every man is called out from the world to recognize that he is under the Kingship and Leadership of Christ.

"The last picture is that of the Bride of Christ. The church is more than the servant of Christ, more than the body of Christ; the church is the bride of Christ. Can there be any picture that represents His relation to us nearer than that? God is preparing us then to be His companions forever.

"Now if all this is true—and it is true—should you not belong to the church in some way? What an honor it must have been to have belonged to that first church of one hundred and twenty on the Day of Pentecost. The Holy Spirit came not on one man here and another man there as he was praying in secret to the Lord, but as they were all together in one place. And then was that the Holy Spirit came upon them and endued them for service. It was that body of organized Christians that brought to the world the knowledge of Jesus. It is the organized church today that has also the selfsame mission.

"The Church is the Household of God, the Body of Christ, the Temple of God, the Bride of Christ. Isn't it worth while to belong to it?"

P. H. S. Senior Reception.

In accordance with an annual custom, Principal Ira M. Travell, of the Plainfield High School, tendered a reception to the graduating class in the school auditorium Saturday night. Mr. Travell and his wife were assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Miss S. Lenna Lindsay, Miss Best and James D. Macnab of the faculty. The evening was passed with dancing, in which about twenty-five couples participated. There were fifteen dances on the card and music was furnished by Miss Mabel Maxson, assisted by Mr. Mosher and Mr. Wheeler.

Trolley Car Strikes a Rig.

Main line trolley car No. 1,925, eastbound, struck the rear of a rig occupied by Mrs. George Parker, of Road Endiag, in front of Randolph's drug store, Saturday night. The vehicle protruded too near the tracks and motorman Waldron failed to notice he could not pass it. Mrs. Parker, who was in the rig, became hysterical after the crash and was taken into the pharmacy by Patrolman Messler. She was notinjured. The vehicle was slightly damaged and the horse received a few cuts.

Dr. Maxson Commencement Speaker.

By the unanimous vote of the senior class of the Plainfield High School Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city Board of Education, has been asked to make the commencement address at the graduation exercises of the class, to be held this year at the New Plainfield theatre, the night of June 18.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HURRIED HOUSEWIFE.

Tarnished silverware is brightened if placed in buttermilk for two hours and washed in hot suds.

Put a few drops of ammonia on a rag to rub finger marks from looking glasses or windows.

Men's worn linen collars, cut into narrow strips, furnish convenient substitutes for the wax tapers used in gas lighters.

There is no better pudding cloth than a piece of cheesecloth. This material being coarse does not retain the grease, and is easily cleaned.

When stewing fruit never use a metal spoon; a wooden spoon is best, and those with short handles are most convenient for thick substances.

The pulverized washing powders last much longer if used from a talcum powder shaker. A baking powder can with holes punched through the lid may be utilized for the purpose.

Before polishing the stove wash it off with vinegar. It removes all grease, leaving the surface smooth, and keeps the blacking from burning off so quickly, saving much time and labor.

A soft flannel cloth and salted water should be used for cleaning matting. If there are spots which are soiled rub them first with dampened cornmeal, then wash the matting with a soft flannel cloth and cool salt water, allowing a quart of salt to each pail of water. Lastly, wipe off all moisture with a damp cloth. Matting kept clean in this manner will not turn yellow.

The next time you wash the glassware rinse in hot water and plunge the articles in a bucket of water in which there is a cupful of clear starch. Keep the starch stirred through the water. Put the glassware on tables to drain and leave until perfectly dry. Rub with a soft cloth and you will be delighted to see how bright are the pieces. Have a soft brush to clean the cut glass articles.

Every now and then, instead of allowing the carpet to remain in exactly the same position as first placed, the tread of the carpet should be moved a couple of inches or so either upor down. This has the effect of keeping the pile of the carpet in a uniform condition, and besides, retaining the fresh appearance of the carpet, it helps it to last much longer than it would if left exactly as laid. It costs nothing to do this, yet saves much.

One of the things that must not be forgotten when cleaning is the turning out of drawers and cupboards. Frequently it is a work of longer duration than one would expect. After the drawers have been emptied wash them thoroughly and line them with clean white paper. The walls of cupboards should be brushed down and whitewashed if necessary, and when the shelves have been cleaned put back in place everything that has not been condemned as rubbish.

The Jackass and Debs.

Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, tells the following story on himself:

"I was to address a public meeting and there was intense prejudice against me, so the young man who had to introduce me thought he would try to disarm it.

"'Debs is hated by some people,' he said, 'because he has been in strikes. This is not right. It is the law of nature to defend yourself. Why, even a dog will growl if you try to deprive him of the bone he is gnawing, a goat will butt if you get in his way, and you all know what a jackass will do if you monkey with him. Ladies and gentlemen, this is Debs, who will now address you.'"—Success Magazine.

The Conundrum Club.

"Why is a woman's heart like an umbrella?" asked the thin boarder.

"'Cause it's so easily lost," replied the fat girl.

"'Cause some fool's always looking for one," said the fat man.

"No."

"Well, we give it up," came the chorus.

"Because it isn't considered any harm to steal it."Yonkers Statesman.

The Strawberry Huller.

The strawberry season does not bring the bane of discolored fingers that it did in the past. The strawberry "huller," a tiny tin arrangement similar in shape to a pair of pincers nearly an inch broad, does the work of hulling expeditiously and without soiling the fingers. It has the additional virtue of not mashing the fruit in the process. The huller may be used to advantage in picking the eyes out of a pineapple.

When Pouring from a Bottle.

It is often most difficult to pour a liquid from a bottle without spilling it. This is especially true of ink, when the neck of the bottle has not a depression. If one will take a toothpick, moisten it and make a line on the neck of the bottle there will be no further trouble in the pouring. The liquid will always follow the outline on the glass.

A Useful Color.

Whether the leather-colored goods are manufactured to correspond with leather-colored shoes or the reverse is not known, but most assuredly the color enjoys the distinction of being popular. On one neat dress of tan shantung the trimmings were of white, piped with red silk. The three colors combined splendidly and the red offset the beauty of shape. Leather colored silks, linens, lawns and fine weaves are found everywhere. The trimmings are more of white than ecrue, though often white is combined with dark brown. For a jumper suit a leather-colored linen, all edged round with brown, would be neat, especially if worn with a white guimpe and tan hat trimmed with white flowers.

She Came Back.

Hans Growyost, a worthy Western farmer, has a wife who has long rendered his life anything but a couch of roses. One day not long ago she(in fit of pique, packed up her goods and left him, vowing never to come back. The news went round among the neighbors, and at night several of them came to condole with Hans. He sat on his front porch puffing away at his pipe. "Hans," remarked one of the neighbors, "I pity you." "My boy," replied the honest Dutchman, as he knocked disturbedly the ashes out of his pipe, "you vas right. She has shust come back!"

Force of Habit.

There is a certain Western Congressman whose boundless affability and habitual absent-mindness have *occasionally led him into absurd mis*takes. One day, during his last campaign, as he stepped from the train at the station of his home town after an absence of weeks in the capital and "glad-handing," his little daughter rushed up to him, and kissed him. The Congressman beamed upon her with a proud and tender parental eye.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed, "if it isn't my little Alberta!" Then he added, mechanically, "and how is your dear old father?"—Success.

Do Not Waste Bread.

However careful one is to prevent waste of bread, it is impossible in a household to have no pieces. Everyone uses these up in different ways —sometimes in puddings and sometimes as bread crumbs.

Here is a popular recipe:

Break the pieces into pieces about the size of a large walnut, dip them for a moment into milk in which has been mixed a little salt and a pinch of cayenne pepper. Place the pieces on a baking tin and bake in a moderate oven until they assume a golden color.

When cold store the rusks in a tin.

When Cleansing Cretonne.

The craze for cretonne has now got to such a stage that the fortunate owners of the pretty and serviceable fabric are looking about them for a means of cleaning it. It should first of all be thoroughly shaken in the open air, and then washed in bran water without rubbing. Rinse in a tepid bowl of water to which salt and vinegar have been added in the proportion of one tablespoonful of each to a quart of water, in order to prevent the colors from running.

Wring tightly and roll up with a fold of clean towel between each roll. Using a heavy hot iron, iron the cretonne on the wrong side until it is quite dry. As the bran water itself stiffens, there is no necessity for starching.

Do Not Hesitate.

"She that hesitates is lost," a great writer once said, and this applies as well today as it did in the generation in which it was spoken.

When anything calls for immediate action never let it rest undisturbed. Hesitation is the fault, but to prepare it with hurry would place it on too high a footing.

In hurry at least we endeavor. In hesitating there is no attempt.

Hurry might profit us something; hesitation profits us many things. Hesitancy generally loses to us many opportunities of which we could make lifelong use.

Hesitate to do wrong and half the battle of fighting off temptation is won.

Nevertheless to say that one always hesitates is to say that she is a weakling, and therefore it should be stricken from our calendar.

How to Blacken Tan Shoes.

Tan boots may be transformed into black ones by washing the leather with a strong solution of washing soda and water. When dry, blacken the shoes with a good shoe polish, but do not use a brush for the purpose. The secret of success is in using in place of a rush half of a potato. This being done, polish with a brush as usual.

An Apple Dessert.

This is a seasonable dish. Take two pounds of apples, pare, core them, slice them into a pan and add one pond of sugar, the juice of three lemons and the grated rind of one.

Let these boil until they become a thick mass, which will require about two hours; pour it into a mold and when cold turn out on a dish.

Serve with either custard or cream.

A FEW CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT COINS.

While the first actual coining of money is attributed to Pheidon, King of Argos, in 895 B. C., it must not be supposed that there had not existed a keen appreciation of the value and uses of money for centuries previous to the introduction of coinage. The ancient Egyptians had a gold and silver standard of currency and their money was in the form of gold and silver ornaments, rings and, nuggets, the purchasing value of which depended on their weight.

The Greeks improved somewhat in this system by first marking the weight on gold and silver nuggets so that it would no longer be necessary to reweigh them every time they were to be used for the purpose of exchange or trade. Then, says the Globe Democrat, came the introduction of gold, silver and copper nuggets of graded uniform sizes and values. The next step was the molding and stamping of discs made from the precious metals.

Some of these first coins were enormous, the idea apparently being to discourage the greedy from attempting to acumulate and carry around too many of them. There were copper coins as large as dinner plates. While the idea was based on excellent reasons, it had to give way before the demand for smaller and more conveninnt forms of currency, and the giant pennies soon dwindled in size to meet the popular demand.

The earnest trace of the use of gold as money is to be found in the ancient Egyptians, who had scales weighing in scales heaps of rings of gold and silver. There is no actual record, however, that these rings were what may be termed coins with a fixed value.

Iron, judging from the statement of Aristotle, was once extensively employed as currency. Lead has also served as money. In fact, it still does in Burmah.

Copper has been more widely employed as money than either of the two last-mentioned metals. The early Hebrews coins were chiefly composed of it, while down to 269 B. C. the sole Roman coinage was an alloy of copper.

Tin money was once used in England, probably on account of the rich tin mines of Cornwall. Early English coinage contained much of the tin money, principally in the form of pennies and half-pennies.

Silver formed the basis for the early Green coins, and was introduced in Rome in 269 B. C. Medieval money was principally composed of silver.

The only other metals for money are platinum and nickel. The former was coined for a short time by the Russian government and then given up as unsuitable. The latter is used as an alloy and in this country for the five-cent piece familiarly referred to as a nickel.

Gold coined money was first used on the Continent of Europe twenty-five years before the Christian era. It was in coppers and silver. The gold was not coined there until the eleventh century, and money did not reach the proportions to which we are accustomed until the lapse of another hundred years or so.

The oldest coin in the United States is owned by a Southern collector. It was minted about the year 700 B. C. in Aegina. The design in high relief represents a tortoise crawling across the face of the piece.

The Swiss were the first to date their coinage. They introduced the dated coin 400 years ago, and the style was universally adopted within a very short time.

The coin of the smallest value ever issued is the "mite," so called, such as the widow of the Bible story contributed to the poor. Its shape was hexagonal, and its face value one-fiftieth of a cent. Five thousand "mites" are the equivalent in value of an American dollar.

Probably the queerest coins in the world are the roundish, irregular lumps of silver used in Siam. They vary in size from a walnut to a half buckshot, according to the value represented. All kinds of guesses have been made as to the number of one-dollar bills that would be required to equal the weight of a five-dollar gold piece. The guesses range as a rule from about 50 to 500. And when a tourist in favor of one-dollar bills as against gold. As a matter of fact, there is very little difference between the weight of one five-dollar gold piece and five one-dollar gold piece and five one-dollar bills. To be exact, just six and a half bills will balance the five-dollar gold piece.

NEW THEORIES CONCERNING THE OLD STONE MILL.

An interesting hypothesis is advanced by a Mr. Albinus Hasselgren, of Newport, concerning the round stone over at Newport, which has been the theme of poets, novelists, historians, ethnologists, geographers and antiquarian controversialists for over a century. Discussion breaks out afresh over the particular point of the significance of the "shoulders" as builders and architects would call them, as the top of the round pillars are supporting the superstructure. These flanges suggest the inference that if the structure is the work of some long-to, and from this hint the learned Professor Rafn, of Copenhagen, secretary of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, has constructed the theory that the central part of a church or monastery used by the bishops of Greenland and Vinland, which was a Greenlander's colony, is what we have before us in Newport's "Old Mill." That is way used as a mill at the close of the seventeenth century is sufficiently well attested by documentary evidence. The Hasselgren theories hard the shielders for the mill theory by showing that Peter Easton was granted the land of Easton's Pond for erecting the first mill; and arguing from that that if the structure of a mere wooden mill could have elicited so much public gratitude, it is inconceivable that the subsequent erection of this remarkable structure, by far the most important building in Newport of its day, should have left absolutely no trace in local annals. The conclusion is entirely reasonable that the tower was not subsequently built, but had been always there, accepted and ignored, as almost a natural object, like a strange bowlder such as Squam Rock at Annisquam, or the big sand dunes at the tip of Cape Cod. It had been there since nobody knew when, and there was no particular reason for destroying it, as flat building stone was too plenty, happily, to justify resorting to the Roman Colosseum idea for centuries drawn on for cut stone.

The round tower columns supporting the circular tower indicate, according to Professor Rafn, as many aisles centering upon space beneath the tower, answering to the nave of the basciliery. Of course, the supports of the extensions of these aisles detached pillar probably, after the wood had disappeared would have been naturally disposed of in the settlers' wall-fence building for their farms. It is a pretty picture this theory makes in the imagination—a circular church with a round stone tower emerging from the low sloping circular of the Norse town with such buildings in Europe dating from the Middle Ages—one remarkably similar at Asti, Italy, and the large baptistery at Pisa is not unlike. At about the year, 1000 A. D., Leif Ericson, who voyaged far southward from Greenland, there were three hundred villages in Greenland, with twenty churches and a corresponding number of convents, and regular interchanges of religious visitantry between the Northern colonies and Rome, as recorded in the Sagas. Our intelligent and high-spirited Scandinavian contingent will be likely to rally strongly to the support of the contention that this romantic and mysterious but fortunately well-preserved ruin is the relic of the most ancient Christian church on this continent—the one discovered trace of importance of the most ancient civilization on the shores of North America.—Boston Transcript.

CURLING THE HAIR IN THE HOT WEATHER.

It is first necessary to have the hair free from dirt or oiliness. Unless the hair is perfectly clean and dry it will not curl easily. I recommended the little wooden match curlers, made of heavy wood with a tiny slit in the end. The hair is dampened slightly with a wet comb and the hair very loosely wound around the stick. A gut elastic one inch long is used to slip over the stick from end to end, fastening in the slit ends. If the hair has just been washed, it will curl in thirty minutes; if one's hair is inclined to be the least wavy, the hair curls in ten minutes.

If one expects to travel a great distance and will be on the train over night, it is best to dampen the hair on the night of morning, leaving it up all day. Do not wet the hair too wet and use a wet comb for the purpose. Hair curled in this manner will remain all day.

Little girls should have their hair rolled over paper tubes made by rolling squares of newspapers for the purpose. The tubes should be as large around as a cigar, so the hair, when unwound, is natural looking in wavy effect. Join the paper ends together with a small safety pin. The paper absorbs all moisture and the hair curls readily in this simple manner.

The Proper Carriage.

When the body is held correctly in a standing position, the main weight is one the balls of the feet, not on the heels or the toes. The head and hands are held up well, though the latter correctly are confounded with throwing the chin out. I have seen some women thrust their chins forward evidently believing they were holding their heads well. This is an error, for holding the head correctly draws in the chin a trifle, without allowing it to droop.

When Cleaning With Gasoline.

Too many persons tell of their failure in gasoline washing. In nine cases out of ten the reason is that too little gasoline is used. If you wash with water, you usually take a good basinful or pailful, but, when you wish with gasoline, you are apt to put a cupful into a generous sized pail. This, of course, is just enough to stir up the dirt and distribute it in a gray tone all over the lace, gloves or what not to be cleaned. Take a generous bowlful of gasoline and wash your gloves, laces, veils, neckwear, ribbons and silken accessories. Rinse them in plenty of clean gasoline. After using, if you will let the gasoline stand for a few moments, all the dirt will settle, and you can carefully pour off the clean gasoline to use at another operation. To clean gloves, put them on the hands and scrub with a little brush, afterward rinsing them like a pocket handkerchief.

Silk washed in gasoline loses none of its dressing; feathers lose none of their curl; plaitings stay plaited. Never, of course, use gasoline in a room where there is a burning stove or where the gas is lighted.

HOUSE OF LITTLE NELL.

Where Dickens Conceived His Famous Story.

The announcement that the house in Bath where, in 1840, Charles Dickens first conceived the idea of his immortal Little Nell in "The Old Curiosity Shop" is to be "let or sold" is a fact of considerable interest to all Dickens lovers.

At the time that the novelist was first attracted to his theme by the sight of a poor little girl at Bath he and his wife, his (and Landor's) biographer, John Forster, and the painter Maclise were on a visit to Walter Savage Landor in that fair city, and the incident is thus referred to in Forster's "Life of Landor."

"It was at a celebration of his birthday in the first of his Bath lodgings, 35 St. James' Square, that the fancy which took the form of Little Nell had its origin. The Old Curiosity Shop first dawned on the genius of its creator. No character in prose fiction was a greater favorite with Landor. He thought that upon her Juliet might for a moment have turned her eyes from Romeo, and Desdemona might have taken her hairbreath escapes to heart, so interesting and so pathetic did she seem to him. And when some years later the circumstances I have named was recalled to him he broke into one of those whimsical bursts of comical extravagance out of which arose the fancy of Boythorn.

"With tremendous emphasis he confirmed the fact, and added that he had never in his life regretted anything so much as his having failed to answer the letter in which he had formed concerning it, for he meant to have purchased that house, 35 St. James' Square, and then and there to have burned it to the ground, to the end that no meaner association might ever desecrate the birthplace of Nell. Then he would pause a little, become conscious of our sense of his absurdity and break into a thundering peal of laughter."

Thus, in his somewhat ponderous fashion does John Forster tell the story. It is certainly a great pity that the novelist did not carry out his expressed wish to purchase the house in Bath; but at that time he did not think he could afford it. It seems Dickens had gone to America meanwhile, and was sojourning there when Forster's life of Landor first reached him. In allusion to the fact that he (Dickens) had himself intended to tell the story "in cold print" he wrote to John Forster from America: "I see you have sold, with what your friends would have called won-derful accuracy, the little Bath James' Square story which a certain faithless wretch (C. D.) was to have related."—Pall Mall Gazette.

FOR CLEANING WOODWORK.

A mixture of equal parts of boiled linseed oil and turpentine will renew varnished woodwork, floors and furniture, but very little of it should be used, and there should be much rubbed in until absolutely no oil is left on the surface. Otherwise the oil will catch the dust, and a dull film will soon form the varnish.

The best remedy for a dulled or whitened finish is a good hard rubbing. A little polish may be used if the case is a desperate one, but none should be left on the surface. White spots caused by heat or moisture will disappear if rubbed hard immediately with a simple polish, says Farmer's Boon.

An old-fashioned polish for renewing old mahogany and, strangely enough, recommended for polishing brass also, is the following, dating from 1777: Five ounces of butter of antimony, five ounces of white vinegar, one half pint of linseed oil, one-half pint of ale (not beer). Mix antimony with oil, then add ale, put into half-gallon demijohn and shake well with the vinegar. Use soft cloths, and shake well to mix before using.

The polish has worked miracles in restoring old mahogany.

To Save the Silk Stockings.

Every one who wears silk stockings knows how easily they wear out, and once lever girl whose needs do not fit her pocketbook has found that by knitting inside feet of silk thread she can wear them and thus protect her fragile tracery of silk. These feet are made just to cover their sole and extend only slightly over the foot, that they may be worn with slippers and yet not be seen.

The idea is good, because homemade stockings are of much better quality than are the machine-made variety, and the girl who practices the idea says that her summer hose last just five times as long as they did before she wore her home-made linings.

The Summer Riding Habit.

For summer one will select linen. Most women are wearing saddle-colored linen riding habits, though some prefer the dark blue linen. As it is customary for fair equestrians to wear the divided skirts, the patterns are made accordingly. If one clings to the old-fashioned skirt it should be ankle length, rather close fitting, though not too much so, and the left side is trimmed with a row of small buttons.

MAKING A PLAY HOUSE FOR THE CHILDREN.

Those who can afford it should build a little play house for the children. Such houses are now built on modern plans, though the yard shanty house can be built for a few dollars, and it will prove all that the little girls could wish for to enjoy the summer vacation. If the little house is built in the corner of the yard, have two large windows and a door, and also a little porch, if possible. Let the children use their own judgment in decorating it. This is half the play.

There is nothing the average child loves more than making doll clothes, and in the little house the child can cut and sew to her heart's content without bothering anyone. Many children are possessors of the miniature hand sewing machine, which costs but $4.50. They soon learn to use the machines and in this manner learn a great deal about sewing.

The only real way to keep children at home is to have the attractions there. It does not cost much expenditure to furnish a play house and often more is spent at Christmas or for birthday remembrances when the gifts are not means of lasting pleasure. The little girl is born with a desire for housekeeping and from the latest fancy she shows an inclination to have her own little home. The roomy play house in the neighborhood draws children like a magnet.

A GREAT HELP TO THE AMATEUR COOK.

Since the advent of fae pastry tube some home cooks have become quite expert in trimming their cakes and puddings. The tube is made with varieties shaped openings, by which one can produce ice cream or icings in all sorts of fancy lines, rosettes and stars.

Individual shortcakes with the cream piped around the edges become something different from slices cut from a large cake with a spoonful of cream laid on top, at least so far as the appeal to the eye is considered.

Thick boiled salad dressing and mayonnaise dressing which have been cream added can be chilled and piped upon salads, giving them a festive appearance. Sometimes the commonplace bread pudding is served with a rose of hard sauce piped upon each portion. The healthful rice pudding will appeal if it is molded while hot in small cups, allowed to stand a few minutes to take the shape and then turned upon serving plates.

If one has no pastry tube a good device is to take a sheet of letter paper and fold cornerwise, pin together and cut off one end from the small end, leaving a little opening for the cream to be pressed through. Half fill with beaten cream and press with the left hand while holding with the right. It is a little awkward at first to do this well, but skill is soon acquired.

In using any of these arrangements, whether the folded paper cornucopia or the latest patent, it is something to learn the knack of forcing the point of cream upward quickly to prevent further flow of the cream and thus disfigure whatever pattern is started.

A SENSIBLE GIRL CURES HER "NERVES."

Not long ago I was impressed by a young housemaid who appeared to be above the average chambermaid in many respects. In every respect she was ideal about her work, and I wondered by what process of her attainments and beauty was filling the niche she occupied, for I imagined she would prefer another line of work.

It was merely the case of an intelligent young woman curing her own nervousness by leaving home for a change of scene. Her mother died very suddenly, and the great shock caused the girl to be almost a nervous wreck. Too well she knew what it meant to be a nervous wreck, so she left home, went into a strange city and, being decidedly bright, she made many friends.

How many women or girls are there who take such heroic methods of overcoming the tormenting affliction? Not many. If persons run down by mental or physical work, or by too close confinement at home, would get away from the daily routine for one week it would be beneficial. When energy, ambition and everything give way for nerves, it is time to change the daily routine. How many homes where daughters do their work come to a close instant at doing the work is changed to keep one from continued work of one kind.

REV. DR. RICHARDS TALKS TO A CHURCH BIBLE CLASS.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church brought its year to a close last night, when Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, former pastor and now of the Bell Brick Presbyterian church, New York, addressed the society.

During the past five weeks the association has devoted itself to Bible study. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie has conducted a class in the study of John's First Epistle and Miss Harriet Goodhue has had a class of the younger members of the association who has made a study of certain important characters in the Old Testament.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 14, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How to choose a life work.—I Kings iii. 5-15.

The choice of a life work is a subject of the greatest importance and oftimes one of great perplexity and anxiety. It is often settled for us by the choice of our fathers before us. Multitudes of boys follow the profession, business or trade of their fathers, and to them the question has no concern. But the lad who stands upon the threshold of life, about to choose his life work, faces one of the great crucial moments of his career. That choice will have a tremendous influence upon his life. It will largely decide whether his life itself shall be a failure or a success. It requires, therefore, the most serious and prayerful consideration.

What, then, are some of the elements that should enter into the determination of this choice.

1. God should be consulted. Parents and friends are deeply interested. They will give advice and make suggestions, but God must not be left out of consideration. In prayer we should ask Him to guide us, nor should we ever think for a moment of engaging in a work that would be displeasing to God or that in any sense should be unstable or dishonorable. Our supreme business in life is "the King's business," and our life work should help us rather than hinder us in the service of God. William Carey, "the consecrated cobbler," once said, "My business is preaching the gospel, but I cobble shoes to pay expenses."

2. Natural inclinations should be an important factor in deciding our life work. Unless we do that in which we find real pleasure and joy, the work of life will be sadly irksome, and an almost unendurable burden. A man who had made a great success in his chosen pursuit once said, "My work is my play." It was so congenial to him that working was like playing. And just here it would be well to remember that no honest work in life is to be despised. If our inclinations do not lead us to choose a learned profession or a distinguished career, this should not influence us in our choice. The nobility of work depends upon the worker and not upon the work. The most humble work may be glorified by the dignity of the man performing it, and the most exalted labor may be debased by the character of the one engaged in it. Jesus was a carpenter and placed a halo about His trade. Pontius Pilate wore the purple robe, but disgraced it by cowardice and injustice. Better a carpenter plus manhood than a king minus it. But, on the other hand, if one of the higher professions or careers appeal to us, no matter what difficulties may seem to be in the way, we should courageously choose it. If willing to deny ourselves to attain an end in life, it can usually be attained. In placing a strong intention in our hearts for a certain life work God has called us to it, and He will help us to attain to it.

3. Natural ability should be an important factor in deciding our life work. What we can do should be most influential in our choice. Youth has its dreams. It builds its air castles, but in the light of ability many of these must fade away, and yet many not appreciating their limitations "rush in where angels fear to tread." The Pencil Tribe are numerous in all professions and business pursuits. Over a millinery store in Philadelphia is a sign that reads, "Miss Flit, Milliner." There are many misfit milliners in more than name only and misfits in all occupations. Parents often direct their children to callings for which they are not qualified. Many a good farmer has been spoiled to make a poor preacher. But saddest of all misfits in life are those where circumstances have forced men of real ability into a life work totally unfit for them. In many mills and factories, doing purely mechanical labor which to them is drudgery, are men of real genius and ability—artists plunging bars of iron into blast furnaces, architects blowing melted glass into various wares, men capable of wearing the destinies of others for good, quietly watching the weaver's shuttle as it adds a new thread to the texture being woven. Here are some of the real tragedies of life. And who can tell on this dreaming of what might have been, is it any wonder that others sometimes cry out against their fates and even against civilization and, as a drowning man catches at a straw, fly to socialism, and even worse, with the vain hope of finding relief? But patience should be their watchword. God moves slowly sometimes, but He moves, and a brighter day is surely dawning for the toilers in our land.

Whatever your life work be, do it well, to the best of your ability. If you seem to have made a mistake in your choice, spend not the days in vain regrets. Whatever your work, do it unto God and not unto men, and when He takes the final records of life the great question will be not what was our life work, but how did we do it.

Need in India.

C. V. Vickrey, the popular secretary of the Young People's missionary movement, has been visiting India, and in India Christian Endeavor he gives his impressions regarding our society work in that empire. Among other things he says: "If I were to indulge in comparison I should be tempted to say that, important as is the work of Christian Endeavor in the home land, it is even more important in India, where the need for Christian work in all forms is most urgent."

THE MERCY OF THE KING

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

By EDWARD F. ROBERTS

"The Comte de Sevres is the man."

The speaker, a sinister-looking man, whose thin figure was attired from head to foot in black, leaned across the table he spoke and directed a probing look at his companion, who was partially concealed in the shadow.

At the other's words, however, he started violently forward.

"Ventresaintgris," he exclaimed; "it is impossible."

The oath, the rugged face with its great hawk nose and bold black eyes alike proclaimed Henry IV., yesterday of Navarre, to-day of France.

With characteristic vehemence the king continued:

"You grow old and foolish, Caduc. By the splendor of God, I would wager my head on the faith of de Sevres."

The celebrated astrologer and secret agent whom the king addressed remained unmoved at this outburst, and when his master had paused he resumed.

"It is, nevertheless, the truth, sire. De Sevres is, as you know, in love with Mlle. de Longchamps, the daughter of the man who hates you most in all France. It is she who has seduced him. At her father's bidding she has given him a powder which I prepared. De Sevres will serve your wine at the banquet to-night. He will put the powder in your cup, and if it was what they think it the house of Navarre would then end."

The king shuddered and turned pale as the suggestion of poison, a fear which shadowed the life of a warrior famous for his reckless courage on the battlefield. He strode hastily up and down the apartment before he spoke again.

"Caduc," he said, "the Comte de Sevres is a Catholic, and in my court has many enemies. Look to it that you are not one. Sangdieu, if you are you will hang for it. Say nothing and do nothing. I shall settle this matter myself."

The astrologer rose, bowed silently and passed out of the room with a curious noiseless step. At the door he almost collided with a young man who entered the room without knocking, taking advantage of that lack of ceremony natural in first of the Bourbons loved to affect among his intimates.

Henri started slightly when he saw the newcomer, then greeted him boisterously.

"Ha! Ha! My dear count. What fair lady has kept you from your allegiance so long on this our first day in Paris, as king at last!"

The Comte de Sevres appeared somewhat confused at the king's raillery. He hesitated a moment, then said rapidly:

"In truth, sire, it was of a lady I wished to speak to you. I wish your permission to marry the Mlle. de Longchamps."

At the mention of the name Henri's face clouded. He looked long and searchingly into the face of the young courtier, then he said:

"I will give you my answer at to-morrow night's banquet."

The count started at this strange reply, but before he could say anything further the king, with a suppressed sigh as he noted the movement, extended his hand in token that the interview was ended.

The banquet with which Henry the Great celebrated his victorious entry into Paris has passed into history. Its gorgeous barbarism far surpassed anything before attempted at a court famous throughout Europe for its riotous extravagance. Throughout the city great fires had been lighted at the cross streets and whole oxen and sheep roasted for the benefit of the burghers, while tons of wine broached at every corner sent a drunken and fickle populace uproarious with the praises of their new sovereign.

In the royal banquet room the envoy of Elizabeth of England had just concluded a long-winded greeting, couched in sonorous Latin, about one word in ten of which the king understood. As the envoy concluded, Henri, with that rude and simple good nature with which he had baffled so often the most skilled diplomatists, shouted:

"Ho, a cup to the health of our sister of England." He motioned to the Comte de Sevres, who stood at his elbow, and who turned to pour out the wine. As he did so the king fixed his eye on the further end of the room. As he watched, suddenly, and, the king thought, for the will was agitated and a hand shot out with a warning gesture.

At the sight, the king sprang from his chair and turned fiercely on the Comte de Sevres, drawing his sword as he did so.

"Assassin and traitor," he shouted, "down on your knees!"

The young count, pale as death, dropped on his knees before the king. In his hand he still clutched mechanically the cup of wine.

Henri, whose violent temper had completely mastered him, seemed for an instant about to run his sword through the kneeling man. He checked himself, however, and turned with a gesture to the astonished courtiers.

"Gentlemen," he said in a tone of suppressed passion, "this puppet that I have made has this night attempted to assassinate me. What is your verdict?"

A confused murmur of astonishment and incredulity ran through the hall, breaking suddenly into a tremendous babel of shouts, above which rose ever clearer and louder the ominous cry:

"Death on the wretch!"

Suddenly into the midst of this tumult swept a woman, radiantly fair, but with a look of terror and despair distorting her features. She made her way rapidly to where the king was standing and throwing herself on her knees before him cried:

"Mercy, sire, mercy! It is I who am the guilty one."

Henri, ever master of men and slave of women, softened perceptibly as his eye fell on the beautiful girl.

"Sdeath," he muttered, "so you would poison me!"

At the word poison the Comte de Sevres, who up to this had appeared dazed, gave a convulsive start, but before he could speak the girl continued:

"I never knew it was poison, sire. I was told it was a charm to save your grace from the stain of heresy and bring peace to our unhappy land. I learned the truth too late."

The king smiled enigmatically, then he said;

"Ventresaintgris. Since it is merely a charm the comte will surely not object to drink it."

In a dead silence the comte, a flush spreading over his pale features, rose to his feet and holding aloft the wine cup, which through the whole scene had never relinquished, he cried:

"God save the king!" Then he drained the cup.

The girl who had watched her lover, motionless with horror, now sprang to her feet and drawing a dagger from beneath her cloak raised it aloft with a bitter cry.

"I, too, too!"

But quick as she was the king was quicker. Seizing her wrist he twisted the dagger from her grasp, and then to the amazement of the courtiers who had watched the near tragedy in silent fascination, burst into a great roar of laughter. Still holding the girl's hand he took the unresisting hand of the count and placing the two together said:

"I forgive your strange method of conversion, my dear comte. Take your bride, but learn in future," and his eye grew stern, "that kings are not to be played with."

TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN GIRL.

Well-Intentioned Rhapsody That Hardly Does Subject Justice.

We like poetry, we do, a whole lot. Whether it comes in the form of rhythmic verse or mellifluous prose, it hits us in a tender place. That is why we feel good thrills coming over us when we find the Oklahoma State Capital quoting some one as saying that "when God made the American girl, He sent His angel messengers throughout all the star-strewn realism of space to gather all there was of beauty and brightness, of enchantment, of glamour. When those angels had gathered in their treasures of beauty and threw down their glittering burden at His feet He began, in their wonderful presence, the fashioning of the American girl. He wrought with the gold and the gleam of the stars, shifting light of the rainbow hues, and the pallid silver of the moon. He wrought with the crimson which swooned in the rose's rubied heart, with the pure sweet snow which gleams from the lilies' petals and the fire of the opal which flash and leap from jewel's depth. Then glancing deep into His own bosom He took of the love which gleamed there like some rare pearl beneath the wind-kissed waves of a summer sea, thrilled like the forms He was fashioning, and all heaven and earth rejoiced, for lo! He had wrought the American girl." Yum, yum, also b'gosh.—Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

HAD WITNESSES IN PLENTY.

Whole Troop Rallied to Defense of Beloved Captain.

A story is told concerning a captain of cavalry in the old army days who was inclined to gaze too long on the flowing bowl. He finally came to grief and was placed under arrest, charged with drunkenness. The judge advocate who was sent to conduct the court-martial was fond of the blunt old soldier, and in his heart hoped that he might be able to clear himself.

On the day of the trial the two, defendant and prosecutor, were talking.

"They have me at last," said the captain, "I do not see how I can clear myself."

"Have you no witnesses?" asked the judge advocate.

"None," replied the despondent officer.

"Suppose we call your first sergeant and ask him."

The first sergeant was duly called.

"Have I any witnesses?" asked the captain. The old Irishman was quite certain that the captain did have witnesses, and was dismissed with orders to bring the witnesses equipped with side arms, to the captain's tent in a half hour. At the time appointed the sergeant stepped into the room, saluted, and reported: "Sor, the troop is ready to be sworn."

Loss of Life Increased.

In 1905 fiscal year, according to the annual report of United States Supervising General Usher, with a total of 5,000,000 passengers carried on waters coming under the United States steamboat inspection service, only one life was lost out of every 2,200,428. In 1906 fiscal year, owing to the stranding of the steamer Valencia on Vancouver island, with a loss of 121 lives, and the unprecedented number of casualties on Lake Superior that year, the loss of life was increased to one out of every 1,796,000 people carried.

TO DRESS WELL ON A SCANTY ALLOWANCE.

The secret of the well-dressed woman, who often spends less on her wardrobe than her dowdily clad sister, has suddenly been revealed. It lies in very slightly altering the way of wearing a gown or hat each time it is put on.

A dressmaker explained how these trifling changes are effected.

"The woman who aspires to be smart and has not a large dress allowance," she said, "makes a special study of novel details, which alter the appearance of a frock or hat.

"As an example, I must site an order we recently received for a gown.

"It has been made of the new suede brown cotienne, with a plain skirt, and a kimono bodice. We have provided a hat in brown straw to match. This costume can appear under six different guises.

"In the first place the bodice can be worn over an inner vest of burnt orange crepe de chine, powdered with gold spots, and the hat will be trimmed with a wallflower.

"The orange waistcoat can be removed when a change of costume is required, and replaced by a frilly vest and sleeves of spotted net, while bands of peacock blue embroidery will be hooked on the bodice, and the wallflower on the hat replaced by a cluster of peacock's feathers.

"Costume number three will show a waistcoat of floral silk, patterned in bunches of violets, and the brilliant straps of embroidery have been replaced by bands of sober brown velvet. The hat will be trimmed with a large market bunch of purple violets.

"The fourth costume can be carried out by wearing a suede brown chiffon blouse under the kimono bodice, and a bunch of scarlet quills in the hat, to match the cross scarlet velvet tie; the sixth by substituting a blouse of sky blue crepe de chine, embroidered with bronze daisies, and arranging a trail of bronze daisies and forget-me-nots on the hat."

The home dressmaker may take hints from this, and deceive her friends completely as to the extent of her wardrobe.

The Ideal Hand.

The palm plump, but not pincushiony.

The fingers long and tapering.

Slender but not scrawny in shape.

Wrist rounding and delicate and wristbone hidden.

The fingers rounding and not thick at the base.

Nails transparent, small and oval, with a decided half-moon.

Movements of the hand graceful and the palm flexible.

Skin firm, white and smooth, with veins showing but slightly.

Knuckles inconspicuous and the line of the fingers almost straight, without prominent middle joints.

The fingers not thick and compact, but with each one separated from the other, with the little finger curving slightly.

Touching Gratitude.

"Don't tell me" said the resident surgeon, "that the poor are ungrateful. We have daily proof here of the gartitude of the poor.

"Time and time again it happens, after we have relieved a cancer from the face of some old washerwoman, or assuaged the insomina of a white-bearded watchman, that the patient says:

"'I'm to poor to do much for your hospital, sir, but I'll tell you what I will do—I'll leave directions when I die for my corpse to be given you for dissection.'

"Yes, that happens often," said the surgeon, "and many a free specimen reaches our dissecting room that way."

A Simple Cleaning Process.

Many of us embroider linen or lawn with white or lines center pieces and doilies, for our friends. Many of us too, though naturally neat, will find our work soiled before it is finished. But if one desires to make up the material or give it to a friend without washing it may be made perfectly clean by sprinkling thickly with French chalk and rolling up for a few days. The chalk may then be easily shaken out, and an immaculate gift presented without destroying the original finish to the fabric.—Harper's Bazar.

Washing the Hair Brush.

A hair brush can be easily and quickly washed, as nothing is needed but some warm water and a small piece of soda. Dissolve the soda in the water and then dab the bristle part of the hair brush into the water three or four times, or until it is clean. Rinse the brush well in cold water and wipe it as dry as possible. Then set it to finish drying in a window where the wind will blow in on it if possible.

AMAZON MOTHERS.

Peculiar Custom of Half Burying Babies in Sand.

An English officer who has been on many exploring trips through South America told recently of a surprising scene he had witnessed for in the interior of the Amazon country.

"I had come to a point," he said, "where my food supply was dead or sick. I needed help to push on to my goal. An Amazon village was near, and to this I repaired.

"Not a man was at home. The village was in charge of the women—tall, bronze colored, handsome females—each with one or two babies at her heels. They were jolly babies, if born in slavery. They laughed up in your face, and they were clean, because they did not wear clothes and were taught to live in the water as much as on the land.

"I made the women understand that I wished to be guided over ten miles more of the stream, and four of them volunteered to do the work for me for the equivalent of $2 in our money. I accepted.

"Then came the funny things about their babies. Each woman had two. They scooped out holes in the sand in the shade and set the babies in them. Then they heaped sand about them until it rose to their armpits. They heads, arms and hands were free. I inquired if the babies could not die their way out. My informant said they would not try to. They would play with the sand about them until they were asleep, but would not attempt to get away.

"The women guided us well and when we were safe, with a wave of their hands, plunged into the bush and started on a dog trot for their village. I have seen babies roped up, caged and harnessed to keep them in bounds, but that was the first time I ever saw them planted."

JERSEY COAST TO BE "DRY."

Monmouth's Prosecutor Says He'll Allow No Liquor Selling on Sunday.

Hotel men in prohibition Asbury Park and the owners of licensed resorts throughout Monmouth County are worried over an open letter issued by Prosecutor of the Pleas Henry M. Nevius, in which he says that detectives connected with his office will see to it that the so-called Bishops' law, forbidding the sale of liquor on Sunday, will be enforced to the letter this summer in Monmouth County.

At the same time the Prosecutor calls upon the Mayors, Chiefs of Police, and other officials in the Monmouth County municipalities to see to it that the Sunday closing law is observed. If necessary, however, he will be down in person to confer with officials and send his detectives to obtain evidence to convict violators of the law.

The enforcement of the Bishops' law, it is declared, will be a serious financial loss to many of the resort owners, who depend largely on the patronage or Sunday motor car parties.

The Centenary of the Waltz.

It is said in Paris that this year of grace 1908 marks, among other anniversaries of more or less interest, that of the valse, or waltz. A certain M de Treis, "the irresistible Treis," as he was often called, is credited with the introduction of the waltz, having for his partner a beautiful creole named Hamelin.

After stately minuets and solemn quadrilles everybody climbed on the chairs and tables to see this pair perform, and when it was over Treis could define the art as "requiring the amalgamation of two dancers who ought to flow over the floor like over polished marble."

It seems, however, to have been some time before society took to waltzing, both men and women parsons being somewhat shy of an exhibition which was apt to end in a disaster, such as that which happened at Mme. Recamier's when an impetuous novice upset a chiffonier covered with priceless porcelain.

Poor M. de Treis himself was never destined to see his invention popularized. He had turned so often and so swiftly in the mazes of his waltz that he lost his brain.

To Clean Cut Steel.

If a cut steel buckle or ornament has become tarnished or rusty, it can be cleaned at home. Smear it with olive oil, a feather being the best thing to apply the oil with. After letting the buckle tand two or three days, wipe it carefully with a piece of soft flannel and polish with powdered pumice stone.

Threats.

I consider it an ark of great prudence in a man to abstain from threats or any contemptuous expressions, for whether these weaken the enemy, but threats make him more cautious, and the other excites his hatred and a desire to revenge himself.—Machiavelli.

To wash the little silk and wool shirts for baby or the tiny white stockings, is not a difficult task. Use cold water in which some borax has been dissolved, and the garments not only will not shrink but will never grow yellow.

FARM WORK BEHIND TIME BECAUSE OF RAINY MAY.

New Jersey farmers are much concerned over the weather prospects. The superabundance of rain which fell during May had the effect of greatly retarding work on the farms, and if June should be the wettest month ever done to all kind of crops. Discussing the situation, Franklin Dye, of Trenton, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, said:

"If this wet weather keeps up much longer the conditions will be much the same as in Pennsylvania. As it is, very little corn has been planted, although ordinarily corn planting begins about May 1 in South Jersey and is finished by June 1, even in the northern end of the State. The planting this year will be very late, which the corresponding danger that early frosts may nip the crop before it ripens. In many cases even where the ground has been prepared the work will have to be done over again, because the earth has been so thoroughly soaked with rain that it is likely to cake when it dries out again.

"Potatoes are planted and are not damaged, but they will not stand for much more wet weather. The hay crop will be benefited rather than harmed by the prolongedance of rain. Grass, however, is so watery that the farmers have had to feed their cows on meal longer than usual this spring. Garden truck and small fruits have been retarded by the wet weather."

Culinary Hints.

In preparing stuffing for game of any kind, always add a little ground ginger; this imparts a fine flavor and makes the seasoning digestible.

Always hang meat from hooks in the larder, never lay it on dishes. Wrap bacon and ham in greased paper, and keep it in the same way.

The hot plate on the kitchen stove may be cracked when very hot by cold water being upset on it when a heavy boiling pan is placed on the stove.

Stained enameled saucepans should be rubbed with sand and a lemon pulp, and not cleaned with boiling soda water. After squeezing lemons, save the pulp for this purpose.

To keep cake from sticking to baking pans, after greasing pans well sift in some flour, shake the pan so that the flour will get allover grease, and then turn out what does not stick to the pan and put in your batter.

Relative Submergence.

"My poor man, you look as if you might have seen better days."

"You are right, ma'am, I have."

"And now, I suppose, you are among what we call the submerged tenth."

"Worse than that, ma'am. I am an infinitesimal fraction of the submerged thousandth of the submerged tenth. My present occupation is stoking on an ocean steamer."—Chicago Tribune.

WERE YOU BORN IN THE MONTH OF JUNE

Were you born in this, the sweet, frafrant rose-month of the year? June promises much to her children.

The name June comes from Junius, which is supposed by some to have been derived from Juno, and by others of the Romans, and originally had but twenty-six days. Romulus added four. The Emperor Numa took one away, which was afterward again added by Julius Caesar.

The zodiacal sign for June is Cancer, meaning the crab, into which sign the sun moves from the twenty-first to the end of the month. The sun, however, is in Gemini, meaning the twins, from the first to the twenty-first. Both signs are said to influence you.

If your birthday occurs between the first and the twenty-first you will be rivaled, quick and restless, fascinated with fashion and love, but rather pessimistic and you will be interested in literature and art.

If born on or after the twenty-first you will be exceedingly sympathetic and emotional; you will have a strong love for education and science and a special aptitude for domestic life. You will be musical, sensitive, and will be much influenced by the physical or mental condition of those dearest to you.

June's birthstone is the agate, which signifies health, wealth and long life. The June maiden may commit to memory these lines:

"Who comes with summer to this earth,
And owes to June her hour of birth,
With ring of agate on her hand,
Can health, wealth and long life command."

The June flower is the honeysuckle which means devoted love; the coral variety signifies fidelity.

There are four unlucky days in June; the fourth, eighth, tenth and fifteenth—the first two are considered especially unlucky for any important undertaking.

June is the favorite marriage month, for the old couplet says:

"Married in the month of roses bloom
Life will be one long, sweet tune."

The second of June is, however, said to be quite unfit for marriage. A bride will do well if she choose one of the following dates for her wedding day: The first, third, nineteenth and twenty-first.

A quaint old proverb says of June weather:

and another:

"If on the eighth of June it rain,
It fortells a wet harvest, men sain."

PASS BOND ORDINANCE OVER THE MAYOR'S VETO

By 6 to 3 Vote, City Fathers Decide to Raise Money to Macadamize Streets.

P. P. A. MAKES A PROTEST.

Many Leading Citizens Uphold the Mayor for Reasons Given in His Message—A Lively Argument.

Notwithstanding the veto of Mayor C. J. Fisk and the vigorous opposition of the Plainfield Protective Association and many large taxpayers, the ordinance providing for an issue of $17,000 worth of street improvement bonds, was passed by the Common Council at the adjourned meeting, Monday, by a vote of 6 to 3. This action was not taken, however, until after a free and full discussion, in which various members of the Common Council and R. Henry Depew, president of the P. P. A., had a part. N. H. Saxton, of the west end, urged that the ordinance be passed, that the property-owners on his section were anxious for the improvement and ready to pay their share for the work.

When the time arrived to take up the matter, by a unanimous vote Mr. Gloak's motion that the ordinance be considered was adopted. After the discussion, those who voted to adopt the ordinance were Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Suydam and President Tolles, while those who opposed it were Councilmen Hall, Mygatt and Taylor.

The matter was brought before the Common Council when Mr. Gloak moved that the members direct the objections to the ordinance entered upon the minutes and proceed to consider the ordinance. At his suggestion the Mayor's veto was read aloud. He then made another motion that the ordinance be adopted on third reading, notwithstanding the Mayor's veto. This was not seconded at the time. Mr. Mygatt accepting the opportunity to extend the privileges of the floor to anyone present in the lobby. Mr. Buxton objected, explaining that the ordinance had been carefully prepared by the corporation counsel, adopted on two readings, and when a public hearing was granted no one appeared to speak for or against it. He thought the time had passed for a public hearing.

Explaining his position Mr. Montgomery said that in looking over the long list of names of persons who sustained the veto he had noticed that only one person, Archibald McInnes, lived on a street that was not macadamized. All of the other signers resided on macadamized streets and therefore cared little about those who do not have the improvements. He expressed himself strongly in favor of the ordinance.

Recalling Mayor Fisk's message early in the year, Mr. Gloak emphasized that part referring to his recommendation that all streets intending to be macadamized be acted on early so that there would be no delay as in previous years. The ordinance had been discussed carefully and thoroughly and all were satisfied to have it go through as shown by the ten votes cast for the ordinance on the first and second readings.

Mr. Gloak declared that the Mayor had had a change of heart, which he had a perfect right to undergo, but he held that he had just as much right to urge the passage and vote for the ordinance because he thought it was right.

The question of children walking to school in the west end through muddy streets and walks that are not flagged was forcibly presented by Mr. Suydam. In some cases he held that it was impossible for small children to go to school on some days. He had talked with the Mayor about it and was informed that this was a matter for the street committee men to consider, and it was up to them to get busy. He contended that every west end improvement is objected to. The people in that part of the town pay taxes on the sewer bonds, yet they have no sewers, they pay school tax and yet they have no school accommodations, they pay for street improvements in every other part of the city, including the brick pavement and yet they themselves are obliged to get along with unimproved streets and walks that are an eyesore.

At this point the privileges of the floor was extended to Mr. Depew, who made a strong presentation of facts against the adoption of the ordinance. In the first place he held that the returned postal cards protesting against the intended action represented all quarters of the city and not any one section. He maintained that in some cases only twenty and thirty per cent. of the property-owners had petitioned for the macadamizing.

"The taxpayers today are seriously considering the question of bond issues," continued Mr. Depew. "In the past, the city has been quite free from such indebtedness, but I realize that this cannot continue. Bonds must be issued if we are to have improvements, but unless great care is exercised the city indebtedness will be increased from $300,000 to $600,000. We previously paid a tax rate of $2.48 on a fifty per cent. valuation, and last year the rate was $1.46 on a one hundred per cent. valuation, which equals $2.92 on the fifty per cent. basis. We are told that the tax this year from the railroads will cause a low tax rate, but the two or three point drop will be increased forty-six points at the present rate of indebtedness.

"The people of the city are always ready for reasonable improvements, but they do not want a big bond issue or high tax rate. It is a mistake to pass a blanket ordinance, when only a few people want an improvement. Plainfield has always had the reputation of being well governed by men who have been careful, but this cannot be guaranteed for the future and the Common Council should not establish a bad precedent, which in years to come will be brought up against us. It is infinitely better for the people to suffer a little inconvenience for awhile than to pile up a big bonded indebtedness that will become a burden."

In stating his position, which was in favor of the ordinance, Charles C. Randolph explained that on many occasions streets not petitioned for had been macadamized, and they were in the Netherwood district, too. He agreed with the idea of spreading bond issues, but he added when the Common Council wanted to issue $30,000 worth of bonds for the new police station not one word of objection was raised.

Before going to go over the West End with any member of the Plainfield Protective Association or any one else and prove to him that the improvements in that part of the city are needed," continued Mr. Randolph, "little children are now being obliged to go to school through mud and slush until they are tired of it. In sending out postal cards urging people to protest against the ordinance no opportunity was given them to express a favorable opinion, neither were they asked to do so."

Again speaking on the subject Mr. Montgomery stated that the petitions containing 170 names represented a population of 20,000, and again he emphasized the fact that not one lot of the petitioners lives on macadamized thoroughfares. He did not believe that it would be legal to require the property-owners to pay their share of the street improvement in advance, as had been suggested.

Mr. Buxton, who favored the ordinance, said that he had made a personal canvass and out of sixty-four property-owners interviewed by him in the Fourth ward, only one objected to the ordinance. That one was a woman who said that if her street was macadamized it would make it a thoroughfare for automobiles and she did not like "the pesky things." Out of the 160 names on one petition he learned that ten live in his ward.

In stating his objections to the proposed improvements, Mr. Taylor said that there were not many that happened to be in the Fourth ward, but because so few had petitioned for them. He did not consider the work to be of public benefit. Mr. Hall shared Mr. Taylor's views, adding that as servants of the people they had not the right to spend their money except as they directed. He opposed the ordinance because of the protests against its adoption.

Mr. Mygatt took the position that those who had signed the petitions protesting against the adoption of the ordinance, in some cases own property in front of the city and have a right to be heard. He admitted that the arguments of Former Councilman G. P. Mellick in a letter published in The Daily Press had had much to do with forming his opinion for he realized that Mr. Mellick had had considerable experience in city affairs and knew whereof he spoke. He also stated that Mayor Fisk's opinions should be considered as coming from a man who has had a wide knowledge and experience in such matters. He likewise mentioned the names of John B. Dumont, O. T. Waring and others, who had opposed the bond issue. He added that it is a time when every one is retrenching in expenses and he did not think the Common Council ought to expend $17,000 for such an improvement just now. It should weigh carefully the arguments of Mayor Fisk and others. He was sorry that West Eighth street was included in the ordinance for he would like to see that street macadamized to the city line and he would like to have it so arranged that the work could be done at once and paid for without any delay. In reply Mr. Montgomery said that it must be understood that the property-owners pay two-thirds of the cost and the city one-third, and that by the time the cost is to be paid, four or five years from now everyone may be on the wave of prosperity.

President Tolles also spoke in favor of the ordinance, saying that it had been carefully considered and all had previously agreed to the improvement. He believed that when the work was completed all would be pleased and that the cost would not prove a burden. He had understood that Mayor Fisk concurred in the proposed action and believed that he did until a recent change of heart. In reply to a question as to how many postal cards had been sent out by the Plainfield Protective Association, Mr. Depew said that 1,000 had been used, from which there were 152 replies.

"When Mr. Mellick was a member of the Common Council," said Mr. Gloak, "we talked about a new police station, but he did not object then to an issue of bonds. I think everyone who opposes the ordinance is only thinking of the city will have to pay about $6,000 of the $17,000 and from the way some people talk one would think the city was going to the dogs right away."

This concluded the argument and Mr. Gloak called for a vote, with the result as stated. Among those in the lobby during the discussion were G. W. V. Moy, W. S. Anglemon, Mansfield Smith and John Dietrich, but they took no part in the debate. Mayor Fisk was an interested listener, but he refrained from giving any opinions.

CITY HIGH BEATS PINGRY

Thirteen Errors Lost Commencement Game for the Elizabeth Boys, 8-3.

SPECIAL CAR FOR ROOTERS.

Half a Hundred P. H. S. Pupils Cheered the Local Nine on Pingry Field—Snyder's Good Work.

Heeled to Elizabeth by half a hundred pupil rooters, in a special trolley car, the Plainfield High School baseball team trimmed the strong Pingry nine in their commencement ball game at Pingry Field Monday afternoon. The score was 8-3 and the Elizabeth schoolboys lost the game by making thirteen errors.

The special car left the local stand at 2:30 in charge of Motorman Walsh and Conductor Roberts. There were fifty-one pupils on board and the trip was enlivened by cheering and singing. The rooters occupied seats on the stand together and gave lots of vocal support to the nine.

The first inning was a bad one for Plainfield. Two of the four hits off *VanZandt were secured by the Pin*gry batters in this session, and these with a couple of errors netted two runs. In the second, however, the local boys tied the score, Murphey and Snyder coming home on some loose playing in the field. After that Pingry began to make errors regularly and Plainfield had no trouble scoring. Some careless handling of the ball in the sixth let Pingry score the third and last run.

*VanZandt pitched steady ball ex*cept for part of the first, and was generally given good support. Snyder excelled for the local nine, scoring four runs out of five times at bat. He got the longest hit of the game in the eighth, sending the ball over the right field fence for two bags. In the field, he took eight chances without an error. The score:

Juniors' Annual Picnic.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church enjoyed its annual picnic at Chimney Rock, Saturday. The party comprising thirty-three little folks was chaperoned by Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich. The trip was made part the way by trolley, leaving only a short distance to walk. The day was spent playing games, on the swings and in various ways of amusement, and at noon all enjoyed the refreshments provided. The return journey was made late in the afternoon.

Caught a Large Catfish.

One of the largest specimens of a catfish seen in this section of New Jersey was caught Saturday night by William H. Hand, lock-tender at Bound Brook. It was caught in the Raritan Canal with an ordinary hook and line, the hook being number one size. The fish measured twenty-four inches in length, five inches across the head and weighed six pounds.

SEMINARY GRADUATES FIVE

MUSICAL PROGRAM RENDERED.

Four Graduates Will Enter Wellesley and One Will Matriculate at Smith—Miss Arnold Presents Sheepskins.

The exercises attending the graduation of five young girls at the Plainfield Seminary Tuesday, were full of interest and delight to the large number of guests who filled Seminary Hall. The decorations of the hall were beautiful, the white columns being twined with red roses producing a truly Dresden effect.

Miss Kenyon introduced the speaker of the day, J. T. Croswell, the head master of the Briarley School, New York, who, from a large experience in teaching girls spoke many words of wisdom to the graduating class. In opening, he said, three miracles had been wrought in Plainfield this morning. The first was the miracle of dawn, the second the miracle of spring and the third the miracle of girlhood changed into womanhood. In the latter miracle, he said, all the universe, their own nature, time and religion were helpers.

In leaving the formal culture of the school and its criticisms, he urged on the class the culture that meant growing up, avoiding the follies of youth as well as the follies of age and seeking the wise counsel of men and books. He gave the class on old Greek proverb, "The safest road that goes up is the same road that goes down." He said the paths to right and wrong were not merely diverging roads but they were roads up and down. In choosing their paths in life, they would either go up and stay or down and down. Culture he said was choosing daily the best things, the best books the best plays, the best in themselves and the universe.

Miss Henry, from New York, rendered with fine expression and grace on the violin the following numbers: Rhapsodie Hongroise, Hauser; Humoresque, Dvorak. She was accompanied by Mrs. Samuel Van Buren.

The presentation of diplomas was made by Miss Arnold, principal of the school, who, in congratulating the class on the completion of their course of study, hoped that the five girls graduating today might be five women brave enough to meet the duties of their lives cheerfully, hopefully and faithfully.

Mrs. Arnold said the Declaration of Independence gave to man the inalienable right to the pursuit of happiness. She believed man's right was the possession of happiness, not the pursuit, and she wished the class that possession of happiness that came, not in its pursuit, but in the performance of duty well done.

Of the graduating class, Misses Marion Streeter Brown, Bernerite Carpenter the class president, Janet Louise Millar, Marguerite Siementhal Ostrom, and Susanne Clifton Wharton, will go to Wellesley College and Miss Grown to Smith College.

The opening and closing features of the program were songs very sweetly sung by Misses Dorothy Hoar, Frances Hyde, Elisabeth McGee, Jean Saunder and Susanne Wharton. They were accompanied by Miss West.

All the class rooms and the gymnasium were opened to visitors. In *the latter was the work of the draw*ing class, many specimens of drawing from life and casts as well as water colors being shown.

The relief maps made by pupils in the geography and history classes were most interesting, as was the work of the literature class also.

MISS MARCUS WINS IN STATE TENNIS FINALS

Defeating Miss Edna Wildey, of the Plainfield Country Club, in the final round of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis tournament at the local club court Saturday afternoon, Miss Erra Marcus, of the Danforth Club, won the women's singles championship of the State and secured five bobbies for her club and the East Jersey trophy cup. Miss Marcus won her match in straight sets, 6—3 and 6—4.

As runner-up in the tournament, Miss Wildey won two points for the local club, and as three out of the four surviving teams in the men's doubles tournament are composed of country club players, Plainfield is sure of four points, with a possibility of nine, if a local team wins the tournament. No date has been announced for the play in semi-final and final rounds of this tournament, which was postponed Saturday on account of the Scotch Plains baseball game. Those women players who were defeated in the first round of the singles will compete in a consolation tournament at the club, but no date for the play has yet been announced. As winner of the tourney, Miss Marcus will receive a silver loving cup, as will the runner-up, Miss Wildey.

SERGEANT AGGAR'S SQUAD, SERGEANT N. H. HORT AND PRIVATE ULMER GET CUPS.

FOR SHOOTING AT THE ARMORY

Sergeant Pearsall Makes Presentations; Address by Former Lieut. Lewis and Entertainment.

Trophy cups won on the Company K armory range during the winter's contests with the rifle, were formally presented by Sergeant Pearsall, formerly quarter-master sergeant of the company at a reception held in the armory Monday night. The presentations were made in the presence of about 150 friends of the soldier boys and at the conclusion of the awards, Former Lieutenant J. M. Lewis made a short address. The "Musical Steelarts" were then introduced, with Harry Cook at the piano, and the program of entertainment which followed included numbers by William Firstbrook and Harry Holmes. A buffet luncheon was served late in the evening.

The inter-squad shooting trophy, offered by the company, was won by Quartermaster Sergeant George L. Apgar's squad, which included Corporal Philip Winter, and Privates Beetham, Hahn, Mundy, Palmer, Sharp, Van Arsdale and Winn. The names of the winning team will be inscribed on the cup. The shooting for this trophy concluded May 11, and this is the first time it has been offered.

The competition for the individual cups offered for marksmanship developed some good shooting. The Sampson trophy, offered by Walter Sampson, a former member of the company, was awarded to Sergeant N. H. Hort, who made a score of 97 out of a possible 100. Every enlisted man in the company was eligible to compete for this trophy. The Rothberg trophy, offered by Samuel Rothberg, was won by Private Oliver Ulmer, with a score of 94 out of a possible 100. This competition was only opened to privates.

The company is now in a prosperous condition. There are sixty-five men and three officers on the roster and it has been necessary to start a waiting list of candidates.

WORKING ON JOINT SEWER PROPOSITION

Promptly following the suggestions of Mayor Fisk relative to the proposed trunk sewer the plans of which include Plainfield and several surrounding towns and cities, Councilman F. E. Mygatt, chairman of the committee on public affairs, to whom the message was referred, presented a report at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last Monday.

The report recommended that copies of the Mayor's message be printed and sent to the officials of Banwood, Scotch Plains, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln, New Market, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan and New Brunswick, and that the Common Council appoint a special committee, with a view of taking up the question with similar representatives which the governing bodies in the various towns and cities will be requested to name.

It is the purpose of the committee on public affairs to arrange a conference of representatives of all the municipalities included in the proposed sewage, with a view to discussing the proposition thoroughly and carefully. It is also probable that representatives of the State Board of Health will be invited to join in the conference and give their opinion regarding the proposed improvement.

The report of the committee on public affairs was adopted and no time will be lost in taking up the matter with the interested parties.

CITY CONTRACTOR'S PLEA

Stone Company Man Tells City Fathers They Must Make an Award.

PUBLIC LIBRARY STATEMENT.

Dog Catcher Appointed — Protest Against Abuse of L. T. L. Fountain—Routine Matters.

Taking exception to Mayor Fisk's suggestion that the city do the work of macadamizing streets, instead of awarding the contract to the lowest bidder, Warren B. Travell, of the Watchung Stone Company, entered a protest at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last Monday. He quoted the law bearing on this matter to prove that the city has no legal right to do this, but that it is compelled to give the contract to the lowest bidder. The communication was referred to the committee on public affairs.

The petition of Mrs. W. G. Wright, of West Eighth street, asking for permission to move a house from its present location to 646 West Eighth street, was granted on motion of Mr. Buxton of the finance committee.

Mrs. Alvah Ten Eyck, superintendent of the Loyal Temperance Legion, protested against the abuse of the public fountain at the city park, which was placed there through the work of the children who raised the money for the object. She declared that the fountain has been defaced and broken and instead of being a benefit to man and beast is rendered useless. The matter was referred to the committee on public affairs.

The annual financial statement from the treasurer, J. Herbert Case, of the Public Library and Reading Room, was presented and referred to the finance committee. In the general fund it showed the legal receipts to be $8,186.96, disbursements, $6,302.95, and a total balance of $3,792.43, which includes a balance left over from last year.

A communication was received from the Plainfield Protective Association approving the action of Mayor Fisk in vetoing the ordinance providing for an issue of $17,000 worth of bonds for macadamizing street, and two lengthy petitions from citizens in support of Mr. Fisk's position. They were filed, and later in the evening there was a lengthy discussion of the subject.

The appointment by Mayor Fisk of Special Policeman Harry Berlowitz as dog catcher was confirmed, Mr. Montgomery alone voting no, because last year's official eating destroyer was reported to have entered a private property and removed the muzzle from a dog for the purpose of taking him to the pound. He believed that this pursuit of dogs should have some rights and he was not sure that Mr. Berlowitz would observe the rules.

Cyrus F. Boice was appointed poundkeeper by the Mayor and the appointment was confirmed. Mr. Montgomery again voting no, but in this case he gave no reasons for doing so.

A petition was received from William H. Bohl, the contractor, for permission to erect a one story cement block building on the East Fourth street to be used as a carpenter's shop, the structure to be 25x80. On motion of Mr. Buxton the building inspector was authorized to give Mr. Bohl a permit to erect the building.

Another petition, this one for $2,192.67, of C. M. Meeker, on account of the brick pavement contract, was approved on motion of Mr. Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, but payment was withheld until all liens against Mr. Meeker are satisfied or until the next time the corporation counsel shall approve payment.

PLAINS TO USE OIL TO ABATE DUST NUISANCE

Residents of Scotch Plains, in the vicinity of Park avenue and Front street, have started a subscription to have the streets sprinkled with oil, in order to abate the dust nuisance. This thoroughfare is much frequented by automobiles and the dust raised is a bane to the property owners and householders. It is stated that $100 is needed to have the street properly oiled, and although the subscription was started only last night, half of the necessary amount has already been raised.

Some time ago the property-owners made application to the township committee to remedy the dust nuisance, but nothing has been done, the committeemen claiming that the oiling of the streets would be of only local benefit. Much interest is being shown in the formation of a village improvement society and it is probable that an organization will be shortly effected.

NEW HOSPITAL GOVERNORS

Charles W. McCutchen and Louis K. Hyde Chosen to Fill Vacancies.

WM. C. KINNEY PRESIDENT.

Seven Members of Board Re-elected —Kirmess Netted $6,200.—

New Wing to be "Isolation Ward."

John M. Whiton, Edward H. Lucas, Jr., Percy H. Stewart, Harry C. Runkle, James W. DeGraff, Samuel Townsend and Henry L. Hall were re-elected as members of the board of Governors at the annual meeting held Monday, and Howard W. Beebe was also elected a member. In place of the late Rev. Eskine M. Rodman and J. Evarts Tracy, who recently resigned, the board elected Charles W. McCutchen and Louis K. Hyde as members to serve one year.

At the first meeting of the new board, which immediately followed the annual session, William C. Kinney was elected president, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., first vice-president, Henry L. Hall second vice-president, Howard W. Beebe, secretary, and Louis K. Erickson, treasurer.

The committee in charge of the recent Kirmess reported the net proceeds to be somewhat in excess of $6200. At the request of the donors of the building for the care of contagious diseases, it was decided to observe in future that structure the "Isolation Ward."

The report of the medical director for May was as follows: Patients at date of last report, 36; admitted, 64; total number treated, 100; discharged cured, 59; improved, 4; not improved, 2; died, 0; remaining, 31; hospital days, 1,204; operations, 52; three patients were received in the isolation ward for contagious diseases. In the dispensary there were 58 patients, 186 visits of patients and one operation.

St. Mary's Team Wins.

The St. Mary's baseball team opened the season Saturday by winning a decisive victory over the Harrison A. C. team by the score of 11 to 4.

A feature of the contest was the heavy hitting and fast fielding of the winning team. Games have been arranged between some of the best teams in this city and visiting and local contests are expected. The team will play Plainfield A. C., Saturday afternoon on the Clinton Avenue grounds and a fast game is promised.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night. It is expected that there will be initiation.

1908'S LAST GOOD TIME

Class Day Festivities at City High School Draw Large Audience.

NUMEROUS NOVEL FEATURES.

Final Jollification of Pupils Provides Witty Entertainment and Good Par-odies.

Final festivities of the graduates of the Plainfield High School as the class of 1908 took place at the school auditorium last night, when the Class Day exercises, novel in conception, tended to give the graduates their last informal "good time" and proved the season's most successful social function at the school. The program was arranged by a committee headed by William T. Lambert, president of the class, and the entire forty-nine graduates took part, seated on the platform. The auditorium was crowded to its utmost capacity, and alumni and friends of the pupils took part in the informal dancing which followed.

Red and white, the class colors, predominated in the decorations. Seated on the platfrom, the entire class wore the colors, the boys wearing white trousers and the girls white dresses, each pupil wore a red carnation. At the rear of the stage was a large reproduction of the class pin, electrically illuminated intermittently during the program in red and blue, the school colors.

The singing of parodies on popular songs was a feature of the musical part of the program. Music was furnished by Miss Elsie Knowlton at the piano, with a cornet obligato by Percy Mygrant. Miss M. Elizabeth Pound, acted as perentor and the entire class sang. The general scheme of the program was a farewell and when the curtain went up, it disclosed the pupils seated, each with a suit case. The first song was a parody on "Moving Day," composed by Miss Elizabeth Randall. Following this came the class history, read by Miss Randall, in which the various social and curriculum events of the four years course were summarized. The history was composed by Miss Eleanor Van Tuyl, Miss Edna Eckert and Sallo M. Kahn. In connection with this, stereopticon views of many of the incidents alluded to were shown, explained by Sallo M. Kahn.

An air of mock solemnity settled over the class as Miss M. Elizabeth Pound read the class will, abounding in school "hits," and this was followed by the song hit of the evening, "The Brilliant Class of 1908," to the tune of "I'm Afraid to go Home in the Dark." The words were by Miss Sara L. Sanderson. Class statistics followed, given by William T. Lambert. As the results of the balloting by the class for the leaders of the class in different ways was announced, Percy Mygrant passed out tickets for the awards, which were worn by the recipients.

Miss M. Elizabeth Pound and Chauncey Murphey were voted the most popular girl and boy in the class. Miss Catherine Grey and Donald Mortimer seemed to the most to be the most likely to succeed. Miss Esther Crampton and Murphey were voted the best athletes of the class, and Miss Pound received the award as "the best all-'round girl in 1908." A telescope was next produced and Miss Sanderson, peering through it, took a look into the future and to Mars at the same time, telling what each pupil was doing as seen. This caused much merriment. A parody on "Heidleberg," "Old Naught Eight," composed by Orlando Lounsbury, was then sung. The farewell message to the school followed, delivered by President Lambert. He spoke of the character-building influences of the four years' course and announced that the class was going to keep together for at least thirty years, doing all in their power to help the school and each other.

The program concluded with a song to the tune of "The Merry Widow." The pupils opened their suitcases, producing "merry-wids" of sonorous size, which they donned before singing the song. With the final chorus, the class "waltzed" off the stage. The words were by Sallo M. Kahn.

Following the program by the class there was an informal dance. Music was furnished by an orchestra of three, headed by Miss Mabel Maxson at the piano. There were twelve dances.

WILL TRY TO REFORM A WAYWARD WOMAN

Edward Kiely, of the borough, and May Willis, who has no particular abiding place, were arrested at an early hour this morning by Patrolman Saunders, who saw them enter a vacant barn on lower Central avenue. They were locked up on charges of disorderly conduct. After a hearing in the city court, Kiely was sent to jail for forty days, while the other defendant was remanded at her own request in order that she might be committed to the House of the Good Shepherd at Newark.

The Willis woman is but twenty-six years old but has frequently been arraigned before Judge Runyon for vagrancy and various offenses. She came to this city from Newark where it is said she also has a police record. The local authorities made an attempt to have her taken care of by relatives but she preferred to lead a wayward life.

P.H.S. BOYS AWARDED ATHLETIC INSIGNIA

Athletic insignia were presented to members of the various Plainfield High School clubs at the opening exercises of school this morning in connection with a meeting of the Boys' Athletic Association of the school. Marcus Dey, Benjamin Dodwell, Harry Giddes and Elmer Dodwell were presented with baseball insignia; Dey, Russell Miller and Donld Mortimer received the "P. H. S." as members of the school track team, and the letters were awarded to the managers.—Gus Nash in basketball, W. V. Rafferty, in baseball, Henry Pound, in football and C. Stanley Robins in track. The insignia were presented by Principal Ira W. Travell, of the school.

Preceeding the presentation was the termend meeting of the athletic association. This included reports from the various officers and a statement from the treasurer, showing a balance on hand. No more meetings will be held until after the opening of school in September.

The silver cup for the inter-class basketball championship of the school was awarded to the senior class team. The presentation speech was by Principal Travell and the cup was received by Henry Pound, in the absence of the captain, Walter B. Caldwell. It will be added to the school collection of trophies.

NEW BRUNSWICK EAGLES' VISIT TO PLAINFIELD

A delegation of fifty New Brunswick Golden Eagles, including their famous degree team, came to this city in a special car last night and were the guests of the members of Freedom Castle, No. 42. The team worked the third degree on a local candidate in approved style, using their new paraphenalia and costumes. Twenty-five members of the castle at Somerville also came by special trolley and the large turnout made the meeting am ost successful one.

Following the business session and the degree administration, an informal social hour was spent in the lodge rooms. Grand Sir Herald Horace J. Martin, Sr., made an excellent address, welcoming the visiors and complimenting the New Brunswick degree team. Representatives from the visiting castles also spoke. A sumptuous banquet was served late in the evening. The good and welfare committee, of which Casper Waglow is chairman, provided the feast, which won the hearty approbation of all the Knights.

Oystermen Disproved Story.

After a thorough investigation the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America has refuted the alleged facts concerning the cause of death of Mrs. and Mrs. Ferdinand Brendt, of Newark, whose untimely end has been attributed to eating infected oysters. The official report of the Newark Board of Health, it has been found, shows that the husband died from typhoid fever and that of Mrs. and Mrs. Brendt spinal fever, and, further, that neither had partaken of oysters for a long time before the last illness.

AGED WOMAN IS INJURED

Mrs. Fanny Block Hit by a Motorcycle at the Trolley Stand.

CYCLIST KIRCH IS PAROLED.

Complaint Against Him Deferred—No Fault of Motorcyclist, 'tis Said.

While a crowd of people were transferring at the Watchung avenue trolley "stand" at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Fanny Block, 65 years old, of Orchard place, was struck by a motorcycle ridden by Peter Kirch, of West Sixth street. The aged woman was tossed to the sidewalk and collided with a pole, receiving numerous severe bruises about the body. She also bled from the nose and mouth, giving the impression that she had been badly injured.

Mrs. Block was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Morris Abrams, and at the latter's request Patrolman John Kelley had her placed in a cab and removed to her home. Dr. Clawson conducted an examination and found that she suffered greatly from shock but was not seriously injured.

Kirch was placed under arrest and later paroled by Mayor Flak, his bail cycle being held as bail. Mrs. Abrams was in the city court, this morning, for the purpose of preferring a charge against the young man although the police version of the affair attaches no blame to him. He was riding on the right side of the street at a moderate rate of speed and witnesses assert that Mrs. Block stepped in front of the machine after he had sounded a warning. After discussing the matter with Judge Runyon, Mrs. Abrams said she would defer making complaint until she had consulted her lawyer and Mr. Abrams, who is at present out of town.

WEEK END PARTY OF MISS NATALIE BRADLEY.

An enjoyable week-end party was given by Miss Natalie Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morton, at their home on Martins avenue, Fanwood, on June 13. The guests, which included the Misses Ruth Chapman, Bessie Wilson, Jennie Gould, Dorothy Hoar, Marion Todd, Hazel Gardner and the Messrs. Rex Pelz, Norman Kieb, Herber Knight, Phillip Nieder, Harold Todd, John Kyte and Johna Brush, enjoyed a moonlight straw ride chaperoned by Mrs. William Hinman on Saturday evening.

On returning from the ride, supper was served on the plazza, which was effectively decorated for the occasion with roses, ferns and Japanese lanterns. Games and dancing was indulged in, until a late hour. A feature of the evening, was the rendering of some fine selections on the mandolin, by Mr. Philip Nieder of Fanwood, giving additional pleasure to the merry party. Miss Bradley is an exceedingly attractive girl, has many friends here, and in Brooklyn, where until recently she resided.

THIRTY DAYS IN JAIL FOR CONFIDENCE CROOKS.

Entering a formal charge of vagrancy against them, Detective-Sergeant Flynn arraigned two men in the city court this morning who he declared are confidence crooks of the first calibre. One of them, who gave his age as sixty-four years, the officer described as Cornelius J. Mason, well known to the police all through the East and having a record of several terms in prison. He gave his name as Matthew F. Merrigo. The other defendant went on the blotter as William Hoffman, but this is also an alias.

Both men had pawn tickets in their clothing and neither could give any satisfactory explanation of their presence in the city. Officer Flynn arrested them in the West End last night on recognizing Mason mingling with a crowd. Judge Runyon committed both for thirty days while the police makes inquiries about them.

MISS TOWNLEY RESUMES LEAD IN VOTING CONTEST

Impelled to great efforts by her losing first place yesterday, friends of Miss Margaret Townley corraled bunches of votes for her in the Carnival Queen contest, last night, and as a result she returned to the lead today. In this morning's collection there were 950 ballots cast for her and she now has a total of 4,469. Miss Mattie DeCamp, who passed Miss Townley remains with exactly the same number of votes, 2,655, although this is taken as an indication that her constituents are reserving their strength.

The next largest number of ballots polled by a candidate since yesterday is 428, credited to Miss Adams, who is being supported by Plainfield lodge, No. 966, P. O. E. Her standing is 2,540. Miss Bopewell has 2,775 and Miss King 2,313.

In counting the ballots, Captain Daley, the official collector and custodian, finds that somebody with a facetious turn of mind is dropping spurious coins and pieces of lead in the boxes in voting envelopes. It is evidently done as a "bluff" to some one that money is being placed to the credit of a candidate and it gives a false impression as to the daily poll, friends of the young women believing they are not getting full credit. As an instance, an envelope opened today, marked 100 votes, contained a steel washer about the size of a dollar. Anyone not knowing of the deception, but seeing the figures would wonder what became of the 100 votes when the standing is given.

MAIL CARRIER FINED BECAUSE HE'S HURT

William Jones, the colored mail carrier, received a severe injury to his foot this morning, while assisting in the unloading of cans of milk from the 10:09 eastbound passenger train. One of the cans slipped and in falling off the truck landed on the man's foot, crushing it. Patrolman John Kelly was nearby at the time and he rendered "first aid to the injured" by making use of strips of flannel from the jersey with which he temporarily stopped the flow of blood. Jones was removed to the hospital, where after receiving further treatment at the clinic was taken to his home on West Front street, and is now under the care of Dr. J. C. Anderson.

The accident to Jones would not have happened had he been on time with his load of mail for the 9:59 train. He missed the train by a minute and was obliged to wait for the 10:09. To-day will cost him $1, that being the fine imposed by the postoffice authorities every time he misses a train. Postmaster Bird is now looking for another man to carry the mail.

"UNCLE JOE" ENTERTAINS JERSEY'S DELEGATION

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen entertained—as only "Uncle Joe" can—all the New Jersey delegates as well as the visitors from this State to the Republican National convention. The "blow-out" took place at the South Side Athletic Club in the "Windy City," and wireless reports have it that the Union county "hot air" was kept well under control during the painful proceedings in which the Bishops' law played an important part.

B. H. Williams, of Morris county, acted as chairman of an amateur convention, which in exciting incidents had the peculiar attribute of "beat a mile." Tom Hillery placed former Governor Murphy in nomination for the Vice-Presidient. Colonel William Barber, of Passaic, representing himself as official political morgue-keeper, strolled in on the scene to announce that he was looking for "dead ones," at that juncture, the Morris county Senator beat a hast exit with his boom.

Before adjournment, all the guests joined in the sweet refrain, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

In Honor of Mrs. F. M. DuBois.

An entertainment and birthday party was given in honor of Mrs. F. M. DuBois, of Fanwood, on Sunday, the 14th, at the latter's home by guests from Elizabeth, Newark and this city. There was a program of vocal and instrumental music, followed by dancing and supper. There were also recitations by Robert Major, Jr., Melvin and Wilbur Lutes. Mrs. DuBois received many beautiful flowers and other gifts.

FIGHT INJUNCTION PLANK

Battle over Platform on Today at the Republican National Convention.

VERY LITTLE PROGRESS MADE.

Sam Gompers on the Spot—Committee on Credentials to Make Its Report.

Chicago, June 17.—Order of convention business today:

Convention called to order by temporary chairman.

Prayer by the Rev. William O. Waters, of Chicago.

Report of Committee on Credentials.

(If the Committee on Credentials is not ready to report, the other business of the Convention will be suspended, and the visiting marching clubs will be received by the Convention).

After the Convention has acted on the report of the Committee on Credentials the reports of the following committees will be called for:

Permanent organization.

Rules and Order of Business.

Resolutions.

Selection of members of the Republican National Committee.

Selection of honorary vice presidents.

As the delegates assembled for the second day's session of the Republican National Convention today, according to the New York Evening Telegram reporter there was an air of intense excitement about the big Coliseum.

That there would be a mighty struggle between the administration forces, who want to incorporate a plank in the platform to regulate the issue of injunctions by courts in labor disputes, and the "antis," who favor the elimination of this plank, was believed by all.

There was much discussion among the arriving delegates over a report that the fight over the labor plank might result in the convention breaking away from the President and Taft, but conservative leaders place little credence in these rumors.

They said there was not the shadow of a chance that the program as already outlined would be carried out and Taft nominated.

They believe that the fight will be settled outside of the convention hall. There are many, however, who do not agree with them and think that the entire subject will be threshed out by the full Convention.

Forces Hard at Work.

The forces on both sides are working harder than ever today. On the one hand is Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders backed by the President and Mr. Taft, and the Taft managers, and on the other are representatives of the big manufacturing and commercial interests, led by Speaker Cannon, who do not want the party to put itself on record as throwing such a sop to the labor vote.

The Platform Committee held a session before the Convention began and it was said to be a lively one.

Another fruitful topic of discussion for the delegates was the action of the Sub-Committee on Credentials, which, after an all night session, settled the various contests over the seating of delegates in favor of the Taft men.

The view of these disputes in the Committees on Credentials on Platform, there seems to be a fair prospect that the nominating speeches may not be made tomorrow. If there is a battle on the convention floor over the report of the Majority and Minority Committees on Credentials the deliberations of the convention will be prolonged.

Wedding Anniversary Party.

A party was given last evening by Mrs. Bolis Ellis, of East Second street, in honor of her sister and the latter's husband, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Barber, who have recently come here from Alfred, N. Y., intending to make Plainfield their future home. About thirty were in attendance, most of whom were former residents of Alfred and acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Barber. As it was the sixth anniversary of their marriage.

HOTEL IROQUOIS SITE FOR FEDERAL BUILDING

Another choice site, it is reliably reported, has been offered the Government for the proposed Federal building to be located in this city at a cost of $100,000. It is the Iroquois hotel property at Park avenue and Second street, in the very heart of the business section.

Business men say that this would be an ideal site, situated as it is in the very centre of the Plainfield-North Plainfield community and near the main station of the Jersey Central Railroad. In close proximity is the handsome structure of the Plainfield Trust Company as well as the three other prosperous local banks, the New Plainfield theatre and the many thriving stores.

Report has it that adjoining properties may be obtained by the Government, if Secretary Cortelyou decides that the Iroquois location is the most desirable.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS HOLD BUSY SESSION

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders met in Bedminister township yesterday and viewed the following bridges. One near the residence of John Rynearson, the river bridge near Thomas Moore's and the bridge near William Neste's in Peapack; afterwards organization was effected at Howard's Hotel, in the latter place. Mr. Vreeland was the only member absent.

*Mr. Poulson moved that a new con*crete bridge 40 feet long be built at the Peapack site and that a paved gutter be made at the junction of the branch road. Carried. Messrs. Poulson, Bunn and Hoagland.

Mr. Smith reported that two bridges on West Union avenue, borough of Bound Brook were out of repair. One should be strengthened and a concrete top laid upon the other. The following were appointed the committee, with power: Messrs. Smith, Fitzgs and Lefkins.

The board adjourned to meet at the Milltown bridge tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

NEW IDEAITES DEFER FORMAL ORGANIZATION

George W. V. Moyer, R. Henry Depew, Frank L. Holt, Arthur Lovell and J. Stephen Higham were the only members of the New Idea party that attended the meeting held in the Coward building last night, called for the purpose of organization, election of officers and adoption of plans for the coming campaign. After a half-hour's informal talk, it was decided to adjourn the meeting to Tuesday night, June 23.

It was stated that through a misunderstanding on the part of the secretary the proper notices were not sent out for last night's meeting and this fact, together with several counter attractions resulted in keeping many persons away. The members present were not the least disturbed over the slim attendance, and they expressed th opinion that nothing was to be lost in delay at this time.

A. H. Rubenstein, Ll. B.

Among the graduates of the New York Law School who will receive degrees at the commencement exercises to be held at Carnegie Music Hall, New York, tomorrow night, is A. H. Rubenstein, son of I. M. Rubenstein, of East Seventh street. Rubenstein is a graduate of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1905, and during his school course he was High School correspondent for The Daily Press. He has completed his law course in three years. During his work, this bright young man has been getting valuable experience at a New York law office. He will study in a law office during the summer, taking his bar examinations in the fall.

Gave a Farewell Reception.

In honor of Mrs. Nicholas Brouard and her daughter, Miss Daisy Brouard, of West Seventh street, who sail for Europe on Saturday, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, gave a reception, last night. The affair was an informal one, the whole evening being devoted to sociability, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Brouard and her daughter will spend the summer abroad, returning home in September.

5,000 AT THE CARNIVAL

Opening of the Firemen's Big Benefit Brings Out a Record Crowd.

PLENTY OF FINE ATTRACTIONS.

Ferari's Animals, Hindu Theatre and Katzenjammers Among the Big Shows—Free Acts a Feature.

The firemen's big carnival is on. It opened at Darrow avenue and Fourth street at 7 o'clock last night and will remain there for the rest *of the week, giving delight and en*tertainment to young and old with its twelve score forms of diversion. The heavy rain of Monday put over the initial performances but everything was spick-and-span and in apple pie order when Chief Doane gave the word last evening to open up. The crowd came early and by 9 o'clock a conservative estimate places the number of people in attendance at 5,000.

The appearance of the grounds surpasses anything of the kind that has ever been seen in the city and first entrance shows that Manager Berger and his corps of assistants have lived up to all promises. The "fronts" of the main attractions are the costliest carried by a carnival company and are great works of art. They are made up in fancy scroll effects in gold and silver, topped off with genuine oil paintings in place of the cheap circus banners usually displayed. The tents are fitted with comfortable chairs and seats and attendants are stationed to look after the comfort of patrons.

While there are several of the shows that can be called "features," the most pretentious of the twelve that are on the grounds is Sig. Ferari's trained wild animal exhibition. It is located in a big tent faced by the most attractive front on the lot and which conceals a $10,000 electric organ. Cages are arranged about in a circle inside and the collection of famous beasts does not fall to that carried by many circuses. It comprises three lions, several tigers, a cage of jaguars and leopards, pumas, bears, hybrids and cougars. The program includes several thrilling acts in a steel arena while others are given in separate cages. The most daring trainer is Captain Clarke, who enters a den which confines "Sultan," a ferocious lion which has killed three men and refuses to be placed in subjection. While Captain Clark accomplishes this daring feat, armed guards are stationed about the cage ready to shoot the animal should it pounce upon him. Another thrilling act is given by Mlle. LaSalle, a handsome young women, who exhibits lions, tigers, leopards and hybrids in a "jungle" act. She is absolutely fearless and orders the treacherous beasts about as though they were dogs and cats.

The Hindu theatre, with its manifold mysteries, served to draw hundreds of people and gave great satisfaction to all who paid it a visit. This is also housed in a very attractive tent. The Katzenjammer castle, Schnrein Haas and Fritz and many assistants disport themselves, the baby girl, George, and the turtle boy, the electric theatre and Leola, the mysterious, are all splendid attractions and deserve the liberal patronage that was accorded them. In addition to these shows there are a score of concessions that furnish diversion for the attendant.

One of the big features, or two of them rather, is the free outdoor acts that Manager erBger has provided. They are a sensational aerial act given by the well known Gilmore family of four members and all entirely new and novel tight-wire performance by the Three Olivers, Miss Hattie Oliver, Perry P. and William J. Oliver. They will be seen each afternoon at 5 o'clock and at night at 10:30. The number given by the Gilmores is one of the breath-catching variety and is exteremely hazardous. The aqrialists make sensational leaps from one trapeze to another and at the finish toss a small boy through the air as though they were playing with a hand ball.

The tight wire act of the Oliver is "worth the price of admission alone." All three performers are extremely clever in accomplishing feats of balancing and the slender strand but Miss Hattie does a number of "stunts" that are really marvellous. She is an exceptionally clever young woman and her efforts last night were vigorously applauded by the large crowd that watched her.

Outside of the attractions included in the carnival company's array are a number of booths and bazaars that are solely the arrangement of the firemen and are conducted by them and a corps of volunteers. One of the most popular is the tea cream and cake pavilion in charge of Mrs. William Townley. She has for her assistants, Miss Leona Waters, Miss Alice Mehl, Miss Theresa McGinley,

MEAT PRICES SOAR HIGH

Not in Twenty-five Years Has the Cost of Flesh Food Been so Steep.

BIG PACKERS ARE BLAMED,

to You by the Retailers.

Starting With Them the Advances Are Taken Up and Charged

"Porterhouse, and make it rare," will not be a household expression nor a hotel or restaurant common-place for some time to come, if the present prices of beef are maintained. "Small steaks" have soared to the realm of luxuries and rib roasts belong only to the affluent.

Prices of all fresh meats yesterday reached a war-time scale and quotations were the highest in twenty-five years. Packing houses started the price ball flying skyward, butchers and retailers, in self-defense, had to push it along, and the end is not in sight.

"We had to pay twelve cents a pound this morning for beef by the carcass, an increase of five cents a pound in a few months," said the head of a pure-food firm that has branches in several New Jersey cities, with headquarters in Newark, "and the retail price of all meat was raised two cents a pound this morning. The manager of our fresh meat business, which is very large, told me today we are not making any profits on meat, and he suggested that we close the meat stalls for two months this summer. He said a good many butchers will suspend business for a couple of months, for consumers are now not buying meat, but are eating vegetables and cereals.

"Well, there is no reason why people should eat fresh meat in hot weather. Doctors say it produces rheumatism and other diseases and that it is better to eat vegetables and cereals in the summer. Our sales of oatmeal, crushed oats and other cereals has increased greatly, lately, and our men report that vegetable dealers in Centre Market are doing a largely increased business, and also that vegetables are plenty and low in price.

The "Big Four" Blamed.

"You ask what has caused the big increase in the price of meat. Why, the 'Big Four,' which controls the great slaughter and packing houses in the west and southwest, are booming the price on the veal that cattle on the hoof are scarce. But the truth is there are tens of thousands of cattle on the plains ready for market and are there instead of being shipped to market to supply the demand and thus keep prices down. Fresh meat has not been so high in fully thirty years, and I think the Federal government ought to take steps to relieve the people from the robbery by the meat barons."

A housewife who has dealt with one butcher for years and paid him a good price because he gave her splendid beef for roasting and fine steaks and chops, yesterday tried a butcher who she was told sold a couple of cents cheaper than the other butcher. But when she asked the price of lamb chops he said it was 2 cents a pound more than it was yesterday.

"He told me he couldn't help it, for the wholesalers raised the price on him this morning," she said to a reporter, "and that he was not making a cent on the meat he sold. He also said that if prices are not reduced soon he will have to close his shop, for people would stop buying meat and buy only vegetables and cereals."

Two Cents a Pound Raise.

Wholesalers said last night that they were charged two cents a pound more for a carcass of beef yesterday morning than they paid the day before. They declared that they were at the mercy of the Western packers, and the only way to force the meat barons to reduce prices was for people to not buy any fresh meat this summer.

Choice porterhouse steak sold yesterday at 28 and 30 cents a pound, as against 26 and 28 cents early this week. Sirloin steaks were three cents a pound dearer and spring lambs were up from 22 to 25 cents, and the fresh cut rib roast was increased three cents a pound and is expected to go up to 35 cents.

"We do not know what to make of it," said a retail dealer. "Week after week the prices increase, and the result is a falling off in our business and poor profits on the business we do. For, you know, a house with an established line of patrons must look after its interests and proceed with extreme care in raising prices to meet the increase in the wholesale price."

Vegetable Dealers Easy.

Vegetable dealers say their business has increased in an extraordinary degree within a week because of the big advance in the price of meat to consumers. With public enlightenment as to the nutritive value of the products of the ground and the low prices charged for them, many who had meat on their tables at least once a day now do not have it more than twice a week.

The ground has been most bountiful in the gifts this season, according to vegetables dealers, and save for celery, which is now going out of season, prices are low. The best asparagus, for example, now sells at 25 cents a bunch. The market is filled with pink-skinned new potatoes, two quarts of which are sold for 25 cents. All sorts of beans are 10 cents a quart; cabbage is 5 cents a head, and lettuce, onions, and the like, are all low. Carrots, turnips and beets are scarce just now, but the prices have not as yet been affected.

HELPFUL HINTS TO HURRIED HOUSEWIVES.

A little sugar or a quarter of a teaspoonful of molasses added to stove polish will make the polish appear much blacker, prevents dust from arising and gives a better lustre.

Unpainted wood will remain whiter if scrubbed with cold water and soap; hot water and strong alkali will make the wood yellow.

If lettuce is kept for several hours it should be laid on a wet towel and placed on the cellar floor or in the refrigerator.

Sweet apples will cook better and have a more delicious flavor if a little lemon juice or pure cider vinegar is added.

Olive oil will remove tar stains from dress goods. Wash afterward with white soap and tepid water.

Alcohol and whiting makes a good silver polish and is excellent for polishing plate glass or mirrors.

If porcelain vessels are placed directly over the gas flame they will clean and better by rubbing lard over the outside of the pan before putting it over the flame.

If the sink pipe is clogged remove the strainer and insert the hose into it and turn the water on full force. It almost always does it clean the pipe.

When flower leaves crinkle and turn gray it is a sign of mildew. Use flour of sulphur to correct the fault. Rose larvae are destroyed with hellebore, and the much dreaded aphis is killed with a spray of tobacco or tobacco soapsuds. Meal bugs dislike strong soapsuds.

COOKING MEAT IN WATER.

Stewing meat is the most economical method, for the long slow process makes the toughest meat tender, little fire and little attention being necessary, while all the liquid and juices make a gravy, and the vegetables stewed with the meat make it go a long way.

Stewing meat should be placed into cold water, and brought quickly to the boil, but once it has boiled it never should be allowed to boil again. Let it simmer gently with the lid on the pan.

In braising meat the bottom of the pan is celery and herbs and about half a pint of stock. The meat is browned on all sides, the vegetables, but not touching the stock or the herbs. The pan is placed over a gentle heat, with the lid tightly put on, and must be allowed to simmer. After the meat is cooked it is placed in a hot oven for a very few minutes.

Concert For Campers' Benefit.

The full choir of Holy Cross church will take part in the third annual outdoor concert to be held at the church parish house Wednesday evening, June 24. The proceeds of the affair will be used for the choir outing fund.

J. Evarts Tracy Property Sold.

T. W. Bakewell, who is occupying the Van Wyck property on Plainfield avenue, which was recently purchased by R. H. Hood, of New York, has bought the J. Evarts Tracy property on West Eighth street, and after making extensive improvements will move there. Mr. Hood will take possession of his property about October 1.

THEODORE M. FRENCH DEAD

Well Known Real Estate Man Succumbs Suddenly to Heart Trouble.

SON OF LATE P. M. FRENCH.

His Wife Died Six Weeks Ago—Four Children Left Surviving Him.

Theodore Franklin French, a lifelong resident of the city and widely known in the two Plainfields, died suddenly at his home on East Front street at an early hour Saturday. He had been ailing somewhat from heart trouble for some time, particularly since the death of his wife, which occurred April 28, of this year, but his condition did not occasion any especial concern. He was taken with a serious attack Friday and passed away while seated in a chair in his room. The body was discovered when the customary call for breakfast was unheeded.

Mr. French was a son of the late Phineas M. and Mary Oswald French and was born on the family homestead on Somerset street. He was associated with his father in the milling business for many years and with him placed on the market a patent buckwheat flour that is still made by a big Eastern firm. When the Borough of North Plainfield was disposed of by the family, Mr. French became secretary and treasurer of the Plainfield Water Company, holding the position until a few years ago. Since then he has been in the office of Elston M. French & Company.

In the volunteer fire department days of Plainfield, Mr. French was an enthusiastic member of No. 2 engine company and was one of the first chief engineers. He was also at one time secretary of the Board of Fire Commissioners. His business life included an active part in al ocal building loan association and several real estate companies. He was a member of the First Baptist church.

Mr. French is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edward M. Howell, of Morristown, and a son, Charles Gray French, of St. Paul, Minn. He was a brother to Louis M. French and Mrs. George H. Whitney and half-brother to Elston M. French.

At the annual meeting of the State Bar Associatich at Atlantic City yesterday the members went on record in favor of the judiciary amendments of the Constitution. At the banquet the speakers included Dean George W. Kirchwey, of Columbia University; Dr. Britton G. Evans, County Judge E. A. Higbee, Court of Errors and Appeals Justices Swayze, Bergen and Parker.

This morning addresses were made by Professor George W. Kitchwey, dean of the Law School of Columbia University, and former Chancellor William J. Magie. Mr. Magie's address was commemorative of the late Cortlandt Parker, of Newark, and was in lieu of the usual address by the association's president.

BERKELEY HEIGHTS GETS LIGHTS AFTER HARD FIGHT.

After a stiff fight at the township committee meeting at Berkeley Heights Friday, the franchise for installing fifty street lights was granted to the Commonwealth Water and Light Company, of Summit, and the work of installing street lights in Berkelye will be started at once. The expense of installing the lights will be about $750, of which $300 has been contributed by William Jeffery, "The Bungalow Man."

An effort to defeat the lighting scheme was organized by Henry S. Fullerton, chairman of the committee appointed to decide the matter. This chairman is up in the proposition of underground wiring for the street lights, and advocated this, realizing that the expense of installing such a system, (about $7,000 a mile) would be too great for the villagers. The Jeffery forces were victorious and within a short time street lights will glimmer on the street corners of the bungalow tract and light up the facade of the Berkeley Lyceum.

WHO'S THE BOROUGH WIT?

North Plainfield Councilmen Get Spicy Fun from "Music Ordinance."

BURLESQUES MONTCLAIR'S ACT.

While the Borough fathers were gravely considering the passage of ordinances to make North Plainfield "The Borough Safe and Sane," Councilman Clark Fred C. Martin read an ordinance providing for the instant killing of any person playing upon alleged musical instruments, characterized as "nerve-racking, make-night-hideous devices."

The petition follows:

"Whereas, While owing to the heated atmosphere, our citizens are obliged to keep open the doors and windows of their dwellings, and for this and other reasons are peculiarly unable to escape from annoying and irritating sounds and noises, which persisted in unduly tend to produce nervous prostration, or worse.

"Therefore, the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, do enact as follows:

"Section 1. That no person shall cause, permit or suffer between sunset and sunrise during the months of July, August or September, in any year, the playing or operation within the borough of North Plainfield, except as specified in section 2 hereof, of any mechanical instruments such as a calliope, phonograph, piano-player or hurdy-gurdy, the supposed intention of which is to produce by machinery alleged music, but which in truth are nerve-racking, make-night-hideous devices. Penalty for violation of this section shall be sudden death, which may be inflicted at any moment while such noise continues, either by any policeman, neighbor or passerby. After killing the operator and all accessories, the mechanical musical device shall also be destroyed.

"Section 2. Any person within the borough whose descent from the original stage has not been sufficiently prolonged to overcome the natural savage delight in barbarous noises may operate during said season closed for machine-made music, any such device, provided he, she and it, strictly confine themselves within some tightly closed cellar, room or place from which no sound may escape; provided, also, that such person shall have in his or her possession a certificate signed by at least one cigar, merchant of at least ten years standing, to the effect that he or she is not sufficiently savage to be dangerous at large.

"Section 3. This ordinance shall take effect as soon as possible, and sooner than possible, if possible."

Feeling hurt that he, an owner of a piano-player and phonograph, should be thus singled out for the punishment of the law, Mayor Samuel Townsend was speechless for some time after the Clerk finished reading. Finally, in the quavering tones of a man seeking from a sense of duty, he ordered the resolution turned over to the "waste basket committee" and announced that it would be acted upon at the July meeting.

All sorts of suggestions as to who is the framer of the resolutions were rife, but it is conservatively stated that Tax Collector George F. Brown, the wit of Somerset street, is the "one best bet" as the author.

BOROUGH TO JOIN CITY IN SEWAGE INVESTIGATION.

The North Plainfield Council was formally informed of the scheme for a joint sewage disposal system to tide water, proposed by Mayor C. J. Fisk, of Plainfield, at its meeting last night, when a communication from City Clerk James T. MacMurray accompanied the outline of the plan.

Upon motion of Councilman McGee, Mayor Townsend was empowered to appoint a committee of two or more boroughites to confer with representatives of boroughs and towns affected by the proposed improvement, and the members of the Council voiced their approval of the scheme. The Mayor was given power to appoint this committee in anticipation of a conference, and the action last night will probably save delay if such a conference is called.

Watchung Hunt Club Active.

Although the hunting season is over for the Watchung Hunt Club, the members are planning a number of enjoyable events for the summer at its handsome new clubhouse on Plainfield avenue. Every Saturday night table d'hote dinners are served and they are proving popular among the members.

NON-RESIDENTS' LICENSES

New Jersey Game and Fish Laws as They Now Exist for Sportsmen.

SOME RADICAL CHANGES MADE.

State Now Divided in Two Sections—Gigging Season Extended—Earlier Shooting Season—Fines as Provided.

Some interesting and important information, of which all sportsmen and gunners of every sort should take particular notice, has been prepared for public distribution by the Fish and Game Commission. It consists of a succinct synopsis of the fish and game laws of the State, as to what is and what is not lawful at all times. Many thousands of these are to be printed in English and other thousands in Hungarian and Italian, to be sent broadcast throughout the State. They will be accompanied by small charts showing in colors the open and closed seasons, while 2,000 larger charts are being printed for use in public places. These pamphlets and charts will probably be ready for distribution next week. Among the things that are illegal at all times are these: To capture, kill or injure, or have in possession insectivorous and certain other birds and to rob bird's nests. To hunt geese, ducks or any water fowl, except between one hour before sunrise and until sunset. For any unnaturalized foreigner to hunt without obtaining a license. To permit dogs to run rabbits at night or to run at large in woods or fields inhabitated by rabbits or game birds, except between Oct. 1 and Feb. 1.

The most radical change is one which divides the State into two sections relative to open seasons. Passaic, Sussex, Morris, Warren, Essex, Hunterdon, Somerset, Hudson, Union and Bergen counties constitute the northern section, these counties the open season on the above species of game is from Nov. 15 to Dec. 31, inclusive.

In the northern section as described above the open season for geese, duck, brant, swan and all water fowl, is from Oct. 15 to Jan. 1, inclusive.

Open season for ducks and other water fowl, except geese and brant, in the southern section is from Nov. 1 to March 15, inclusive. Open season for geese and brant in same section is from Nov. 1 to March 25.

It is unlawful to remove game from the State except in the case of non-residents holding license, who may remove 15 birds and 10 rabbits, providing they are exposed to view. To kill more than thirty marsh hens or mud hens in one day. For non-residents to hunt without license. Said license, costing $10.50, may be obtained from the County Clerk. To hunt or kill deer at any time. To have trapped game in possession. To hunt on Sunday or to carry firearms on that day. To hunt rabbits, quail, partridge, pheasant or woodcock when there is tracking, snow on the ground. To hunt reed birds after sunset or before sunrise.

To catch or keep trout less than six inches in length. To catch or to have bass less than nine inches in length, or pike, perch, pickerel and pike less than 12 inches in length. To take trout, bass, pike, pickerel and pike perch between 9 o'clock at night and daylight. The open season for spearing eels and suckers in all streams and in all lakes and ponds of less than 100 acres is from Feb. 20 to June 30th, both dates inclusive. It is unlawful to pollute streams. To use medicated bait or explosives of any kind for taking fish. To use set lines in waters inhabited by pickerel pike, perch, bass or trout, or to use any contrivances in fishing having more than three hooks or on burr of three hooks. To permit the erection or maintenance of any fish ladder, appliances for taking game and fish; applies to owners and tenants of lands. To take fish through the ice in fresh water.

Fines for violations of the above laws are from $20 to $200. Dogs running at large may be killed under municipal regulations. Farmers and fruit growers have the right to trap rabbits under certain restrictions. Any farmer who will sow buckwheat and allow it to remain standing as food for quail will be furnished free seed for the same by the commission.

NEW MARKET SCHOOL GRADUATES 22 PUPILS

Twenty-two graduates of the eighth and tenth grades of the New Market grammar school received diplomas from C. G. Nelson, president of the Board of Education, at the commencement exercises of the school held Thursday in the First Baptist church, Dunellen. The affair was well attended, parents and friends of the graduates being liberal with their applause of the various recitations and essays of the graduation program.

In his address to the class, Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the Baptist church, congratulated the pupils upon their work well done and upheld the ideals of manhood and womanhood. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of South Plainfield, also addressed the class, which was presented for diplomas by W. F. Metz. The invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Mr. Jordan, of the Seventh Day Baptist church.

The salutatory address, "The Launching," was by Miss Hannah Nelson, and the valedictory was given by Miss Jennie Dunn, in connection with an essay, the topic of which was "What Time Is It?" Music by an orchestra interspersed the program of recitations and the class song "Hail and Farewell," was a feature. Other pupils who took part in the program were the Misses Edith Giles, Nora McDonough, Sarah Cole, Zella Freeman, Edwina Reusch, Marion Geary, and Melvin LaRue and Walter Gruuert. Aside from these, twelve other members of the class received diplomas. Their names follow:

The Misses Sarah Dayton, Barbara Bird, Sarah Hall, Edna Dutcher, Nellie Gidden, Hazel Piddington and Edith Schomp, Adelbert Barras, Antone Barone, Benjamin Giles, Rene von Minden, Leslie Randolph and John Sebring.

MAJ. MARTIN QUALIFIES FOR OLYMPIC MATCHES

Major W. B. Martin, formerly captain of Company K, this city, did some remarkable shooting on the range at Camp Perry, Ohio, Friday, when he qualified for the select team of Ohio National Guardsmen, which is to compete at the Olympic shoot in Bisley, England, within the next month. With a score of 851 out of a possible 900, he was tied with three other marksmen for fifth position, and highly complimented for his fine work.

The new Springfield rifle of the U. S. A. was used, after a week's practice, and the army officers who had charge of the competition declare that the scores were phenomenal, considering that the men have had so little practice. Those who qualified and their scores follow:

Eastman, Ohio, 864; Leuscheur, New York, 861; Simon, Ohio, 860; Casey, Delaware, 856; Bennedict, Ohio, 851; Martin, New Jersey, 851; Massachusetts, 851; Winder, Ohio, 850; Greene, Marine Corps, 850; Hessian, Delaware, 840. All of these scores were out of a possible 900.

P. H. S. TEAM LOSES SEASON'S LAST GAME

The Plainfield High School baseball team ended the season with an ignominous defeat Friday, when the Bayonne High School nine won a poorly contested game at Bayonne by the score of 9 to 5. Murphey, who was on the slab for the local nine, had poor control, giving five bases on balls and deceiving very few of the Bayonne boys with curves. "Otter" Doane was the only High School player who solved Daly's delivery and his single in the eighth, scoring Snyder, was the only hit made by the local boys during the entire game.

The Bayonne boys were only blanked in three innings, scoring in the second, third, fourth, sixth and eighth. The less said about the Plainfield battery for local baseball aspirants on the diamond, when the Bayonne boys first took the stick in that session, the score was 5-1 in their favor, but by the time the Plainfield High School baloon came down, seven of the metropolitan aggregation had crossed the plate. Let it further said that the score book, resting on the knee of Manager W. V. Rafferty, only records two outs made in this inning by P. H. S.

A faint rally came in the last two stick sessions, for the locals, when Snyder and Butcher completed the circuit. Errors were plentiful by the local nine during the entire contest, eight being recorded. The shocking details:

COLBYITE ENDORSEMENTS

Union County New Ideaites Demand Renominations for Ackerman and Pierce.

TO WAGE STRONG CAMPAIGN.

Platform to Be Adopted, Committee Being Named to Draft It—G. W. V. Moy Acted as Chairman.

As predicted in The Daily Press some days ago, the Union County Republican League for Equal Taxationist its meeting in Elizabeth Friday unanimously endorsed for renomination both State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, and Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford. While no definite action was taken, it is certain that it will put up a bitter fight against any attempt to renominate either Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, or Assemblyman John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth.

The political situation in the county thoroughly discussed and before the meeting adjourned a committee was appointed to plan for an active campaign in every section. This committee will also draft a platform and will make its report at the early date. The membership of the committee, which was appointed by George W. V. Moy, of this city, who acted as chairman, consists of Thomas M. Debevoise, of Summit; William F. Groves, of Elizabeth; Thomas V. W. Anthony, of Cranford, and James G. Allen, of New Providence. Mr. Groves acted as secretary at the meeting.

The resolution commending both Ackerman and Pierce follows:

"Whereas, the records of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce demonstrate that they have been faithful to the trust reposed in them and that they are eminently fitted to represent Union county in their respective bodies in a manner which will serve the best interests of the State; be it resolved, that the Advisory Committee of the Union County Republican League for Equal Taxation unanimously endorse Senator Ackerman and Assemblyman Pierce for re-election."

J. SAVITZ TALKS TO SCOTCH PLAINS PUPILS

Dr. J. J. Savitz, County Superintendent of Schools made the address to the Scotch Plains grammar school graduates at the commencement exercises held in the Scotch Plains Baptist church Friday night. There were twelve pupils to receive diplomas presented by A. T. Beeken, vice-president of the Board of Education. Diplomas were given to Emma Elliott, Viola Hards, Lena Hardy, Beatrice Knowlton, Bertha Miller, Anna Louise Outwater, Margaret Reynolds, Jessie Spencer, John Brick, William Manning, Louis Morel, Vincent Terbo.

In the course of his remarks to the graduates, Dr. Savitz said:

"Union County has unbounded faith in education. It has been said that the Aemrican people are education mad, but there is nothing which will fit the boy or girl better for the responsibilities of life. Young people should prepare for a purpose in life, and strive to attain that good which they have set out for when they really begin their school life. Some graduates take too hopeful a view of the future when they leave the school, and their dreams are rudely shattered, when they come face to face with the actual problem of life. An education means more than what we learn from the text book at school.

"The real benefit of an education is to fit us for actual life in this busy world.

"There is no excuse today for young people in New Jersey not being able to secure a high school education for $62,000 has been appropriated by the State for school work this year. This is for free tuition. Let us all do what we can to give every boy and every girl an education that will place them in position to meet the problem of life, when they go out into the world."

The music which was enjoyed by all was furnished by Mrs. J. H. Buckley.

MISS ANNIE DUFFY THE BRIDE OF MARTIN DITSON.

Miss Annie Duffy, of Central avenue, and Martin Ditson, of Plainfield avenue, were married at St. Mary's church at 8 Wednesday night, by the pastor, Rev. B. M. Bogan, in the presence of a large gathering of friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Winnie Duffy, as bridesmaid, while John Cooney, of this city, was the best man.

After the ceremony the couple were given a reception at the home of friends on West Fourth street and later they left for a bridal trip to Niagara Falls. They will reside in this city. The groom is in the employ of Robert H. McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, and both he and his bride have a host of friends here. Mrs. Ditson received a large number of gifts.

SYNDICATE WILL BUILD A FIRST CLASS HOTEL

Capitalists Promoting Enterprise to Announce Their Plans Within a Month.

SITE NEAR FEDERAL BUILDING.

Hostelry to Be a Credit to the Community—To Fill a Long Felt Need, the Promoters Say.

From authoritative sources it was learned today that a syndicate composed of New York and local capitalists has plans under consideration for the erection of a strictly first class hotel in Plainfield. The matter has been under advisement for some time and has reached the stage where details relative to location and size of the building will soon be made public.

The idea of the promoters is to give the city a hostelry of the style that is a hotel in every sense of the word, patterned after the large establishments in New York and Philadelphia and affording every convenience for transient as well as permanent guests. The tentative plans include a ball room, grill room, private rooms for wedding parties and receptions, banquet hall, auditorium, and all other requisites for a high class hotel. It is argued that just such a place would fill a long felt want in the community and that with the establishment of dinner and after-theatre supper service that visitors to town for afternoon and evening affairs would not feel the necessity of returning to New York for accommodation.

Any suggestion of a site for the hotel has been carefully witheld up to the present time but it is asserted that this will depend largely on the location of the proposed new Federal building. As soon as that matter is settled upon, the capitalists assert that it will be a matter of no problem to them. The plot required will be a large one and must be in a central point, easy of access from the North avenue station and street car lines.

Those who comprise the syndicate are all men of means and have been identified with the hotel business in various capacities for many years. Several of the names mentioned in connection with the scheme include those of capitalists who assisted in the building of a large hostelry in Philadelphia and at present have interests in a New York establishment that has one of the most prominent names in the hotel world.

CRIME TO MISUSE COMMUTATION

Two Fined $2,000 Each for Wrongful Use of a Ticket.

Judge Hundley, of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Alabama, has handed down a decision which has startled many people who are in the habit of using borrowed monthly or family commutation tickets when they want to go to the city.

Thomas Williams, a resident of Memphis, Tenn., owned a commutation ticket between his home and Birmingham, Alabama, which contained the usual provision that it should be void if presented for passage by anyone other than person to whom it was issued. He loaned his ticket to a friend of his, Daniel Pounds, who presented it to the conductor on the train who happened to know Williams. The conductor permitted Pounds to ride to his destination, but telegraphed to Birmingham for a United States marshal to meet the train. When Pounds arrived there he was arrested, being charged with a violation of the Interstate Commerce Act, which makes the acceptance of free transportation a high crime.

Judge Hundley's opinion holds that Pounds was guilty of accepting free transportation on the ground that the ticket when he presented it became void because of the provision contained in it, and by riding on it he was accepting free transportation. He was fined $2,000.

Williams, whose the ticket was originally issued, has since been tried and convicted of aiding and abetting Pounds to commit a high crime and was also fined $2,000.

New Jersey commuters who loan tickets or use borrowed tickets not only run the risk of the loss of the interstate Commerce Act but are also in danger of fine or imprisonment under an act of the New Jersey Legislature, passed in 1904, which makes any person who barters, sells or transfers any railway ticket or evidence of right to transportation guilty of a misdemeanor, which is an offense punishable by a term of imprisonment in State's prison.

ARRANGING TO MEET 1889 COUNTY ROAD TAX

The Fanwood Township Committee held a conference with Attorney W. R. Codington Thursday for the purpose of fixing upon the proportionate share of an $8,000 road tax assessment to be borne jointly by the township and the borough of Fanwood. The amount must be paid to the county treasurer next year and will be made up in the budgets of 1908 and 1909.

The assessment resulted from the county road improvements made in 1889 when South and Westfield avenues were macadamized and widened. The county shouldered two-thirds of the expense and the municipalities through which they pass the remainder. Twenty-four bonds were issued to meet the obligation and it is these that are now falling due.

At the time the pro rata share of the improvement was assessed, Fanwood borough had not been incorporated and the whole amount was placed against Fanwood township. With the separation of the two, no provision was made for the borough sharing a part of the cost and with the notice from the county collector that the money will soon fall due, steps were taken to settle upon the respective figures.

The proportion to be borne by the two municipalities was not fully decided upon Thursday but will be fixed at a future meeting.

MISS IDA MAY FURMAN BRIDE OF V. W. NASH, JR.

Miss Ida May Furman, daughter of Mrs. M. A. Furman, of Dover, formerly of Englewood, and Vincent W. Nash, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Nash, of Prospect avenue, were quietly married Wednesday at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. W. Warnock, of Watchung place. The ceremony was performed at 8:15 by Rev. R. W. Elliott, pastor of the Methodist church at Bernardsville, and was witnessed by thirty relatives and near friends.

The nuptial event took place in the parlor before a massed arrangement of roses and daisies, backed up by palms and ferns. Miss Edith Roseberry, of this city, acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by his brother, Augustus Nash. Judge William N. Runyon presided at the piano and rendered the wedding march while the party was assembling.

Miss Furman wore a becoming gown of white mousseline over white silk with simple trimmings. Her bouquet was of bride roses. Her attendant's gown was of pink chiffon over pink silk and she carried pink sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a reception was held during which Mr. and Mrs. Nash were showered with congratulations. Supper was served at 9 o'clock and at its conclusion, the young couple left for a wedding trip with Niagara Falls as the ostensible destination. On returning they will make their home in the Mulford apartments on North avenue.

Mr. Nash is a member of the Union county bar and has been a practicing attorney in Plainfield for several years. He is connected with several fraternal organizations and at the present time is chancellor commander of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P. His bride has been a local resident for the past twelve years and has a host of friends in the city and borough, a fact attested by the large array of wedding gifts. They comprise silverware, cut glass, furniture, bric-a-brac and china.

The young couple adopted a novel ruse to escape well laid plans to shower them with confetti and rice on leaving and succeeded admirably. While the guests were occupied in various ways they eluded watchers singly and proceeded to the home of a next-door neighbor in order to don traveling attire. Their absence was discovered and the friends surrounded the coach to await their coming. A couple well handled ones came rushing out and dashed into the vehicle after running the gauntlet. The horses were whipped up and sent along for a block only to stop around the corner and pick up Mr. and Mrs. Nash, who had gone out the rear entrance of the house while a couple of friends had represented them in front. By this scheme teh newlyweds reached the depot and got away without a grain of rice getting on them.

Coats and Coats.

Where a woman could once get along with two coats and be moderately well dressed she now needs a good dozen of these to be in the swim. This reason the commonplace and very necessary coat has attained the status of a fad and is out in fabrics unheard of in other seasons for such purposes. The last thing that the tailor evidently considers is the making of a coat today seems to be warmth. Warmth is not what the coat is made for. Looks is its first, last and principal also. Of separate wraps there are as many kinds as there are of separate waists, and indeed more. Many of the coats being made for the summer are sleeveless and mere skeletons, simply furnishing a garnishment for the bodice and sash ends for the skirt drapery.

BORO' BUDGET $30,250

MAYOR TOWNSEND'S POLICY.

All Departments Demand More Money Than Was Estimated Last Year—Comparative Figuring.

Conservatism in consideration of the expenses of the various municipal departments of the borough marked the fixing of the tax budget by the North Plainfield Council last Friday. The gross amount is required to be raised by tax for the year 1908 is $30,250, against $25,800 for last year. The effort to raise the percentage assessment valuation being made by the Somerset County Board of Taxation makes it impossible to state at this time the tax rate. The detailed statement of the amounts needed follows:

Borough General expense, $4,375; bonds and interest, $2,260; fire department, $3,800; water, $1,290; police department, $4,000; street department, $7,000; poor account, $1,200; street lighting, $5,625; Board of Health, $600; total, $30,250.

In every case the amount asked for is in excess of the corresponding amount for 1907. This is because the amounts estimated last year proved inadequate for running the various departments. Mayor Townsend, in a message to the Council last week urged a consideration of this before deciding upon the budget, for last year the borough was $4,557.09 behind because of the under estimate. Of this $2,608.45 is the deficiency as shown by the 1907 report, $949.64 is the amount of taxes prior to 1907 considered uncollectable, and $1,000 is the estimated further loss through uncollected taxes.

It is conservatively estimated that the borough will receive $5,412 from dog licenses for the year, and this will make up the deficit without asking for more money on the budget. The Mayor is anxious to leave the borough treasury without a hole in it, and this year's budget is framed with that view. In making up the budget the borough expenses from January 1 to May 1 have been used as a proportionate guide in framing the year's figures, and the councilmen have spent many weary hours working over the figures for the different departments.

BOROUGH TAKES ACTION ON DODGER NUISANCE

In accordance with the suggestion by the Mayor that any borough ordinance needed at present be passed on so as to be included in the newly compiled set now being prepared, several ordinances were passed on first reading at the special meeting of the North Plainfield Council Friday. An ordinance regarding papers and rubbish in the streets was the first brought up. This provides for a penalty of $20 fine, seven days' imprisonment, or both, for the distribution or advertising circulars, perfodicals and dodgers in the borough, unless subscribed for by borough'ites. It also prohibits littering streets and properties with rubbish, fruit skins, wood, etc. The ordinance is to go into effect August 1. It will be revised before its second reading. There is a similar ordinance in Plainfield, upon which this was modeled.

Councilman Nichols, who proposed this ordinance, also brought up a measure on carrying concealed weapons, this ordinance provides for a penalty of $20 fine, seven days' imprisonment, or both, for anyone carrying concealed weapons in North Plainfield. Although the word "concealed" is used, the weapons which are not to be carried include "spears" and "swords."

URHHAHN WANTS PROPERTY CLEARED OF TAX ARREARS.

William Urhhahn, as administrator of the estate of Angelina Urhhahn, petitioned the borough council at the special meeting Friday to clear the property at 261 Somerset street of a tax account amounting to $292.88. This sum is the original tax assessment of $77.28, levied in 1889, and accrued interest. Mr. Urhhahn, the borough collector and the present owner, has no knowledge of it until recently.

Corporation Counsel Reed advised that the account was outlawed and could not be collected by process of law. It was the opinion of the council that the account at this stage was an unjust one, and it was referred to the law, ordinance and taxation committee with power. A release will probably be given to clear the title.

Wedding Serenader Hurt.

In his eagerness to tie noise-making instruments to a wedding coach on Fourth street, Wednesday night, James Lynch, a West End young man, fell and sustained a bad gash in the hand from a tin can. The wound was quite serious and required the services of a physician to sew it up.

NEW BRUNSWICK PRESS SUSPENDS PUBLICATION

"The Daily Press," published by the New Brunswick Publishing Company, did not appear yesterday morning, the publication having been suspended. The paper may be continued later. The bondholders have selected Charles A. Bloomfield and Robert Carson to look after their interests.

The paper is one of the oldest in Middlesex county. It was formerly "The Fredonian" and was an afternoon publication. When the plant was purchased by the present owners, in 1900, the publication was changed into a morning newspaper and has remained so ever since. Charles A. Prickett, of Metuchen, is the president of the company and Charles A. Bloomfield, of Metuchen, treasurer. W. B. Prickett, the editor and business manager, severed his connection with the paper on Saturday.

Water.

But very few people, without doing some figuing, have any definite idea of the quantity that falls during a that is called a heavy shower. One cubic foot of rain water weighs sixty-four pounds, and measures six and a quarter gallons. In one gallon there are two hundred and seventy-seven cubic inches, and it weighs ten pounds. One inch of rain fall would measure to every square mile, fourteen and a half million gallons, or four hundred and sixty thousand barrels.

ORDER SPECIAL ELECTION

North Plainfield Voters to Decide Voting Machine's Fate on July 21.

Borough Physician Not to Get Double Pay—Change in Street Names Also Considered.

To decide whether or not voting machines will be retained in the two voting districts of North Plainfield, a special election has been announced for Tuesday, July 21. This was the discussion of the Borough Council at the special meeting Friday night. The agitation for the election has been through the efforts of Walter Linbarger and Charles A. Mayo, who circulated petitions among the voters. The lists, including twenty-five per cent. of the voters, were presented at the meeting a week ago, but held up because affidavits as to genuineness of the signatures were not given. Mr. Linbarger gave those affidavits at the meeting last night, and the action of the borough fathers followed, in accordance with Chapter 168 of the State laws.

Aside from deciding upon the borough budget, several matters of unfinished business came before the borough fathers at last night's meeting. Objections having been filed to the change in the name of Maple avenue on the outskirts of the borough to Powell avenue, passed on first reading at the last meeting, brought the matter before the Council for reconsideration. The reason for the objection is that there are several houses on this Maple avenue, while on the Maple avenue annex to Magnolia avenue and West End avenue, there is but one house. Feeling that th change would not involve so much complication for this reason, the Council ruled that the name of the latter Maple aveaue be changed to Maple avenue annex, as supposed farm is the only house on this street.

The vote to change the name was carried and the adoption of the change on the first reading also passed unanimously.

Mrs. Polina Cook, who lives at 114 Summit avenue, appealed as to the justice and validity of a contract she made with the P. S. C. to wire the house at a cost of $22.41, the money to be refunded, with interest, in course of time. The matter will be taken up by the police and lamps committee.

A formal petition to the Somerset County Tax Board was passed, requesting the power to exceed the legal tax rate limit of thirty cents on the hundred dollars valuation. This is in accordance with the requirements of the law recently passed limiting the tax rate of boroughs and taxing districts. In speaking of the matter, Mayor Townsend said that the limit in the law is "flexible" under this provision,—that if the rate is liable to exceed the rate in the new law, application must be made to the State Board. The resolution is a provisionary one.

The Council decided that Dr. A. H. Dundon should not receive further renumeration from the State Medical Board for the registration of vital statistics, claiming that the salary paid by the Board of Health includes pay for this. The Council also decided to take up the matter of laxity on the part of the P. S. C. in installing lights in Orchard Park with officials of the company. The council ordered the installation of the lights several meetings ago, but no lights have yet been put in position.

SOLD ALL HIS GOODS DESPITE A PROTEST.

The auction sale of goods belonging to William Lindsay, Jr., the milkman at 965 West Front street, proceeded Friday morning under the direction of Hezekiah Hand as bailiff, despite the fact that Walter L. Mitchell appeared on the scene with two chattle mortgages held by Henry Nischwitz, of the borough, and warned everyone from purchasing the goods. The sale concluded everything listed, excepting a horse, harness and wagon, valued at C. W. Squier under a sale previous to the attachment of the goods. They are still being restrained, pending a settlement.

The sale Friday was the result of an attachment obtained by Rev. P. J. Reeves, of Palermo, acting as agent for his wife, who owns the property at 965 West Front street which was occupied by Mr. Lindsay, and who she sued for rent. At the trial of the landlord and tenant case in the district court in Plainfield, a given a decision and execution papers were issued. $230 was realized from the sale yesterday which it is thought will satisfy the claims of Mrs. Reeves. It is not known what action will be taken by Henry Nischwitz, who claims that the sale of goods was illegal in view of the fact that he holds chattle mortgages.

Second-Hand Goods.

NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY BOROUGH DOG CATCHER

The summer campaign of open war against the stray dog who may become rabid began Friday in the borough, when Charles Mason, colored, was appointed dog catcher by Mayor Townsend. Mason, who is chauffeur for Dr. F. J. Hughes, the borough physician, is but nineteen years of age, and unusually quick on his feet. As soon as the Mayor told him he would get fifty cents for every dog he brought to borough police headquarters, he eagerly scanned Somerset street for his first half dollar. No dog was in sight at the time, but Mason had he knew where there were some and started off to make money.

The Mayor gave out the orders against wandering stray dogs, the enforcement of the ordinance, to Chief Marshal Weiss at headquarters today. The two were discussing possible candidates for the job, when Dr. Hughes happened along and named Mason. The lad was summoned from the auto. On hearing the offer, he at first refused the job, but when Mr. Townsend told him that there was a bonus of fifty cents per dog, Mason at once said: "Sure, I'll get 'em for you. Do I begin now?"

The dogs will be temporarily quartered at police headquarters, where they will be killed if not claimed at the expiration of three days. Chief Weiss is looking for a suitable building for a pound.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN HOLD A RECEPTION

The annual reception to the women of the First Presbyterian church by the Men's Club, attracted a large number of members and friends of the church, Thursday, and all enjoyed the informal program arranged by the men. It was expected that Rev. W. T. Stuchell, of the First Presbyterian church, Rahway, would make one of the speeches but word received that he had been detained elsewhere and would be unable to reach Plainfield.

It was then arranged to have Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, speak. His topic was "The Legislative Improvement," and in the course of his remarks he referred to the important place in church work taken by the men of the church. He complimented the club for the success attained during its existence.

During the evening the quartet choir, Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Herbert Byard, bass, and Andrew J. McClintock, tenor, rendered several selections under the direction of Clifford S. Bradley, organist and choirmaster. Following the informal program, during which Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, the pastor, made a few remarks, refreshments were served by the members of the club. The whole affair was arranged by a committee comprising, President S. W. Dunning, Dr. N. W. Currie, Fred Dickerson, Jesse Counsbury and George A. Ballantyne.

FORTY YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff Surrounded by Friends Celebrate the Event.

WEDDED LIFE SPENT HERE.

Well Known Real Estate Man and His Wife Have Host of Friends —Two Children From Their Union.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Woodruff, of East Second street, celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding, Thursday night, when a host of friends gathered to extend congratulations and wish the bride and groom many years of continued happiness and prosperity. The affair was an informal one and there were many features that combined to make it one of great enjoyment to all. The house was simply, yet beautifully decorated with flowers, roses and carnations being used chiefly in the parlor, reception and dining rooms.

In receiving the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff were assisted by their daughter, Mrs. Harry S. Potter, who came from her home in El Paso, Texas, to attend the anniversary. After congratulations the guests were invited to the reception and dining rooms, which join, and delightful refreshments were served. The large veranda and spacious lawn proved attractive places during the evening for those who did not care to remain indoors and from 8 until 10:30 o'clock all thoroughly enjoyed the happy event. The large number of beautiful gifts received by the bride and groom were also the objects of much admiration. They comprised cut-glass, chinaware, silverware and a profusion of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff were schoolmates together in Rahway, where they were married. Mrs. Woodruff, whose malden name was Miss Mary Beach, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beach, was born in Boston, but excepting a short time which she lived in Jersey City, her girlhood days were spent at Rahway, the birthplace of Mr. Woodruff. They were married Thursday, June 11, 1868, in the First Presbyterian church, Rahway, by the pastor, Rev. S. S. Sheddan, who has since died.

It was then arranged that Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, speak. His topic was "The Legislative Improvement," and in the course of his remarks he referred to the important place in church work taken by the men of the church. THE SITUATION IN UNION CO.

It is not surprising that the New Idealtes in Union county should endorse State Senator Ackerman and Assemblyman Pierce for renomination after they could not consistently do otherwise. Both have been shining lights in the Legislature-and no earthly reason could be advanced for retiring either one. What the *New*ark News says of Mr. Ackerman equally applies to the Senator, particularly when it declares that the Cranford man is deserving of a renomination, "because of his independence and good judgment."

As for the political future of Assemblymen Kirstein and Moxon some doubt is expressed among those in touch with the trend of political affairs, aside from any action that the New Idea men may see fit to take. The Rahway man was not particularly conspicuous during his first term by reason of his not being by no means in unfit representative. As to Mr. Moxon, who according to current report, would not refuse a renomination, party custom may prevent his ambitions being satisfied. The same rule that was enforced against Joseph Perkins, of Westfield, applies to the Elizabethan who has already served two terms. There are plenty of good men in the county who would be willing to take these places and it is not altogether improbable that the nominating convention may view the situation in this light.

It seems that the Netherwood section is deserving of better police protection than it gets at present. The patrolman on duty there is an efficient man but the territory he is supposed to cover is entirely too large. As sooner or later it will be a case of "locking the stable door after the horse is stolen," the police board might better take early action.

What is the Police Board's idea in not filling the vacancy in the position *of roundsmen in that depart*ment? There are several capable men who have served the city long and faithfully as patrolmen, any one of whom would discharge the duties satisfactorily.

NEWLY ELECTED BISHOP COMES HERE ON SUNDAY

Rev. Dr. W. F. Anderson, the first of the eight bishops chosen at the recent eneral Conference of the M. E. church at Baltimore, last month, will preach in the First M. E. church, Sunday night, and the pastor, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, has invited the members of race and the Monroe Avenue M. E. churches to attend this service.

Bishop Anderson was not only the first of the new bishops to be elected, but he received the highest number of votes for the office. He is considered one of the strongest men in the denomination. He was born in West Virginia and after completing his college course entered Drew Seminary, from which institution he was graduated also. After that he joined the New York Conference and in succession received prominent appointments, being pastor of the Newburg M. E. church, the Washington Square church, New York, and the denominational church at Ossining, N. Y.

In 1900 he was appointed recording secretary of the Board of Education of the denomination with offices in New York and at the General Conference in 1904 was elected corresponding secretary of the Board of Education, which position he held with credit until made a Bishop. He is a man of pronounced executive ability and thoroughly acquainted with every phase of the denominational work. He was scheduled to speak at the last session of the Newark Conference, but was prevented. Dr. McCrea considers himself fortunate in being able to secure his presence here on Sunday.

Netherwood Camp Fete.

An open air fete and bazaar will be held at the grounds of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp July 4, and the metropolitan campers will come here for the summer Monday, July 6. Miss Florence G. Hawkins, who has been named as chairman of the committee in charge of the fete, will be assisted by Mrs. Benjamin Hadley and Mrs. George, and the plans are now well under way. To facilitate transportation to the camp, several persons interested in the camp have offered their automobiles, and the machines will run from the trolley at Woodland Avenue and Second Fifteenth street to the fair grounds during the entire afternoon and evening.

AUTHORIZE BOND ISSUE FOR BRICK PAVE WORK

Through the amendment of an ordinance, offered by Councilman Frank Randolph, the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday night, authorized the issuance of $40,000 worth of bonds to cover the cost of the brick pavement, recently completed. This action was necessary, because last year's Common Council failed to complete this part of the street and as a result it was necessary to pass the amended ordinance authorizing the Council to date the proposed issue of bonds September 1, 1907. The issue is to be $40,000 coupon bonds of $1,000 denomination each, bearing 4½ per cent. interest and are to run from September 1, 1907 to September 1, 1924.

It was stated by Mayor Fisk, who was asked to explain the matter, that the city had borrowed $40,000 on temporary notes to cover the cost of the improvement, and when the issue of bonds was prepared and Delafield and Longfellow, the bond experts, were asked to pass on them, one or two irregularities were discovered and these had to be corrected before the city could offer them for sale. He said that he wanted it understood that it was not a new issue of bonds. Mr. Mygatt also explained the matter and added that the action had the approval of Corporation Counsel Marsh.

The ordinance as amended was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised in the usual way.

MERCHANTS DESERT U. S. EXPRESS COMPANY

Complaining of the exorbitant charges of the United States Express Company in the transportation of goods to and from New York, the Plainfield Merchants' Association has inaugurated a system of delivery with the New York and Plainfield Transfer Company, whereby goods can be obtained just as quick and the charges are much less. The company which is composed of Robert Bitten-house, of Elizabeth, and Charles C. Tompkins, of Roselle, will carry overland goods both ways between Plainfield and New York.

The New York office of the company is at 135 Canal street, and goods can be sent there for delivery in Plainfield or if notified by telephone the company will send for them and deliver them to any address here. ELEVENTH TALK ON CREED

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Explains Meaning of "I Believe in Communion of Saints."

HE QUOTES BISHOP GORE.

Presbyterian Divine Tells a McKinley Incident—The Saints as Holy Persons.

In his eleventh discourse on "The Apostles Creed," Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church took for his theme, Sunday, "I Believe in the Communion of Saints," and he emphasized the importance of the belief in the Saints and their communion, which he declared should stimulate one's faith in God. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"Saints! Perhaps you say in your heart that you have no particular interest in saints and for this reason, that they seem so far removed from the practical things of earth that you can take little interest in their communion.

"You must remember that this Creed is intensely practical. It is meant to be a stimulus to hopeful living. Your belief in the articles of the Creed is meant to intensify your trust in God and His revelation.

"Therefore, does the belief in the saints add their communion stimulate your faith in God?

"Who are the saints? In the English church before the Reformation, the Latin 'Communio Sanctorum' was interpreted to mean "a fellowship of holy things' so that this part of the Creed read "I believe in the fellowship of Holy things,"—and the statement then referred to the sacrament of the church. Men confessed that they believed that those who partook of these holy rites enjoyed the blessings of holy fellowship.

"Bishop Gore of the Anglican church believes that this interpretation is right. I adhere to the common interpretation that it refers 'to the fellowship of holy persons, of all members of the body of Christ living or dead.' His view is the general view of the church.

"Who, then, are these 'holy persons' who belong to the 'Holy Catholic church.' They are holy in that they have taken Christ as their Saviour and Guide. Paul speaks of the Romans as 'saints' not because of their holy character but because they belonged to Christ and therefore any man who has given his life to Christ and means to do His will with His strength to help him, is a saint. I imagine if Paul were writing to the Christian church of Plainfield today he would write to them as 'saints of God.'

"With this definition of the saints clearly in our minds, we can say, 'I believe in the fellowship and mutual helpfulness of all God's people, Eva Donavan and Miss Myra Donavan assisted the various committees.

ERRORS COURT UPHOLDS NEW JERSEY JR.O.U.A.M.

The New Jersey State Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, won another legal victory over the National Council in a decision handed down by the Court of Errors and Appeals Monday, at Trenton. This cuts off any further legal action on the part of the national body in this State and makes the New Jersey State Council supreme in this jurisdiction.

The question at issue was the right of the National Council to appeal to the highest judicial tribunal of New Jersey within three years of a decision of the lower court. The legislature of 1907 passed an act changing the time for appeals from three years to one year, with an allowance of six months for pending cases.

The national Council filed an appeal January 20 of this year from a decision of August 16, 1906, claiming that the three-year limit should apply. The errors and appeal decision dismisses the motion, the opinion of Justice Swayze saying that the legislature had the authority to pass such an act and that six months was sufficient time for filing the appeal.

When the State and National Councils "split" the national body came into New Jersey and organized Councils at Camden and Long Branch. The State Council secured a court order restraining these Councils from acting at Jr. O. U. A. M. organizations except by charter from the State body, and also stopping the National Council from going on with the formation of Camden lodges. The National Council took an appeal, withdrew it and then appealed again after the passage of the 1907 act.

the Epistle to the Hebrews which shows that the saints have an departed interest in our earthly life. In that letter, the apostle tells us that seeing we are encompassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside everything that would impede us while we run the race that is before us." You recognize the picture. It is that of a race course surrounded with interested spectators. You have in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews the roll of those witnesses who were themselves contestants in life's battle, and now take an active interest in the race which men today are running.

"In other words, the saints in glory are interested in the saints on earth. At the end of the eleventh chapter of Hebrews we read that so close is the relation between God's people who have passed into the other life, with God's people who are still fighting life's battle on earth, that 'they without us shall not be made perfect.' Those who have passed on, then, into the other life are not dead nor even asleep until the Resurrection Day, but are alive and interested in our battles. That certainly should be an inspiration to us."

MORAL GAIN OF THE PANIC.

Many foreign critics from Anna Held to Seymour Bell, the British commercial agent in this country, and also not a few American experts in finance, have told us that the business troubles we are just getting over were brought on by extravagance. Madame Held condemned with delicious sarcasm the practise which she said wives of $15 a week clerks indulge in of dressing in the silks and laces of heiresses. Her fellow critic have not gone to such extremes but they have criticised the extravagance of American women, but it is clear enough that they believe this one of the causes of the recent financial depression.

To most Americans the question now comes: "Has this trying experience taught extravagant wives and daughters any lasting lesson?" Only *time will provide a completely satis*factory answer, but it is probably only too safe to say that the direct effect upon them will not be great.

Women who have acquired a passion for extravagant living are not reformed by a shortage of money. They spend less, to be sure, for they are forced to, but they will send all they can get, and that principle does not permit economy. It prevents that sort of husband's income increases the expenditures shall increase. Indeed, in many cases families save less when their incomes are at maximum than when at their minimum. While the habit of spending is at its height it is almost impossible for it to stop short of a considerable debt limit. Extravagant and thoughtless women have probably been taught little by the financial depression.

What, then, has been the moral gain of the disaster? It has been this: The men have been taught some valuable lessons. If they do not make good use of them it is all their own fault. They have learned that extravagance in the home has had much to do with business difficulties in general and their own private misfortunes in particular.

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY IN TWO VOLUMES NOW

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, announces that the new summer telephone directory, the distribution of which will soon begin, is issued in two volumes instead of one. The number of telephone subscribers in the metropolitan area has become so large that the complete telephone directory of this area is a book nearly one foot square, with over 800 pages, and weighing three pounds, and the companies have worked out a plan of dividing this directory into smaller volumes which will be more convenient for subscribers.

Subscribers in this territory will receive volume No. 1, New York City Directory, which will contain the listings of telephone subscribers in the five boroughs of New York city: Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond; volume No. 2, a complete list of all subscribers in the company's New Jersey territory arranged in one alphabetical list, together with a classified list of the list of the subscribers in Rockland and Westchester counties, New York. In addition to these books, subscribers will receive a small local list, printed with very legible type and numbers.

Another new feature of this directory is the elimination of the local town headings in the suburban book, all subscribers in any suburban section, such as New Jersey, for instance being listed in one alphabetical listing group. It is felt that this method will be a great improvement over the old way of listing subscribers of each little town under the town heading.

The total number of books of the summer edition of telephone directories in all divisions, will number about 1,011,900, enough books to fill over 50 freight cars.

DUNELLEN POKER RAID

John Peters, Jr. and Somerville Man are Nabbed and Fined But Others Escape.

MAYOR SWACKHAMER'S IDEA.

Suspicions of Borough Pool Room, He Forced an Entrance Saturday Midnight With Raiding Party.

John Peters, Jr., of Dunellen, was arrested at a game of poker conducted in a pool room owned by him on North avenue, Dunellen, at midnight Saturday night, when Mayor Harry H. Swackhamer, Borough Recorder David S. Campbell and Chief Marshal Bambach rallied the place while five young men were playing. Peters and a man who gave his name as John Brown, of Somerville, were fined $5 at a hearing held immediately after the raid before the Borough Recorder. The young men who were playing at the time of the hearing and fainted upon hearing his sentence.

The raid was the idea of Mayor Swackhamer, who had a suspicion that there was gambling going on in the North avenue pool-room. He notified Recorder Campbell and Marshal Bambach and the three went *to the back door and Bambach de*manded entrance from the front. As soon as those inside recognized Bambach, somebody put out the lamp burning on the poker table and the five men in the place rushed for freedom. Peters and Brown were nabbed, but the other three got away. They were recognized, however, and the Dunellen police have warrants out for their arrest. Two of them are Dunellenites.

Mayor Swackhamer seized the cards found on the table, and $4.28 which was in the pot when the play was interrupted. The two prisoners had no defence to put up at their hearing, but Peters asked Recorder Campbell if he might have the cards back. The Mayor refused the request. The pool-room has been running for the past eighteen months, and it is said that the games during the past few months have been for money. Mayor Swackhamer said yesterday that there will be other raids of suspected places.

Union County Politics.

It is evident already that Union County politics will be of the mixed variety next fall, with a strong flavoring of the "new idea" principles. The renomination of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is foreshadowed, and his *re-election is likely to follow. Sena*tor Ackerman was not a "new idea" man nor did he follow the "new idea" example in the Legislature as often as he might have done with credit. He did not vote for the public utilities bill with statemaking power, but *in most other respects he was a fair*minded legislator, who stood with his views and conclusions of his own, independent of the bosses. The general opinion in Union County is that Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, should be renominated and *re-elected, because of his independ*ence and sound judgment. It is significant, however, that nothing is heard about renominating Kirstein, of Rahway, and that already two Republicans in Elizabeth are hot foot man Moxon grabbed around during the session of the last Legislature. As Rahway has practically all to say about the assemblyman from that section of the county, and is not very particular, Kirstein may get a renomination, but it seems likely that Moxon will have a fight on his hands. He ought also to send back to the Legislature.—Newark News.

Ackerman's Candidacy.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, who was disinclined to become a candidate for a second term, has finally decided to accept a renomination if his party desires it, and there is no opposition. Mr. Ackerman has been an industrious, painstaking and conscientious Senator and belongs to the class of men who should be kept in the Legislature. Another man who deserves the same consideration is Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson County, who is one of the ablest in the present House. While he attended to about neglecting his law business, it is said he is to be renominated; which means that he will be re-elected.—Trenton Times.

METHODISTS TO UNDERTAKKE WORK AMONG ITALIANS.

Plans for co-operating with representatives of other local religious bodies in undertaking work among the Italians of Plainfield and North Plainfield, were discussed at the first quarterly conference of the First M. E. church at the Vincent chapel last night. The presiding elder, Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph was present and joined in the discussion.

It was the opinion that the work is an important one and that all of the churches should co-operate in its undertaking. A committee comprising Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, Samuel Hingaran and James R. Joy, was appointed for that purpose. The customary reports were presented from the various departments of church work and all were satisfactory, showing the church to be in excellent condition spiritually and financially.

SISTERS' ROMANCE ENDS

Engagements of the Misses Sturman to the Drs Short Suddenly Broken.

GIRLS' FATHER DID IT.

Dunellen Maidens Were to Have Wedded New York Doctors—

It's All Over Now—

Presents Returned.

Short—Sturman—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sturman, of Dunellen, N. J. wish to announce that they have broken off the engagement of their daughters, Byrde and Lillian, to Drs. Samuel and David Short, of 1,547 Madison avenue, New York city, which was announced May 31. Plainfield and Dunellen papers please copy.

When Charles Sturman was asked to explain this peculiar advertisement, which appeared in Sunday's *New York Herald, he did so willing*ly, according to him, some months ago he consented to his daughters' engagements to the two doctors in question. Later, he says, he learned some things that convinced him that the engagements had better be broken off. His daughters gave their consent and Mr. Sturman personally informed the Drs. Short of the decision.

On Wednesday last, the Misses Sturman, according to their father, received letters from the two doctors pleading with them to reconsider and declaring that their father had acted too hasty. The following day an announcement appeared in the New York Times in which the two doctors said that they never had been and never intended to be engaged to the Dunellen girls. They followed the notice in Sunday's herald.

Dr. Samuel Short is thirty-eight years of age, while his nephew, Dr. David Short, is four years his junior. The oldest Miss Sturman is nineteen years old. Her sister is seventeen. The father, Charles Sturman, declines to give his reason for having the engagement broken saying that they are purely personal.

Charles Sturman says that he voluntarily returned all the gifts that the Drs. Short had showered on his daughters.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE KITCHEN SCRAPBOOK.

To clean cup filled with vinegar and placed on the back of the stove will prevent the odor of cooking from pervading the house.

To polish a looking glass first rub it with a duster wrung out of cold water and dipped in whiting, and then polish with a dry cloth.

As soon as a salt ham or tongue is cooked remove it from the boiling water to a pan of cold water for a few seconds. This will loosen the skin, which may be easily peeled off.

To remove smoke stains from ivory immerse it in benzine and go over it with a brush.

Boil six peach kernels in a quart of milk to be used for custard; it will improve the flavor.

For cleaning tinware there is nothing better than dry flour applied with newspaper.

Keep all the kitchen utensils in one place and a small one at that; it will save time and steps.

Hungarian Assailed by Negroes.

Refusing to give up his much cherished can of beer, a South Plainfield Hungarian was set upon and beaten by two negroes, while returning to his home Saturday night. The assailants wanted the liquid for, but the Hungarian could not see it that way. After they knocked him down, they took the beer and made off with it. They gave their names as W. Casey and E. Boughton and said that their home was in Chicago. They were given fifteen days in the county jail to think it over.

CHILDREN'S DAY AND FLAG DAY SIMULTANEOUSLY OBSERVED IN THE CHURCHES

Appropriate Exercises as a Rule Take Place of Regular Morning Services in Many Edifices.

ADDRESSES AND RECITATIONS.

Father Bogan Gives a Stirring Talk at St./Mary's—The Detail Programs of the Congregations.

Children's Day and Flag Day were jointly observed in the churches Sunday. The programs as a rule consisted of addresses, music and recitations. As a rule there were elaborate floral decorations and a display of the Starry Banner.

At St. Mary's.

At St. Mary's Catholic church, Father B. M. Bogan made a patriotic address.

He said in part:

In compliance with the expressed wish of the Governor of our State said the priest, "that on this day the flag be displayed and proper allusion be made to its significance, I turn from the solemn lesson of the Gospel of the day to the no less solemn lesson of the Gospel of our Flag. Here where our thoughts are concerned in the destiny of our immortal souls, it is fitting that we turn our thoughts to the destiny of our Republic. It was my pleasure in the early hours of this bright morning to pull the rope that sent the flag aloft swelling in the gentle breeze, its stars and stripes resplendent in the glory of an unclouded sky, and the heavy foliage of the surrounding trees. And as I looked upon it a thought of deep significance came to the eloquent background of the picture, for there stood St. Mary's School. Though there is splendor in every fold of our glorious flag it has the promise of perpetual beauty and unfading youth only in the moral teaching of its doctrine. Raised above the Constitution it waves as sponsor for its promises—liberty and speech, liberty of the press, and liberty of conscience.

"Wherever that flag flies it tells an admiring world that here every man is a free man, that here the infidel, the atheist and the believer are in matters of conscience on an equal footing. That though the Constitution breathes deep of the spirit of Christianity, it guarantees on principles of Christian equity the safe, unhampered exercise of liberty in matters of conscience to all. 'A fair field and no favor' is the motto shaken free from every fold of that glorious flag. Seen in the light of our Constitution how stands the record of intolerance in sectarian education? In that school where the spirit of our flag,—the spirit of absolute fairness, the spirit of indomitable courage for conscience' sake, in the face of almost overwhelming opposition, the spirit of respect for authority taught, yea, and assimilated, in that school where the child of tender years and the boy and girl of developing mind is daily told of the presence of the God who created him, the God who redeemed him, and the God who shall inevitably judge him, the reason for patriotism becomes a part of religion as religion must ever form the basic reason for patriotism.

"What is the moving spirit of patriotism if it be not obedience to authority? and whence comes authority but from God. Hence the patriotic significance of the school that fosters a spirit of obedience to recognized authority. What a travesty of Americanism when the flag is unfurled over the Councils of men, who, though they respect the Constitution of our country that they and you and I stand under the same American flag, in the free exercises of conscience, close the hand of friendship against us except when we carry an American's vote.

"In the presence of this continued unfairness what is the principle of retaliation taught in that school? The retaliation of worth, not the retaliation of the bomb-throwing anarchist, but the ever increasing conviction that personal worth can alone from a morality of conduct that shall be the standard of real preservative Americanism."

First Baptist.

Children's Day exercises were held at the First Baptist church, in the afternoon, under the auspices of the Sunday school, when a program of more than ordinary interest was presented. The exercises ETAOIN N sented, including the promotion of children from the various departments. The exercises were in charge of Superintendent G. H. Batchelor. The church was attractively decorated with a profusion of flowers and American flags, it being the purpose to also observe Flag Day.

There was a processional, the children marching from the Sunday school room to the church, singing an appropriate hymn. Then followed recitations by Gertrude King, Ada Blume, Ethel Runyon, Elmer French, Dorothy Krewson, Hazel Coddington, Lester Chandler; a valedictory address by Lawrence French, of the Junior department; a solo, Elsie Moore and chorus of Juniors. The Sunday school room was appropriately decorated with flags and an abundance of flowers contributed by the Christian Endeavor society.

The addresses were made by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelle and William D. Murray while Superintendent Condict spoke briefly in presenting graduation diplomas to the members of the beginners' class entering the Primary department. The school took part in responsive readings and songs and the chapel choir gave special anthems.

Park Avenue Baptist.

With the church beautifully decorated with flags and flowers in abundance, and with seven canary birds, hanging in cages about the edifice, singing, the service at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday morning comprised an excellent program of recitations and music and was largely attended. In the congregation was Miss Sara Curry, manager of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, who came with a dozen New York children.

The young people gave several recitations and songs in connection with the program and the morning's collection, amounting to $70, will be devoted to the interests of the camp.

Music was a feature of the service at which Superintendent George E. Hall officiated. Mrs. Von Brakle was at the organ and Harry C. Runyon played the piano. An orchestra of eight pieces accompanied the singing and rendered two selections. It was composed of Arthur Mosher, G. W. Mosher, Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Arline Brown and George Higham, violins; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol; Whitney Frazee, cornet and Mr. Wheeler, flute. At the conclusion of the service, each member of the primary department was presented with a potted plant in bloom.

After an opening selection by the orchestra, seven young women of the church, dressed in white and carrying parasols, took part in a "Welcome" exercise. Those were the Misses Marjorie and Arline Brown, Mabel Stutsman, Isabel, Von Brakle, Autumn De Lany, Marion Mortimer, and Susan Whitney. Following a hymn by the Sunday school came a prayer by Rev. A. C. Finn, the pastor, song, "Lullaby," primary department; carol, "Fields and Vineyards," young ladies' choir; recitation, "Little Things," Miss Clara Hadley; hymn by the school, offertory, "Calvary," cornet solo by W. Seventh Day Baptist.

Children's Day at the Seventh Day Baptist church was an occasion of exceeding interest and was greatly enjoyed by a full congregation. Appropriate songs and recitations by 8 goodly number of the children were finely rendered and also three anthems, by the Young People's choir, numbering about fifteen voices, with the organ.

William D. Murray delivered a fine address to the children, which was greatly appreciated by the audience as well.

First M. E.

Children's Day exercises were held at the First M. E. church Sunday morning, the members of the school marching from Vincent chapel to the church. This program was followed:

Joy gave a half-hour talk on Epworth League connection with the General Conference of the Methodist church at Baltimore, which he attended, after which the pastor, who was a delegate to the convention, also spoke briefly of the big gathering.

Trinity Reformed.

Children's Day was a bright and happy one for the members of Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church, as well as those of the church and congregation, who were present in large numbers at the morning service which was devoted entirely to special exercises. The floral display consisted chiefly of daisies in great profusion arranged by Mrs. H. C. Crawford and other women of the Sunday-school. There were also several flags displayed which served to make appropriate decorations.

In the singing by the quartet choir and Sunday-school there was the assistance of the organ, piano and cornet, Arthur L. Tiswerth, organist, was at the organ and Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Lucy Coriell alternated at the piano, while Edmund D. Young played the cornet.

An impressive part of the service was the baptism and dedication of the eleven children by the acting pastor, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson. Those baptized were as follows:

Dorothy Evelyn Schenck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Schenck; Louise Katharine Anson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Anson; Hervey Buchanan and Robert Brand Van Nest, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert William Van Nest; Earle Stewart Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell Cooke; Alfred Tindsdale Townley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Doud Townley; Willard Lee Tunison, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gaston Tunison; Robert Emmons Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith; Dorothy Wyman Kenyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Kenyon; Walter Duckworth Emmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Emmons; William Harold Krimey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Krimey.

Another interesting sight was the processional by the members of the various classes and departments, in charge of Mrs. J. M. Tier and Mrs. H. E. Gayle, each child carrying a flag. This program was then rendered:

Welcome speech, Howard Allegar; son, "'Tis Children's Day." Primary department; recitations, "Our Day." Primary department. Appropriate "Jesus Loves the Children." Primary department: Recitations, "Children's Day;" "Beautiful Day;" song, "All for Jesus;" recitations, "Flower Voices;" "Little Daisies, Bright and Gay;" song, "Everything Sings in Summer;" recitation, "Summer's Come Again."

Diplomas were presented to the following children who were promoted from the Primary to the Main department: Helen Gates, Dorothy Dickerson, Mildred Boyle, David Hand, Donald Ween, Fred Ross, Arthur Adams, Charles Burnett; cradle roll, Primary department; Edith Shotwell, Ruth Kennedy, Raymond Adams and Elizabeth Burroughs.

Continuing the program there was an anthem by the choir, recitations, "A Good Name," Benjamin Kringer; "Two Words," Ruth Waldgrf; song, school; recitations, "If I Were a Sunbeam," Eleanor Searing; "If Sincere," Dayton Ballantyne; song, school; sermon, pastor.

Congregational Church.

Superintendent J. M. Whiton, of the Congregational Sunday-school, gave an informal talk on the history of the development of the flag at the combination Flag Day and Children's Day service at the Congregational church Sunday morning. He displayed the nine flags which have represented our country from the Declaration of Independence to the present time. At the conclusion of his remarks, he presented each member of the Sunday-school with a silk flag.

The church was handsomely decorated with flags and wild flowers and the service was the occasion of the graduation of seven pupils from the primary to the junior department of the Sunday-school. The graduates were Ruth Fuller, Anita Barnes, Donald Hyland, Clark Mundy, Eugene S. Martin, Romeyne Voorhees, and Axel Brandt. The diplomas were given by Rev. C. L. Goodrich and each of the pupils was presented with a Bible as a graduation present.

Water brought by Superintendent Whiton from the river Jordan was used in the baptismal service, when Mr. Goodrich administered the rite to eight young people. In accordance with the custom of the school, Miss Margaret Beck received a Bible to mark her seven years attendance with the Sunday-school. A thousand and thirty-eight pennies, representing the birthday offering of the primary department, was received for the Children's Home.

"The Cottonwood Tree" was the topic of a short address by the pastor. Music was a feature of the service, and Charles L. Lewis, the precentor, who was in charge, sang a solo "Suffer Little Children." Miss Alice Morgan was at the piano and Henry Brand furnished a violin obligato. The service concluded with the singing of "America" by the school.

Faith Chapel.

Special exercises, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and a cantata, "Queen of June" combined to make the Children's Day exercises at Faith chapel, last night, one of enjoyment to the large audience. There were 127 members of the school present, in addition to members of the chapel and congregation. Superintendent L. W. Randolph was in charge of the program.

The program opened with an organ and violin selection by W. A. Conger and Clarence Lawrence; song by the school, "Listen to the Call of Spring;" Scripture reading by Frank Stewart, assistant superintendent and prayer by Superintendent Randolph, which was followed by a vocal duet by David Patterson and Mrs. Charles Quint; a trio, piano, violin and organ, Miss Kay Randolph, Clarence Lawrence and W. A. Conger; song by the school after which the cantata was given. Those who took part were as follows:

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 21, 1903 the opportunity to carry it into effect. If we choose certain careers, such as a professional one, for instance, the pathway is plain before us. We must graduate from college and the professional school and begin our professional work. But if, we elect to follow a trade or to engage in business the question arises, How shall we get a situation? Or if no particular choice has been made, but time is left to the best opportunity in any life work that will offer itself to us, the same question arises.

No definite rules can be laid down for, securing a situation. Many seen in all walks of life could hardly tell how they came to be where they are. In the final analysis there is but one answer—God directed their lives for them. This was true in Joseph's case, and let us hope it has been true and will be true in our lives regardless of the human means used by Providence. Speaking practically, situations are secured through personal applications for vacant positions, advertising in the newspapers, and answering advertisements in the papers and through the influence and recommendations of relatives or friends, or it may be that we ourselves may attract attention and have a position offered to us. This, however, is rarely the case. No place worth having is worth seeking for.

We should not wait for something to turn up, but turn something up. But these are really only the incidentals. Before we can secure a desirable situation we must have in some way that we are worthy of it, especially in character and in ability. Character is essential above all things. Ability can only be judged before it has been tested, but a good moral character is an immediate necessity. No one knows this better than pastors, who not only frequently recommend young people for situations, but are even more frequently asked for references after applications have been made. These reference blanks often ask for an opinion as to ability, but they want specific and definite answers as to honesty, sobriety and trustworthiness. The writer of this article in his early ministry kept a record of the first question asked by business men to whom he applied personally for positions or other men. The number of applications recorded was eighty, and in seventy-nine cases out of the eighty the first question asked was, "Does he drink?" Every respectable business firm wants a drinking man in its employment. Nor will it engage boys with bad habits. But a boy or young man who possesses good health, a fair amount of intelligence, is honest, upright and willing to work need not want for a situation. The world will give him a trial, and success or failure then depends upon him.

Keeping a situation after it has been secured depends upon ourselves. Many try to put the blame upon others for lost positions, but that does not succeed. (1) We must show ourselves worthy of the position intrusted to us. If we cannot perform the duties required, we will soon have successors. (2) Business must mean business. Punctuality is regularity must characterize our business lives. Every duty required should be promptly and willingly performed. (3) There should be no fear of doing a little extra work. A young man lost a good position with a reliable firm because when, having nothing for the moment to do, he disdained to clean a window. Nor should we be frightened at a little work overtime. The employee who cannot get to the street too quickly after the bell rings will probably soon have all his time to himself. (4) Be cheerful and respectful at all times, no matter how hard the task set before you. (5) Take Christ with you to your place of business. Make him your silent partner in business, whether you are errand boy or a bank cashier. Do thoroughly and well your duties in the humbler positions, and advancement and success will be your reward.

Christian Endeavor Forerunner.

Rev. Richard Richard tells in the Christian Endeavor Times of England about a boys' religious society formed in 1760 in a school kept by Rev. John Ryland, the Baptist clergyman who baptized William Carey. After a revival in the school a few of the boys met together regularly for prayer in the "summer house," and when they reached the number of half a dozen they framed and signed the following rules for their society:

First.—To meet at 5:30 in the evening on Monday and Wednesday.

Second.—Every member shall pray in his turn.

Third.—To take in none till they have been first talked with and examined.

Fourth.—That any member acting contrary to these rules and according to the rules of Christ or whose conduct shall be disgraceful to their profession shall be excluded after the second admonition.

Fifth.—No member shall say anything about this society to the other boys.

Sixth.—None shall be absent without a good reason.

It will be noticed that in many points this is similar to the Christian Endeavor pledge, though rule No. 5 is certainly quite the opposite of Christian Endeavor ideals. With this "old time pledge as a text Mr. Richard makes an earnest plea for the organization of Christian Endeavor societies in schools and colleges, a plea which we heartily second.

GIRL AIDED LOVER TO MURDER RIVAL

YOUNG MAN AND BRIDE, HAUNTED BY VICTIM, CONFESS TO AWFUL CRIME.

BENNETT LURED TO HIS DEATH

Miss Zane Then Struck First Blow After Which Others Finished Him—Tragedy Was Deliberately Plotted.

Wheeling, W. Va.—In an appalling confession made the other day by Charles Cook, 18 years old; his wife, Lila Zane Cook, 20, and Joseph White, 21, the police learned for the first time how Charles Bennett, a youthful rival of young Cook before the latter's marriage to Miss Zane, was murdered on Wheeling Island last September.

Mrs. Cook is a descendant of the aristocratic Zane family, which once owned all of Wheeling and the island. She is an athletic girl of unusual beauty and has held a prominent place among the young folk in local society. The police say the confessions of the three agree in every detail and there is no doubt they are telling the truth.

Bennett and Cook were bitter rivals for the hand of Miss Zane, and last summer fought over her. Miss Zane became embittered against Bennett, and then, it is declared, his murder was deliberately plotted.

Bennett was invited to visit the girl at her home on the island. When he called he found Cook and the quarrel was resumed. Bennett left the house, but Miss Zane called to him to wait for her.

"I want to talk with you," she said, according to her confession to the police.

Bennett and the girl walked toward the river. They were standing on the point of the island when Cook and White appeared. Just what object White had in aiding Cook has not been made plain.

As the men came into view, the girl says, she took a large club which lay on the river bank and struck Bennett a blow on the head, which felled him. As he rose Cook rushed forward and struck him with the butt of a revolver, fracturing his skull. Many other blows were dealt the unconscious man, White taking part in the attack.

She Struck Bennett a Blow on the Head.

When life was apparently extinct White and Cook took the body to the edge of the water and tossed it into the stream. It did not sink, and Cook, wading, pushed the body far out into the river.

When Bennett was reported missing by his parents there was a search made by the police. A week later the body floated ashore at Weegee, O. The skull was crushed, and that murder had been done was not questioned.

About this time Cook married Miss Zane, and when the body was discovered the young couple suddenly left Wheeling and went to Detroit. Chief of Police Clemens went to Detroit and had the pair arrested, but they told a straightforward story and were liberated.

Cook brought his bride back here a month ago. Both were haunted by their victim and couldn't get the crime out of their minds. Cook finally told his mother how Bennett had been killed, and his bride confirmed the story. The mother advised them to make a confession, which they did.

Hatched on Flying Car.

York, Pa.—Fourteen births in quick succession occurred upon a trolley car en route from Dallastown to York, to the interest and amusement of a lot of passengers. The new arrivals, all born during the seven-mile run, were 14 fluffy little chicks.

An old hen, setting upon a basket of 15 eggs, was part of an outfit which came by trolley from the lower end of the county. When the eggs began to hatch en route the mother hen was nearly distracted by the untimeliness of the event, but made the best of it, and the peeps were as bright and hearty as though they had opened their eyes in a barnyard.

He's a Climber.

Ascum—Did you ever get into a discussion with Swellman? It doesn't take long to get him up a tree.

VARIOUS SUGGESTIONS FOR THE KITCHEN.

To preserve unused yolks of eggs, put the yolks in a cup or basin, dip a piece of kitchen paper in cold water and place over top of cup or basin. This will keep them for days.

When making suet crust, mix with boiling water instead of cold, and the result will be a much lighter pastry.

A mixture of three parts of linseed oil and one part of spirits of turpentine is the best preparation for restoring furniture that is marked or scratched. It will restore the wood to its original color and leave a lustre on the surface. Apply the mixture carefully and when dry polish with a woolen cloth.

When making pea soup, if the peas are boiled a little while, separately, with a pinch of common washing soda, they will be found to cook much more quickly. They do not need soaking.

It is not generally known that common alum, melted in an iron spoon over a hot coals, forms an exceedingly strong cement for joining glass, china and metal, or breakages of any kind. Articles mended with this cement may be washed without fear of coming apart.

If new linoleum is rubbed over with fresh lard, then thoroughly heated in the oven before it is used, it will never rust afterward.

To remove mildew from linen—Wash inwarm water with a good soap, and spread on the grass in the sun. The mildewed parts with finely powdered chalk, dampening it from time to time as it dries, repeating the proces son the second day, and after washing, the stains will have disappeared. Mildew marks on leather can be removed by rubbing with a little petroleum ointment.

Paint marks on glass—Dip a penny in cold water and scrape off the paint with it, using the edge to scrape with. Another plan is to mix whiting with ammonia, and then add water to make it the consistency of cream. Put this on the paint mark, leave the paste on to dry, and then wash off with soap and hot water. New lamp glasses, if put in water and allowed to boil first, will last longer.

When stewing fruit, add the sugar after the fruit is cooked, but while it is still hot. By doing this a smaller quantity of sugar is needed.

A hint about mixing mustard—When mixing mustard, add a saltspoon of salt and the same quantity of moist sugar, and mix with boiling water. It will be found to keep moist much longer and have a better taste.

WHEN WASHING THE DELICATE COLORS.

An excellent laundress who has never been known to fade a summer frock says she has a special "fixative" for every color.

Alum used in the rinsing water will prevent green from fading. A handful of salt thrown into the rinsing water will set blue.

Oxgall is good to use for gray and brown. A solution of water made by pouring boiling water over hay is excellent for washing tan or brown linen.

A tablespoonful of black pepper stirred into the first suds in which cottons are washed will prevent colors from running.

Five cents' worth of sugar of lead crystals dissolved in a pailful of water makes a solution which fixes the tone of pinks, blues and lavenders. he fabrics should remain in the sugar of lead bath half an hour or an hour before going to the suds.

These baths will not prevent a garment from fading if it is hung in the sun to dry. Delicate colors, in fact, any colors at all, are safe if dried in the house.

Vinegar is useful in reviving colors. Add one teaspoonful of common vinegar to each quart of cold rinsing water. Thoroughly saturate the article, wring tightly and dry quickly.

If the color has been take out of silks by fruit stains, ammonia will usually restore it.

To wash brown Holland dresses, use bran, but no washing soda, and no soap unless the skirt is very dirty. Boil two handfuls of bran in one quart of water and strain through muslin. Put the bran on to boil again, as you will require a second supply of bran water for rinsing.

Cool the water by adding one quart of cold water to it. Then wash the skirt. You will be surprised to see how the bran extracts the dirt. Rinse the bran water in cold water. Dry quickly.

If this is repeated with fresh soap once or twice and a dry piece of towel substituted when the original one is saturated, no cotton or silk of which the bodice is made will be kept perfectly dry.

Brown—MacMurray Wedding.

Miss Susan G. Brown, daughter of George S. Brown, of Stockton, became the wife of Charles G. MacMurray, of Grandview avenue, at a quiet home wedding at the residence of the bride's father yesterday afternoon. Mr. MacMurray, who is a letter carrier, is brother of City Clerk Charles T. MacMurray, and after a short wedding trip will bring his bride to this city and make his home on Grandview avenue.

A LITTLE ADVICE ABOUT BUYING A KODAK.

"I will get a cheap one to experiment on," says the amateur, "then get a better one after I learn." There is little advantage in this and you will find that it is far more expensive in the end than a good one at the start.

If you really fail to learn the art, then you can sell the good kodak at almost the price you paid for it. A cheap one does cheap work and the repeated failures are not the fault of the artist, but the result of a poor kodak. Take good pictures and sell them. One young man netted quite a sum of money in a small town making pictures of various streets, driveways, churches, the schoolhouse and places of interest. He sold enough postals and got enough orders in his own home town to keep him busy all last summer and late into the fall. Good pictures are ready sellers, especially scenes of interest in one's own town.

It is not necessary to go into Niagara on well-known resorts to get some unknown for the professionals take care of that work, but every city, every town or little hamlet affords its own places of interest and beauty, and the smaller the place the more natural beauty will be found in the rural scenes. The nearer to the city life one gets, the more perceptible are artificial places of beauty.

A WANT THAT IS NOT SUPPLIED.

It is time that some enterprising *business woman should take advan*tage of the present condition of utter disregard on the part of business men to cater any longer for clothes and hats suitable for elderly women.

It has come to be a positive hardship for women from 60 on to find a hat in any of the large shops which have millinery departments, or at the private establishments scattered about the city. In the latter class of shops they will offer to make up a suitable hat, but that is not always convenient for the buyer. The fact is, a large public is by this means ignored and put to disadvantages. No one has yet had the business sense to perceive the present matron's taste and to recognize the modern style in which women of the age referred to desire to dress.

The frumpy, old-fashioned styles will no longer be tolerated, neither do the women of good taste—when grandmothers—wish to appear with hats, gowns and costumes fit for their youngest daughters. The business world of France has always made the dress of a woman of a certain age a perfect study, so that no woman elsewhere is ever so filly or so beautifully costumed on all occasions.—Vogue.

THE PROBLEM OF THE SMALL BOY.

Striped madras is a favorite material in the suits of the small boy. Its only difficulty is the latter materials are usually made with the yoke, sailor collar and general finish of the Peter Thompson.

The stiff Buster Brown collar does not appear as frequently as last year.

An original appearance is bestowed by the diagonal opening of the tunic.

Some of the less mannish coats have the ship band around the arm.

For the boy with the Lord Fauntleroy temperament white reefers are offered.

Black and white and navy blue and *white stripes will form correct hos*iery for the small boy.

The white-trimmed straw sailor is inflected variously for his wear.

The average hat of this sort sells for about $2.50.

To Clean a Lace Yoke.

Many people are puzzled by the problem how to clean the lace yoke of a gown may be cleaned without detaching it from the bodice. If it is washed in the ordinary way, by dipping it into a basinful of soapsuds, the al*most inevitable result is that of wet*ting the material of the gown, the color of the latter staining the lace.

By far the best result, however, may be gained by first rolling a corner of a bath towel into a thick pad and placing this under the lace.

A brush or cloth should then be dipped in a good lather and dabbed over the yoke, which is meanwhile being well squeezed between the fingers.

If this is repeated with fresh soap once or twice and a dry piece of towel substituted when the original one is saturated, no cotton or silk of which the bodice is made will be kept perfectly dry.

THE GREAT DANGER IN CHEAP CANDIES.

In no part of the world is the candy-eating habit so universal as in the United States. That pure and well-made sweets are wholesome and sometimes highly nourishing is now admitted by physicians of the highest standing. Nothing produced by any of the great manufacturers of confectionery need, therefore, be looked upon with suspicion. But the cheap candies sold by street "fakers," or in obscure shops in the poorer quarters are often extremely dangerous. The ingredients used are always of the most doubtful character, and, as analysis have proved, are sometimes highly poisonous.

From time to time instances occur of children being poisoned by eating these common candies. There have been several deaths from this cause, both in Philadelphia and New York, and recently an important prosecution was levied against a cheap form of chocolate that was sold in the streets of London. Under the searching examination of analysts it was revealed a remarkable concoction, the most important feature of which was paraffin wax manipulated in such a way that it resembled the creamy contents of chocolate. The wax is a highly injurious and extremely poisonous compound, but the keen confectioner flavored until it was fairly palatable.

More recently the Durham inspector under the sale of food and drug acts drew attention to the grave injury accompanying the consumption by children of sweets containing chlorodyne. The worst offenders in this instance, it appears, are those known as "chlorodyne gums" and "chlorodyne lozenges," usuually sold in England at a penny per ounce. When the composition of these gums and lozenges was investigated it was found that they contained 5-100ths and 5-100ths minim of chloroform, respectively, per gum and lozenge. Other sweets of the chocolate variety were found to be equally dangerous, since they contained alcohol in varying quantities.

All of which makes it plan that neither English nor American children should be permitted to eat any form of cheap confectionery. The long-established firms of chocolate makers produce sweets that are perfectly wholesome, but the common candies on the street should always be rewarded with suspicion.

THE PROBLEM OF LITTLE GIRLS' CLOTHES.

If you have, for instance, two or *three little girls, whose ages are be*tween 1 and 6 years, you may find the following suggestions valuable in the selection of their midsummer wardrobe:

Get them plenty of "rompers" for playtime.

These garments are made from madras, gingham, chambray and cotton cheviot.

Cotton voile makes up into very pretty dresses for small girls, and so, too, dimity. The latter materials, however, demands more in the way of laundering than the voile.

Only simple models should be selected. A 2-year-old child will have the one-piece style, falling straight to the hem from as hort yoke formed of the material and cut square at as a finish than beading, threaded with narrow black velvet around the neck and confining the puff sleeves.

An older girl could wear little French frocks very simply made, the long waist and short skirt being joined under the threaded beading. This is an especially pretty model for dimity.

Cotton vile in a small check could be made up as guimpe frocks.

The little girl's best dresses could be of lingerie, white dotted Swiss or muslin, trimmed with a little lace and a touch of dainty ribbon.

For wraps, get serge in brown, gray, old rose, cream or dark red and make it up in Red Riding Hood style, with the hood lined with fancy silk, carrying out the color of the clothes.

This model is extremely practical, for it can be put over a pretty frock without crushing it and hood part often comes in most conveniently.

Shoe hats will not be much in demand, but pretty sunbonnets or sun hats should be taken.

There should bep lenty of socks or stockings, as the case may be, also dainty shoes and slippers.

Pretty ribbons for hair or sashes should not be forgotten, as these must always be fresh, and quite a number will be taken.

Given dainty shoes and fresh, crisp hair ribbons, the frock becomes only of secondary importance.

AWARD BRIDGE CONTRACT TO SERRELL CONTRACTING CO.

There was only one bid received yesterday at the office of County Engineer F. J. Hubbard on Park avenue, for the building of an extension of the Jackson avenue bridge, as advertised by the Hudson County Board of Freeholders. It was from the Serrell Contracting Company and being for $300 the amount of the appropriation the contract was awarded. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane is the chairman of the committee in charge of the work.

The plans provide for an extension of one end of the bridge which will bring it to the side-line of Midway avenue. Heretofore, there has never been the need for this improvement, but recent changes on the avenue have now made it necessary for the freeholders to act.

CARPETS OF PERSIA.

Price of Fabric Determined by Number of Knots.

The India Office has received a very interesting note on the carpets made in the Province of Kain, in Persia, from W. Howson, who says the London Globe, was formerly British agent at Birjand. The carpets manufactured in the Kaimat are of two classes—the Baluch and the Bahiuli —which are made by the nomad tribes of those names, and the Drukrshi, which are made in the village of Durukhsh. The first are small rugs of the darker shade of red and blue, with a groundding of brown camel wool, and the designs are very simple. The Drukhshi carpets are woven on upright looms with a white (English) cotton warp, and a woof of wool. Variegated colors are used, and the designs are numerous and effective. The manufacturers always sell by the 'muqata," the equivalent of 6,000 stitches or knots, and as the number of "muqatas" in any carpet cannot be calculated exactly before the carpet is finished, they have to be accounted after completion, when the exact price is determined. At the time of ordering half the estimated price has to be paid in advance, and an agreement should always be taken binding the makers to use vegetable dyes, otherwise aniline dyes are certain to be substituted.

TO ADORN THE NECK.

Tucked stocks are trimmed with finely knife pleated ruffles around the lower edge.

A shirtwaist jabot is made with a one-inch band of insertion that reaches from the neck to the waist line. It is trimmed on each side with a ruffle of lace, 2 inches of muil. At the top is a little fan shaped bow made of fluted muil.

A white linen collar is slit on both sides of the centre front. It is finished like beading around the edge and double row of stitching is inserted at the inside, the bow ends protruding through the slits. Between the bows are three tiny but tons the color of the ribbon.

There are so many novelty ties that it is impossible to convey the idea of beauty they really display, for surely the art of bow tying has never been so perfect as today. For example, there is the round collar composed entirely of very fine pin tucks. It is made of white material At the top is a one-eighth inch band of flowered ribbon. This protects the white collar top. At the front on the lower edge is attached a of "your own" at an infinitesimal dainty double bow of flowered rib bon.

Alas! Alack! The outlook's sad,
The thing is daily getting worse;
It's bound to put us to the bad,
And leave us with an empty purse.

Those flowers all cost quite enough,
It seemed, in simpler days than these;
And feathers were expensive stuff,
But still we had to pay for these.

And then there came along the fruit
For ornament. At that the stress
Became, in fact, a case of loot
Of pocket-book, aye, nothing else.

And now, good sooth, they say that veg-
Etables are to add their charm
Unto her lid. This is a wedge
That tends to fill us with alarm.

For if she finds they're what she wants—
You know that sort of thing ne'er stops;
The apprehension's one that haunts
Won't she soon want, too, steaks and chops?

On the Trail.

"I'm gunning for railroads," announced the fat-witted editor.

"Then come with me," whispered the hear-humorist. "I can show you some of their tracks."—Southwestern Book.

"Why?"

How to Read off Criticism.

Forgiveness is always exended for the mixing of metaphors if the mixer takes the precaution to let it be known that he is aware of the mixing.

"Jones looks a good deal like a has-been to me."
"A has-been! I should say so! That fellow would be blackballed in the Down and Out Club!"

Absurd All Around.

"Who is the old fellow over there with the comic coat, the stovepipe hat, and the baggy kneed trousers?"
"That's the professor who is lecturing on the absurdities of woman's dress?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Civil Engineering in the South.

Herbert Ranalje, son of Rev. Daniel Ranalje, of Carlton avenue, has returned to the city for a brief vacation from his duties as civil engineer for the Carolina Trucking Development Company near Wilmington, N. C. The concern controls an immense tract of land in the most fertile part of the State and is colonizing it for the purpose of promoting truck farming. Mr. Ranalje has charge of the mapping out of the property and has been very successful in his work.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM.

The following interpretation of the twenty-third psalm is probably the best and most comprehensive and satisfactor sermon in the English language. It is crediting to a woman, Mrs. John R. Mott, and is in circulation in a number of religious weeklies:

The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.
He shall not want rest. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures.
He shall not want drink. He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He shall not want forgiveness. He restoreth my soul.
He shall not want guidance. He leadeth me in the paths of Righteousness, for his name's sake.
He shall not want companionship. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me.
He shall not want comfort. Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.
He shall not want food. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
He shall not want joy. Thou anointest my head with oil.
He shall not want anything. My cup runneth over.
He shall not want anything in this life. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.
He shall not want anything in eternity. And I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."—Indianapolis News.

The Winds are fresh and soft
And the boss is wearing every Day
The frown that won't come off.

The Tired reporters mosey out

The poet whiffs the air as if
It was Sum vital drug
And rites a rapsody of spring
Which is the poets Bug.

The Porter cums along to sweep
And dragging from the Hips

Spring Shopping.

It was the busy hour of four
When from a city hardware store
Emerged a gentleman who bore
A screens, 50 feet of garden hose
A rake, 1 wheelbarrow.

This gentleman with air distraught
A big department shop then sought
And there invested in or bought
50 yards mosquito netting.
A hammock, 1 croquet set.

His business next our hero leads Unto a place which retails seeds.
It takes to satisfy his needs
24 packages assorted annuals, 10
Rose bushes, 1 peck mixed bulbs.

The sun was low behind a hill
When he got out to Lonelyville.
And then his wife in accents shrill
Pointed out that he'd forgotten
The sprinkling can, the pruning shears, and the lawn mower!

Tale of a Transportation.

In times of athletic rivalry no second expresses the thoughts of a Harvard man better than "To h—l with Yale." Dean Briggs, of the faculty, and the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, veteran clergyman and chaplain of the United States Senate, once went down to Soldiers' Field together at such a time.

"Where are you going, dean?" asked a friend.

"To yell with Hale," answered the smiling Briggs patriotically and with diplomacy.—Boston Herald.

Thoughtless.

His spoiled his springtime outing
Along the mountain streams a-trouting
Where the poet in his fancy loves to roam.
He had his fur coat and his mittens,
And his earmuffs, warm as kittens,
But he'd left his skates and snowshoes both at home.

Useful When Traveling.

A new and dainty gift which may be made at home is a collar box, or a small round pasteboard box about three inches high covered with denim. Such an one has been known to have its foundation in the wooden box supplied with camembert cheese. But it may be made of any other box convenient. When it is covered, it is decorated with designs cut from wallpaper, which are applied on the top and round the sides.

Then a rose would be pasted on the top of a box, leaving the leaves to extend over the sides and to twine gracefully around the outer edge.

"Is she good looking?"
"Well, she would pass in a crowd."
"Pass what?"
"Anything but a millinery establishment."

THE OLD COLONEL.

By HUGH JOHNSON

(Copyright.)

In the colonel's office the blinds were drawn save one, the wood fire was half white embers, and the room was stuffy and dark. In the gloomiest corner of all, where the great polished desk was dimly outlined in the shadows, sat the leonine old man himself, his weakening gray eyes strained out across the drill ground where a squadron of his cavalry was maneuvering in the white glare of a Texas sun on naked Texas limestone. The motives and the song of the rapidly shifting picture was youth, triumphant and resistless.

The horses were wild, eyes bloodshot, nostrils red, but the men who rode them still loosened rein, stood in their stirrups and yelled like the demoniac horsemen of Attila. Their cheeks were flushed with the adolescence of 20; and as the spit grew furious, boot to boot and shoulder to shoulder, they, too, became crazed with the primal fervor of swift, irresistible motion. The flapping pennants of the guidons and the flying manes blew in their faces, and through the dust clouds from their horses' feet their sabers flashed glints of the sun to the colonel's eyes and his own blood quickened with theirs; but as they wheeled into column and broke to right and left at the end of the course, he drooped back in his chair, his eyes gazing dumbly at the rows of photographs above the bronze mortars of Chapultepec.

There were they—the men who had been young with him—in all their gaudy bravery, baldric, tunic and dolman, and out on the plain were the men who were young when he was old—so old. It was they—they and their youth—who were slowly forcing him from the service that he loved; and he almost hated—them and their youth. They were always respectful—even admiring; but between him and them there was no one thing in common. Even his majors were young majors, and in a garrison of a thousand souls he was pitifully alone. He remembered the hill and the general on his immortal white horse and every face that looked down on him from the wall. The youngsters might laugh, but it was all very real to the colonel; and he was sure that he hated them and their youth.

He arose and crossed over to the mess as they came in all aglow from drill. The boisterous excitement of the charge was still with them, their spurs dragged with the bravado that young spur-wearers know, their sabers clanked with every movement, and they talked of "I" troop's error or "C" troop's mistake in loud, boyish voices; but as the colonel passed into the billiard room every voice quieted, hats came off, chairs reaped across the floor as their occupants got to their feet, all laughing ceased. He was not of them and they could not have said so in plainer words; his very presence was a discomfort to them, and he scowled from under his hat brim and gutturaled unintelligibly. He walked angrily into the steward's room and the door crashed behind him; he stalked along the gravel path to headquarters and sank again into the big leather chair beneath the rows of photographs on the wall, glooming. Once he raised his eyes to the brave faces; his own drooped forward on his hands and rested there long. Perhaps he drowsed a little.

This was why the adjutant, who sat in the colonel's outer office and acted as a buffer between him and his regiment, shook his head to subalterns, and even to a youngish major who stood ready to tap the colonel's door.

"Better cuidado," he warned. "The old man's all liver to-day," and the subalterns and the youngish major tiptoed away thankfully, having intimate knowledge of the bitter tongue of the choleric old man.

"Lord pity that new youngster from the Point if he joins to-day, two days over his leave," breathed the youngish major, and the mess window seat; and "O Lord!" echoed the subalterns.

"He's coming all right," volunteered the quartermaster, whose business it is to know everything in a garrison. "Here's his telegram from Perdido station. The Daugherty's been gone to meet him for over two hours."

"Poor kid!" patronized the subalterns from the prestige of their two years' service.

The Daugherty clanked into Fort Perdido in the late afternoon, the four mules, the boot, everything, white with alkali dust. It drew up with a creaking of brakes before the adjutant's quarter and a very straight, very slender, brown-eyed boy climbed out of its depths as the teamster fumbled a long military trunk from the boot and threw a canvas-covered saber on the walk. The boy, whose cheeks glowed through their coating of dust like the bloom of a dead ripe peach though its fuzz, stood by his suit case and gazed about him in bewilderment; then, as the subalterns flocked out to greet him who was to be one of them, he stiffened cadet-wise to attention and saluted very ceremoniously like an officer of the day at guard mount, all of which was woefully incongruous from a military viewpoint. The youngish major watched it all from the club window.

"Like that," he sighed. "And two days overdue. Poor, poor kid!"

The subalterns took the slender boy under tutelage at once. They hurried him to the bachelor quarters; and, while their brown muchachos drew his bath and laid out his linen and fitted the bronze buttons into his painfully new khaki, they warned and coached him and commiserated with him. When he was arrayed as to uniform and girded and spurred, they walked with him to the headquarters verandas and watched him enter the low, dark doorway, while their hearts beat in sympathy with him; he was such a clean-cut, wholesome boy. One of them went as far with him as the adjutant's desk, unconsciously tiptoeing in dread of the painful shriek of his companion's new boots. The subalterns' faces were framed white in the window, and the adjutant and the men outside held their breath as the new boots creaked in the strained silence straight up to the dreaded door.

A dropping pin would have sounded clearly, and the boy's firm tap, tap, tap shattered the stillness and echoed in the bare room. The silence closed in again for five anxious seconds, a base drum rumbled from the shadows, and the boy was in the presence.

Perhaps the colonel drowsed a little. He often did in these latter days beneath the kindly faces on the wall that smiled and grew dim as seen through something in his eyes. Perhaps he did, for surely this was the Nashville pike that thrummed like a tocsin beneath his horses' feet; and surely this was his own troop that clattered along behind him in route order; this was his own dark hair that drooped below his ears and framed his bronzed young face.

Then that last dance with the little girl with brown eyes came up in his dream.

But with the incongruity of dreams the colonel was far away from the Franklin pike, though journeying thereward on a trip that he had long promised himself after Appomattox. No troop clanged behind him now, and only the rise and fall of a glossy bay shoulder met his eye as he rested on his pommel and drowsed his dream. Again he drew rein at a house near Nashville, for his destination was miles beyond; and though the spires of the city showed blue-tinged in the twilight distance, the night was rolling in from the valleys and the road was strange. Soon he was asking a cheery young man for a night's hospitality and superintending the stabling of his horse.

This portion of the colonel's dream was as the rest, intermittent, with no ordered sequence of events worth mentioning, for now he stood with his back to an open fire and his hostess was on the stairs. There was a rustle of skirts in the hall and he had advanced a step toward the door and now stood with hand half raised, staring dumbly into the pained face of a woman with brown eyes; and in that surge of emotion, forgetting the blanch of his own face or the wonder of his host's—

The bountiful supper was a torture, and the endless winter evening, with the host rattling brainlessly of fields and stock and events, satisfied with abstract monosyllabic answers, was unbearable. Hundred times that sleepless, miserable night he checked an impulse to steal down the stairs and ride away with his misery, uncheered. He walked down in the first wan light of morning, but the man was there to meet him, goading his mind to frenzy with well-intended banalities. To go without breakfast was unheard of in the south? Would he thus injure the self-pride of his willing host? He must sit quietly while everything was done to speed him on his way. The host himself would—must—see to the saddling of his horse, and he was almost forced into a chair.

If only he had been spared that moment before the last, and yet, if he had missed it when he stood facing that accusation that had been repeated with her heart throbs and that at last took words and fell upon him blameless, with a quaver more bitter than sobs, a bitterness that had remained with him until now, leavening his life and changing every attribute of youth.

"Why didn't you come? Oh, why didn't you come?" said the woman, whose lot it was to wait for his coming always.

And the man, her husband, stood aghast as his guest rode on his frantic mission straight away from Nashville, with never a glance in that direction or a word of farewell.

For the guest heard only the tread of his horse's feet on the frost-hardened road that raised a question on his anguish-numbed mind, over and over again, and it grew loud and receded and grew loud and became a tapping on his office door; and he raised his head and looked straight into those brown eyes and that face, and heard a fresh young voice saying:

"Lieut. —— reports for duty," and he was on his feet, quickly grasping the lad by the arm.

"What is your name, boy, your name?"

And the bitterness was gone away forever.

Left a Queer Will.

Sig. Eugenio Padova's tradespeople will bless him in memory. He was a rich Italian gentleman, who lived for years in Paris, and has just died, leaving an original but generous will. He bequeaths $600 to be divided among all the barbers who ever shaved him at a hair dresser's where he went regularly. Every waiter who served him in the restaurants in which he was accustomed to dine gets a legacy. He leaves money also to the clerks of the shops of which he was a regular customer, and to the servants of the clubs to which he belonged.

Some of the charity that begins at home makes a hasty getaway.

DESERTER GOT SAFELY AWAY.

Story of an Ingenious Escape from Governor's Island.

An army officer, who was talking of the escape a few days ago of a couple of prisoners from Castle William, told several stories of other attempts, frequently unsuccessful, to get away from Governor's Island.

"One of the most ingenious that I remember," he said, "took place a few years ago and succeeded beautifully. The man who escaped had been a barber before he enlisted in the army, and his job at Castle William was to shave and cut the hair of the other prisoners. He managed to save enough of the clippings to make a false mustache. Then in some way—it's hard to tell how those things are contrived—he had a suit of plain clothes smuggled in to him. Still he wasn't in any rash hurry to get away, but waited till a really good opportunity occurred. This came to him when a gang of plumbers were in the old fort making repairs. One evening he rigged himself up in his clothes and mustache and, picking up a couple of pieces of lead pipe and a forged soldier pot, he walked leisurely out with the plumbers when they quit work. Right past the guard he went without being recognized, and, so far as I ever heard, he was not recaptured. I always thought that was a really clever escape—rather a theatrical one, too."

BROOM A RELIC OF THE PAST.

Modern Housekeeping Declared to Have No Longer Use for It.

The newest household invention, found only in the buildings most recently erected, is the vacuum cleaning system, says the Delineator. The broom is almost ready to be relegated to the glass case of a museum and labeled as a tool of ancient housekeeping industry, for now we are sweeping by electricity. All the dust and dirt is actually pumped out from a house and, through pipes in the walls, carried to the sewer. A rubber hose in the room, adjusted to a connection in the wall, communicates directly with the pump in the basement. The metal tool with a narrow groove in the underside, at the other end of the hose, is easily guided by the operator as it passes over the surface of floors, walls, furniture, clothing or bedding, sucking up every foreign particle.

There have recently been invented portable vacuum machines which may be operated at an expense of two cents an hour. The latest one is just on the market at a cost of only $125.

"Hearing" of "Deaf Mutes."

Contrary to the general belief, nearly all deaf people, according to a foreign scientific magazine, can hear some sound, but, unlike the normal ear, the deaf ear hears only very deep sounds.

It happens that some of the lower animals hear only deep sounds; this is to be concluded from the fact that they do not seem to notice any other. The spider is of this instance, since it does not possess hearing organs, it must get the sound by a process akin to touch. If this be the fact, could not deaf-mutes develop the power to hear in some such way? We have heard up to the present time, says the writer in the above magazine.

Death and Tired Legs.

Alpine climbing, long walking tours and similar fatiguing recreations may be suitable enough for those who keep to them all the year round, but are disastrous for those whose ordinary exercise consists of a short daily walk.

I have often thought that the reason of the many mountaineering accidents which we read of lies in the inability of the muscles of the legs to retain that steadiness and firmness which climbing demands and which are soon lost in the absence of strenuous practice or in those who have never followed the sport seriously.—Cassell's Magazine.

Gossepits in Russia.

In Russia pits for cock fighting are unknown, but "gossepits" some 60 years ago were common throughout that mighty kingdom. The effect of this can be seen to-day in the geese which are indigenous to the country, the Arzamas and the Tula varieties particularly showing to a marked degree the fighting characteristics of their ancestors. The Arzamas gander has a bill which is entirely different in form from that of the geese known in any other part of the world. This special structure enables the bird to take a firm hold on the neck or back of its antagonist.

Scene and Circumstance.

When a noble act is done—perchance in a scene of great natural beauty; when all hearts are hushed and the martyrs consume one day in dying, and the sun and moon come each and look at them once in the steep defile of Thermopylae; when Arnold Winkelried, in the high Alps, under the shadow of the avalanche, gathers in his side a sheaf of Austrian spears to break the line for his comrades; are not these heroes entitled to add the beauty of the scene to the beauty of the deed?—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Lilly—How did Cholly come to fall?

Marie—He thought he was in his automobile and jumped out to push it back home!—Bohemian.

DOG WHIPS YOUNG LION; BEAST CAPTURED ALIVE

TRAPPER FINDS ANIMAL UNCONSCIOUS UNDER TREE AFTER FIGHT WITH CANINE.

Helena, Mont.—Frank Sedlak of Flathead county gives a most interesting account of an adventure which his dog had with a mountain lion, and which he managed to capture alive after a chase lasting three nights and two days.

While going over his line of traps he missed one of his dogs, and after a long search he came to the conclusion that he had been killed and devoured by a mountain lion.

While returning home he heard a howling quite a distance from the trail. He whistled and soon brought the missing dog to him. The appearance of the dog at once indicated that something unusual had been going on wherever the dog had been.

Instead of going home, he followed the dog over the trail the animal had made in coming to him after being called by the whistle. The dog led him to a big tree at which there was lying a young mountain lion with which the dog had evidently had a tussle. The lion had every appearance of being dead and showed the marks of the dog's teeth upon his neck. Sedlak supposed the lion was dead and was making arrangements to carry him home, when the animal gave signs of restoration of life, and recovered rapidly that he had to act very quickly in order to get a rope around him.

He at once conceived the idea of capturing the lion alive, and with this object succeeded in getting it to his cabin, at which place he made the lion fast in the stable.

For four days the lion refused to eat anything and evidently rebelled at its captivity. However, on the fifth he ate everything which was given to him, and has apparently recovered from the fight with the dog.

From the indications around the tree Mr. Sedlak thinks the dog had been fighting with the lion which he captured alive and also that there was another lion in the tree during that time, and that as soon as the dog left to answer the call of the whistle the lion which was up the tree came down and got away.

This is one of the few instances on record where a live lion has been taken, and if the dog had been engaged in the struggle as long as his master thinks he had been, it must have been a battle royal.

GUARDS HUSBY WITH GUN.

Bride of Seventy Defies Her Relatives to Separate Them.

Meriden, Conn.—To prevent her relatives from separating her from her husband, who is 30 years her junior, Mrs. Samuel A. Mallory, a bride of 79, has intrenched herself in her farmhouse at West Lyme, with a shotgun trained on the approach to drive back constables who are seeking to serve papers in a suit for the annulment of her marriage. So far none of them has tempted fate by crossing the line, and Mrs. Mallory is in possession of her husband.

The annulment suit was brought by Fred Lewis of Preston, who alleges Mallory became the fourth husband of his sister, not because he cherished any affection for her, but because he had a covetous eye on the $25,000 fortune she possessed. When it became known that Mallory and the widow were to marry strong efforts were made to prevent it, but without success.

Although the prospective bride was nearly twice as old as her prospective husband, both of them declared the affair was a love match pure and simple, and they would brook no interference with their plans. So they were married, and would be living happily were not so much of the bride's time occupied in defending herself against the constables.

Girl Escapes as She Skates.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Pearl White, 16 years old, one of the best roller skaters in the country, created a sensation on the north side the other morning by skating through the streets pursued by a policeman with a warrant.

Pearl was disrobing as she ran and was down to her underskirt when the blushing girl overhauled her and stopped the disrobing.

The skater came here from Monongahela City some time ago and is thought to have become deranged by overwork.

Y.M.C.A. BESTS TRENTON

Clinches Second Place in State League by Defeating Capitol City Nine.

THE SCORE WAS NINE TO SIX.

Three Trenton Pitchers Used in Effrot to Stop Opponents Run

Geting at Crescent Oval Saturday.

The Trenton Y. M. C. A. nine started the season Saturday afternoon at Crescent Oval, with a defeat, and the local association team chinched second place in the Y. M. C. A. state league by administering that defeat. The score was 9-6. The Newark nine continued its 1,000 per cent. pace by trimming Summit, 7-3, and Orange won an uphill game from Elizabeth, 8-6.

The Trenton team has some good material, but the manager hasn't quite figured out where each member is best qualified to play. The experiments in the pitchers box meant runs for the local nine, although the game was not decided until the seventh, when three hits off Stewart and a base on balls brought three runs and the pitcher's retirement. Penrose, the first experiment, lasted one inning, and Slack, who succeeded Stewart showed the most speed.

Schoolboy playing marked the work of both nines. The Trenton outfielders took no pains to get under several short flies, though on one occasion three players collided in trying to nab the ball at the same time. Plainfield excelled on the bags, but four errors were tallied against each team.

The winners took the lead in the second, when three hits and a pass netted three runs. Another run was added in the third. Two in the sixth put Trenton in the lead, but Will Schoonmaker circled in the same session and the seventh proved the visitors' Waterloo.

Willing's heavy batting was a feature of the game, for he got a two-bagger and a three bagger out of four times at bat. Jacot made a two base hit in the fifth. Scott had his batting early in the game and planted out singles the first two times up. He later hit the wrong ball six times for two outs. His pitching was steady and he kept the hits scattered. He fanned seven and gave three passes. The details.

RANDOLPH'S PITCHING HOLDS DOWN WEST ENDS

Clifford Randolph was the king-pin of the show at Somerville on Saturday, when the Clinton Avenue ball team clashed with the West Ends for the first time this season. He was in rare form and allowed his opponents but one scratch hit. This, however, with some clever playing on the part of the county seat boys combined to give them their single tally in the fifth inning. Randolph held the West Ends safe at all times and he was given fine support, but two errors being charged against the Plainfielders.

Another big feature of the game was the home run drive of Barnes in the third inning. Kraft was pitching a good game, almost good enough to win under some circumstances. He blanked the Plainfield boys in seven innings, the score being a tie up to the ninth, when by a combination of a couple of hits and a couple of errors gave Plainfield two runs. Throughout the contest they were only able to gather five hits off of Kraft. The game was a fast and clean one throughout. The Plainfield boys were accompanied by a big crowd of rooters, who encouraged them by constant cheering. The same teams will meet here on July 11, when a large crowd is sure to be attracted to Crescent Oval. The score:

DUNELLENITES SWAMP A BOUND BROOK NINE

The Dunellen nine swamped the St. Joseph's team, of Bound Brook, in a one-sided game played at Dunellen Saturday afternoon. The final score was 12-6. Will Russell, on the slab for the winning team, pitched gilt-edged ball, fanning ten and giving but two bases on balls. His home team mates backed him in game.

Had Russell been given proper support, the score would have been 12-1 in favor of the Dunellenites, but the five errors were expensive and meant more in the run getting than did the seven hits off his delivery. Hawk secured four of the thirteen hits for the Dunellenties and fielded accurately. The summaries:

MANY PARTICIPANTS AT PARK GOLF CLUB

The largest field of the season was out at the Park Golf Club Saturday to take part in the many competitions scheduled for the day. Never before in the history of the club has the course been in better condition and the play was fine. There was unusual interest in the contests for the various challenge trophies, which promises to be a big feature of the club this year.

For challenge trophy number one, Charles B. Morse, challenger, defeated W. R. Faber, holder, by 1 up and 2 to play; for challenge trophy number 3, Dr. A. W. Anderson, challenger, defeated W. V. Byard, holder, by 4 up and 2 to play; for challenge trophy number 5, Leon R. Thurlow, challenger, defeated Dr. H. D. Terrell, holder, by 3 up and 2 to play.

The drawings for next Saturday are as follows:

Hydewood Park challenge trophy, Walter C. McNaughton, holder, challenged by Charles B. Morse; trophy number 2, W. R. Faber, holder, challenged by Dr. A. W. Anderson; trophy number 4, W. V. Byard, holder, challenged by Leon R. Thurlow.

In the weekly competition for the President's Golf Club and Summer cups these scores were returned:

Dr. A. W. Anderson, 98, 21-77; Charles A. Reed, 93, 8-85; Leon R. Thurlow, 101, 13-88; W. V. Byard, 101, 13-88; Charles B. Morse, 103, 14-89; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 104, 10-94; R. B. There was also the opening play for the Green committee cup, women's competition, nine holes, to be continued during June and July. The leading scores returned follow:

Miss May Shreve, 71, 12-59; Miss Harriet Shreve, 77, 18-59; Miss Lydie Loiseaux, 60, 0-60; Miss Grace Ten Eyck, 90, 25-65; Mrs. F. W. Jones, 93, 25-68.

PLAINFIELDERS SURVIVE IN EAST JERSEY TENNIS

Two Country Club tennis teams still survive at the conclusion of the second day's play in the doubles tournament under the auspices of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association, played at the Park Club courts Saturday afternoon. These are Miss Edna Willdey, paired with Mr. Crapo, and Miss Mildred Willdey, who is playing with C. M. Crapo. Mrs. S. F. Weaver and Will Barlow, Jr., the Park Club team, are still in the playing. The summaries:

HINTS FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Persons of defective sight when threading a needle should hold it over something white, by which the sight will be assisted.

Bolting the food has ruined many a good complexion. Teeth were given for a purpose, and if one does not use them they will suffer along with digestion and skins.

A mixture of half a dram of muriate of ammonia, a quarter of a dram of tannic acid, an ounce of glycerin and one cake of half ounces of rose water is said to reduce the size of a freaky nose. The ammonia and tannic acid are dissolved in the glycerin and the rose water goes in last. The nose is wiped over with this several times a day, and a cloth wet with it is laid on at night.

If you do not react well after your bath try what vigorous rubbing of all parts of your body will do. This may either be a dry rub with alcohol, or aromatic vinegars can be used. Rubbing the entire body with the palm of the hand has a good effect also, alone on the skin, but on the circulation. Where the hand will not reach with any force double the crash towel or take a long strip of flannel and, holding it in both hands, draw it vigorously from left to right. This is good as a gymnastic exercise as well as beneficial to the skin.

We're in the happy valleys
Where all the violets throng.

FLEMINGTON SHUT OUT BY SCOTCH PLAINS NINE

The Scotch Plains baseball team continued its perfect record and winning streak Saturday by defeating the Flemington team at the latter place by a score of 5 to 0. It was the first defeat and shutout for the home team this season and the Hunterdon county seat folks have not recovered from the shock yet. Ortlieb, pitching for the Plains, was in great form, holding Flemington to three little hits. They could do nothing at all with his delivery.

On the other hand the Plains aggregation had its eye on the ball and gathered in eight singles for a total of twelve bases. The home team was so disheartened over the result of the contest that they want another game within a short time to retrieve lost honors and more.

BARROWS BREAKS COUNTRY CLUB GOLF COURSE RECORD

Dudley H. Barrows broke the course record at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, in competition for the Spring Handicap cup, Class A, when he returned a net score of 66. The previous best record in competition was a 72 made by Robert Abbott. Barrows played an exceptionally fast game, as indicated by his score. He went out in 36 and returned in 34. Coming home he had the pleasing knowledge that he was playing a steady and consistent game. His score of 66 is quite likely to remain the lowest for sometime, although there is no doubt but that many will try to beat it during the season.

Class A—Dudley H. Barrows, 70, 4-66; Henry D. Hibbard, 78, 9-69; L. A. Chase, 90, 17-73.

OBJECT TO A GAS TANK

Councilmanic Committee Not Satisfied with P.S.C. Plans to Erect Another Tank.

MANY PETITIONS CONSIDERED.

Fire Department Supplies and Repairs—Permit Alterations at Reform Hall.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Common Council met Monday for the third time this month there seemed to be plenty of business to be considered and it was nearly 10 o'clock when an adjournment was taken until Monday night, June 29, when bids for the several issues of bonds will be received. President Tolles and Councilmen Taylor, Gloak, Frank Randolph, Mygatt, Hall and Suydam comprised the seven members present.

Regarding the protest of Charles H. Hand against the plan of the P. S. C. to erect a gas tank on Watchung avenue, Mr. Suydam moved that the same be filed, and it was explained that the building committee is not satisfied with the plans and has requested the company to present others showing the elevation.

Regarding the petition of Andrew Vanderbeek and A. A. Force pertaining to the removal of the iron railing protecting the entrance to the cellar of the Vanderbeek building at North and Park avenues, Mr. Gloak chairman of the street committee, reported that after a thorough investigation and advice from Corporation Counsel Marsh, the committee had been unable to learn that any permission had ever been given to place the railing there, as mentioned in the petition, upon the advice of Mr. Marsh the petition to have it removed was denied on motion of Mr. Gloak.

The petition stated that the permission referred to was granted during the term of the late Mayor G. W. Rockfellow, about twenty-five years ago, but Mr. Marsh stated that if any permission was given by him he had no right to do so and it should be rescinded. The railing is a safe-guard for pedestrians at that point and as stated in the petition it would be almost impossible to enter the entrance to the cellarway there as it affords the only one to the basement under the drug store from outside and is used as an entrance for the newsboys and regular carriers who carry The Daily Press. The sentiment of the railing is likely to render that point a more dangerous one as the iron doors cannot be kept closed all the time.

Mr. Gloak also reported back the petitions of property-owners to have Union street macadamized, and it struck him to inform them that if they will advance their share of the expense for the work, which in one case amounts to $1,060 and the other $680, the Common Council may consider the improvement.

Several resolutions were offered by Mr. Suydam, in the absence of the chairmen of the committees having the matters in charge, and they were adopted. One authorized the building inspector to grant W. J. Counihan permission to make alterations and repairs to Reform Hall, according to the plans presented, it being his idea to transform the hall into a vaudeville theatre. Another one authorized the location of three two-way hydrants, one at Woodland avenue and East Seventh street, the other at Lennox avenue and Loraine road and the third at Cameron avenue and Loraine road, in accordance with petitions received from property owners.

Other resolutions offered by Mr. Suydam and adopted, authorized the city clerk to advertise for bids for furnishing the fire department with one hundred tons of coal, the bids to be opened Monday night, July 6. The fire and building committee was authorized to have the roofs of the fire headquarters' building and No. 2 house painted at an expense not to exceed $60, and the same committee was authorized to purchase 500 tons of hay at $20 a ton and 300 bushels of oats at sixty cents a bushel for the fire department, the hay for No. 2 hose wagon were authorized at an expense not to exceed $10. The repairs consist of cutting down and resetting the tires.

Time New Jersey Acted.

The action of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn, sustaining the judgment of Justice Dickey, that the Osteopaths are qualified physicians, indicates the trend of legislation regarding Osteopathy. Since the legislation of last year, recognizing Osteopaths, the tendency has been for those unable to come up to the requirements to flock into New Jersey, and it is therefore evident that action must be taken by the State to regulate the practice of Osteopathy.

Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Sanford Snyder, of Bound Brook, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lulu Snyder and Jesse Lawrence Barry, formerly of Wilkesbarre, Pa., but now of Asbury Park. The ceremony will take place Saturday afternoon, June 27, at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Snyder is well-known here, where she has many friends.

PUBLIC HEARING ON SEWAGE AGREEMENT

Believing that the time is opportune for a free and full discussion of the matter of allowing North Plainfield to connect with the city's system of sanitary sewers, Mr. Mygatt at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday, offered a resolution which was adopted, fixing Monday night, July 13, as the time when a public hearing will be granted and an effort will be made to secure the attendance of every person interested in the proposition. The action was the result of that taken by the North Plainfield Sewage Commission, which requested the Common Council to fix and determine upon plans and the price for sewering for the borough sewage for a term of years. The public hearing is fixed for the purpose of ascertaining whether it would be advisable for the city to enter into such a contract with North Plainfield.

The borough commission has for some time been quite anxious that the Common Council should take this matter up and settle it one way or the other and Mr. Mygatt, as well as the other members feel that the date fixed upon will be a convenient time to discuss the question. The resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt followed an executive session of nearly three-quarters of an hour, and it was the unanimous opinion that the action was timely. It is the desire that as much publicity as possible be given to the proposed hearing so that everyone interested may have an opportunity to express an opinion.

"TED" CLEVELY ENDS LONG BUSINESS CAREER

Announcement was made today that H. H. Cleverly, North avenue pioneer quick lunch man, who is best known to his patrons and friends as "Ted," has sold his extensive restaurant and confectionery business to Patrick J. Malvin, who has been his manager for the past fourteen years. The change in ownership will take place next Sunday but the new proprietor is already receiving the congratulations of hosts of well wishers.

Mr. Cleverly first began the business in the center store of the three he now occupies on North avenue twenty years ago. He succeeded "Ted" Dunn, with whom he had been associated and with whom he inaugurated what is known as "quick lunch." Through methods of which he was the originator the place became a very popular resort and every year saw a large increase in patronage. Mr. Cleverly devoted his entire time to the supervision of the business and he retires at this time in order to enjoy a well-earned rest. He has planned to go to Florida for an extended stay and while there may inspect orange and lemon groves with a view to purchasing an interest in some of them.

Mr. Cleverly's successor, "Pat" Melvin, has absorbed the genial ways of his former employer and starts in with every prospect of enjoying the success that preceded him. He is thoroughly acquainted with the various phases of the restaurant and quick lunch trade and will continue the policy that made "Ted's" place one of the best popular in town. James McDonough will be his main assistant.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE Y. M. H. A. BIBLE SCHOOL.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association Bible school held its closing exercises for the season in the local Synagogue Sunday. The examination of the pupils was in charge of Rev. Dr. I. L. Bril, of New York, each class being examined separately. Prizes were awarded to those having the highest average. Speeches were made by Rabbi Davidson, of this city; Henry Rosenbaum, H. Andrew and Meyer Molodysky, of this city.

Samuel Rothberg in behalf of the association presented to Harry Feinberg a beautiful loving cup in appreciation of his faithful services in making the Bible school a success. He accepted the same with a few words of response, thanking the donors. The school was opened November 13 with an enrollment of twenty-eight and today there are 174 children on the roll with an average attendance of 150. The school will reopen on a much larger scale in the fall. A feature of the exercises Sunday was the singing by the pupils.

Miss Florence MacDonald a Bride.

Miss Florence Marion MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard MacDonald, of Watchung avenue, and E. Newton Norman, of Midland Park, were married by the Rev. William Haines, of Irvington, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The bride was gowned in Copenhagen blue silk with hat to match. They were accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Bennett, sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brokaw, in a touring car. After the ceremony the party proceeded to New York, where a wedding supper was enjoyed at the Hotel Dennis. The bride and groom have left for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside at Midland Park. The groom is interested in the leather business in New York.

REV. P. A. PARSONS TO GO

Resignation of the Christian Church Pastor Reluctantly Accepted.

SUCCESSOR YET CHOSEN.

Retiring Pastor Will Teach in a Western University After His Book Is Published.

After serving as pastor of the Christian church on Grove street for the past four years, Rev. Paul A. Parsons has resigned and will become professor of philosophy at the Christian University at Canton, Ohio, a year from this fall. His resignation has been accepted, but no successor has been named as yet. A farewell reception will be tendered by his honor Thursday night at the church. He will be in charge of the service at the North Plainfield church for the last time Sunday, and will preach his farewell sermon at the morning service.

Upon leaving his work as head of the local church, Mr. Parsons will go to his home in Hamilton, Illinois, for the summer. He is an enthusiastic student of sociology and is preparing a book on "Responsibility for Crime," which will be published within a year. He is a graduate of Columbia University, where he received an "A. B." in 1904, and "A. M." the following year. He will receive his degree as Doctor of Philosophy from the same university in the fall.

Genuine regret is felt in the congregation at the leaving of the pastor, who has been a powerful factor in the growth of the Grove street church during the four years he has been in charge. Within a few weeks he will leave for the West and will spend the summer at his parents' home at work upon his book.

$1,000 AT THE CARNIVAL

Miss Mayme Connolly, Miss Anna Doyle, Miss Emily Harrigan and William Townley, Jr., the last named acting as cashier. Julius Stahl is the official ice cream "disher."

The "country store," which occupies a prominent place near the center of the grounds, has William Chamberlain for its proprietor and the saleswomen are the Misses Florence and Cora Neighbor and Miss Anna Boyd. They have a fine line of general "notions" and quote bargains by the yard. They did a thriving business last night and will undoubtedly make a great showing when finances are reckoned. An auxiliary booth, somewhat on the same lines as the first mentioned is at the hospital carnivals, is in charge of Mrs. Joseph Clark, Mrs. Mamie Clark, Miss Elizabeth Casey and Miss Theresa Hibbits. Candy is sold at a separate stand by Miss Anna Daley, Miss Mary Smith and Miss Sarah Gilligan.

No carnival is complete without a "hot dog" stand and the firemen's affair has a big one personally supervised by Thomas Timbo, inventor and patentee of the hurry-up process in the manufacture of the delicacy. A pound of meat for a nickle. His staff of French chefs and expert servers comprises Thomas Burke, Joseph Lane, Frank Schuck and Theodore Larew. It is needless to state that they passed out a few thousand of the above mentioned dainties today, to-g.g of the cigars and bowls of Timbo's famous coffee.

The list of firemen and volunteers who acted as ticket-takers, sellers of ice-barkeys at the various attractions, is as follows: Carousel No. 1, Edward Grannatt, Stephen Stiats and Edward Brown; carousal No. 2, James McLean; the Aztec girl, John Krinev; Hindu theatre, E. Victor Lorton; Ferari animal show, Howard Hamberlain and Martin Connaughton; Cakewalkammer castle, Edward Valleola, Robert Fisher; the plantation show, Joseph Robinson; Little George, the turtle boy, John McClelland; the ferris wheel, Arthur Robinson; Little Amy, Bert Willoughby; vaudeville show, Lewis Feiring and Captain James Daley. Herman Merlop and Pennington gather up tickets at the main entrance.

The general committee in charge of the firemen's end of the carnival is made up of Chief T. O. Dunn, chairman; John H. Case, secretary. Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings, treasurer; Captain James Daley, Captain William Townley, Foreman Wilkams Addis and Joseph Clark.

The carnival grounds will be open every afternoon from 1 o'clock on and special attractions will be provided for children. Competent electricians will look after them at all of the shows and amusement devices and in this way they can be much better pleased than if they visit the carnival in the evenings when the rush is on.

Who Won This Game?

The Benedicts and single men of Scotch Plains played a game of baseball Saturday afternoon for the borough championship. The contest was a nerve-racking one, especially for the score-keeper. The single men claim victory, while the married men are equally sure they won. There is some talk of a record of another contest to decide the important question.

CENTRAL'S IMPROVEMENTS

Road Will Elevate its Bridges When Allowed to Close Draws Temporarily.

TO BETTER ITS TERMINALS.

Development of Meadows in Sight—Tract Elevation One of Its Important Undertakings.

Closely following the report of the Advisory Dock Commission, which has been investigating different plans for carrying out the dock scheme voted by the people of Newark last year, comes the Central Railroad of New Jersey with tentative plans for improving its terminal facilities in New York, Jersey City and Newark.

An official connected with the engineering department of the road was asked yesterday when the Central Railroad intended to replace the bridge across Newark Bay on the main line. He said that the Central would not do anything in replacing the bridge until it had elevated its line into Newark from Jersey City, across the meadows. Part of this work is now going on between Elizabeth and Newark. There is a creek there, the bridges over which have been weakened. Rather than place two new bridges there, to be taken down at a later period, the road is installing a single track bridge, which will be used by trains until the elevation work is completed.

The same official said that the road contemplates elevating its tracks over the Hackensack and Passaic rivers so that tugboats and scows may pass under their drawbridges without making it necessary to open them. But it will do nothing in this particular until the road can obtain some order from the War Department of Congress allowing it to keep these bridges closed during commuter rush hours, or between 7 and 9 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m. Nothing will be done in the matter of improving the facilities of the terminal in Newark until this concession is obtained.

Newark merchants are opposing this movement. The Pennsylvania, as well as the Central and other roads crossing the rivers at points below Newark, was interested in a bill of this nature two years ago, but opposition was so great that it was temporarily abandoned. Nothing is being now with the matter except that the Central is holding off improvements in Newark until such time as it can have exclusive right of way between Newark and Jersey City, so as to give improved service sufficient to warrant making the change.

Following the improvements in Newark, the road intends making improvements to its Elizabethport station, crossing and bridge approach. With the Newark bridges closed during the rush hours, the Elizabeth or Newark Bay bridge also will be closed, and then better service will be given between Jersey City and Elizabeth and points beyond, said the official.

The Central Railroad, however, will first improve its terminals in New York and Jersey City. Work on the new West street terminal is now progressing, and by December the new station will be entirely completed. Then work will be probably started in improving the Jersey City terminal.

The Central is preparing to improve its service so as to meet the improvements on the Pennsylvania, with its tunnel service under the river.

The Central also plans these improvements to take advantage of the development of the Newark meadows. The government has been pumping the silt and soil from the bottom of the rivers on to the meadowland, and miles and miles of this heretofore waste property have been reclaimed. They have been raised to a level of six feet in some cases, and on these factories will be established in the near future.

According to the report of the Dock Commission, there are 1,000 acres of meadow land are to be improved; a canal 350 feet wide, 22 feet deep and, about 4,000 feet in length emptying into Newark Bay, is to be constructed, and along this are to be built bulkheads for thirty feet of water, wharves, streets and terminals. The maximum cost is placed at $10,975,600.

Recommendations of the commission call for the width of the canal to ultimately be 700 feet, with a depth of 30 feet at low water. It will give the city of Newark a port that will be open to the commerce of the world.

The Central Railroad, with its two branch lines, the Newark-Jersey City and Newark-Elizabeth, plans to take advantage of early benefits of this development of this land.

FIGHT $200 CLAIM OVER CONCRETE MIXER

Walter L. Hetfield, representing C. M. Meeker, and W. A. Coddington, counsel for the Ransome Concrete Company, have filed their briefs with Judge Newcorn of the district court, in the case of the Ransome Concrete Company against C. M. Meeker, in which the company seeks to recover from the defendant for the lease of a concrete mixer used on the brick pavement contract. The case was tried in the district court several weeks ago, and at the conclusion, Judge Newcorn requested counsel to submit briefs.

It was the contention of the defendant that the concrete mixer did not prove to be as represented, that it failed to do the work. On the other hand the company claimed that the machine was in first-class condition when delivered to Mr. Meeker. The company brought suit for $200.

Judge Newcorn will give his decision at the session of court, tomorrow morning.

COLLINS TO WITHDRAW AS DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

The Democratic County Committee will not meet again until the delegates have returned from Denver and the leaders are free to give their attention to state and local county affairs without having them overshadowed by the national convention. At the first meeting of the committee following the convention, probably in July, General D. F. Collins will withdraw from the chairmanship of the county organization, and there is every indication that William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, will succeed him. Mr. Tuttle is the only candidate seriously considered in connection with the office as yet, and he will probably assume the leadership of the county committee without opposition.

Owing to the fact that conditions are naturally unsettled in the stress of preparation for the convention it has been deemed wise to defer the meeting of the county committee, and by that time will be time enough for committeemen are ready to give him generous support. Judging from the present attitude of the county workers he will experience no difficulty in securing practically a unanimous vote.

MISS ULRICH BECOMES MRS. T. HAROLD BROWN.

Miss Elizabeth Townley Ulrich, daughter of Former Assemblyman and Mrs. John Ulrich, of College place, and T. Harold Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Yardley Brown, formerly of Fairview avenue, but now of Philadelphia, were married yesterday noon at the home of the bride. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and intimate friends.

The bride was given in white swiss, trimmed with lace and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. There were no attendants. The wedding march was played by Miss Ellen Holmes Ulrich, a sister of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held and later the couple left for a wedding trip to Canada. They will reside in Philadelphia, on their return, where the groom is engaged in the publishing business.

The bride was graduated from the Plainfield High School, the Class '04 and since that time has been teacher in the public school at Weston, Somerset county. The groom was graduated from Purdue University, Class '06, after which he engaged in the publishing business in Philadelphia. The couple received a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends.

CORTELYOU OPENS BIDS FOR PLAINFIELD P.O. SITE

At the office of George B. Cortelyou, Secretary of the Treasury, at Washington, D. C., this afternoon, proposals for the $123,000 postoffice site for this city are being opened and considered and the decision of the Government is to be announced after the locations are viewed. At least five properties have been offered as sites for the new building, and the owners have sent in their proposals, specifying location, price and improvements on the property.

Embracing a proposition to cut through a street between East Second and East Front streets, a site just to the west of fire headquarters has been offered for the new building, and the proposal for the sale of this land was sent to Secretary George B. Cortelyou yesterday. The property offered measures 160 feet on East Second street and is 150 feet deep. The site is at a point 277 feet from Park avenue.

Should the site be favorably considered at Washington, a street is to be cut through from fire headquarters to East Front street, at a point directly opposite the Woodhull and Martin building. This will bring the property offered on a corner, and the fire house will be on the opposite corner of the new street. The street will come through to East Front street at the point now occupied by a store recently erected by Dr. Albert Pittis.

David T. Kenney owns the land opposite fire headquarters, and it is reported that if the site is accepted, the new street may be extended through to North avenue, making a thoroughfare between North avenue, at a point nearly opposite the depot, and East Front street.

Among other sites offered by Plainfielders are the Embury estate, at East Front and Church streets; the Iroquois Hotel property, at Park avenue and East Second street; the Durlach property at East Front street and Watchung avenue, and the Forde and Hickson Fuel Company property, on the east side of Watchung avenue between Second and Third streets.

TERRILL ROAD BIDS TO BE OPENED FRIDAY

The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet at the Court House, Elizabeth, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to receive bids for macadamizing and otherwise improving Terrill road, the thoroughfare having been made a county road. It is understood that there will be a large number of bidders from various parts of the State.

The road to be improved extends from Green brook to South avenue, a point near The Maples, and is about a mile and a quarter in length. It was understood that David T. Kenney offered to improve the other end of this road from the bridge over Green brook to Mountain avenue, in the brough, and it has been the hope of the County Counsel to get both that all of the work could be started at one time. The estimated cost of the improvement in this county is $15,000.

MORE TROLLEY "KICKS" FROM THE WEST END.

Residents of West Fourth street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, are "up in arms" at the action of the trolley company in leaving the roadway in deplorable shape after the installation of the new current. A lot of loose macadam stones were thrown in between the rails but that was as far as the work has gone. There are several large holes in places where they are a menace to vehicles and bicyclists and it is considered very good luck than management that has prevented an accident. The location of the switch is in one of the narrowest parts of the street and the condition of the roadway makes it a hard proposition for anyone to get by when a wagon stands near either curb.

TROLLEY OFFICIALS INVESTIGATING COLLISION.

The collision between a main line trolley car and a business rig belonging to William Chamberlain, of East Third street, Saturday afternoon, has proven to be more serious than was at first considered and the railway officials are conducting a strict investigation. The accident occurred at Third and Richmond streets as Mr. Chamberlain was driving home.

Beside the owner of the rig, there were four other men in it, Isaac Miller, of East Third street; Spencer Scribner, John Conroy and George Baughn, all of Muhlenberg place and South Second street. Chamberlain was going straight across the tracks when the car bore down upon him and he attempted to get out of the way by turning sharply toward North avenue. He was not quick enough, however, and the wagon was struck from behind, turning it completely over and throwing the five men and a small dog in all directions. Miller has since been confined to his home. Conroy and Baughn were badly used up and Chamberlain sustained a broken finger. The vehicle was damaged but it is impossible to determine as yet just what injuries the horse received.

The dog in the wagon belonged to Mr. Chamberlain and it disappeared after the crash. It did not return home until late Saturday night. There was also a big quantity of paint in the vehicle and a couple of gallons of it were thrown over the men as they were struggling in a heap.

The business will be continued by a new firm which has been formed under the name of Hooley, Leonard & Co. By this arrangement Abram G. Hooley will be associated with his brother, Edwin S. Auto and Wagon in Collision.

A collision between Gus. Weber's automobile, driven by himself, and a horse and wagon in charge of the steward of the Watchung Trust Club, on West Front street Monday afternoon, resulted in throwing the horse and breaking the shafts of the wagon. Before the wagon could clear the street the collision followed. The machine was not damaged to any extent.

CURTIS SENT TO PRISON

Notorious Check Swindler and Forger Gets a Three Year Sentence.

ENTERED A NON VULT PLEA.

Was in New York on Chief Kiely's Charge and Fought Hard Against Extradition.

Before Judge Atwater in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth, this morning, Douglas G. Curtis, who has several times pleaded non vult to two charges of uttering forged checks on the First National Bank in this city. He was immediately arraigned for sentence and after a strong plea on the part of his lawyer he was committed to the state prison for three years. He will be taken there at once.

Curtis is the man who, with "Kid" McGinnis, made out two checks on the bank one for $100 and the other for $200, and signed the name of W. F. Wilson, manager of a grocery at Front street and Clinton avenue, to them. The $90 one was sent by a messenger for payment and was cashed but a similar attempt with the other met with failure. McGinnis was caught by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, and was sent to prison for a year, his punishment being made light because he gave information that led to Curtis' identity. The latter made his escape and was not caught until six weeks ago when he was picked up on the street in New York by a secret service man. He fought hard against extradition to New Jersey but his efforts met with failure and he was turned over to Chief Kiely.

The arrest and conviction of Curtis and McGinnis has resulted in the break-up of one of the most dangerous gangs of forgers and check swindlers in the East. Curtis was the recognized leader and operated extensively in New York, Newark, Jersey, Philadelphia, Trenton and Camden. McGinnis had been with him but a short time when he was caught but he has a New York police record. Another member of the gang is now awaiting trial in Massachusetts and a fourth man was recently sent to Sing Sing upon conviction of forgery in Brooklyn. When arrested on the Plainfield charge, Curtis advanced $500 to a lawyer to oppose extradition.

SEVEN SUNDAY-SCHOOLS GO TO SHORE TOMORROW.

The "open season" for Sunday-school excursions begins tomorrow and from then until August 20, the annual outings of the various schools will be held, with Asbury Park as the objective point in each case. This season the excursions are to start from the North Avenue depot fifteen minutes later than in previous years. The start will be made at 8:15 o'clock, instead of at 8, so as to allow the commuters to get their morning papers and their trains without crowding the masses of pleasure seekers or falling over lunch boxes and baby carriages in making a quick get-away.

The Crescent Avenue church excursion will start the Sunday-school seaside exodus tomorrow, when a special train of a dozen cars will take pupils from that school and Holy Cross, Grace, Seventh-Day Baptist, St. Stephen's, Hesperides Street and Bethel chapel Sunday-schools for a day at the shore. The train will make up at Dunellen at 8 o'clock, starting from the North Avenue station at 8:15. On the return trip, the excursionists will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 o'clock, and the train will stop at Netherwood, Clinton avenue and Grant avenue on the return trip. The train will arrive at the North Avenue station at about 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

MEMORIAL TO CLEVELAND IS NOW UNRAVELED

Governor, U. S. Senators, Congressmen and Other Citizens Form Committee.

MONUMENT IN THIS STATE.

Plan, National in Scope, Outlined by Former Senator James Smith, Jr.—Daily Press to Assist.

The Daily Press, at the invitation of the Newark Morning Star, has consented to serve on a committee of State newspapers to promote the proposition for the erection of a National monument in memory of Grover Cleveland. Already the most distinguished officeholders and private citizens throughout the State without regard to party have willingly consented to form the New Jersey representation on the National board which will supervise the collection of funds and arrange for the erection of a monument that will be a credit to the Nation.

In yesterday's issue, The Daily Press suggested that the people of New Jersey contribute the necessary funds for the erection of a statute to Mr. Cleveland's memory at the State capitol. The Newark Morning Star, however, had previously suggested a tribute of the same kind to be of a national scope, and as Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., the editor of the Star and a man of extraordinary executive ability, has taken the matter under his personal supervision, there is not the least doubt that the people of these United States will come to his aid in bringing about a realization of his plans.

These men have agreed to serve as New Jersey representatives on the monument committee:

Governor John Franklin Fort, East Orange.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, Trenton.

United States Senator John Kean, Elizabeth.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy, Newark.

Former Governor John W. Griggs, Paterson.

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., Newark.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., Trenton.

Robert S. Hudspeth, Jersey City.

Congressman R. Wayne Parker, Newark.

Congressman Le Gage Pratt, East Orange.

Congressman Charles Newell Fowler, Elizabeth.

Congressman Benjamin F. Howell, New Brunswick.

Congressman William Hughes, Paterson.

State Senator Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen, Raritan.

State Senator John Hinchliffe, Paterson.

James E. Martine, Plainfield.

Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes, Trenton.

State Senator Everett Colby, West Orange.

Judge James F. Minturn, Hoboken.

State Senator Thomas J. Hillery, Boonton.

Mayor Jacob Hiussling, Newark.

State Senator Johnston Cornish, Washington.

Vice-Chancellor Frederick W. Stevens, Morristown.

Chief Justice William S. Gummere, Newark.

George R. Gray, Newark.

Judge James Brooks Dill, East Orange.

Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter, Newark.

Quartermaster C. Edward Murray, Trenton.

Winton C. Garison, Newark.

William Katzeler, Newark.

Lawrence M. Fagan, Hoboken.

Colonel Edwin W. Stevens, Hoboken.

Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, Jersey City.

Editor J. E. Crowell, of the Paterson Morning Call, wired The Star: "I would like to see the proposed movement for a Cleveland monument a success, and the prospect meets with my approval, and you may rely on me for cooperation, but while appreciating the invitation to serve on the committee, the duties of my position, which keep me busy day and night, prevent acceptance. Your enterprise in being so early in the field is highly commendable, and backed by the influence of such a man as former Senator Smith, I cannot conceive of failure."

Editor Hugh Boyd, of the New Brunswick Home News, telegraphed: "The Cleveland monument proposition meets with my warmest indorsement. Contemplated absence abroad will prevent my acceptance of membership on the committee."

Editor A. L. Force, of the Plainfield Daily Press, said: "Your plan for a Cleveland monument has our hearty indorsement. We will gladly serve on the committee."

Engages in Business for Himself.

Murray Burtis, formerly a member of the Borough Council, and who for twenty-five years was employed as a travelling salesman for a big wholesale linen house in New York, has started in business for himself at 43 and 50 White street, New York, dealing in housekeeping linens and handkerchiefs. The many years of experience Mr. Burtis has had in this business will enable him to be successful.

THE CURLING IRON AND THE HAIRDRESSER.

A hairdresser has declared that the curling iron made the hairdressers wealthy.

"My customers," said he, "curl their hair at home and burn it off. Then they come to me to buy artificial hair. Each curling iron sold is worth $50 to a hairdresser, for it means that the woman will come to him for repairs.

"Yet the curling iron is all right if you do not get it too hot, and if you keep it moving. The professional hairdresser perpetually turns the iron so that it does not rust the hair. Rust is the term applied to that peculiar reddish condition of the hair when it has been curled too often with the hot iron.

"The hairdresser takes a lock of hair in the tongs and gently lifts it; then he clasps it tightly and twists its lowly and carefully until, with the utmost caution, he deposits a curl of hair upon the forehead. How differently the amateur works.

"The amateur heats upon hair curling in the tongs a lock in the tongs and grasps it as though it was something trying to escape. She clasps the tongs with a tight hand and twists the lock right down to the scalp; she stands and holds the iron, letting it do its share of damage.

Lock after lock is twisted up in this way, and the hair is both scorched and tortured.

"Nor does she curl it as well. The hair is peculiar in that it needs to be coaxed."

RAILROAD BOOM.

New Jersey to Get Part of Lackawanna Improvements.

The Lackawanna Railroad Company has decided to make $11,000,000 worth of improvements, beginning at once, and involving the employment of thousands of men. Much of this vast sum will be spent in New Jersey. The board of directors has ordered the construction at once of a cut-off line from Lake Hopatcong to Slateford, Pa., a distance of twenty-eight miles, and shortening the route to Buffalo by eleven miles.

Millions of dollars will be spent in terminal facilities. Most of the improvements have been ordered to be started at once in anticipation of the great increase in business this fall. The company is expected to surpass record mark. For that reason the Lackawanna is ordering the immediate construction of much new rolling stock, including locomotives and freighht cars.

Religious Assembly at Mt. Tabor.

Under the auspices of the Newark Annual Conference an assembly will be conducted at Mt. Tabor, Morris county, from July 22 to August 2. Speakers of prominence have been secured, among whom will be Rev. Dr. W. L. Watkinson, the famous preacher, lecturer and author of England, who will deliver addresses and sermons on six days of the assembly. Prof. Hugh Black, of Union Theological Seminary, and Rev. Dr. U. B. McLeod, of Edinburgh, Scotland, will preach several times. Rev. Dr. Edward Reed, president of Dickinson College, and Rev. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz, assistant secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, and other speakers will deliver addresses. Professors Isaac H. Meredith, choir master of the Hanson Place Methodist church, Brooklyn, assisted by a large chorus choir, will have charge of the singing. Special arrangements have been made for the entertainment of guests. By communicating with Rev. R. K. Boyd, at Mt. Tabor, tents can be procurred for those who desire them.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

A brisk rubbing with alcohol and salt will freshen the soiled coat collar marvelously.

The skin from a boiled ham will be more easily removed if as soon as being taken from the boiling liquor the ham be plunged into cool water for a moment.

Casters on the legs of the kitchen table will be found a great convenience. When this article of furniture is to be moved there will be no danger of straining one's self.

Chiffon and other sheer material can be stitched more satisfactorily if under the fine stitched one puts a piece of newspaper. This can easily be removed when the stitching is finished.

When cooking new green peas add a few pods to them and you will find the flavor improved.

A tear stained face comes in leather. It has the usual opening in the cover for the string itself to come through, and on the side is an extra pocket into which is fitted a pair of scissors.

Do not cut heavy cord or cardboard with scissors, for it will spread the blades and destroy the usefulness of the scissors. Keep a knife for this purpose.

Cleaning and Polishing.

To polish plate glass and remove slight scratches, rub the surface gently, first with a clean pad of the fine cotton-wool, and afterward with a similar pad covered with velvet which has covered with a fine rouge. The surface, will, under this treatment, acquire a polish of great brilliancy, quite free from any scratches.

ENDS A LONG SERVICE

Charles W. Runyon Resigns After Twenty-six Years Work for Phone Co.

SET UP FIRST TELEPHONE.

Soon After He Took Charge of Local Plant There 124 Telephones and Now There Are 3,500.

Completing a continuous service of twenty-six years, during which time he held positions in the operating department that of general foreman and for many years as manager of the local exchange, Charles W. Runyon, of the New Madison, Friday severed his connection with the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. He has plans for the future, but they have not been definitely decided upon as yet.

During his long period of service Mr. Runyon has lived to see the business of the telephone company grow to immense proportions. He entered the employ of the company in the operating department at Jersey City, in 1882, where he remained for a few years. In the meantime the late Percy Ord, who was then residing here, had temporarily been put in charge of the company's interest, until Mr. Runyon was transferred here. After that the business began to grow steadily.

The first telephone in Plainfield to be connected with the local exchange was placed in The Daily Press office and Mr. Runyon set the instrument up. At that time the exchange was located on the top floor of the building at Park avenue and Front street, here, but after the exchange was moved to North Avenue, opposite the station.

Soon after Mr. Runyon came here there were 124 telephones in this district, and today there 3,500, which includes Plainfield, Westfield, Bound Brook, and Somerville. In the early days there was but one trunk line to New York, by the way of Rahway, and today there are ten trunk lines to the Metropolis. Originally there was one operator at the exchange. Now there are twenty-five.

The exchange remained on North avenue for eight years, when the company purchased a piece of property on Park avenue to meet the growing needs. In time the company outgrew these quarters and it was then decided to erect a modern up-to-date building equipped with the latest appliances. The structure has been in service about a year and is considered one of the finest owned by the company. During his service with the company, Mr. Runyon spent two years at Morristown and two years at Elizabeth, while for six years he was a general formean of construction work.

To Mr. Runyon belongs the credit of building up the company's business in this district, it being due to his efforts that the list of subscribers grew so rapidly and the other business assumed such large proportions. He was instrumental in having the company's wires placed underground and a great many concessions made to the company by people in Plainfield were obtained by Mr. Runyon. He was held in esteem by all who came in contact with him and his host of friends regret that he has severed his connection with the company.

The flock expect to have the structure completed and ready for occupancy early in the fall.

PASSING OF THE SALOON

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

I have studied conditions in the south, where the saloon is being swept away by a cyclone of ballots. The explanation is easy.

1. It is the revolt of knowledge against ignorance. The evil effects of alcohol have been taught in home, school, Sunday school and church till the new generation of voters are convinced that it ought to be banished from the earth. "It is the growth of manhood," said a leader in the movement.

2. It is the revolt of home love against the home destroyer. The mothers of the south, which makes more slaves than any other institution on earth. Drunkards are slaves of appetite, and 100,000 of them are killed every year by their cruel master. Liberty to fill coffers by selling what enslaves manhood and womanhood is an un-American as it is un-Christian, and the people are waking up to the fact.

Humanity Against Barbarity.

4. It is the revolt of humanity against barbarity. The saloon is the mother and fosterer of lunacy, idiocy, pauperism and crime. It is not humane but rather barbarous to legalize and protect the cause of these great evils. The highest civilization seeks to prevent, so that cure shall not be needed.

Church Lovers Against Church Haters.

5. It is the revolt of Bible and church lovers against Bible and church haters. The champion blasphemer of Chicago, who evidently hates the Bible and the church, is also the champion of whiskey. Though he asserts that he does not believe in the historic existence of Jesus, he draws his little argument from his turning water into wine and informs us that Jesus commanded his followers to use intoxicating wine in the Lord's Supper. In this he shows his usual capacity for ignorance. He ought to know that the contents of the sacramental cup are nowhere called wine, but the "fruit of the vine," and alcohol is not the fruit of a vine. It was then decided to erect a modern up-to-date building equipped with the latest appliances. The structure has been in service about a year and is considered one of the finest owned by the company. During his service with the company, Mr. Runyon spent two years at Morristown and two years at Elizabeth, while for six years he was a general formean of construction work.

The dissenting faction of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, colored, which has been meeting at Reform Hall under the leadership of Rev. M. A. Alexander, former pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, has been forced to give up its quarters there, owing to proposed improvements, and the small company of worshippers have purchased a lot on West Fourth street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, where it is proposed to erect a edifice to be known as the Shiloh Baptist church. The flock expect to have the structure completed and ready for occupancy early in the fall.

Drunkenness Ruins Homes.

Hon. Carroll D. Wright, while United States commissioner of labor, made the following assertion: "I have looked into a thousand homes of the working people of Europe; I do not know how many in this country. I have tried to find the best and the worst; and, while, as I say, the worst exist, and as bad as under any system, or as bad as in any age, I have never had to look beyond the inmates to find the cause; and in every case, so far as my observation goes, drunkenness was at the bottom of the misery and not the industrial system or the industrial conditions surrounding the men and their families."

TO USE ASPHALTINE ON LOCAL STREETS

The Councilmanic street committee has completed arrangements for the improvement of North avenue, which thoroughfare is to be treated with Asphaltine, a preparation intended to keep the dust down. A portion of Park avenue below the brick pavement is also to be similarly treated. Chairman Glonk, as well as the other members of the street committee are confident that the work will prove satisfactory. They visited East Orange some time ago, where the asphaltine is being thoroughfare, had been treated with asphaltine and after considerable use was shown to have come up to all expectations.

The work here will be done within the next two weeks. If the scheme proves successful there is no doubt the asphaltine will be generally used on the streets here thus doing away with the sprinkling carts.

STATE G. A. R. MOURNS FOR GROVER CLEVELAND

New Jersey veterans, in camp at Asbury Park, indulged in a lively discussion Friday on a resolution asking that the battleship Maine, sunk in Havana harbor, be raised and the bodies of the sailors and marines entombed in the hull be given Christian burial. Although the committee had reported adversely on the resolution, it was adopted.

Resolutions of condolence on the death of former President Grover Cleveland, asking that the incident be withheld from the press, were also adopted.

These officers were elected: State Commander, John Forman, of Flemington; senior vice commander, William W. Mendell, of Cranford; junior vice commander, Robert M. Hillman, of Camden; medical director, Dr. R. F. Dana, of Trenton, in whose favor Dr. Hugh P. Roden, of Newark, also a candidate, retired; Dr. Dana's election being unanimous. Council of Administration, David D. Keefe, Newark; Eugene Hill, Passaic; W. L. Marsh, Elizabeth; Bishop W. Mains, Atlantic City, and A. L. Winans, Vineland; delegates to national encampment to be held in Toledo, O., in August, M. J. Kelly, Jersey City; Foreman J. Reynolds, Newark; Henry Clingston, Trenton; Israel Fish, Camden; John W. Chandler, Red Bank; George R. Bunten, Perth Amboy; P. J. Lydecker, Paterson; Uriah Bezier, Newark; Joseph Brant, New Brunswick, and R. D. Brower, of Millburn, Newark.

AN UNHERALDED HEROINE.

A story in two chapters comes out of the West. In the first chapter a misuse of public funds and a betrayal of an official trust figure. In the second chapter devotion, self-sacrifice and heroism in petticoats crop out. Something like a decade ago Henry Barton was city treasurer of Muncie, Ind., when he went out of office disgraced. His accounts were short. Money which should have gone into the municipal treasury went elsewhere. Bondsmen paid up a part of the deficiency, and Barton hiked out to Los Angeles, where he has since been living with his family. This is chapter No. 1, and it's a dark chapter. Burt Barton has a daughter, who is a stenographer in Los Angeles, and who for years has been scrubbing the stain of the family name. She set out to square her father's account with the Indiana city. Whenever she accumulated a surplus of $25 from her earnings she hastened to forward it to the Muncie officials. Persistently, patiently and uncomplainingly she has pursued the hard task, and one instalment after another has been paid. The Muncie officials offered to cancel the debt, but Miss Barton declined to accept the suggestion. She kept pegging away and paying up. This week the last dollar of the father's shortage was made good by the daughter. Chapter No. 2 is closed, and it's a bright chapter. Miss Marguerite Barton is a genuine heroine. The qualities which she displayed in voluntarily assuming and discharging an obligation disclose a fine piece of womanhood and reveal a splendid daughter. Honor, self-sacrifice which she underwent to clear the stigma from the family name shines forth like a torch gilding the mountain top. No battlefield ever brought out a better brand of heroism than was displayed by Miss Barton, who could have emigrated alone, and who was not spurred on by punishment, by music and by an obvious opportunity to win martial glory.

Taking Business Course.

The following have entered the Plainfield Business College during the past month for either the regular school course, or special instruction in some one subject: The Misses Grace Bryant, Helen Southard, Josephine Martin, May Birmingham, Kathryn Samson, Ruth Fabes and William Brown, Charles Smith, William La Tourette, Herman Tibbels, R. H. Bird and Thomas Bebout.

EFFECT OF "HARD TIMES"?

Fewer Plainfielders Taking Their Customary Summer Outings This Year.

DECREASE IS NOTICEABLE.

Furnished Houses Appear to Be a Drug on the Market—Ocean Travel, However, Heavier.

Whether it be because this is a Presidential election year, because the money market is "tight," or because the advertising by the Board of Trade has made people appreciate "The City Beautiful," Plainfielders are not leaving town on vacations as generally as last year this time. The summer exodus should be well under way by this time, but the "baggage-smashers" report fewer trunks to wrestle with, and the postoffice has been notified of fewer changes of addresses than last year.

Of those who have left town, an increased percentage are trans-Atlantic travelers and sailing days have been hearty after party of Plainfielders left across the pond," to spend the summer months in travel. There is a noticeable predominance of summer incationists who are going to mountain resorts, and little outgoing baggage is despatched to the shore, in comparison to the trunks handled for the mountain resorts.

Many Plainfielders rent their homes while they are away for the summer, but it is hard this year to find tenants to take the places. One local real estate man has had fifty houses placed in his management for summer rental, and has only been able to find tenants for about a dozen. The summer cottages on the mountain, however, have been returned quicker and the "summer boarding places" report the same number of boarders.

A particularly popular plan for short summer vacations this season is weekend automobile trips and many Plainfielders have their automobiles have already been off on such trips. These touring car parties cover lots of territory on the runs, which many local motorists have with week-end regularity.

A NEW FEMININE FAD.

"Wordly Woman," writing in the London Graphic, calls attention to a new feminine perplexity, which would seem to be about as vexatious as might be imagined.

"Wordly Woman" says: "Bright colors are in fashion; they are the rage, the obsession. Every enormity in impossible blues and greens which were suavely worn in the hideous days of the Second Empire has been revived, and that in spite of Art and Liberty. We never outgrow bad taste, it seems. Even our white blouses are covered with a brilliant chiffon yelling, and hats are in a shrieking cerise or fulltoned violet, both vastly unbecoming. To correct such errors there is nothing for it but powder and paint."

Now if you see ladies ambling along the street with their countenances elaborately kalsomined in bright purple or cerise tints, we may know that is simply for the sake of bringing the complexion up to a sufficiently lurid tone to harmonize with the new headgear. "Wordly Woman" confesses her ignorance as to "whether one makes up because one must wear the fashionable vile colors, or whether one flaunts the colors so show how much may be dared with paint." Thus is revealed to us the uncertainty of the feminine mind—or perhaps it is subtlety.

Anyway, this particular fad has its compensations, for in this little announcement from London it is learned that it affords a fine way of "rising superior" to a too-perfect complexion. A dainty complexion, it seems, renders these loud colors impossible, and the dainty complexions, like the poor ones, have to be fenced with drug store colors to bring them up to the mark. All complexions are thus reduced to the same uncertainty of artificial devices, and this is surely a benefit to the great majority.

And it is a benefit to those of the dainty complexions, too, for it is also learned that "a pretty skin is an everlasting stumbling block in the manifold uncertainty of soul, since a temperament was never yet known to wear a pink and white complexion and temperaments are almost as fashionable as large hats."

WINS $4,000 VERDICT.

Walker Gets Damages, but Trolley Company May Appeal.

A verdict of $4,000 was returned by a jury in favor of William C. Walker in the Circuit Court at Newark, Thursday afternoon at the trial of his action for $5,000 damages against the Public Service Railway Company.

Walker lives in Bloomfield and on October 26, 1906, was one of the victims of a collision between two trolley cars in that place. His principal injury was to the right eye, although his head and back were hurt.

It is likely that the case will be appealed because of the size of the verdict.

IN A TRANCE WHEN WEDDED

Woman Seeks Annulment of Ceremony Performed By Plainfield Pastor.

BRIDE OF SIXTEEN YEARS.

Miss Helen Nelson, of Perth Amboy, Says She Knows Nothing of Marriage to Man Who Deserted Her.

Declaring that she was married in a trance, from which she did not recover for hours, Miss Helen Nelson, of Perth Amboy, insists that she knows nothing of the ceremony, of a wild ride that preceded it or of a supper for four celebrating the event, although the central figure in it all, she says that she knows only of her awakening two days afterward and her desertion by the man who called himself her husband, John Myer Jorgensen, who is now believed to be in Troy, N. Y.

As a result the young woman has brought suit, through her counsel, Peter A. Peterson, of Perth Amboy, for annulment of the marriage on the technical legal grounds that she was but sixteen years old, when the wedding occurred.

An interesting feature of the wedding is that Rev. Charles S. Kemble, now pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, married the couple on May 4, 1907, when he was pastor of the Park M. E. church, Elizabeth. Mr. Kemble and his family are out of the city for the week and was impossible to get any information from the minister regarding the marriage.

Miss Nelson's lawyer, it is said, filed her bill shortly after the wedding, and was met by a demurrer from Jorgensen's attorneys. The case was argued before Vice-Chancellor Emery, who yesterday handed down an opinion in which the demurrer was dismissed and the girl is free to continue her suit.

Miss Nelson says that her memory is a blank concerning the events on the day of her wedding and two succeeding days. But investigation by her counsel proved the truth of Jorgensen's statements. There had been a hurried ride to Elizabeth, a hasty marriage, quickened by the fear that the bride's parents might be hot on the trail, a supper celebration and finally the desertion.

UNDER $200 BOND BOY STEALS A WATCH

George Suydam, the fourteen-year old North Plainfielder who was released under $200 bail Tuesday to appear before the grand jury on the charge of stealing two bicycles, is again a fugitive from the borough police, thanged this time with stealing a silver watch belonging to James Carline, an Italian neighbor of the boy's on Jefferson avenue. The theft was committed in broad daylight Friday when Suydam's accomplices were his two little brothers, aged four and six years.

The lad's bold theft was reported to Chief Marshal Weiss, of the North Plainfield police shortly after nine o'clock today. The officer went to the home of Ferdinand Valadioti, an Italian living near the Suydam home on Jefferson avenue, and learned that Mrs. Marie Valadioti had seen young Suydam jump out of the window with Carline's watch just a few minutes before and run off with his brothers across the fields. Mrs. Carline said that at the time there was no one in the house. Carline, who boards with the Valadiotis, was off at work, and she was out in the field gathering brush.

She noticed the two small brothers of Suydam prowling around the rear of the house, apparently on the lookout. Suspicious of mischief, she started toward the house, when the little fellows raised the alarm. Mrs. Valadioti then saw young George Suydam jump out of the rear window, making a quick get-away. In climbing over the sill, the young house breaker tripped and fell to the ground. She saw him drop the watch but he instantly picked it up and darted across the fields. The woman started in pursuit, but was soon outdistanced by the boys, who ran toward the mountain.

An examination of the house showed that the boy had found a pocketbook, but had thrown it down again upon discovering that there was no money in it. The watch was an open face silver time-piece, to which was attached a gilt plated chain.

Suydam was arrested by the Plainfield police Monday, charged with stealing bicycles belonging to George Pope and Harry Bogert. Judge Runyon fixed the boy's bond at $200, and the money was supplied by Henry DeMott, City and borough police are on the boy's trail for the theft of the watch.

LENTZ HITS COUNTY BOARD.

Says It Had no Right to Jack Up Assessments.

Bayonne, June 27.—Major Carl Lentz, at the session of the State Board of Equal Exaction here Thursday, raked the county board over the coals. It heard more than forty appeals from taxes levied on residential property, and in each instance granted the reduction asked on the ground that the assessment was grossly excessive and that the increase was improperly made. The appeal heard are but a small proportion of those that will be estimated that if the board follows the rulings of yesterday the total reductions on residential property will aggregate $2,000,000.

It transpired when the first case was heard that the increases were not made according to the judgment of the municipal assessor, Silas Brooks, but were arbitrarily ordered by the County Board for the Equalization of Taxes.

Major Lentz became highly incensed when he learned the method pursued by the county board, which, without specifying parcels of property to be assessed, arbitrarily ordered the local assessor to increase the ratables of Bayonne by $2,721,-003.

He said the county board had exceeded its authority and had no warrant in law for its act. He said that had an appeal been taken when the order of the county board was made, the State board would have reversed its order.

FOR THE SUPERSTITIOUS.

If when washing dishes you forget an article it is a sign you will hear of a wedding.

If you sing while making bread you will cry before it is eaten.

If your apron becomes untied it is an indication that somebody is speaking of you.

To upset salt cuts off the coffee pot is the sign of a coming gift.

To accidentally place the teaketle on the stove with the spout toward the back is a sign of company.

If a coal of fire falls on the floor it is a sign of stranger is coming to see you.

If, after sweeping a room, the broom is accidentally left in a corner, strangers will visit the house that day.

Yes, the pendant earrings are decidedly for her of the dark parted hair and the tragic face. But as for the saucy and piquant woman, let her beware of hanging half a dozen necklaces from her ears.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS SENT BY NEW JERSEY

One of the most elaborate and artistic of the scores of floral pieces at the funeral of former President Grover Cleveland at Princeton Friday was the one sent by New Jersey. It was made at Ribsam's in Trenton, and was taken to Princeton in a wagon which was specially equipped for its transportation.

The piece is a panel five feet high and nearly four feet wide. In the centre there is a spray of honor made of orchids, extending from a point near the lower left hand corner almost to the upper right hand corner. This spray is set off by a handsome background of white carnations, white roses, lavender sweet peas, lilies of the valley and several varieties of ferns of more delicate species. The whole color scheme of the piece is lavender, green and white. The corners of the panel are decorated with bows of lavender silk crepe. On the top of the piece is a card with the coat of arms of New Jersey in gold, and under that the word "Sympathy." The card is tied with a bow of lavender silk ribbon.

In accordance with Adjutant General R. H. Breitnall's order a salute of thirteen guns was fired at sunrise yesterday. At intervals of thirty minutes a salute of one gun was fired. At sunset a salute of forty-five guns were fired from the river bank in the rear of the State house.

When it was turned on she received a greeting that almost made her collapse but she quickly recovered and acknowledged the surprise.

The evening was spent in playing cards and listening to an informal program of vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were served in conclusion, during an intermission, Mrs. Nischwitz was presented with a chafing dish and a handsome piece of cut glass.

DOESN'T RECALL WEDDING

Officiating Minister Comments on Bride's Statement That She was in a Trance.

THE LAW COMPLIED WITH.

Rev. Mr. Kemble Says Helen Nelson's Case May Be One of "Marriage in Haste; Repent at Leisure."

Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, who on May 4, 1907, married Miss Helen Nelson, of Perth Amboy, and John Myer Jorgensen, while he was pastor of the Park M. E. church, Elizabeth, was question today regarding the bride's declaration that she was in a trance when she was married and remained so for two days afterward and on the grounds that she was sixteen years old and was deserted by her husband now seeks an annulment of the ceremony.

Mr. Kemble said that he could not at this time recall the particular case, but in his opinion it must have been a repetition of the old saying, "Marry in haste, repent at leisure." He felt sure that it must have been a hasty marriage, but the fact that the bride was accompanied by two friends as witnesses proved to his mind that all were not in a trance or dazed condition.

"I always insist that prospective brides and grooms comply strictly with the law," said Mr. Kemble. "If the young woman is willing to take an affirmation that she is eighteen years old and the groom that he is of legal age and everything appears to be all right otherwise, I do not hesitate to perform the ceremony. In this particular case it seems that there had been a hurried ride to Elizabeth and a desire on the part of the couple to be married. They must have satisfied me that all the legal requirements were complied with or I certainly would not have consented to officiate. While in Elizabeth I married a great many couples and it would be difficult to recall off-hand incidents associated with the ceremony of any particular wedding, especially as far back as a year ago."

WARREN ENDEAVORERS HOLD FINE FESTIVAL

For the purpose of raising funds with which to purchase window screens, the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel held a successful ice cream festival and sale of candy, lemonade and flowers on the lawn adjoining the chapel Thursday afternoon and night. Under the direction of Theodore Martin, who was the general chairman of the affair, the spacious lawn was attractively decorated with colored flags and bunting, while numerous incandescent lights were scattered throughout the grounds. The attendance was large and the patronage so liberal that the society accomplished its object.

An extra attraction in the evening was the fine program of music by the Liberty Band, under the leadership of David Dawson. All of the popular airs were included and the crowd enjoyed the program greatly.

Theodore Martin was chairman of the festival and those in charge of the various booths were as follows:

Ice cream—Charles Windham, Charles Bryan, Alexander Galloway. Cake—Mrs. John Schenck, Mrs. Joseph O. McElroy, Mrs. Theodore Martin, Mrs. J. M. Green, Mrs. Fred Winn, Miss Wakefield, Mrs. J. W. SHAMROCKS WILL GROW IN NEW JERSEY SOD

The fond delusion of many loyal sons of Erin that the shamrock will grow nowhere but in the "auld sod" has been dispelled for William Mack of New Brunswick, has a fine collection of them that were nurtured and raised in good New Jersey soil.

These dainty sprigs of green sprung from some shamrock seed which was sent to John F. Downing, former assistant postmaster of New Brunswick, of that city, by the Editor of the Home News from Ireland last summer. Mr. Downing proposed to see if they could be turned to practical use, so gave them to Mr. Mack, who is florist for George Kuhn, the cigar manufacturer of George street, and is also an expert florist, having one of the choicest and best kept gardens in town. The way Mr. Mack experimented with these shamrocks was a revelation. He had to try them very carefully in various kinds of soil to find out what they liked best, and finally had to mix several kinds of soil together. It was hard and exacting work, but the florist persevered and was rewarded by a bed of sixty shamrock plants.

Not content with that he took up each of the tiny shoots and put it into a separate flower pot and tended each one as carefully as he would the choicest orchid. All prospered finely and Mr. Mack has been able to present a number of his friends with a shamrock whose genuineness is beyond question, and which is actually thriving in American soil.

Mr. Mack says that of the plants will send up a tiny flower. Mr. Mack hopes to get more seed from these and will continue his shamrock raising industry.

Mr. Boyd also sent some shamrock seed to Postmaster White of the New Brunswick post office, who is also endeavoring to raise them.

MISS CATHRINE WHELAN BRIDE OF JOHN M'DONALD

The marriage of Miss Catherine Whelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Whelan, of West Fifth street, and John McDonald, of Cranford, took place in St. Mary's church Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Rev. Father B. M. Bogan performed the ceremony and the nuptials were followed by a gathering of friends from New York, Newark, Easton, Atlantic City, Cranford, Roselle and Plainfield.

Miss Whelan was attended by Miss Agnes Egan, of Syracuse, N. Y., while Bertram Crane, of Newark, was best man. Joseph Whelan, William McNam, Michael Kiely and Alexander McDonald acted as ushers. The bride's gown was of white net over white silk and her bouquet of white roses. Miss Egan wore white sealine and carried carnations.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. McDonald took their departure amid showers of rice for a month's stay at Atlantic City. On returning they will reside temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Whelan. In an exchange of gifts in the bridal party, the groom gave the bride a diamond brooch while the latter presented her attendant with a gold ring. The wedding presents included silver, cut glass and checks.

A VELVET CLEANING AGENT.

Anyone who has tried to keep a velvet hat or frock clean does not need to be told it is a dust collector. This trying trait may be turned to account.

A bit of velvet is a fine polisher for brass. It quickly removes the dust from woodwork, or shoes soiled from walking which do not need reblacking.

One housekeeper even uses a big piece of old velvet to rub her stove to a high polish after it has been blackened.

County Detective Has an Auto.

MISS JULIA CONNOLLY IS NOW MRS. CALLAHAN

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends in St. Mary's church at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon, Miss Julia Frances Connolly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Connolly, of West Fifth street, and Anthony G. Callahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Callahan, of Woodland avenue, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan.

Miss Connolly was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Connolly, and was gowned in white silk trimmed with cluny lace. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The bridesmaid carried carnations and wore white batiste with simple trimmings. The best man was William H. Callahan, brother of the groom, while John and Thomas Connolly, brothers of the bride, were the ushers. Miss Connolly was given away by her father.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Callahan were tendered a reception at the home of the latter's parents. Their left on a short two weeks' wedding trip and at its conclusion will make their home in Brooklyn, where the groom is the proprietor of a hotel on Fulton street. The young couple received a large and valuable assortment of wedding gifts.

OPERETTA AND CONCERT BY HOLY CROSS CHOIR

Elaborately staged, cleverly acted and showing genuine musical comedy talent on the part of the twenty-three choir boys who took part, the one-act operetta, "Robinson Crusoe," presented by the Holy Cross choir in connection with a concert at the church Parish House Wednesday proved a success, and about $75 was netted for the boys' camp as a result of the production. Mr. Raymond Loder, who wrote the words and music for the operetta, based on the book of T. W. Richardson, was directly responsible for the success of the production. He has worked hard with the boys. All details of staging and costuming, as well as the various dances, which scored hits with the audience, were from his suggestion and the boys showed the results of careful training. He was at the piano and furnished the music for the operetta.

A feature of the performance was the dancing and of the dances those by Russell Conroy and Charles Kryger, as "Robinson Crusoe" and Friday, and by George Ball's dance as "Hokee Pokee," the cannibal king, are worthy of especial mention. The sailors' dance, by four of the choir, and the dance of the mutineers also were merited applause. The costuming was elaborate and effective and the stage setting was foliage and crimson rambler roses.

The first part of the program was a concert, in which the choir of twenty-nine men and boys was assisted by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson, violinist, and Miss Mabel Blance, who is acter as accompanist. Mrs. Truell-Johnson won the keenest appreciation by her selections, showing her to possess superior technique and appreciation. On the road to Mandalay," by Frederick J. Pope, with the chorus by the choir, was the vocal success of the program, with Mr. Ball's solo "Without Thee." The program follows:

"Lady Bird," (Koschat); the choir; "On the road to Mandalay," (Damrosch), Mr. Pope and choir; Romance, (Svendsen), Mrs. Violet-Truell-Johnston; "Pretty Twinkling Starry Eyes," (van der Soucken), the choir; "Without Thee," (d'Hardelot), Mr. Ball; "A Pleasant Wedding in Carinthia," (Kooschat), the choir; (a) Andante, (Second concerto), (Wieniawski), (b) Serenade, (Pirene), Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston.

"Robinson Crusoe:" "Robinson Crusoe," a shipwrecked sailor, Russell Conroy; "Captain Bailey," of the brig Betsey Jane, Herbert Stine; "Bella," his one fair daughter, Carol Taylor; "Jack Atkins," a mutineer, Ira Vail; "Friday," a cannibal, Charles Kregar; "The Mysterious Stranger," Howard Riley; "Bellinda," a lady of color, Donald Ketcham; "Hokee Pokee," King of the Cannibal Isles, George Ball.

Cannibals—Frederic Van Norden, Harold Noble, Donald Ketcham, Walter Thomas, Ericson Van Norden, and Evans Stevens.

Mutineers—Walter Kleshlein, Carl Noble, Martin Mantz, Augustus Vandeventer, Raymond Mosher.

For the Shirtwaist Girl.

A very dainty pattern for the outing waist can be made in the Gibson style with roll collar and three-quarter length sleeves trimmed with inverted cuffs. The wide plait down the centre front is finished with large white pearl buttons. White linen, pique, gingham or fancy lawn can be used for such. A white cotton waist would be very effective one was visiting.

MISS JULIA CONNOLLY CITY WILL BE A FARMER

Councilmanic Committee Decides to Raise Produce on a Forty Acre Tract.

CHANGES AT POOR FARM.

Mr. and Mrs. Tunis Huff Engaged to Take Charge of Industrial Home on July 1.

The Councilmanic Alms committee voiced dissatisfied with the small returns from the forty acre farm located near the Industrial Home, has decided to engage in the farming business on a more extensive scale with a view to at least getting sufficient produce themefrom to provide for the inmates of the Home. In the past the farming idea has not been pushed to any great extent, and in consequence the committee, through Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayres, has been obliged to purchase things which should be raised on the farm.

The committee has engaged Mr. and Mrs. Tunis Huff, who reside near Finderne and on July 1 they will take charge of the Industrial Home. Mrs. Huff will look after the Home as a matron, while Mr. Huff, who is a practical farmer, will manage the farm and the latter hopes that will do the work under his direction. In this way the city hopes to save considerable money each year. Mr. and Mrs. Huff will succeed Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Ten Eyck, who have been at the Home for a number of years. It is said that owing to Mr. Ten Eyck's advanced age he is unable to actively engage in farming and for this reason it was thought best to employ a man who can do this work. The new superintendent will be appointed at the July meeting of the Common Council. Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck will continue to reside in Plainfield. Mr. Huff is a son-in-law of Henry Hummer, who for many years has been in charge of the poor farm in Piscataway Township.

ABANDON ANNUAL COMMUNION AT THEIR MOTHER CHURCH.

Local Christian Scientists have been advised that the annual communion season of "the mother church," the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, has been abolished. The former years the communion service of the Boston church has afforded an occasion for large gatherings of Christian Scientists from all parts of the world. The change was first made known through the following statement, which Mrs. Eddy gave out to the press:

The house of The Mother Church seats only five thousand people, and its membership includes forty-eight thousand communicants, hence the following:

"The branch churches continue their communion seasons, but there shall be no more communion seasons in the Mother Church that has blossomed into spiritual beauty—communion universal and divine. 'For who hath known the Mind of the Lord that he may instruct him? but we have the Mind of Christ,' 1 Cor. 2: 16."

This was followed by a second statement from Mrs. Eddy which reads as follows:

"Beloved Christian Scientists: Relinquishing a material form of communion advances it spiritually. The material is a buffer it to be so now' and is abandoned as soon as God's way-shower, Christ, points the advanced step. This instructs us how to be ready and how to abide. Dropping the communion of the Mother Church does not prevent its distant members from attending this church occasionally.

Local Optics's New Champion.

After long and careful consideration Bishop Walker, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, has publicly taken a strong and practical position in favor of local option. In his message to the clergy upon the subject the Bishop said:

"For my part I believe in the right of the majority to decide what policy shall be pursued in regard to the sale of intoxicants.

"To me it seems that the time has come when the majority of voters in any ward of a Christian city should be allowed to say whether liquor licenses shall be issued or not.

In the last analysis local option means simply the granting to the majority of voters, the right to exercise that power which, under our republican form of government, undeniably belongs to the majority.

"Upon this point I have no doubts whatever, and so in the present situation, with conditions being what they are, I plead for local option."—Bucks Co., Pa., Gazette.

IS IT NOT EXTRAVAGANCE?

If the members of the Common Council only knew with what indignation the average taxpayer views their practise of using the city's money to defray the expenses of heads of the various departments at various conventions, they would not be so hasty in thus appropriating the taxpayers' money. It is not many moons since the mayor sounded a note of warning to the city fathers, declaring that conditions demand a policy of retrenchment on the part of the city. It might be al very well to send this or that man to attend some convention were the local banks loaded with surpluses of the city but when the municipality is not properly policed; when the fire department's work is handicapped by lack of sufficient apparatus; when the householders can not have the benefit of a sanitary garbage disposal system and then the municipality is without other needed improvements, it seems an unwarranted extravagance.

Only last night, the Common Council appropriated $150 for the expense for the head of a department to attend one of these conventions in Columbus, Ohio. Some few weeks ago, it gave another department head a similar amount to attend another gathering at Detroit, Mich. It is also the custom to likewise treat other heads of departments. And so it goes. Of course, it may be granted that some things may be learned at these conventions but as the proceedings are all published in full for the convenience of those interested, it is hard to see the wisdom of thus appropriating tax funds when all a very little will and of retrenchment is imperative at this time.

LAWN FETE NETS $100 FOR NETHERWOOD CAMP

As the result of a lawn fete held Saturday afternoon on the lawn of 519 Watchung avenue, $100 was netted for the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp. The affair was planned by a girls' club and workers' circle of which Miss Clara Neuman is president. Gayly decorated booths were placed on the lawn and about a dozen members of the club and their friends were in charge.

At the fancy booth were the Misses Mildred Brownlee, Margaret Mortimer and Clara Neuman; the candy booth was in charge of Miss Mabel Holzman, assisted by Miss Esther Brownlee and Mrs. George Mantz. Miss Marion Dorthy was in charge at the lemonade well. Ice cream and cake were sold at a prettily decorated booth by Mrs. Theodore Mantz, Mrs. Peter Neuman and Miss Julia Clark. Tables were set on the lawn for serving these refreshments and the members of the band acted as waitresses. A feature of the affair was a booth where Colgate articles, soaps, powder and cologne, were offered for sale. This was in charge of Miss Marguerite Sampter.

MISS SADIE FRUCHT BRIDE OF LEO ZEISEL.

Miss Sadie Frucht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Frucht, of Park avenue, and Leo Zeisel, of New York, were married at the Synagogue on New street, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the presence of 400 relatives and friends from Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn and this city. Rabbi Davidson, of this city, assisted by a rabbi from New York, performed the ceremony, a feature of which was the singing of the bridal chorus of seven boys. The bride was gowned in white silk, en train; wore a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Saengerbund Hall on Somerset street, where the bride and groom received congratulations; supper was served and dancing was continued until the early hours of the morning. After a honeymoon the couple will reside in this city.

Funeral of Edmund W. Hollingsworth.

The funeral of Edmund V. Hollingsworth, who died last Friday after a brief illness, was held at the home of his brother, Loftus Hollingsworth, of Scotch Plains, Monday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. W. W. Musson, of Faith chapel, this city, assisted by Rev. W. W. Deitrich, pastor of the Scotch Plain Methodist church, and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends from Brooklyn where Mr. Hollingsworth had been prominent in business for many years. There were numerous handsome floral tributes. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the casket being borne by porters and escorted by six nephews of the deceased.

AMUSEMENTS.

Vaudeville's "Best" will be a large factor in causing the patrons of Proctor's Newark Playhouse to forget the heated period next week, then too the temperature of the theatre is always from ten to fifteen degrees cooler than outside. Some of the more popular performers who will help further merriment are Al Leech and his Three Rosebuds in a new version of their laughable singing and dancing skit, Jeannette Lowrie and Her Six Free Lance, "Mary's Lamb," and "Yama" will sing some of her greatest song successes and wear some stunning gowns. After a year of stellar work in the legitimate Zelma Rawiston will return to vaudeville with a sketch written especially for her by Edward Ellner, who is Daniel Frohman's general stage director, entitled "Hannah of Havana;" Miss Rawiston will have excellent support. Francis Sedgwick and company will present a laughable farce in one act "Too Many Husbands." The Swedish American quartette are four fresh young voiced people whose rendition of the latest ballads will be a welcome feature. Lyons and Parks the former a young New Yorker, are singing and dancing a pleasing manner. Lyons is also a talented harpist. Espey, Dutton and Espey are a trio of clever comedy bicyclists. These artists with new animated pictures and other acts of live merit will round out the program.

LITERARY

Mix two pounds of whiting and one half ounce of oleic acid with a gallon of gasoline. Stir and mix thoroughly In this compound soak flannel rags of the desired size, then wring out and hang up to dry, being careful to keep them away from a fire or open flame. These cloths will give a fine gloss to silverware, will not soil the hands and will preserve their polishing qualities indefinitely.—Woman's Home Companion for July.

The war is going on in the heart of our own country. In four states men are burning and blowing up buildings, up-rooting fields, and shooting to kill, if need be. Mr. Day Allen Willey has made an investigation of the Tobacco War and its causes for the Metropolitan Magazine. His article, "The Night Riders" appears in the July number. Professor Hugo Munsterberg, of Harvard University, the celebrated scientist, has an article on "Hypnotism and Freedom," which weighs the value of hypnotism as a curative agent. An article of great interest is "The Passing of the Ferries," by Jackson Cross, splendidly illustrated with photographic studies. Another article of good public value, "Waterloo Today," by Robert Howard Russell, compares the battlefield as it was when Napoleon's army thundered across it, with its present state.

The current number of the popular outdoor magazine Recreation is a special Vacation Number of double size and full of helpful and good advice for people who take vacations, whether they have much or little to spend.

The cover is a fine reproduction in full colors of a photograph of a deer swimming across a river. Several scenes of this Vacation Number are printed in art tone inks in colors, which bring out the fine illustrations in an unusually attractive manner.

Scribner's Magazine for July opens with a stirring outdoor article by William T. Hornaday, the author of "Camp Fires in the Canadian Rockies," and Curator of the New York Zoological Park. He describes, with many pictures, a famous trip in the Bad-lands of Montana in pursuit of mule deer. The article is full of adventure and humor by the way, and is fully illustrated by L. A. Huffman, who accompanied the expedition. The first installment of several papers by Mr. Hornaday called "Diversions in Picturesque Game-Lands." A short serial by James B. Connolly begins in this number under the title "An Olympic Victor." It has to do with the modern Games at Athens and the hero is the winner of the Marathon Run. Mr. Connolly was himself a competitor in the Games and was the first American to win in the contest. It is doubtful whether more stirring pages ever been written than this serial. Castaigne has made a wonderful series of pictures for the serial.

There has never been a period in American history when the public was more eager to learn the attitude of its leaders than in the present election year. In the July Everybody's Lincoln Steffens holds up for the inspection of the voter the views of Mr. Bryan and Governor Johnson, the most prominent of the Democratic leaders. To Mr. Steffens's searching questions have come definite, clear-cut answers—there could be no evasion, no misunderstanding of the evasion, no misinterpretation of the meaning of each question. The article is strong—as strong as was its predecessor in the June number, "Where the Republican leaders gave their views before the Chicago convention." The article is in America and What to do About It." Then, too, Charles Edward Russell presents in "The Tenements of Trinity Church" a powerful arraignment of the methods employed by a Christian church towards the wretched dwellers upon its vast and lucrative property.

The July American Magazine is crowded with good reading. "Mr. Dooley" writes a platform for the Democratic party, and has fun with Bryan, Governor Johnson and the other candidates. Octave Mirbeau, writing on "Animals and Automobiles," tells of a motorist's experiences with the beasts of the road—horses, cows, chickens, dogs, geese, mules and men. A. Poppini's illustrations for this article are as clever as genius can make them. George Fitch describes a visit with Roosevelt, and McCutcheon's cartoons add to the gaiety of the article. G. Stanley Hall writes wonderfully and very very plainly, about race suicide and the instruction of children during adolescence. Ray Stannard Baker describes "The Black Man's Silent Power."

The South is perpetually interesting. So much, at least, its severest critics concede. It used to be interesting because it was unlike the rest of the country, and insisted on remaining so. It is interesting still; academic and other students of institutions continue to discover and report, and seem to find readers for their reports. But the reason if different. Although still measurably peculiar, it now attracts the philosophically minded because it is changing. No other part of the country by tales concerned with patriotism are "The House of Peace," a striking pictorial presentation of the drama of Lee's surrender, by Clara E. Laughlin, and a most amusing skit by Robert Sloss, entitled "Melancthon's Peaceful Fourth."

Vacation time is here again, and when you go on your holiday you will be looking for reading matter to while away the occasional lazy hour. At such times one wants something bright and entertaining, and, above all, complete. This description covers the July Lippincott's Magazine.

The leading novelette by Mrs. John Van Vorst is entitled "Second Quality"—this name applies neither to plot or treatment. but rather to the stripe of society people, so-called, who are for the most part foreign born. They rattle round the Latin, and American millionaire, who goes to Europe to spend his money, and to make friends, which he has neglected to do earlier in life owing to peculiar domestic conditions. The story's denouement is novel and dramatic, and to it truth in the novelist's duties justice; and the sweet, pure love scenes throughout the narrative present a pleasing contrast to its grosser side.

In the July number of "Success Magazine" Michael Williams discusses the body's power of resisting disease, under the title of "Our Billions of Invisible Friends." A first-class article, "The American Girl Out-of-Doors," is illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson and Francis Day. Samuel Merwin concludes his series on the opium evil in China with an article entitled "Great Britain—the Force of Reform." Pitz-Gerald describes the elephant-hunting in East Africa, and Will Irwin tells about clairvoyants, under the title, "The Easiest Money There Is." The subject of Orison Swett Marden's editorial is "Expect Great Things of Yourself." The stories of the month are "The Uncertain Heart," by Elliot Flower; "Makin' Me Fadder Enjoy," by Ernest Poole; "Bill and the Magic Coral," by John Fleming Wilson; "The Cloth of Her Country," by Alice Brown Runyon, and "Lenolia," by W. C. Morrow. There are poems by Edmund Vance Cooke, called "The Scapegoat," and "An Apology for Baseball."

The Republican party is not yet ready to surrender bodily to the threats of the union leaders, no matter how powerful may be the influences brought to bear. There is gratifying proof of that in the memorial of fifteen Republicans to the committee on resolutions of the Chicago convention, asking for the inclusion in its platform of a plank affirming confidence in the courts.—American Industries for June.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BONDS PAID, A BIG BUDGET OF BILLS, TOO.

Financial business took up the greater part of the session at the monthly meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education held at the Somerset Street School Monday night and bonds amounting to $3,500, due July 1, were ordered paid, together with interest amounting to $2,257.50 on other bonds outstanding. The monthly budget of bills, including this bond money, amounted to about $6,000.

J. Herbert Case, as chairman of the building and grounds committee, reported several repairs completed and under way and estimates will be secured for other necessary repairs during the summer. Edmund Rushmore was the only member of the board absent.

MATERIAL RESURRECTION

Rev. Dr. Herring Gives the Thirteenth Talk in Series on the Creed.

AS TO THE OTHER WORLD.

"Because Heaven Is So Human a Place, We Shall Recognize Our Friends," Says Minister.

Interesting instruction relating to the resurrection of the body was the feature of the sermon by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church Sunday, it being another discourse in the series on "The Apostles Creed." Taking for his theme "The Resurrection of the Body," Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"The Resurrection of the Body—You believe in the resurrection of the soul—You believe that though the body perishes, that which was the life of the body lives. You believe that your dear ones have not died but that they have gone in to the heavenly world even though you have placed their bodies in the grave. But if you would not believe in the creed unless it was a great revelation in Scriptures.

"The creed, therefore, teaches this great truth in the other world we shall have bodies. It was the belief of the disciples of the Lord was not that they might live again in another world simply but that they might have materials bodies in that world. They wished that their spirits might not be found 'naked,' but clothed upon with their heavenly bodies. That was the thought of Job when he said 'I know that my Redeemer liveth and that from my flesh I shall see God.' He could not think of a life that was apart from some sort of a body. Flesh and blood shall not inherit the kingdom of God but a body shall;—a body that shall be best suited to the needs of the soul. It is said that 'there is no known form of energy apart from matter.' Mind is apart from matter, but mind expresses itself through matter. It is scientific as well as Scriptural therefore to believe that our future existence shall be a bodily existence.

"When we speak of an embodied existence in the future, we do not mean, of course, that it will be in every respect as our present bodies. It has been suggested that 'they may be similar to that form of matter and which is called ether. This ether is called matter and yet it differs so under different laws from that which we ordinarily call matter. This etheric matter is the medium of wireless telegraph and the X-ray. The X-ray is able to penetrate solid substances as 'water through a sieve.' The old laws of matter do not hold as we define ether as matter. It may be that our future bidies shall be composed of matter similar to the ether that 'pervades all space.'

"Our Lord's resurrection body is suggestive as to the character of our future bodies. It was the body that had been crucified. Doubting Thomas was convinced of that when he saw the print of the nails; yet that body possessed powers which it never possessed before. Fitz-Gerald describes the elephant-hunting in East Africa, and Will Irwin tells about clairvoyants, under the title, "The Easiest Money There Is." The subject of Orison Swett Marden's editorial is. "Expect Great Things of Yourself." The stories of the month are "The Uncertain Heart," by Elliot Flower; "Makin' Me Fadder Enjoy," by Ernest Poole; "Bill and the Magic Coral," by John Fleming Wilson; "The Cloth of Her Country," by Alice Brown Runyon, and "Lenolia," by W. C. Morrow. There are poems by Edmund Vance Cooke, called "The Scapegoat," and "An Apology for Baseball."

"Perhaps you have said how can God gather the material particles that once formed our earthly bodies and resurrect them all at the last day. I don't believe He does. Paul illustrates the resurrection by a grain of wheat. A grain of wheat is planted. It dies but by its very dying it lives and God gives it another body. By what divine alchemy God develops the new body we don't know. A man of seventy has had a number of bodies but he is conscious of possessing only one body. Through all these changes his identity has been preserved. Sir Oliver Lodge has said 'Identity of material particles does not constitute the person and they are not essential to the identity of the body.'

"There is practical helpfulness in the thought of the resurrection of the body. It reveals to me that after death I do not lose my personal identity. I am not absorbed into the world soul. The next world therefore is a very human world. The body let that world will be better suited to the needs of the soul.

"It reveals again this truth that the other world is a place of infinite progress. There we shall ever be advancing not only in holiness but in knowledge. Part of the happiness of that world will be as in the discovery of new secrets of God's great universe.

"Because heaven is so human a place, we shall recognize the friends whom it will be our supreme joy to meet. No! We shall not be swallowed up into the divine essence and thus lose all our identity; we shall be embodied souls and the conditions about us shall be so human that our friends and dear ones shall know us and we shall know them."

MRS. SARAH L. CLIFFTON, OLDEST RESIDENT, DEAD

Mrs. Sarah L. Clifton, widow of William Clifton, and regarded as Plainfield's oldest resident, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Hoagland Thornton, near Scotch Plains line. Death was due to her advanced age, her relatives having been aware of a gradual failing for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Clifton was born in Plainfield in 1811 on what is now Mountain avenue, the home of her parents being near the Scotch Plains line. She was the daughter of James and Rachel Vail, who were among the earliest settlers in this section. When a young woman she was married to Dr. Philip Dakin and went to Columbus, Ky., where her husband died. She returned East and was later married to William Clifton, then a resident of Quakertown, this State. Since his death she had resided at Langhorne, Pa., and Waynesville, O., returning to Plainfield a few years ago. She had made her home with a daughter.

Mrs. Clifton is survived by two sons, William Dakin, of Somerville, and Charles B. Clifton, of this city, also two daughters, Mrs. Mary Whitall, of whose home she died, and Mrs. Elsa Furman, of East Orange. She was a member of the Society of Friends (Hicksite) and the funeral was held in the Watchung avenue meeting house, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

TRINITY SERVICE FOR NETHERWOOD CAMP WORK

Attended by Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Little Missionary's Day Nursery in New York city, and the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, and a dozen children from the lower East Side of New York, where her work is carried on, a service in the interests of the camp was held at Trinity Reformed church Sunday night. Rev. Dr. M. P. Johnson presided and the principal speaker was Dr. H. S. Sauerbrey, of New York. Dr. Sauerbrey is much interested in the work of Miss Curry among the poor children in the tenement house districts and gave avivid description of the conditions in that New York homes on the East Side. He spoke of the value of the summer vacation at Netherwood to the children, the babies and the overworked mothers and urged the congregation to support Miss Curry's work at Netherwood.

Miss Curry also spoke briefly of the work and George E. Hall, vice-president of the camp association here, outlined the plans for the season, stating that the camp will open Monday, July 6. The children from New York presented a program of songs and recitations, and were greeted with the keenest appreciation.

Music was a feature of the service and the full choir of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by an orchestra of six pieces. Those who played were Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Arline Brown and A. S. Mosher, violins, E. D. Young, cornet, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol, and Elmer Wheeler, flute. A liberal offering proved a substantial financial aid to the work of Miss Curry among the New York poor.

Local Elks Going to Dallas.

A. D. Findlay and George O. Stevens, the latter a delegate, will attend the reunion and convention of the Lodge of Elks to be held at Dallas, Texas, July 12 to 19, as representatives of Plainfield lodge. It is expected that delegations from Rahway, New Brunswick, Trenton, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Pawtucket, R. I.; Woonsocket, R. I.; New Haven, Stanford, Bridgeport, Hartford, Conn., and Elizabeth, as well as Mr. Findley and Mr. Stevens from this city, will accompany the Newark delegation which will go to the convention in a special train.

Hit in the Eye by Foul-Tip.

William Stenzenberger, the ten-year-old son of Anton Stenzenberger, of Watchung avenue, was hit in the eye by a foul-tip while watching the baseball game between Plainfield and Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. teams at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and was removed to the hospital for treatment. At first it was thought that the boy's eye-sight had been destroyed, but an examination showed that the blow did not injure the sight, simply bruising the parts close to the eye. He was able to return to his home today.

His First Charge.

George Bolsterli, of this city, who is a student in the Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, has taken a charge at Ava, N. Y., until fall, when he will resume his studies again.

CLEVELAND AS HIS TEXT

Rev. Dr. Chambliss Eulogizes Dead President as "One who Did not Play to Galleries."

HIS AN ILLUSTRIOUS RECORD.

Public Opinion Rights Itself Always Declares the First Baptist's Scholarly Pastor.

That the good men do really does live after them and that public opinion can always be depended upon to right itself were the lessons contained in a sermon on Grover Cleveland, preached by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss to a large congregation at the First Baptist church Sunday morning. That the great Democrat was never a self seeker; the cost of principle or that he ever played to the galleries in the discharge of his sworn duty were two thoughts brought out by the scholarly divine.

"Every man is heard from again after he dies," said Dr. Chambliss. "If there is one thing more than another which Grover Cleveland, being dead is yet saying to the men of this generation it is that the praise of men is not the supreme good. That it is better to be reviled, hated, and misjudged, hounded, into the darkest caves of obscurity, than to sit in the most exalted station, in the broad light of popular favor, with the ghost of a strangled conscience for a companion: with the finger of outraged principle before him in contempt and the voice of wounded truth crying in his soul 'Coward' and 'Traitor.'

"The praise of men is not an unworthy object of desire or effort. Mr. Cleveland did not despise it, all of us want it, and to the average man it is a powerful motive. I will never been the day when I can say, 'I must have distinction, and the applause of my fellow men at whatever cost.'

"From the first day that Grover Cleveland entered public office to the last, he never spoke a word, or performed a deed, that did not assumed an attitude that looked like 'playing to the galleries,' or that had in it a trace of pandering to the passions, or the prejudices of the multitude. Or that could be construed as self-seeking at the cost of what he believed to be the truth or the right.

"One not of the same political faith, but eminent in business says of him:

'Grover Cleveland was the highest type of public servant, and it is to be regretted that we have so few men of his sturdy character in public life. He was patriot rather than a partisan, and his moral courage to do what he thought we best for his country regardless of party was the beginning of the independent thought throughout the United States, which is now such a factor in national affairs.'

"Another of our ablest men says: 'In the death of Mr. Cleveland the loss is nothing less than national, and his countrymen everywhere, irrespective of party, will realize that there has gone from us a great and notable figure—a statesman unexcelled for patriotism, for lofty convictions of public duty, and for courage to put them into effect.'

"Another says: 'His whole public career was a demonstration of political courage, which, as President Lincoln once said, was quality before no hostility when once he was convinced where his duty lay.'

"Very glad are we that this 'happy warrior' whose conflicts were as stern as any that are waged on chasm-laden fields did not sleep without his fame—that he lived to see the day that he left a dead and unprofitable name; that he lived long enough to know that this Republic was not ungrateful, but gave him a full measure of confidence and affection in return for the steadfast integrity and unselfish devotion with which he had served the interests of the whole people.

"The story of the life which we recall today is but one among many in our national records to illustrate the sureness with which public opinion rights itself at last, and comes back to lay the crown at the feet of the one who deserved it. What a reversal of popular feeling and judgment have the last twelve years witnessed with reference to the character and work of Grover Cleveland! What a contrast between the Cimmerian darkness into which his name had been driven and the shining mountain peak of fame to which the sober second thought and large true heart of the American people without distinction of party, had lifted him in recent years!

"God be thanked that we can remember this one of the three great Presidents as we do the other two others, not only for his massive strength and soundness of political character, but as a man who feared the Lord, honored His word, and did not deny His name."

Training for Race Meets.

P. J. Simmons, the colored championship bicycle rider of the State, is training every day on Mountain avenue for the race meet at Asbury Park, July 4. He will also ride at Madison Square Garden, July 13. He challenges any rider in Plainfield or vicinity.

NARROW ESCAPE AT FIRE

After Being Buried Beneath Debris, George Burnett is Rescued Just in Time.

FIRE AT A WATCHUNG FARM.

Trying to Save Furniture, Man Comes Near Being Roasted to Death—Loss on Building Is $5,000.

Fire caused by a defective chimney flue, completely destroyed the large twelve-room farmhouse owned and occupied by John Burnett near Watchung, Saturday afternoon, and it was only by the hardest kind of work on the part of Mr. Burnett, his daughter, Georgia Burnett, and Philip Cozies, that the furniture on the first floor of the dwelling was saved.

George Burnett while fighting the flames in the parlor in an effort to save the goods, narrowly escaped being burned to death. The ceiling and heavy timbers overhead gave way and smothered him beneath the debris. A moment before the crash came he was seen by his brother and Cozies and at the risk of their lives they rushed in and finally rescued the victim. He was revived in a few minutes, although his clothes were partially burned off his body was slightly scorched. His injuries are not serious.

It was shortly after noon while Mr. Burnett and his family were at dinner that the fire was discovered by George Burnett and Mr. Coates. They were walking toward the house when they noticed the smoke and flames coming from the roof near the chimney. They quickly informed the family. All made their way hurrying the contents as far as possible. The house was worth about $5,000 and is a total loss. It was covered by $1,500 insurance.

CRAP GAME BROKEN UP; COP GETS EIGHT PRISONERS

Patrolman Andrew Saffron was sleuthing along Green Brook near Washington avenue, late Sunday morning, when he discovered a group of young men and boys engaged in some kind of a game. It didn't look like checkers or chess and a circuitous movement revealed the fact that the bunch was enjoying the pastime of "shooting the bones," commonly known as crap. Cop Andy figured out that the players were trying to get him to bag alone so he called for reinforcements, Patrol Driver O'Gorman responding with his trusty hurry-up wagon.

The two bluecoats stealthily crept through the tall grass after the style of the Sioux Indians on a scalp hunting expedition but experienced crap shooters have sources of inside information that nobody knows about. Saffron and O'Gorman were finishing along and chuckling to themselves, over the prospect of a big haul to their credit, as the police blotter when the bones suddenly ceased flipping The next instant a mixture of white and black humanity was cutting wide gaps in the atmosphere in its efforts to get over the line to Somerset county. The boys went by wild leaps and bounds and nothing short of a stone wall a mile high could have stopped them.

The two cops said "curses, curses, curses" and started in pursuit but the rest and coon tail they were away behind. Saffron tried to go three ways at once and found himself running around in a circle, finally giving up without any quarry. O'Gorman disregarded city and borough dividing lines and by wading the brook, managed to get Asbury, who stopped to look around, firmly believing the officers would never dare to get into Townsend territory. He was the only prisoner bagged and was borne off to Sycamore street in triumph.

Whether or not Casset got frightened and gave the officers a line on his companions in crime, or whether they recognized some of the fleeing figures is not known but at any rate the hair started on a house-to-house canvass of the West End as soon as the cops returned to the city hall jug. As a result, the following lawbreakers were lined up with Cassett before Judge Runyon this morning: Charles Cassett, Oscar Green, Hazelwood Pollard, and Cornelius Webster, of colored; Edward Galbraith, William Knight and Eddie O'Loughlin, white. They admitted being in the bunch that Saffron and O'Gorman tried to corral and were let go on suspended sentence after His Honor had pointed out the awful consequences of rambling on the Sabbath and warning them that a repetition of the offense, if caught, would mean a jail sentence.

The entire delegation filed out with looks of satisfaction on their faces with the exception of Galbraith. His parents believed they had bought to have a lawyer to present his side of the case and plead for leniency and as everybody knows, lawyers don't do this for nothing. The legal light carried his fee by stepping forward and saying, "Judge, my client pleads non suit," as that is all that was asked of him. That's why Galbraith refused to be comforted when his companions chuckled and chortled.

ELIZABETH IS DEFEATED

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Team Humbles the County Seat Aggregation.

IN STATE LEAGUE GAME.

Local Nine Wins by Score of 11 to 6 on Crescent Oval—Making Good Scores During Contest.

Elizabeth went one peg lower in the State baseball league Saturday afternoon, when the Y. M. C. A. nine trimmed them by a score of 11-6 at Crescent Oval. The Elizabethans still have their first victory to get and have four defeats to their discredit to date. Newark won on a forfeit from Trenton, a disagreement arising when the score stood 4-4 in the game played at Newark. This keeps the Newark association's 1,000 per cent. record unbroken, and they have a string of five victories. Orange came up to third place in the league by trimming Summit, 8-1.

The Elizabeth tail-enders put up a hard fight for Saturday's game here and played strong baseball up to the fifth, they scored in the second on Jacot's error and goose-egged the local nine for four sessions. In the fifth, three hits and two passes, luckily sandwiched, brought in three Y. M. C. A. runners and gave the locals the lead. After thus breaking the line of scores, the Y. M. C. A. scored in every inning to the end. Heavy hitting in the seventh, when Scott and Jacot made two-baggers and Loizeaux and Ralph Schoomaker hit safe ones, brought in four runs, but a double play cut off what looked like a scoring fest in the eighth, three hits and six stolen bases netting three runs. Conover's home run was a feature, which helped keep the local nine in second place by a big margin.

Aside from this four-sack bingle, Conover did good work in the box, fanning twelve Elizabethans and being touched for eight hits, four of which came in the eighth and ninth. He was given good support, except in the second. Gorman, in the centre of the diamond for the visitors, was easy after the fourth. His bends were located for fifteen hits, and he fooled but six batters. The details:

The Highlanders nailed up their laurels in the first, scoring four runs. They added three more in the fouth and four more batters came home in the seventh and ninth. SCOTCH PLAINS WINS BY A CLOSE DECISION

With the game well in hand up to the ninth inning, the Scotch Plains team came near losing to the *Trojans, of Elizabeth, in a well-*played contest at the Plains, Saturday afternoon. Only a close decision in which the home team was favored saved it as score and possible defeat. The Trojans came to town determined to take the measure of the home aggregation, which has only met defeat once this season. To make sure of it the regular battery was "benched," and Langstaff and Scott, of the defunct Elizabeth Union League club, were substituted.

For six innings it looked as though they would accomplish the purpose, or at least hold their own as neither side had scored. In their half of the sixth inning the Plains team found Langstaff and when the dust cleared away, five runs had come over the plate. Flannery, first up, was walked. Joe Alberts advanced him on a single to left. Frents followed with another, too hot for the fielders to handle and *Flannery scored on this hit. H. Al-*berts put a red hot one to Langstaff and Joe Albert scored from third. Searry tried to catch H. Albert off first and by the time the ball was returned, Frents scored on the play. Hot for the fielders to handle and before the visitors settled down.

The Trojans scored two runs in their half of the seventh on a couple of hits and errors. In the ninth with thes cores 5 to 2 in their favor, the home team infield went up in the air on the first three men up in little infield hits, but managed to get by with them. At the time the questionable decision was made. The score stood 4 to 5, three men on bases and no out for the Trojans. A "Texas leaguer" By was knocked to left field. Reick came in on the ball and just as he caught it, fell. Many thought it was a "trapped" ball. Reick threw the ball to third base and the infielders caught every man before he could get back on the hit. The decision to waive the ball with the approval of the Elizabeth rooters, as they had backed their team heavily.

The decision stood, however, Umpire Kenny being supported by a great many spectators, who declared that it was the ball fairly. Had the play come at any other stage of the game no question would have been raised.

The lineup and score by innings:

A. D. BEERS IN STATE TENNIS SEMI FINALS

Albert D. Beers, singles champion of the Plainfield Country Club, is the only local player still in the East Jersey title tennis tourney, begun at the Elizabeth Town and Country Club courts Saturday. He defeated H. B. Littell on a hard fought match in the second round Saturday, by scores of 6-0, 7-9 and 11-9. He will play in the semi-final round Saturday afternoon at Elizabeth.

The following summaries show how the other Country Club players fared in the State title event:

DUNELLEN TROUNCED AT EAST MILLSTONE

The Dunellen Field's Club nine was defeated Saturday by the East Millstone team, at the latter place, by a score of 9 to 3. The absence of Miller, Dunellen's star twirler, made considerable difference to the team and a lot of shifting was necessary. The Dunellen boys gave a miserable exhibition of base running in the second inning, when four hits and a base on balls only netted them one run. The feature of the contest was the pitching of Masterson, the former Rutgers College twirler, and the catching by Kane; a one-hand running catch by Kitchen, East Millstone's right fielder, of a long drive, which robbed Dunellen of a home run and the all-round work of Dodwell. The score by innings:

East M....0 1 0 0 3 1 2 2 x—9 10 1
D. F. C. ..1 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—3 7 5

Batteries—Russell and Dodwell; Masterson and Kane.

Iolas Defeat Monroe A. C.

Heavy hitting enabled the Iola Club to defeat the Monroe A. C., Saturday afternoon, by a score of 15 to 4. Inability on the part of the losing team to connect with Snyder's curves was responsible for the result. The Iolas blanked their opponents for six innings, while they steadily added to their own score. Score by innings:

Iola Club.....1 2 0 5 0 4 0 1 2—15

CLINTON AVENUES DEFEAT JEFFERSONS AT NEWARK

The Clinton Avenues journey to Newark Saturday afternoon, where they assisted the Jefferson A. A. in opening its new ball grounds and incidentally added another scalp to their long string captured this season. They defeated the Essex county boys by a score of 11 to 1 in one of the best played games of the season. Clifford Randolph, as usual, had a large share in the victory, striking out thirteen men and allowing but five hits, while the Plainfield contingent touched Leary up for thirteen hits, which included two home runs, one by Dick Scott, who took Giles' place in the field, and the other by Barnes.

The score might have been much larger had it not been for the fast fielding of the Jeffersons. Clinton Avenue had but a chance to men on bases as a result of this. The Plainfield team almost played an errorless game, but one error being credited and that to Barnes. The game attracted a large crowd of friends of the home team, but they were generous and applauded the fine work of the visitors. The Jeffersons were much pleased with the opening game and afterward they complimented the Clinton Avenues for the fine contest, although they regretted losing it. The score:

CASKET FALLS; BODY ROLLS OUT

GREWSOME ACCIDENT OCCURS AT BURIAL OF ITALIAN NEAR MT. WASHINGTON, O.

FUNERAL ENDS IN A RIOT

Mourners, Frenzied by Awful Sight, Imagine Corpse Was Dumped Purposely and Considerable Fighting Results.

Cincinnati.—The funeral of Gamaro Aiileo, a young Italian, at the Fruit Hill cemetery, near Mt. Washington the other day, resulted in a riot and Chem Davis, who owns a general store at Fruit Hill, was forced to flee for his life and barricade the doors of his store to escape the fury of nearly 100 Italian laborers who sought his life.

Aiileo was killed some days ago by Frank Cramer, a resident of Moscow. Cramer escaped, and feeling between the Americans and Italians has been very bitter since the shooting. The man died at the hospital, and after waiting some time to hear from Italy from the young man's parents it was decided to bury the body at Fruit Hill cemetery temporarily.

Almost every Italian in the vicinity attended the obsequies. The burial ritual had been read and the body was being lowered into the grave by the sexton of the cemetery and Davis had been called by the sexton to assist in the burial.

Just as they began to lower the body the strap which Davis was holding broke and the coffin went to the bottom of the grave with a crash. The whole side of the casket was broken out and the body rolled under the casket.

With a wild yell a dozen friends of the dead man simultaneously started after Davis. They accused him of being friendly to Cramer, who killed the man, and seizing a number of clubs, they started after him. Davis, however, proved fleet of foot and outdistanced his pursuers. He ran into his store and barricaded the doors, while the irate Italians tried in vain to gain an entrance. They hurled clubs at the building and loudly yelled that if they did not kill him then they would at some future time. The entire settlement was aroused and many Americans gathered near the scene, but no one sought to quell the excited mob. After keeping Davis a prisoner in his store for several hours the Italians returned to the graveyard. They fixed up the broken coffin and replaced the corpse.

They fastened the lid of the box at the bottom of the grave and, seizing spades which were to have been used by the sexton and Davis, shoveled the dirt into the grave. The sexton fled while the Italians were chasing Davis.

Girl Elopes on Her Rollers.

Asheville, N. C.—Miss Annie Lee, 17 years old, a pretty schoolgirl, daughter of Mrs. Robert E. Lee, escaped under the closest watch set by her parents and eloped with Charles M. Strouse, a popular young man, to Landrum, S. C., where they were married.

Miss Lee went to a skating rink several nights ago and was, as usual, accompanied by a member of her family.

After putting on her skates she skated from one end of the hall to the other and out of a rear door into the arms of her fiance, who had a carriage waiting.

Dog's Caress Wakes Her.

Waterbury, Conn.—Maud Hudner, 13 years old, daughter of Edward Hudner, living on Greystone, arose in her sleep the other night and, donning scant attire, walked along the turnpike for a quarter of a mile. She would not have been missed had not a shepherd dog barked until the family was alarmed. Father and son met the girl, awakened by the dog's caresses, running for home in a frightened state. Since then she has been hysterical.

Turns Over in Bed; Breaks Legs.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Miss Margaret Kramer of Philadelphia fractured both legs while turning over in bed. Miss Kramer was the guest of her brother, Dr. Charles F. Kramer, a prominent druggist, for some time, and had been suffering from rheumatism.

GIRL TRAMPS THROUGH BOGS TO SAVE CLAIM

WALKS 20 MILES TO ATTEND HEARING IN A CONTEST FOR HER HOMESTEAD.

Crookston, Minn.—On a race to save her claim in the vicinity of Fram post office, about 20 miles inland east of Middle River, Minn., and burdened with heavy grips, Miss Eva Johnson, the assistant postmistress at Vining, in Otter Tail county, plunged on feet through eight and one-half miles of the heaviest bogs of the north country and won.

Contest had been brought against her by parties who were not acquainted with her location, and she was scheduled to appear at Fram post office to answer the contest or it would have gone by default to the contestant. She settled on the claim some time ago, later obtained the assistant postmistressship of the Vining post office, and as a result has spent her time in government employ. On that account the homestead laws permit her final proof without actual residence on the claim.

She heard of the contest and went to Middle River, where she was unable to secure a team that would brave the swamps. Accordingly she walked the 20 miles to Fram post office, eight and a half miles of which route is through some of the worst swamp in the north country and surrounded on all sides by impassable muskeg.

Her grips contained papers and clothing and weighed about 50 pounds. She says that she was compelled to rest from time to time. She reached Fram just half an hour before the case was called and appeared in person before the court. The road is almost impassable for horses, which often go through the floating bog. Miss Johnson returned in a buggy with Attorney N. B. Moran of Crookstown, who was in Fram on business. The Crookstown attorney spent almost all his time at the head of the plunging horses trying to get back to Middle River.

COWPUNCHER WAS A GIRL.

She Fooled All but Her Sweetheart for Two Years.

Pullman, Neb.—"Bob" Ellsworth, a handsome young cowpuncher who has been riding in northwestern Nebraska for nearly two years, has turned out to be a woman and is now the wife of "Jim" Spearman, a dashing young man with whom she has worked for the last eight or ten months.

Wearing the apparel of a cowboy, her hair cropped close to her shapely head and her face bronzed by exposure to sun and wind, the young lady, whose name was Minnie Turner, was believed to be a man by everybody who worked and associated with her save the young cowboy who is now her husband. To him she revealed the secret of her sex immediately after they became acquainted. A day or two ago the couple, mounted their broncbos and st off to be married. They have gone out to the Pacific coast on a wedding journey and will settle in Montana when they return.

Tramp Saves a Fast Train.

Winsted, Conn.—The express leaving here over the New York & New Haven railroad at 7 a. m. was saved from wreck on Dutchman's curve, in Torrington, ten miles south of here, by "Springfield Mike" Rolland, a tramp.

While strolling on the track, "Mike" discovered that a foot of rail had either been cut or broken on the curve. He heard the approaching express whistle and ran up the track waving a bandanna. Engineer Finkle saw the danger signal in time to stop the express as it was rushing to the crew.

All the members of the crew from Conductor Dailey down and many passengers showered Rolland with thanks. The hero said he had often ridden as "blind baggage" and felt indebted to the railroad.

Snake in Nest Bites Girl.

Hopeville, Ia.—Reaching into a nest where she expected to find a part of the day's laying of eggs Hazel, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Morgan, was bitten by a snake. The reptile, coiled in the nest, sank its fangs into the flesh of her hand and she is in a critical condition.

After the snake had been killed a China nest egg was discovered in its body, which it had swallowed from the hen's nest.

PRISONERS SWEAR THAT THIS JAIL IS HAUNTED

GRINNING GOBLIN SWINGS TO AND FRO NIGHTLY ALONG GRATING OF CELLS.

Asheville, N. C.—A petition signed by all the prisoners, white and black, in the county jail, has been sent to the jailer and the sheriff appealing for protection from "evil spirits," which the prisoners declare haunt the jail.

In the morning when Jailer Mitchell unlocked the jail doors he was met by a wild-eyed bunch of prisoners begging to be removed. They declare that evil spirits pay nightly visits to the jail.

Both Sheriff Hunter and Jailer Mitchell admit that the prisoners had grounds for their appeal, as they, too,

The Evil Spirit Swung To and Fro Along the Grating.

had heard noises which they were unable to account for.

The previous night the prisoners say was the most harrowing. An evil spirit appeared and swung to and fro along the iron grating of the cages from midnight until two or three o'clock in the morning. Bob Boone and Will Miller, two of the prisoners, fainted. The others hid under the bedclothes.

"Rev." W. G. Whitaker, charged with forgery, says it was a "demon" and it grinned at them through the iron bars. It moved its lips, but could not speak. It poked a hand through the iron grating and every time it swung to the cage it would grin in a most diabolical manner, while the negroes moaned and prayed.

The prisoners say that every night they hear the trap fall, meaning by this the trap of the gallows on which a negro was recently hanged. Sheriff Hunter promised the prisoners that they will be moved to the new jail building as soon as it is completed.

WINS CASH AND A BRIDE.

Italian Count Also Gets $20,000 by Walking Around World.

Spokane, Wash.—Count Della Ginesti Reggio Salvadore, who started on a tour of the world seven years ago to win $20,000 in a wager with another Italian nobleman, has come to Spokane, wooed and won an olive complexioned damsel in the land of his birth, and will pass a couple of years in preparing the manuscripts of a series of books dealing with the incidents of his experiences and travels around the inhabited globe.

The money he won as the result of his long hike has been paid to a charitable institution in Italy.

The count and his girl wife are living on Monroe street, where they have established a comfortable home. While the young countess entertains lavishly when at home she is busy with his secretary and living "the ordinary life," as he calls it. He passes part of the time tramping among the hills and fishing in the near-by streams. Count Reggio declares he has visited every city of importance in the United States and Canada, and he speaks of them with knowledge that could not have been acquired in any other manner.

OIL KING TO BUILD HOSPITAL.

Large Institution to Treat Obscure Diseases Planned.

New York.—Plans have been made for a large hospital to be conducted in connection with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. Borings have been made south of the present building, where there are extensive outcroppings of rock. It is likely that the foundations will be laid at that point, as the site will command a view of the river, and at the same time give the patients the full benefit of the breezes from the ocean.

It is understood that the project has been approved by John D. Rockefeller, who established the institute, and that funds will be provided by him. The institute was founded primarily for investigation of cerebro-spinal meningitis, with the object of finding a cure for that pernicious disease.

In many ways the hospital will be unique. Its patients will be those suffering from obscure diseases. Both grown people and children will be admitted. The objects of the hospital will be, first to cure ailments which have failed to respond to ordinary treatment, and second, to afford material for observation by the scientists at work in the institute.

ADVICE WORTH LISTENING TO.

Generally It at Least Helps One to Make Up His Mind.

You may disregard advice, but listen to it.

Don't scoff at it, no matter who the person is that makes it.

Many a fool has helped a wise man. Even the worst advice presents one side of a question.

An astute man said that he always wanted advice, not to follow it, but to help him make up his mind. If you once get this idea about it you will be much the gainer in the battle of life. No one person can present all the points of view, and a person about to take an important step should be able to know what is all around the horizon.

Listen to everything everybody has to say if you have the time; if not, always listen to anything that is presented strongly, whether or not it agrees with your opinion.

And above all things never scoff at the criticism, with its implied advice, of an enemy. There you get your weakest points exposed. If you are wise you will be thankful for the opportunity to strengthen them.

SEES DOWNFALL OF THE BELL.

Metal Tubes Will Supersede It, According to Clergyman.

"It will not be many years," says a St. Louis clergyman, "before bells for church use will be almost unknown. Even now, when a church desires something to answer the purpose of the bell, the trustees do not buy bells, but tubes, some made of bell metal, other of a composite of several metals. The metal tubes are hung in steeples and struck with a hammer. They give a clear, full note, just like a bell, only more resonant. They never crack with cold or heat, and what is a still greater recommendation, never get out of tone. There is a chime in the city, with one or two bells so horribly out of tune that they set people's teeth on edge. Such discord in a chime of metal tubes would be unknown, and besides, the tone is so much more agreeable than that of the bell that any one who ever hears the two can not fail to prefer the tube. It sounds like a great organ pipe, so that when one of these chimes is played the impression is that of a huge organ far up in the sky."

Friday and the Soothsayer.

Two women who wished to make an appointment with a fortune teller who was pronounced "just splendid" by everybody who had patronized her, were advised by the seer to come on Friday.

"That is, if you are not superstitious about Friday," she said. "Most people are. They regard Friday as such an unlucky day that they would even have their fortune told them for fear they will hear something unlucky. That is why I advise you to come on that day. I will have plenty of time, and won't have to put your cases through with such a rush."

Moon Regarded as a Deity.

Among the early peoples of Mesopotamia all of the heavenly bodies were regarded as deities, but the moon, because of the variety of the shapes which it assumes, was the chief of them all. Special reverence was therefore paid it and some of the oldest and most important of the Babylonian temples, as at Ur and Haran, were devoted to its worship. Thus the crescent, the symbol by which the moon god was represented, was supposed to have the power to avert evil, and then together with the star it formed the word for incantation.

Entitled to the Best.

Tipping is admitted to be a bad habit, but it is firmly established. A young fellow, and his best girl to supper! Of course that he must conform to custom had handed out his coin with liberality, so that no one in the restaurant was overlooked. After they had been swung through the revolving door he said to her:

"Did you give that man at the door anything?"

"No. Why?"

"He ought to have had the most. He let us out."

The Word Post.

Many persons wonder how we got the word "post" as applied to the mails. It comes from the Latin position, which means placed; therefore, it is a fixed station. From this it came to mean an established conveyance of letters from one station to another, and the place from which the letters were sent out came to be called the postoffice. "Post-haste," a word used by Shakespeare, means speed in traveling, like that of post or a courier.

Commission.

Walter had been collecting coins for some time, and one morning at breakfast he asked:

"Papa, do you go down town to make money?"

"Yes," said his father. "Why?"

"I wish you would make me a set of United States gold dollars," said Walter.

Dancing Defined.

Charles had been looking on at a dance for the first time in his life.

When he reached home he said:

"Aunty, it wasn't a bit like I thought it would be. I thought when people danced they jumped up and down, but they didn't. They just took each other by the waist and skated."—Harper's.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 5, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart.—VII. Longings and satisfactions.—Ps. lxiii. (Consecration meeting.)

The history of mankind is a history of human longings. There never is a time in a man's life when he does not long for something. He is no sooner born than he longs for food and comfort, and all through the days of his life the desire for something outside and beyond him remains with him. Nor does his longing cease with great achievement or the accumulation of great wealth. No merely earthly accomplishment ever stills his fond desire for something not yet achieved or possessed. Nor is it probable that God ever meant that man should find complete satisfaction for his purely human longings. Such a possibility would greatly retard human progress and make man feel that he was independent of his God. Hence there is much truth, so far as human affairs alone are concerned, in the poet's couplet—

Hope beats eternal in the human breast.
Man never is, but always to be blessed.

How foolish, then, to expect or to strive to find perfect satisfaction in things which are but temporal and transitory!

The supreme longing of the human soul is for God. Men in all times and in all climes have felt it. The crudest altar ever erected, the most hideous idol ever worshiped, but express the longing of the soul for God. David experienced this soul thirst. He felt it as a shepherd boy, tending his father's flocks on the hills of Judea; when an exile from Jerusalem through the jealousy of Saul or the base rebellion of his own soul. It was during such exile that he expressed this longing in the psalm before us. How deep must have been this spiritual thirst! "My soul thirsteth for Thee [O God], my flesh longeth for Thee, in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is." He longed to see God's power and glory as he had seen it in the sanctuary. Alas, how many of us only appreciate our blessings when they have departed from us! We long for God's gifts in absence, while we have rejected Him when he was present. We long for His sanctuary when absent from it and yet neglect it when the opportunity to worship God in it is before us.

It is a blessed thing that the greatest importance that soul longings may be satisfied. God is not afar off, but always nigh unto us. "In Him we live and move and have our being." He is nigh us in nature, in the Bible and especially in His Son Jesus Christ, whose blood shed on Calvary reconciles God to us and us to God. David found satisfaction for his soul's longing even in the remembrance of God. "My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness" he says. Then he remembered "Thee upon my bed and meditate upon Thee in the night watches." If you want one great longing satisfied, long for God, hunger and thirst after the righteousness, for Christ Himself hath said, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xvii, 15, 23; xxxiv, 1-4; xxxvii, 1-7; xiii, 1-11; lxxxiv, 1-12; cii, 1-5; Matt. v, 6; Eph. iv, 8-13; Heb. xii, 12-21.

The Pledge Interpreted.

We find in the interesting topic card issued by the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church in Pasadena, Cal., the following message regarding the Christian Endeavor pledge, written by the Rev. Malcolm James McLeod, the pastor of the church:

I think every Christian Endeavorer should read his pledge daily. You will notice it is divided into three parts.

First, there is the promise to read the Bible every day. If an Endeavorer has not reading Bible and is breaking his pledge—that is all there is to it—for, mark, there is no "conscience" clause excusing the language is plain and inflexible. We are not told how much to read, nor when to read. We are only told to read a book or a chapter—just to read. One verse may suffice; that is for each one to decide in his Master. We do not lay down how much to eat at dinner. Nature knows; fellow nature. So let each be led by his Master.

Then, secondly, he promises to pray. If a Christian Endeavorer does not pray every day he is breaking his pledge. He is not keeping his promise; he is false to the vital center. And here again the pledge does not state how long to pray or how often. Just pray. Let teacher and scholar fix particulars. Prayer is not a matter of periods. Prayer is fellowship, partnership, secret and consecrated communion.

The third article is loyalty to church—one's own church. Here is a clause governing the conscience—"unless prevented." And please note the specifications—Sunday and midweek. That means the prayer meeting and the two parts are specified; the third is not, but it is heart searching, heaven satisfying. No excuse is valid that will not please Him. Lord Jesus, give us grace.

We cannot agree that the pledge is quite as indefinite as Dr. McLeod considers it, even in regard to the first two points, for in the expression "I will make it a part of my daily life to pray and to read the Bible every day" it is the intention to leave room for unavoidable failures to do these things caused by sickness, accident and perhaps other reasons. Doubtless Dr. McLeod would agree with this. He does make is so strongly helpful that we trust all our readers to consider it carefully.—Christian Endeavor World.

Training.

The key word of Christian Endeavor is training—training in expression, training in service, training in living, training of the heart, training of the mind, training of the tongue, training of the boy and girl, training of the young man and woman, training to make men and women, training to make citizens, training to make effective Christians, training in the church, training for the church and training by the church.—Australian Roll Call.

THE ROYAL ADVENTURE

By ZONA GALE

(Copyright.)

He greeted her with: "Good morning, Princess."

"What is your highness goin' to do to-morrow?" he inquired.

"To-day an' to-morrow they're puttin' up rhubarb," she answered indifferently.

"Let's skip out to the orchard an' read," he suggested. "An' I've got somethin' to tell you, Princess."

At which she burst suddenly into tears. Don't tell me that any more," she cried; "I'm sick to death o' this pretendin.'"

Then, the seat by the well-house being sheltered in hollyhocks, he came and sat beside her and touched her hand. But there was in his touch nothing of the lover, though he was toward 20 and well-favored, and the girl, of fewer years, was of dainty prettiness.

"Discouraged?" he said.

"Nothin's any use," she answered. "We can't never do it."

His brown face shone with his eagerness.

"What if you was to hear," he said, "that I come here to tell you I know a way now?"

She looked at him, her face flushing to the pink of her cambric frock.

"There's a double carriage comin' to Friendship with some folks to-morrow mornin'," he said, "from the city. It's goin' back to the city empty. We could walk into Friendship about daylight an' get a ride in the carriage as far as the city."

"Oh," she said, "are you sure—"

"As good as sure," he answered, "an' what risk there is is fun. We'll be in the city soon after noon. You go up to the school an' tell 'em you've come to stay—that 'em you've got to stay. I'll go to the law office I told you about. They'll take me. I'll make 'em take me. What do you say?"

Her fears and alarms were easily reasoned away. She had longed as passionately as he for the first great importance that soul longings may be satisfied. God is not afar off, but always nigh unto us. "In Him we live and move and have our being." He is nigh us in nature, in the Bible and especially in His Son Jesus Christ, whose blood shed on Calvary reconciles God to us and us to God. Toward noon they ate their lunch as they rode, pretending it to be other than it was—of rich cheese, sweet bread and bitter-sour fruit, picked from both homes they were leaving behind and fit for any king.

When they reached the fringes of the city the girl gave a little sciatic bounce on the cushions.

"There's a guide to the Female Seminary Home," she said. She was not very clear how she meant to arrange this. She was merely going to offer to do anything in order to stay. She had heard of girls going to school that way—though not to this school. It was true. And the rest was vague and possible.

"Think o' me bein' a lawyer," said the boy.

Then the driver, still in great good humor, ceased trolling to himself and looked back to ask them where they wanted to go.

"Take us first to the Female Seminary Home," said the prince grandly. "And then take me to Hollister & Hollister's law office."

The man stared.

"Hollister & Hollister!" he said. "They're gone this six months."

"Gone?" they both echoed.

"Sure," said the man. "I 'use' to drive for the son. They up an' moved their office to New York. Female Seminary Home first, did you say?"

"Yes," said the prince dully.

Crushing as this was, yet before they came in sight of the Female Seminary Home, youth had recovered itself.

"They's other law offices—they must be," he said. "I'll wait at the gate till you tell me what happens. An' then I'll find one."

The great gate was fearfully imposing. So were the great lawns and the great doors and the great reception room. They must have been worse than these, for when, after an incredibly short space, the princess appeared, she was crying, quite sobbing. And she stepped in the carriage without a word. On which the driver, humming softly to himself, without a word pricked his horses leisurely back toward the heart of the town.

The princess sobbed as she told it—of the great lady who had shut the door of hope. Certainly no student who worked for her board could be admitted to classes. Had she a certificate of standings from her former school? What were her references? And no exceptions were ever made in the tuition, which was $500.

"Look here," said the prince, "what do you care?"

But the princess only sobbed the more.

"What do you care!" he persisted, and thought helplessly that there must be something more to say or some way to do; only he couldn't hit it. And he blamed himself wretchedly for her tears.

"I—I don't know," said the princess. It seemed as if the whole world were as irresponsible as the driver.

Might just as well set still till I get to the city," said the man hospitably. "You can walk I'm there, Mebbe a rig'll be goin' back, if you want to go back."

The prince nodded vaguely and gratefully.

"Look here," he said to the princess, "what do you care?" He touched her hand as he touched it to the well-seat by the holly-hocks—much as if it were a flower itself, or a bird.

Then when they had reached the stable a man came running out and parleyed. Whereat the driver, looking thoroughly scared, got down and helped to change the horses.

"Set still," he said hurriedly to the prince and princess. "If you want to go back to Friendship I'll take ye. I'm hitched to the wrong con-veyance. This ain't ours. Can't see how it happened," he mumbled, now wholly silent.

So as the afternoon shadows lengthened the prince and princess rode back between green trees on the way that they had come in bright morning. And somewhere the course of the prince for visiting other offices had become a thing of no moment. And the sobs of the princess tugged curiously at his heart.

The other "con-veyance" was safely in the hotel yard all the time. The prince and princess waited long enough to be sure of that.

They hurried out in the main street, which would widen to become the plank road and would lead to their homes. And on the street the boy fell silent and looked away, but the girl noted how he touched little things as they went

PASSENGERS WERE JARRED

Trolley Car 1,940 Leaves the Track and Occupants Get a Bad Shaking Up.

SEVERAL SLIGHTLY INJURED.

Stone on a Rail Said to Have Caused the Jump—Accident Occurred Saturday Night on Front Street Line.

Main line trolley car No. 1,940, westbound at 11:20 Saturday night, jumped the track at DeKalb avenue and Front street as it was running at a medium rate of speed. It was swung across the space between the rails and the sidewalk and brought up against the curb with a resounding crash. The cars was well filled with passengers and although all were more or less badly shaken up none were seriously injured. The list obtained by the police shows that the following suffered the most:

Mrs. Michael Nolan, Dunellen, severe contusions and cuts; Thomas Brennan, Dunellen, arm sprained and head cut; Newton Meyers, New Market, cuts on head and side bruised. An unknown colored man, who refused to give his name, was rendered partially unconscious by his head striking the back of a seat and a gash was inflicted in his cheek.

The car was in charge of Conductor Adam Young and Motorman William Tinshon. The latter was unable to tell what caused the jump but it is believed to have been a stone on the track. At the point where the accident occurred, there is a down grade and the macadam is in a very loosened condition.

Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy was in the vicinity when the car left the rails and sent in a hurry call for Dr. Albert Pittis, the Public Service physician. He reached the scene in a very short time and attended to the people whose names are given. The others proceeded to their homes as soon as they recovered their composure.

The car was slightly damaged by thec ollision with the curb but was replaced by the emergency crew after an hour's work.

FIRECRACKERS CAUSE A $250 BARN BLAZE

A fire believed to have been started by boys shooting the Fourth of July crackers partially destroyed the Shirley & Johnston stables at the foot of Compton's alley, late Saturday afternoon, and but for prompt work on the part of the city fire department with would have resulted in a serious blaze. A continuous chain of buildings extends about the vicinity and being of frame construction they would have furnished ready fuel for the flames.

The blaze was discovered at 6:10 by Robert Reed, employed by Shirley & Johnson, who immediately turned in an alarm, at the same time yelling for assistance to save the contents of the structures. The barn and wagon sheds occupied by W. W. Warnock are directly next to where the fire was and Mr. Warnock managed to keep the flames from his property by using a stable hose. He stuck to the job despite the heat and blinding smoke until the apparatus arrived. The firemen worked half an hour before the blaze was finally extinguished.

*At one stage of the fire, the shut*ters and window ledges of old Music Hall became ignited and caused considerable excitement by the prospect of the one-time theatre being burned. A couple of drenchings from the hose stopped the trouble in that direction.

The damage is placed at $250 and is covered by insurance. William M. Sidbrath owns the property and also the Music Hall building. Shirley & Johnston's loss is slight as all the horses, wagons and harnesses were out at the time the fire started.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT AT THE POOR FARM

The recently-suggested changes made by the Alms committee were reported to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday by Chairman Charles C. Randolph. The resignations of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Tenbyck were received and accepted and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wolverton were engaged to take their places at an annual salary of $500. The change becomes effective at once.

Mr. Wolverton is a son-in-law of Henry Hummer, superintendent of the Piscataway Poor Farm, and his wife had fourteen years experience on that farm with the indigent poor. Mr. Wolverton is expected to oversee the farming at the Industrial Home, while his wife will act as matron. The change is expected to result in a great saving in the running of the Home.

Business Men Petition City Fathers to Improve Fire Fighting Facilities

FIRE COMMITTEE TO ACT.

Water Company President to Answer Council's Communication in Person—Other Matters Considered.

Deploring what they termed a great lack of water pressure with which to fight fires, a petition signed by A. L. Murphy and a number of merchants and other business local men, was presented to the Common Council at the adjourned meeting Monday night urging the city to purchase one or two first-class powerful steamers as a protection to the business section. Plainfield from fire. The failure of the fire department as it alleges to have sufficient pressure at Saturday night's fire, when Shirley and Johnson's barn was destroyed, was cited as an illustration showing the alleged need of better protection.

The petition also called attention to the allegation that the Babcock building was destroyed for similar reasons, as was also the Letcher house at Netherwood, as they declared, and the petitioners urge *immediate action. The matter was re*ferred to the fire and building committee.

A petition presented by William H. Olmsted, asking for permission to erect a temporary awning on the west side of Watchung avenue and East Fourth street, as a protection to people in stormy and hot weather while waiting for the trolley; also as an advertisement informing the people that he will occupy a building to be erected at that site, was granted after considerable dis*cussion, in which Mr. Buxton and Mr.* Montgomery favored the improvement. The awning will cover the sidewalk and be of sufficient height to permit persons to pass back and forth freely without obstruction.

Again urging the Council to adjust a sanitary sewer assessment on property owned by him in the Netherwood district, Ernest Sharp presented another petition to the Council. He offers to dedicate Cleveland road as a public thoroughfare, lay sidewalks there and otherwise improve the street. Tithe matter was referred to the finance committee.

Mayor Burton P. Hull, of Fanwood acknowledged the receipt of the communication from the Council regard*ing the proposed trunk line sanitary* sewer and stated that it would be presented to the Fanwood Council at the July meeting.

President Frank Berken, of the Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company, again replied to a communication from the Council regarding the local water supply for fire purposes and of the necessity of keeping hydrants in first-class condition and that the hydrants are regularly inspected and that any trouble with them is due to other uses to which they are put. He added that there were inaccurate statements in the communication sent to him and if the Council would appoint a time he would like to talk the matter over personally with the *members, instead of through corre*spondence. The letter was filed and a conference will be arranged.

Resolutions awarding the sale of his property at Woodland avenue and *Park Lane for an unpaid sewer as*sessment, J. H. VanDeventer stated that he has paid his assessment for sewers on Woodland avenue and did not think he should be assessed on Park Lane. He asked for an adjustment of the matter and postponement of sale. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

A remonstrance was received from J. W. Vail and others as to the wretched condition of the trolley rails on Putnam avenue; also a switch on the Netherwood line, *adding that the Public Service Corpor*ation, although promising to improve the same, had never done so. They said that the present condition of the tracks is a great annoyance. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Petitions were received from the Laing Auto Machine and Repair Company, of 416 Sycamore street and the Morris Auto Company, of 149 East Fourth street, asking for permission to place 1,000 gallon gasoline tanks underneath the sidewalks in the front places of business from which auto could be supplied with gasolene. The petitions were referred to the street committee.

According to a resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, and adopted, Monday night, July 13, was fixed as the time when the Council places receive bids for macadamizing certain streets, incorporated in a recently adopted ordinance. Other resolutions by the same member, which were adopted, called for an appropriation of $40 with which to wire the pumping station on Randolph road and equip the same for electric lighting, and $50 was appropriated for painting the city sprinkling carts.

An ordinance was presented by Mr. Gloak providing for the opening of Kensington avenue, from Prospect to Park avenues, a distance of a half mile. It was read for information and will be taken up at the July meeting for the purpose of adoption. In the meantime copies of it will be sent to all the interested property owners.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, $20 was appropriated for the care of the town clock for one year. The contract was renewed with L. Moraler & Son, the Park avenue jewelers, for this work.

CHURCH PEOPLE TO WORK AT NETHERWOOD CAMP CARNIVAL

Local Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches are taking an active interest in the Fourth of July Carnival to be held at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, and members of the various church societies will be in charge of the booths on the camp grounds. Mrs. J. C. Pierson, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will be assisted by a corps of church women at the fancy booth; Mrs. S. A. George, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is to be in charge of the fish pond; Mrs. Benjamin Hadley, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is chairman of the candy booth. There is to be a mystery booth in charge of Miss Helen Mann. The booth Baptist church, and Robert McCready will be the carnival fortune teller. Robert Love, of the West End Tabernacle, will be the boss of the weighing machine and a tin type photo gallery will be in charge of Dr. H. S. Saurbrey, of New York city. This Mina. Bock, of Warren Chapel, fruit booth; Herbert Henry, Scotch Plains Baptist church, lemonade well; Miss Florence G. Hawkins, Park Avenue Baptist church, cake table; L. W. Randolph, Faith Chapel, grape juice booth.

CROWDS WILL VISIT BOUND BROOK JULY 4.

Bound Brook is not spending its money for fireworks this year, as it is to celebrate the Fourth in a more dignified manner. Four bands and the entire population will march through the streets and up the mountain side to the historic camp grounds, now laid out as a park, where George Washington was quartered in the winter of 1778-1779.

Young men of the town are to appear as a mounted troop wearing Continental uniforms. Patriotic floats, the State militia, the local fire department and all the automobiles and autos for miles around will be in line. After the review of the parade and the speechmaking the big crowd will listen to a concert by the Old Guard Band, of New York.

All the neighboring towns have been invited to participate in the celebration, and the pretty little town of Bound Brook will probably entertain a larger crowd than it has ever known. Among the chief guests of the occasion will be a delegation association will be Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson, orator of the day; State Senator Frelinghuysen and Colonel Dungan.

DR. JOHNSON TALKS ON KINDNESS TO ANIMALS

Addressing his remarks especially to the children of the Sunday-school, who attended the service in a body, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson preached a powerful sermon on "kindness to dumb animals Sunday morning at Trinity Reformed church. "Be Gentle to the Weak" was the theme of the speaker's discourse, and he urged the pupils" to remember that dumb animals have feelings just as people, and that he should be as kind to them. His text was from Proverbs 10; 12. The Delitch interpretation of this passage is "A righteous man knows how his cattle feel," and this was the central thought of Dr. Johnson's discourse.

He spoke of the value of training by parents and teachers to make children realize the fact that some of the things they do thoughtlessly give pain to dumb animals. He said that Ernest Thompson-Seton's books do a great deal to humanize animals and minds of this thoughtless cruelty, and told the children to read such animal stories. He spoke of many of the really cruel things done by young people as entirely thoughtless and urged them to appreciate the feelings of dumb animals by imagining themselves subjected to the same pain. He illustrated his talk with many instances of this thoughtless cruelty, repeating the incident that first made him appreciate animal suffering.

The address was followed by practically the entire Sunday-school, the pupils marching into the church from the Sunday-school room and taking seats in the front of the church.

Romel, Liberty Corner, increased pension at $12 per month, under act of February 6, 1907; Mrs. Mary VanVeighth, Bound Brook, widow's pension at $12 per month.

The firm stated in presenting its bid that it wanted all or none, and after a conference of the many committee and other members of the Council, it was decided to give the concern all the bonds.

On the issue of $95,000 school bonds the firm bid $104.19 and interest, amounting $99,073.50, which includes a premium of $4,875.50. On the police station bonds the bid was $101.17 and interest, amounting to $25,823.85, which includes a premium of $323.85. OAK TREE'S OLD PUPILS HOLD A JOLLY REUNION

Mrs. Alexander D. Ayers, of this city, was among the sixty persons who attended a reunion of the pupils of the old public school at Oak Tree, held at Boynton Beach, Monday. For forty-three years Bethune Duncan has been instructor in the school. He is one of the best-known school teachers in New Jersey. About two months ago some of the pupils, who are now advanced in years, conceived the idea of holding a reunion and after considerable effort about sixty pupils were found in New York, Brooklyn, Pennsylvania, Long Island and New Jersey.

Two of those present were eighty-nine years old, while the youngest pupil was about fifty years of age. They all had a jolly good time, recalling interesting incidents of boyhood and girlhood days at Oak Tree. The entire day was spent in a social way and at noon dinner was served. It is quite likely that the affair will be made an annual one, and steps toward that end were taken yesterday. Among those present were representatives of the Campbell, Kelly, Smith, Paine, Force and Noe families.

Warning From Prosecutor Swift.

Chief of Police Kiely has received notice from Prosecutor Swift calling his attention to the fact that all shop dealers must keep a record of every gun and pistol sold and that the name and address of the purchaser must be kept in a book open to inspection. The chief has issued the customary warning to the effect as just previous to the Fourth large quantities of revolvers are sold.

St. Mary's baseball team won its fourth straight victory Saturday, by defeating the Marion A. C., at Lincoln, by the score of 6 to 5. The feature was the heavy hitting of the Plainfield team.

CITY RETRENCHING, EH? FIRE CHIEF'S TRIP PAID

According to the annual custom, the Common Council at its adjourned meeting Monday night, appropriated $150 to send Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, to the convention of international fire chiefs to be held next month in Columbus, Ohio. The motion appropriating this sum was offered by Councilman Herbert Burton, of the finance committee, and it was adopted without opposition.

Only recently, Chief P. S. Kiely, of the police department, was given a similar vacation. The Council appropriated $150 to send him to Detroit, where he attended a convention of international police chiefs. Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public schools, is also sent annually to the convention of public school superintendents, the Board of Education appropriating a sum of money for that purpose. Last year City Engineer J. J. Gavett was sent to a convention held for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to streets and sewers. He was not over enthusiastic about spending the city's money for such a purpose. On his return he refunded the amount left over from the trip to the city treasurer.

MISS EVA DUNAVAN, F. M. FARNHAM'S BRIDE

Miss Eva C. Dunavan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Dunavan, of East Second street, and Franklin Monroe Farnham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Farnham, of Auburn, N. Y., were married at 7:30 o'clock, Monday, at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of Faith chapel, and an intimate friend of the bride's family.

The bride was gowned in white French batiste, trimmed with Mechlin lace, and she carried a boquet of bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elsie May Dunavan, whose gown was of pink French batiste, trimmed with Mechlin lace. Her bouquet was of pink roses. The best man was Fred Farnham, brother of the groom, and Alfred W. Dunavan, brother of the bride was an usher.

The home was attractively decorated for the affair, there being a profusion of ferns, cut flowers, roses and daises. The ceremony was performed in the parlor, beneath an arch of greens and cut flowers, with a background of foliage. The same color scheme was carried out in the dining-room.

The bridal party entered the parlor while the Lohengrin wedding march was played on the piano by Miss May Randolph, an aunt to the bride. Following the ceremony, a reception was tendered to the bride and groom received the congratulations of the guests, and supper was served. The bride was the recipient of a large collection of valuable and useful gifts, including cut-glass, silverware, goldware, linen, bric-a-brac.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Farnham left the city to enjoy a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's parents until fall, when they will begin housekeeping. The bride is well-known and popular in a large circle of acquaintances and has been an active member of Trinity Reformed church, the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor Society. The groom has been a resident of this city for some years, holding an excellent position with a contracting firm at Westfield. There were guests pres*ent at the wedding from New York,* Brooklyn, Newark, Somerville and this city.

SMALL BOYS ACCUSED OF STARTING STABLE FIRE

Charged by the police with having been responsible for the fire that partially destroyed the Shirley and Johnston stables in Compton's alley, Saturday afternoon, four small boys, Harold Willard, Tony Sabino, George Martial and Vincent Mullen, were arraigned in the city court Tuesday. Detective Sergeant Flynn stated to Judge Runyon that the quartet, together with several others, had been shooting firecrackers and "snakes" about the premises just previous to the time the blaze was discovered in one of the buildings and that it was due to sparks from the fourth of July affairs getting in the loose straw.

The boys admitted being about the premises, but accused each other of having discharged the fireworks. Vin*cent Mullen, an exceptionally bright* little fellow, asserted that Harold Willard threw a box of crackers and snakes to the ground that one of the latter sizzled its way into the open door. Harold stated in turn that another boy, Clarence Cheshire, was the one who had done the firing and Judge Runyon adjourned the case in order to have him brought in court. The defendants were accordingly released in their own recognizance until Thursday morning.

HOT SESSION IN COURT

Counter-plaintiffs Pass the Lie Repeatedly in Denying Accusations.

TWO CASES TRIED AT ONCE.

Mrs. Rosalsky Has Special Officer Berlowitz Arrested and Then Finds Himself a Defendant.

Mrs. Lena Rosalsky, who conducts a small store at Spooner avenue and Third street, and Harry Berlowitz, a special policeman, who has a habit of breaking into print every little while, appeared in the city court Tuesday as counter-complainants against each other. The hearing developed one of the hottest sessions that has been before Judge Runyon in a couple of weeks as Mrs. Rosalsky has a fiery temper and Berlowitz can declare himself in positive terms under pressure. They called one another "liar" every ten seconds and on seven distinct occasions the special officer threatened to use his authority and lock up the woman's up. The magistrate sought in vain to keep the two within bounds and finally adjourned the case until Thursday morning to allow witnesses to be secured to straighten out the tangle.

Mrs. Rosalsky appeared before Judge Runyon Monday morning and had a warrant issued for Berlowitz, charging that he has been persistently annoying her by calling at her store and threatening to have her arrested for alleged violations. Monday afternoon, after he was made aware of the woman's accusation, Berlowitz went to the Board of Health and preferred complaint against Mrs. Rosalsky for selling sour cream. He claimed that he bought some at her store last Tuesday and that when he reached home it was a menace to health. He also stated that she had sold him sour sandwiches.

Judge Runyon had the complaint-and-defendants tell their respective stories jointly in order to try the two cases at once. Mrs. Rosalsky, who is an attractive young matron with snappy black eyes, gave a straightforward account of what seemed to be persecution at the hands of the special officer. She had one witness to corroborate for statements but under examination from His Honor made out a strong case. When Berlowitz took the stand he admitted that he did not go to the Board of Health about the sour cream until after Mrs. Rosalsky had preferred her charge although the purchase was made last Thursday. In side statements he asserted that his threats to arrest her were due to her habit of using bad language and he brought two small children before the court to substantiate what he said. They told the judge that they did hear Mrs. Rosalsky swear at Berlowitz on several occasions. The she denied in vigorous terms. It developed a point that His Honor intended to clear up and was one of the reasons why he put the case over. He also stated that he did not regard in a favorable light the action of Berlowitz in not taking any action in the sour cream matter until a warrant had been served upon him.

Berlowitz is the special officer who was knocked unconscious by a stone hurled at him by a boy at Third street and Spooner avenue several months ago. He attempted to drive a crowd of boys away from in front of the store now conducted by Mrs. Rosalsky and was felled as he was dragging one of them as a prisoner to a police box to call the patrol wagon. He remained unconscious for twenty-four hours and had a narrow escape from death.

INHERIT LARGE FORTUNE

Plainfielders Heirs of Las Vegas, N. M., Millionaire who Died a Year Ago.

NO DELAY IN SETTLEMENT.

Wealthy Testator a Frequent Visitor to Plainfield, Buried at Franklin, Mass.

Mrs. Daniel Vermeule, of Grange place, is said to be one of the several heirs under the will of her nephew, Henry W. Green, who died in Las Vegas, New Mexico, last July. At the time of his death he was reputed to be worth more than one million dollars and since then the work of settling up the estate has been in progress.

Mr. Green was a native of Brooklyn, but lived in Franklin, Mass., for a great many years. He inherited his large fortune from relatives and spent most of his time traveling. His health failed and he went to Las Vegas to recuperate, but instead the climate was not beneficial and he died there. The remains were taken to Franklin, Mass., where the funeral and burial took place.

It is said that on account of the peculiarity of the laws in New Mexico, there has been considerable delay in settling up the estate, but it is believed that the heirs will soon come into possession of the estate as bequeathed by Mr. Green.

Among those who are said to be heirs are Frank Vermeule and Mrs. Margaret Pierson, son and daughter of Mrs. Daniel Vermeule. Mrs. Pierson is now with her husband, Lieut. Pierson in the Philippines, where they will remain until next May.

Several ago Mr. Green was accustomed to visit Plainfield occasionally and he had a number of friends in this city.

DR. C. B. LUFBURROW WEDS MISS MATHEWSON

Dr. Charles Brownwell Lufburrow, of West Front street, and Miss Elizabeth Caroline Mathewson, niece of Dr. Charles Brenton Mathewson, of Sandford avenue, were quietly married Tuesday morning at Holy Cross church. Rev. George J. Warren, the rector, officiated after Mrs. Caroline Brenton Greene, of Rhode Island. Bride and groom were attended. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Chas. Brenton Mathewson. Among those present at the church were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lufburrow, of West Front street, parents of the groom, the sis*ters, the Misses Jennie and Nellie* Lufburrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Reed. The chancel was beautifully decorated with masses of cut flowers and palms.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple went to Metuchen by automobile, and will spend their honeymoon in Nova Scotia. At their return in about two weeks, they will take up their residence at 441 West Front street.

The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William H. Mathewson, formerly residents of this city. She is a member of the First Baptist church choir and has taken part in several amateur productions given recently. Mr. Lufburrow is a physician and has an extensive practise. He has won many friends during his residence in Plainfield. Since the destruction of their home at Locust Grove by fire, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lufburrow and their daughters, the Misses Jennie and Nellie Lufburrow, will reside at their new home on West Front street.

$5 FINE FOR SHOOTING OFF GIANT CRACKERS

Premature celebration of the Fourth of July cost Lewis Dixon, a West End youth, a $5 fine in the city court Tuesday. He was arrested by Patrolman Messler, Monday night, as he was in the act of setting off a giant dynamite cracker on West Front street. Storekeepers in the vicinity had complained that he had discharged two others equally as big on that street previous on Madison avenue near the Jackson building.

In disposing of the case, Judge Runyon declared that under no circumstances would he tolerate the shooting of fireworks of any kind in the "closed season." He added that he favored a safe and sane Fourth and he believed he would be acting for the best interests of the people in placing a damper on the enthusiasm of young men and boys who jeopardize the lives of citizens by discharging giant crackers before or after the noisy holiday.

Mrs. Alfred Seidel and family, of Jackson avenue, are spending a week with relatives at Annandale.

BISHOPS' LAW VIOLATIONS

SOME INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

Hoboken's Mayor a Brewery Agent— West Hoboken Chief's Assertions Make Him Ridiculous.

The excise investigating commission had an entertaining and instructive session in Jersey City yesterday, and adjourned for the week. They will meet again in Paterson on next Monday, and later in the summer will return to Jersey City. On July 20 they will hold a conference in Newark with members of the State Brewers' Association.

Among the interesting things discovered by the commission yesterday was that George H. Steil, Mayor of Hoboken, was the agent in his city for a Brooklyn brewery; that there are dance halls attached to many of the saloons in West Hoboken, that the Sheriff of Hudson county did not deem it his duty to enforce the excise law, although this is done by Sheriff Sommer in Essex county, and that the average saloonkeeper in Hudson county keeps his place of business open twenty-four hours a day for seven days in the week.

John McAuley, Chief of Police of West Hoboken, in reply to questions by Mr. Backes, said that nearly all the saloons in West Hoboken had back rooms or dance halls attached to them. He was sure they were closed on Sunday, but in answer to a question by Mayor Appleby said he never investigated to see whether the law was obeyed. He disclosed the fact that the town council had been in the habit of granting licenses to brewery collectors, and that when a man failed to make a saloon pay another man was put in his place by the brewery not even taking the trouble to have the license transferred.

West Hoboken has 165 saloons, an average of one to every 176 inhabitants. Asked if he knew anything about "Little Coney Island," he said he did, and that beer was not sold there on Sunday. This caused a laugh.

"Well, if you don't believe it," said Chief McAuley, "I will take the commission there on next Sunday and prove it."

"You don't have to ," said Mayor Fisk, "because I spent an hour there last Sunday and could get enough beer to swim in." Mayor Fisk with George J. Tobin made an auto tour of the district last Sunday.

Samuel Wilson, superintendent of the Civic Federation, told of the work he had done in connection with the enforcement of the Bishops' law. He said it was the hardest thing in the world to get a grand jury in Hudson county to bring in an indictment for excise violations. Out of sixty-six cases presented only sixteen indictments were found, although the evidence was strong in all of them.

He spoke of a place at the old Guttenberg racetrack, where he said races were run on Sunday and drinking was done publicly. As many as fifty or seventy-five men were at the bar, and three bartenders were kept busy quenching their thirsts. He also cited an instance of standing on the steps of the City Hall in Jersey City with the president of the Police Board one Sunday afternoon, and seeing a number of men going in the side door of a saloon across the street. One of his men tried to enter the place, but was not allowed, as he was told Wilson was around, no fear being expressed of the presence of the president of the Police Board.

Mayor Steil said he had very liberal views on the liquor question, and told the commissioners if saloons were open on Sunday trouble would result. He said the people in his city wanted a liberal excise law. Mr. Steil said his occupation as a brewery agent did not interfere with the enforcement of the law in Hoboken. He had not been in a saloon on Sunday in two years, although he believed there were some places open. Hoboken is a mile square city, and has 403 saloons, one to every 162 inhabitants, and the Mayor thought the number ought to be reduced.

Patrick Hayes, Chief of Police of Hoboken, said the people of his city were satisfied with the way the Bishops' law was enforced, and then asserted that no saloons were open on Sunday.

John J. Irwin, under Sheriff of Hudson county, said that when the Sheriff drew a grand jury he just picked out some of his friends. He said it was not true that it was impossible to get a grand jury in Hudson to find an indictment in an excise case, except some man who did

POLICE STOP BOROUGHITE; BUILDING WITHOUT PERMIT

Believing that the North Plainfield Council would readily grant him a building permit after the building was completed, Aaron Bender, of Somerset street, rose early today and started to build a chicken coop in the rear of his store. Chief Marshal Weiss heard him hammering and sawing away and saw the fundamental beams in position, so he ordered him to stop work and tear down what he had already built. The Chief explained that it was necessary to have a permit before a building could be constructed. Bender rebelled, stating that he thought the Council would let him build the coop and adding that he needed a place for his chickens "right away." The Chief remained firm and further added that unless the building was demolished by nightfall, the owner would be arrested. At this threat the building was rapidly demolished.

Bender's chicken coop measured about 7 feet by 8 feet and was to have been 5 feet in height. Despite the cock-sure attitude of the builder as to the granting of a permit, it is probable that the necessary permission will not be granted. The back yard of the Bender property is already pretty well filled with small buildings, including a wagon shed, another chicken coop and a dog house or two. If any action at all is taken by the borough fathers it will be an action to thin out these numerous out-buildings rather than increase their number.

Children Interested in Camp Work.

Many children in the Netherwood district of the city have become interested in the work of the King's Daughters baby camp on the mountains, and are doing what they can to swell the funds. On Monday several children sold lemonade and grape juice near their homes and realized fifty cents for the charity. Today Charles Ivins, Hayward Erickson, Wesley Johnson and Catherine Boardman are selling lemonade and grape juice at Madison and Kensington avenues and judging by the patronage they will more than double the receipts of Monday. The efforts of the children have encouraged others and the scheme promises to be a popular one.

Fire at Brass Company's Plant.

A quantity of phosphorous, stored in a small building at the Manufacturers' Brass Works plant on Berckman street, became exposed to the air this afternoon and started a fire. Two barrels of crude oil were nearby and a serious blaze was threatened in the event of the flames reaching them. An alarm was turned in from box 42 and the fire department quickly put an end to the danger. The loss is placed at $25.

DEMOCRATS BRYAN MAD

"Peerless Leader" to be Nominated Tomorrow and Vice President on Friday.

MARTINE AS A CORRESPONDENT

"Farmer-Orator Really Makes a Speech—Committees Will Report Tomorrow—Wires from Denver.

(By James E. Martine.)

Denver, Colo., July 8.—Everything and everywhere is Bryan. Thank heavens. Tammany has marched itself into line for the grandest statesman. New Jersey is for Bryan completely despite the fact that it had previously endorsed Judge Gray, of Delaware. The Vice-Presidency has not been decided. But the man that Bryan wants will be named.

Tomorrow afternoon the nominations of President will be made. The nominations for Vice-President will not take place until Friday. I am having the time of my life The Committee on Resolutions will not be ready to report until tomorrow morning. The sub-committee on resolutions is having a hard time of it. The platform will be radical thank heavens. Bird Coler, of Brooklyn, has accused Pat McCarren and Jim Gaffey of treachery.

Yesterday, James E. Martine made a speech at the Carlton Royal Hotel before a big crowd. He told the West to stand fast for the Great Commoner; that the East would fall in line and that victory is in sight.

New Jersey, which has all along been numbered with the State opposing Bryan, made this opposition definite last night in caucus. By employing the unit rule the three Bryan delegates were deprived of recording their preference for the Nebraskan and the solid vote of 24 will be cast for Judge Gray for President thus defeating Robert Davis, the Hudson county boss.

Ex-Senator Smith has attended several informal conferences of Gray leaders and those opposing Bryan, but he declared today that the conferences had failed to show enough votes to defeat Bryan for the nomination. Ex-Judge Carroll, of Camden county, who has been National Committeeman through Bryan's two previous campaigns, declined to return to the committee, even after he had been unanimously elected. He gave as his reasons increasing professional duties, although it is believed that his real reason was the fact that he did not wish to participate in the work of a committee which was to manage Bryan's campaign.

He was succeeded by Robert S. Hudspeth, of Salem county. The three Bryan delegates whose votes in the Presidential nomination will be nullified by the enforcement of the unit rule are Congressman Ellis Hamill, ex-Congressman Allen Bermey, and Eugene Kincaid, all of Jersey City.

Frank S. Katzenbach, who was the recent candidate for Governor, was made chairman of the delegation. Senator Smith was sent to the Resolutions Committee, with instructions from the caucus to fight against the insertion of any anti-injunction plank in the platform. John Harding was named for the Organization Committee, William C. Rice for Credentials, Robert Davis for the Presidential Notification Committee and C. L. Cole on the Vice-Presidential Notification Committee.

Virtually all the leading New Jersey Democrats, leaders are here, having come to the convention more on an excursion than to participate in the nominations. After the convention the delegates and visitors accompanying them, about forty-five in all, will go on a trip through the Yellowstone Park in a special train, and the party will not reach home until July 22.

Wm. Britton Leaves the Hospital.

William Britton, of Orange place, who was kicked in the leg by his father's horse on North avenue, yesterday afternoon, was discharged from the hospital this morning, the injury not proving as serious as was at first supposed. The limb was badly lacerated, requiring a number of stitches, but Britton will be able to get around again within a few days.

SOMERSET'S FREEHOLDERS HAVE A BUSY SESSION

A special meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held yesterday at South Bound Brook, when the county road as that place was gone over and the culverts viewed. After this organization was effected at the Berkeley Hotel in Bound Brook. All the members were present, excepting Walter M. Vreeland.

Member Kesler moved that the bridge known as the Reed bridge, be raised to the road grade, made three feet wider and the floor concreted. Carried.

The Township Committee of Bernards township asked that the board place a guard railing along a dangerous place on the road from Van Dorien's mills to Somerset fair. Members Joel Codington, John W. Bergen and William C. Paulson were appointed as a committee to look into the matter and report.

William J. Logan, as chairman of the committee on the new court house, reported that the contractor under the contract in which $7,000 for the hardware and if the same costs more the board will be responsible for the difference; if less, the board will have the difference allowed, and that the bids for such hardware exceed the amount by about $250.

On motion the committee was authorized to contract for such hardware as in its judgment is right and proper, and the board will approve the action of the committee in expending these moneys.

The board will meet on the Watchung road Monday, July 13, at 11 a. m.

GOLDEN EAGLES' OFFICERS INSTALLED BY DEPUTY MOORE

Deputy Grand Chief Moore and staff, of New Brunswick, had charge of the installation of officers at Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., and a large turn-out of members witnessed the ceremonies, which were followed by an informal social hour. The intense heat made the lodgemen get through with the installation as quickly as possible, and the meeting was a short one. There was a brief address by the Deputy Grand Chief and short speeches by several of the local Golden Eagles. These officers were installed:

Clarence Van Doren, past noble chief; Arthur Caleen, noble chief; Clark Mundy, vice-chief; Frank Runyon, high priest; Walter Butts, venerable herald; Frank Neidig, sir herald. Aside from these officers, there were several appointive officers who were formally installed.

POLLS ANNOUNCED FOR VOTING MACHINE BALLOTING.

Boroughites will decide the fate of the voting machine in North Plainfield elections at a special election Tuesday, July 21, when they will vote by ballot on the retention or abolishment of the mechanical form of ballot casting. This is in accordance with a ruling by the borough Council following a petition presented by Walter J. Lisbarger signed by more than the legally required number of voters, and calling for a special election to decide the matter.

The polling places in the first district will be at police headquarters and the ballots of the second district voters will be received at the store at 90 Somerset street. The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 in the evening. The question will be put to vote in each district independent of the other.

Celebrated His Return.

William Coughlin, who formerly was a resident of North Plainfield, came to the borough from Perth Amboy, celebrated his return to New Yesterday by developing a delightful "edge" in Somerset street. Borough Marshal Pope gathered him in fast last night and put him in a cell. His assertion that he had to show up in Perth Amboy this morning for work on the police force on hail from Chief Weiss. He will be given a hearing before Recorder Dolliver.

Belated Celebration of the Fourth.

A number of children living in the neighborhood of Grove street and Craig place enjoyed a belated Fourth of July celebration last night on the lawn back of the brick row on Grove street. They obtained some of the Japanese lanterns used at the Park Club, Saturday night, and illuminated the grounds and during the evening there was a display of pin-wheels, Roman candles and other fireworks.

BIKE THIEF CONFESSES

ADMITS STEALING 5 WHEELS.

Police Believe He is Still Holding Back On Others and Have Him Remanded Pending Investigation.

A liberal application of what the slang users call "salve" had a remarkable effect in the city court, this morning, in moving Lucius Taylor, a colored man, young in years but big in stature, to making a confession of numerous bicycle thefts. He has been locked up at headquarters since Sunday morning but had not been arraigned owing to the fact that he refused to acknowledge stealing more than one wheel while the police were practically certain that he had gotten off over and so greatly changed that the maker wouldn't know it. The police were notified and the trail led back to Taylor, his arrest following. He indignantly denied taking the MacIntyre boy's wheel or one belonging to his father that had disappeared from the porch at the same time but acknowledged stealing one in Westfield. Beyond that he would say nothing.

When Taylor was brought into court today, Judge Runyon read the charges to him and explained his rights in the case. He announced that he would plead guilty to taking the bicycle in Westfield but nothing more.

"Now look here, Lucius," said the magistrate as he smiled a broad smile that would have melted a heart of stone, "just let's be friendly about this affair. You own up to taking one wheel and the chances are that you'll be punished for it. If you have stolen some more—and the police are pretty sure that you have—the effect will be about the same. I don't promise you any thing definite but if you tell us everything we'll be your friends instead of devoting our energies to giving you the limit prescribed by law. You look like a fellow capable of using common sense so why don't you be decent and save the police a lot of work that will do you no good and only make them feel bitter toward you?"

*Taylor had been shifting about un*easily while the judge was speaking and as he concluded, he exclaimed in an undertone:

"Well, I will tell the truth. I stole this wheel and that one and that one," and he pointed to the MacIntyre boy's machine and two others that Chief Kiely had stacked up at the desk.

"That's fine; now did you take any more?"

"Yes, I stole a man's wheel from the MacIntyre porch. A shoemaker on Watchung avenue gave me the loan of a dollar on it. I pinched one in Westfield that I sold to a barber on Grant avenue and that one there (indicating a machine in front of him) *I took from a house at Green*brook, just where the trolley swings off. That's all I stole, honestly."

Chief Kiely asked him if he remembered stealing Dr. Davis' wheel from the porch at his home several months ago but he replied that he had nothing to do with that one. The police head asserted that he knew Taylor was the thief as he had sold the machine to a Westfield man and could produce the buyer. The prisoner insisted, however, that he was innocent of this charge and the chief asked that he be remanded until the Westfielder could be brought to court. The request was granted.

Taylor is about twenty-four years old and has a physique that would make an athlete turn green with envy. He is six feet in height and has a magnificent chest and shoulder development set off by powerful arms that are a bunch of muscles. He has been living in New York since his release from the Union county jail two years ago when he served a term for chicken stealing of a complaint made against him by Medford Cole, for whom he worked. He made occasional trips to Plainfield to visit relatives and the wheels were taken while he was on these junkets. His arrest was the result of clever work on the part of Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, who followed up slight clues and recovered the wheels in addition to capturing Taylor.

Miss Meeker Arrives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden E. Meeker are the parents of an eight-pound baby girl, born Sunday night.

RYCKOWSKI STILL HELD; POLICE INVESTIGATING

Frank Ryckowski, the big Slav who was arrested Monday at the complaint of Mrs. Max Weinberger, of Prospect place, as a suspicious character, was put through a rigid examination at borough police headquarters last night. He could give no complete story and was led back to his cell a prisoner until Chief Marshal Weiss can find out more about him.

The servant girl, employed by Mrs. Weinberger, whom he visited, and who seemed so overcome by fright when she saw the man, described all sorts of character-absorbing things about him through Miss Anna Williams, who acted as interpreter in the hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver. She said that the goddess in New York she had given a "take" address, and that he never lived there. Ryckowski's statement last night were at best an unsatisfactory explanation of his record. He would not give the name of any friend who could vouch for him, and seemed alarmed when it was suggested that his wife in New York city be notified of his detention.

Two members of the Weinberger family are in New York today, and will go to the address the man gave to see if he is known there. Chief Marshal Weiss is in communication with the metropolitan police.

PLAINFIELD'S HEALTH DURING MONTH OF JUNE

According to the reports of the Plainfield Board of Health for the July meeting, yesterday, the sanitary condition of the city has continued to be good. Fats, 4.18; solids, 13.27; solids, not fats, 9.09; lactometer, 112; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 54,126. But eight samples were over 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, the highest being 240,000. During the month considerable work was done in investigating the ice cream supply. This will be completed during the coming month.

Fifty-one permits were granted: To conduct a barber shop: Staffey Tozze, Harry Possolo, James H. Boling, Caruso & Co., George Kesselring, N. C. Sanpillippo; to sell milk: George H. Fredericks, Charles VanOrden, John Pingley, Edward Cunningham; to collect garbage: Freeman Starrt, George Christiansen, W. L. Schenck. The following plumber's bonds were ordered filed: H. C. McVoy, Charles M. Bayliss, W. Kraeger, Christian Smith. The application of John McCarthy to sell milk was refused. The following returns were received, at the office during June: Marriages, 14; births, 39; still-births, 1; deaths, 20; total, seventy-four.

Many Children at Netherwood Camp.

One hundred and fifty children from the tenement house district on the lower East Side of New York are now at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, which opened for the season Monday. Miss Sara Curry, matron of the camp, will remain about thirty more out from New York tonight. The summer vacation at the camp this season is especially beneficial to the little New Yorkers, for the weather has been particularly trying in the congested districts where their homes are.

Michael Kane Committed.

Michael Kane, the borough epileptic who was arrested last Friday night for disorderly conduct on Somerset street, was taken to the State Home for epileptics at Skillman. He was examined by Borough Physician A. H. Dundon and committed for an indefinite term. Borough Marshal Kelley took him to Skillman this morning.

Elks Summer Schedule.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., will have an important meeting tonight to dispose of all matters previous to commencing the summer schedule. The next regular session will not be held until August 12.

MR. HOOLEY CABLES $100

WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS, $25.

Wm. J. Whelan, $10; H. F. Fox, $5; J. J. Stahl, $1—L. V. F. Randolph Gives His Views.

"Daily Press,
"Plainfield, N. J.
"Glad to contribute One Hundred DOLLARS.
"HOOLEY."

In such fashion has Edwin S. Hooley responded from Pitlochry, Scotland, to the Daily Press appeal for contributions for the proposed Cleveland monument fund. When Mr. Hooley, whose home paper is following him in his travels abroad, learned that a fund is being raised by twenty newspapers of the State, co-operating with a distinguished committee, including Governor Fort and Senators Kean and Briggs, he lost no time in helping along the worthy cause. Early this morning, the cable gram was received from him pledging the neat sum of one hundred dollars.

The Daily Press is not at all surprised at Mr. Hooley's good deed for it is characteristic of the man. When San Francisco was devastated by an earthquake, he telephoned from his New York office to this paper pledging $2,000 for a fund being raised by The Daily Press. He did this although he had already contributed $1,000 to the New York Stock Exchange fund for the same cause.

William L. Saunders, former mayor of North Plainfield, father of the city-borough annexation scheme and one of the most public spirited citizens in the community, has sent in a fine contribution. His check for twenty-five dollars was received at this office today. Mr. Saunders has just returned from the West and he expresses his pleasure in contributing to the fund. Like Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Saunders is a member of the State committee for the memorial, having accepted membership when requested to do so by former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark.

William J. Whelan, manager of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, has sent in today his check for $10, with the statement that he is "proud to be able to contribute to a memorial for Mr. Cleveland." He adds that he is glad to know that there is no political significance in the movement, "to perpetuate fittingly the memory of such a great statesman."

H. F. Fox, who is ever interested in philanthropic, charitable, religious and civic matters, has come to the front promptly. This morning the Daily Press received his check for five Dollars.

Enclosed with his check, Mr. Fox writes: "I thoroughly endorse the movement. I am not very much given to hero worship, but Grover Cleveland has for many years been one of my heroes both in his political and private life."

This solicited expression has been received from Alexander Millar: "Replying to yours, my candid response is that I have never been able to get up any enthusiasm over Mr. Cleveland. The movement for a monument appears premature."

J. J. Stahl, one of North Plainfield's most prominent citizens, today contributes one dollar to the cause.

These contributions have been received at this office:

Another reply to our personal appeal already been received from former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph. Mr. Randolph's views are gladly published although he takes a firm stand against the movement, but he is in error when he believes that the movement is local. It is a State affair and liberal donations have been received already by many enterprising papers elsewhere. The list of distinguished Jerseymen who have accepted membership on the State Committee is most flattering, and shows that the proposition is devoid of political aspect. Here in Plainfield it includes such prominent men as former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House.

Here is Mr. Randolph's solicited letter:

RAILROADERS' PROBLEMS

THE ATTITUDE OF LABOR.

Great Subject of the Day Is the Selection, Treatment and Organization of Men.

William McIntosh, of North Plainfield, master mechanic of the New Jersey Central, who has just retired as the president of the American Association of Railway Mechanics' Association, at its forty-first annual convention held in Atlantic City, delivered an address which has attracted wide-spread attention from railroad men throughout the country and has been generally commented upon by editorial writers of prominent publications, including leading newspapers. Among other things Mr. McIntosh said:

"Let us remember that this association has seen the small problem grow to be one of the very greatest problems faced by the men in charge of the locomotives and trains, the ships, the bridges, the tunnels, the buildings, the cities which we knew as children; think of them again as they have grown to their present state. Statistics are not worth a thing when we have a man's task before us. A gray hair or two that speaks experience is the authority upon which we place before those who are to take our places the rule of life that will be most greatly needed in the future.

"Without question our greatest problem is that of the selection, treatment and organization of men. The recent years of abnormal business activity have brought to the surface the slumbering tendency of organized labor to drift away from harmonious relations with employers and array itself on the side of the radical and demagogue, who seek notoriety and selfish advancement in creating and fostering discord between employers and employes whose every interest are identical. We know that any attempt on the part of either to operate independently must result disastrously.

"The sovereign remedy is lower tariffs, in the face of low rates and already large reductions from natural causes, and other embarrassment of the railroads with class legislation and impracticable laws, confiscatory in scope and surrounded with political red tape, that would largely increase operating expenses and reduce net earnings. How can employes expect to be benefitted by such complications? Their interests are so closely allied with the interests of the company they serve that they must be proportionately affected by reduced earnings.

"The points of issue between railroad companies and their employes are usually few in number and easy of solution. Wages are at present generally satisfactory, and only questions of methods conflict. Mechanics, especially machinists, are reluctant to adopt other than hourly rates of pay, while manufacturers and corporations are in favor of some system of fixed output, profit sharing or piece work. Both men claim, and with some ground for their contentions that they have frequently been treated unfairly where piece-work has been adopted. On the other hand, workmen have interfered with normal results by restricting the output, under the mistaken idea that they would benefit thereby. Abnormal rates are bound to result from such methods and dissatisfaction and protests from the workmen follow, for no matter how fairly and carefully these adjustments are made, the workmen are naturally suspicious that some advantage is being taken of them.

"The only one to suffer under the stipulated output system is the indifferent and lazy workman. There should be no place in the ranks of honest railroad mechanics, nor in the membership list of labor organizations, for the dissolute floater, inefficient imposter and agitator, who demands the highest rate of pay for the smallest return.

"There is another kind of workman, however, who should be welcome to both the companies and the unions. He would first be a citizen of good repute, or at least declared his intention to become a citizen; he should be a skilled mechanic—his union demands that; he would be a man of good habits—his union requires that, too; he would do an honest day's work, seeing that the tools and machines entrusted to his care were properly handled, and that the labor which he was working to their full capacity, and that his employer's interests would be advanced in every way possible.

"In my railroad experience extending over forty years of active service in different departments and various branches of railroad work, much of the time in charge of large bodies of workmen, I cannot recall an instance where it has not been possible to adjust any of the ordinary differences that arise by free and frank discussion of the question at issue with the men affected.

"It seems fitting to sum up what the man who must assume our duties and responsibilities must be prepared to do. He must prepare himself for leadership by efficient service in subordinate places. He must know men. He must help in building up an organization of men. It is a mistake to always seek genius; it is more important to build up that combination of various abilities, capabilities and temperaments which will form a united, homogenous body before which the difficulties of the greatest problems will crumble and disappear. After a little more than a century the development in some directions seems to have been too rapid, leading to wastefulness and it is clear that our resources must be husbanded."

FERRY BOAT RAMS SLIP; PASSENGERS GET A SCARE

Three hundred passengers on the New Jersey Central ferryboat Bound Brook, many of them from Plainfield, early yesterday morning had a thrilling experience when the craft, driven by a heavy tide, ran into the piling on both sides of the Liberty street slip. Men and women were thrown down and, while no one was killed or seriously injured, a number suffered bad scares, the excitement in the forward part of the boat being increased when a driver of a big coal wagon lost control of his two big grays for a few moments and they threatened to plunge forward among the passengers collected in front of the guard chains.

The Bound Brook, which left the Communipaw slip at 6:45 o'clock, carried two train loads of commuters, those arriving on the Somerville express and a way train. All went well until the slip at the foot of Liberty street was reached, when the boat, carried by the tide, sideswiped the piling on the south side of the slip. The pilot's warning, "Steady!" to those below prepared them for the shock, which was not very serious.

Rebounding after the contact the boat swerved to the southward and before the reversed power could diminish its speed to any great extent it ran full tilt into the other piling with a crash that could be heard during most of them under the water before the boat came to a standstill.

This second crash, although the pilot repeated his warning, caught a number of passengers unprepared, and many of these threw down by the force of the impact. Women screamed and ran to the front part of the cabin, but were soon calmed by the employes on the boat.

The excitement there was increased by the sight of a pair of big dray horses drawing a loaded coal wagon. The driver of the horses, after the first crash, had indulged in much jocularity at the expense of the pilot, but when his team began to plunge and rear in the direction of a hundred terrified passengers gathered in front of the ferryboat gate he had all he could do to restrain the big beasts. With the aid of some of the passengers who pluckily seized the horses' bridles they were finally got under control.

The boat was forced to back out and make the slip to the south, causing a delay of ten minutes to the passengers.

Langdon-Haas.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman Haas in Raritan, Thursday, when their daughter, Miss Stella Amelia Haas, became the bride of Charles Henry Langdon, of Bound Brook. The ceremony was performed by Rev. David Kuntz, of Nazareth, Pa. The ushers were Arthur Brower and Herbert Smith, of Bound Brook, and William Baker, of New Brunswick. Miss Edith Gray, of Trenton, was flower girl. Russell Wyckoff, of Raritan, was best man. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Jennie A. Davis of Raritan. Netted $15 for Baby Camp.

Fifteen dollars, the proceeds of a lawn fete held at the home of John Hummel, of Duer street, yesterday afternoon and evening, has been left at the Red Cross office for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain. Attractive booths on the lawn were presided over by the young people of the neighborhood, and the fete was well attended. The doll offered by M. Tepper was awarded to Miss Elsie Hodgkins. Miss Hummel and Miss Elsie Hodgkins were at the ice cream booth and Miss Ida Hummel and Margaret Hogan presided at the candy table. Miss Frances Newman was at the cake booth and Miss Mildred Conover was in charge of the lemonade well. Fritz Hummel had charge of the grab bag and George Hummel acted as ticket taker.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

A SCHEME WORTH WATCHING.

According to the Elizabeth papers a scheme is on foot, in Union and Hudson counties, that deserves to be watched and, if need be, fought at every step. It is a scheme to revive, under somewhat new conditions, the old and thus far unsuccessful effort to build a new bridge across Newark Bay, connecting Elizabeth and Bayonne.

The plan as outlined is to extend Wheeler avenue, in North Broad street, eastward till it connects with one of the avenues leading down to the westerly shore of Newark Bay, and then build a bridge to connect with the Bayonne boulevard leading to the Jersey City line. This, it is argued, would provide a most attractive highway, of modern construction, from Jersey City to Bayonne, and thence by direct route to Elizabeth, Roselle, Cranford, Westfield, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville and later to Easton. The new bridge, it is contended, would be the connecting link between two of what are already the finest boulevards in the State, and would make a magnificent course for automobiles and open up a country that is now shut off to traffic that has hitherto been checked at Elizabeth and diverted to Newark.

Now the city of Newark is not in the least jealous of this traffic. It has enough of its own. Neither does it object to a broad, beautiful highway over the route projected. Nor yet does it desire to stand in the way of a bridge that will properly connect Elizabeth and Bayonne. But it does most strenuously oppose and will continue to oppose any additional bridges over the waters of Newark bay, for the reason that such a structure cannot fail to seriously interfere with the rapidly increasing waterway commerce of this city.

The Union County Board of Freeholders, which has hitherto opposed all the efforts of Congressmen Dunn, Benny and Van Winkle to get the consent of Congress and the War Department to build a new bay bridge, is now said to look upon the project with somewhat of favor, and would likely Union county leaders and officials, who are largely interested in property contiguous to the proposed western terminus of the new bridge, are pushing the scheme with considerable energy.

There is but one right way to meet this bay bridge question, and that is to build a railroad bridge and a public bridge as one structure. The Central Railroad Company must, in the near future, reconstruct its old bridge from shore to shore. The War Department will not much longer tolerate the old spile structure that has been repaired till it has become an obstruction and a menace to navigation. What should be done, and done in the near future, is for competent engineers representing all interested parties to get together and adopt plans for a combination bridge adequate for all traffic now and for the next half century. Such an improvement would meet with no objection and would complete the proposed boulevard system across the State. It would advance every commercial interest without being a detriment to any.—Newark News.

Dainty Dutch Bonnets.

For small girls' wear there is a perfect craze for the little flower lace straw Dutch bonnets. These quite take the place of the dingerie hat. But whether these conditions will prevail all summer is hard to say. The bonnets are certainly not as practical as the hats, for the former keep off the sun. They are, however, very fetching, with quaint trimmings of bunches of baby apple blossoms set on behind the ears among forthy-looking lace, or decorated with soft, wide ribbons in delicate shades.

NEW ELECTION DISTRICT

Borough Fathers Pass Three-District Ordinance on First and Second Readings.

AT NORTH END OF BOROUGH.

Feeling Against Voting Machines Responsible for the Measure to Save Time for Election Tellers.

An ordinance to make a third election district in North Plainfield was unanimously passed on its first and second reading at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council held Wednesday. It will come up for its final reading at the August meeting and will take effect August 20. The new district will be in the north end of the borough, beyond the line formed by Green Brook. Framed by Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, its passage called for the repealing of the ordinance of March, 1901, by which North Plainfield was divided into two election districts.

The first district under the new ordinance will include that part of the borough included in a boundary running from the centre line of Somerset street at Green Brook, westward to Rock avenue, to Greenbrook road, Grove street to Lincoln avenue, to Somerset street, to the point of starting. The second district boundary starts from the same point extending eastward to Raymond avenue, to Mountain avenue, to Norwood avenue, to Grasslee avenue to Somerset street and to the point of starting. The territory in the borough limits not included in these Boundaries will constitute the third election district.

With the strong feeling against voting machines in the borough, the formation of a third district, provided by law when the number of voters in each existing district shall exceed 600, will make less work for election tellers by giving fewer votes to count. The resolution for the new ordinance was proposed by Councilman Nichols, chairman of the law and ordinance committee of the Council.

In connection with the discussion about the number of voters in each district, Mayor Townsend called the attention of the Councilmen to the fact that the borough keeps no record of the election returns at the various elections. He suggested that such a record be kept and that the borough clerk furnish a copy to the County Clerk's office and enter them in a book. The suggestion met with the endorsement, and Councilman Woolston suggested that the record of the election returns be kept in the clerk's book of minutes.

Deeds and Contracts.

The following local real estate changes have been recorded at Elizabeth: C. E. French and al. to William A. Abbott, Watching avenue, corner Pine street, Plainfield, $100; Martha W. Suffren et ux. to Mary C. W. Foote, westerly side Union street, 251 feet on Arlington avenue, Plainfield, $1; Abram Kunzman et ux. to Anna C. Hull, lot 14, lot 3, block B, "Map of Rockview Heights," Plainfield, $1; Dennis O'Brien et ux. to William Horan, lot 12, block 1, Inter-Urban Realty Co. to Arthur T. Dunn, southerly side Terrill road, corner East Second street, Plainfield, $1; Plainfield Land and Building Co. to J. Ackerman Coles, northerly side Putnam avenue, corner J. A. Coles, Plainfield, $1. These contracts have also been filed: Margaret J. Keenan with Herman H. C. Hansen et al., carpenter work alterations, 440 East Fifth street, Plainfield, $443; Same with J. L. McVoy, plumbing work, $275; Same with Seaman Williams, mason work, $225.

To Serve Potatoes.

A delicious way of serving potatoes is the following: Boil and mash twelve medium sized white potatoes, using one tablespoonful of butter instead of gravy. When they are nearly cold add beaten yolks of three eggs, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one-quarter teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and six drops of onion juice. Stir these ingredients together until they are smooth. Make up into small cone-shaped croquettes and stand away to harden. When they are firm roll them in the beaten white of the eggs and cracker dust and fry in deep boiling lard until a light brown. This will make twenty-five croquettes.

Select a dainty lawn and color the front gore of the skirt to form a bib over the dress waist. Outline this panel effect with lace insertion. Make short bell shaped sleeves, trim with lace insertion and have the bodice collarless with round or square neck trimmed to match other portions of the dress.

CHANGES AT CASINO FOR HARTRIDGE SCHOOL

The contracts for the recitation hall of the Hartridge School, which is to be located at the casino in the near future, have been awarded to Alexander Milne. The work has been started and Mr. Milne expects to have the building in readiness by September 1.

For the kindergarten and elementary department an entirely new addition will be built on the southside of the present auditorium, containing nine bright, sunny rooms, with adjoining cloak-rooms. For the academic department the former clubhouse will be remodeled providing six corner class-rooms, a large reception room and a well-appointed office. The former gallery will be altered and adapted for the boys' department.

In adition to these improvements, the contracts call for an entirely new system of plumbing and heating and for a complete system of steam heating. Miss Hartridge recently acquired this property, having outgrown the buildings on East and West Seventh street, where she has conducted her school since coming to Plainfield. She has been unusually successful and when the fall term opens there will be a large increase in the enrollment of pupils.

WATCHING COUNCIL NAMES AN EXCURSION COMMITTEE

At a meeting Thursday, Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, made further arrangements for the excursion it will conduct to Asbury Park, August 6 and on which it will have as guests 800 children from St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes. A committee composed of the following was appointed to attend to all preliminaries and look after the comfort of the boys and girls who will enjoy the hospitality of the organization: John J. Kenney, John J. Kenney, John J. Kling, Andrew E. Kenney, Florence S. McCarthy, John J. Kenney, John J. Hines, Peter Duffy and Arthur A. Cannon.

The excursion train will be in two sections as it is estimated that fully 500 people in addition to the children will avail themselves of the opportunity for a good day's outing. It will be the first time the Knights have planned an affair of this kind but they have determined to make it a big success and the committee will have a lot to do between now and the date. A number of features will be introduced that are new to the shore trips running out of the city and which will enhance the enjoyment of the participants, whether large or small.

MURAT HALSTEAD DEAD; GREAT AMERICAN EDITOR

Murat Halstead, one of the leaders in American journalism for over half a century, and widely known as a vigorous editorial and magazine writer, died at his home in Cincinnati, Ohio, yesterday afternoon, in his seventy-ninth year. At the bedside were his wife, his son, Robert, and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Stem.

Mr. Halstead had been failing in strength for several months, and yesterday suffered from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Halstead celebrated their golden wedding anniversary a little more than a month ago, at which time Mr. Halstead's health seemed frail, and as time passed he grew weaker.

The sudden death of his son Marshall, a few months ago, was a severe shock to him, and it is believed to have had an adverse effect on his health. Albert Halstead, another son, is American consul at Birmingham, England.

Mr. Halstead was one of the great editors of the last half of the nineteenth century. In 1889 his nomination by President Harrison to be American minister to Germany was rejected by the United States Senate because of articles he had published charging corruption to some members of the Senate.

He was a native of Butler county, Ohio, and after a short service on a literary weekly, in 1853 became connected with the Cincinnati Commercial, in which he secured a small interest a year later, becoming chief owner in 1865. For twenty years he was editor-in-chief of the paper, as combined with the Gazette, and for the last ten years he has figured largely as a magazine and special newspaper writer, besides issuing a number of books of historical interest. In the Civil War Mr. Halstead reported many battles, being raised as a war correspondent of the first class, and later, in the Franco-German war and also in the Spanish-American war, he added to his reputation.

For fifty years he also attended and reported all Republican national conventions.

"John, what is this conspiracy of silence that the papers are alluding to?"

"I don't know, but I wish you'd join it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

NETHERWOOD TROLLEY DERAILED AT CURVE

Derailed by a piece of macadam on the curve at Richmond street and Putnam avenue, Netherwood car No. 468, bound for Netherwood, jolted over the roadway for forty feet at shortly after 7 Wednesday night before Motorman Cannery finally brought it to a stop beyond the opposite crossing of Putnam avenue on Richmond street. Four passengers in the car, of whom two were women, were jolted by the accident but escaped uninjured. One of the women was Miss Edith Hand, daughter of Charles H. Hand, of Belvidere avenue.

The roadbed at the corner was repaired with ballast recently, but the macadam was not rolled down, and there was no top dressing put on. A passenger said that there was little or no jarring "more than usual" as the car left the rails and plunged on, directly in the middle of Richmond street toward Watchung avenue. The motorman Cannery did his best to bring the car to a stop, but did not succeed until the front platform had passed the crosswalk on the west corner of Putnam avenue. There was no suggestion of panic, for the passengers knew that the car was directly in the middle of the road.

Traffic Manager Lubrs, of the P. S. C., who arrived on the scene shortly after the accident, cleared the motorman from blame in the matter, stating that the trouble was due to a stone on the rail. The curve at this point is in poor condition, the flange having been worn down so that there is constant danger of derailment. The macadam was put on by the P. S. C., and residents in the vicinity assert that it was just thrown on between the rails, without rolling.

It was an hour before the car, which was undamaged, could be again set on the rails. On account of the accident, the Grant avenue service was temporarily discontinued and Netherwood passengers transferred around the disabled car.

WILSON AVENUE TO BE WIDENED AND RE-GRADED.

After years of trouble from washouts by surface water during storms, Wilson avenue is at last to be regraded, and adequate improvements made to prevent further damage to the roadway by heavy rains. The action was taken at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council last night, and the work will be commenced as soon as the amounts pledged by the various property owners have been collected.

The improvement involves the construction by the grading of the roadway the narrowing the sidewalks so as to make larger gutters for carrying off the water. The street has always required lots of work by the street department to keep it in condition, but the days of "patching up" are now at an end. The improvement was first agitated about eleven years ago. The gutters are to be paved and storm sewers in stalled.

The repairs will cost a considerable sum of money, and $200 has been subscribed by the property owners for the improvement. Some of the property owners have volunteered to help with the actual work on the street.

MAYOR DOESN'T WANT COUNCIL CHAMBER PAPERED.

Contracts for the renovation of borough fire headquarters, involving painting, varnishing and papering were held up at the borough council meeting last night until such suggestions about the improvements can be acted upon. Two firms entered bids, Cranston Bros. offering to do the work for $446.06, and Woolston and Buckle's bid being $147. Contracts will be awarded at the next meeting.

Mayor Townsend objected when he heard that it was the plan to paper the council chamber, claiming that the present finish, if freshened up, would be superior to papering. Councilman Woolston urged that the walls be papered, saying that it would make the room look "more dressy and beautiful."

"Nip," the surviving horse of the borough fire department team, replaced after "Buck's" death by the new pair, "Sam" and "Newt," was reported to be eating his head off, and useless to the department. The street and fire committee was authorized to dispose of the horse at a fair price.

WHEN TRAVELING.

A set of underclothes of brown linen or ponge does not show the dust and dirt and can be readily washed.

A small bag of leather with small scissors, thimble, needles and thread is always useful.

Net bows edged with satin ribbon are in all sizes and shapes.

Velvet one inch wide with bead tassels on each end, gives a very pretty finish to a lace collar. The ends may be crossed and knotted in front.

Rosettes for lingerie are fastened on with small safety pins instead of sewing them.

TO SUPERVISE BUILDINGS

Mayor Townsend Heads a Movement for Borough Building Ordinance.

THE BOROUGH NOW POWERLESS

Hampered in the control of the buildings erected in North Plainfield *because of the lack of a building or*dinance to control certain parts of the borough and the entire borough for a certain kind of buildings, the borough fathers discussed the matter of securing such an ordinance at the meeting of Wednesday night. It is probable that the necessary measure will be introduced in the State legislature to give the power sought. Mayor Samuel Townsend is at the head of a movement to secure the new law, and seemed confident last night that it would be introduced at the next session of the Legislature. The matter has been referred to the laws and ordinance committee for consideration.

The realization of their lack of control of buildings erected in North Plainfield came home to the borough fathers a short time ago, when George W. Arnet, chief engineer of the Lambertville fire department, took matters in his own hands and started the erection of two frame dwellings on Westervelt avenue, despite his petition for their erection had been refused by the Council. As the law provides now, the borough had authority on permits only within certain districts in North Plainfield, and cannot control the larger buildings, where three or more families are accommodated.

Speaking of the matter last night at the meeting, Mayor Townsend said that the growth of the borough has brought out the need for a building ordinance to cover all classes of buildings in every part of the borough. Consultation with Former State Senator Charles A. Reed, the borough counsel, shows that the borough now is powerless, and Mr. Townsend stated that he thought the borough should have the same power of controlling the erection of buildings as has Plainfield.

Permits for two buildings, a barn and a garage were granted by the council last night. The barn is to be built on property belonging to Henry DeHoit at 40 Pearl street, and the garage is to be at the home of A. L. Gaelis, of Manning avenue. A. Ferraro's petition to build an addition to his store at 183 Somerset street was held over, the nature of the repairs was not specified. On recommendation of Councilman Smith, the petition of Adolph Bohren to move a frame building from Greenbrook road to Somerset street, was refused because it would be too close to other buildings.

OF CAUSUAL CONCERN.

An Atchison woman has such success with her bread making it is predicted she will eventually cause the death of her family. When she puts the bread to rise it doesn't stop rising and unless quickly attended to overflows everything in the house. It recently covered everything in the kitchen and was rising into a bedroom where several of the family lay asleeping, when the woman returned from town just in time and headed it down, saving the lives of her family.

There are two stories about the Rev. Frank W. Sanford, the Elijah of Shiloh hilltop. One is that he is in Palestine and poverty. The other is that he has rounded Cape Horn in his yacht and is now residing—by choice—at Talcahuano, Chile. Whether has or hasn't said that the world will come to an end in October next.

Mackawanna county, Pa., has one woman officeholder, and, best of all, she is considered one of the best in the business. If officeholding can be called a business, and at times it can. She is Mrs. Olive Wedeman, of Madison township, who has been a member of the school board for the past two years, and will probably be chosen to succeed herself at the expiration of her term.

Dr. Frederick Neal Weil, of Pottsville, Pa., of heart trouble surgeons at the Pottsville hospital sawed out three of his ribs which had been pressing on the organ, exposing to view in full operation its pulsations. Weil, who is 25 years of age, stood the operation well, and the surgeons say he will entirely regain his health.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 12, 1903.

By REV. S. H. DYKE.

Topic—Character and courtesy—I Pet. iii, 1-12.

Character is what a man really is as God sees him and not what he seems to be to his fellow men. The latter is reputation. Character and reputation are in many instances synonomous, for people are really within what they manifest themselves to be without. Their inward lives square with their outward lives. In many other cases this is not true. The reputations and characters of men are often wide apart. The outward lives may belie their inward and secret lives. If we are true and honorable with God and our fellows, we will not appear in a false light, but will manifest in our outward lives the real principles of our inward lives. Moreover, we are all desire good reputations, we will see to it that our characters also are good.

Courtesy should be one of the ways in which we manifest our character. It comes from the word "court" and suggests the manners of those in kings' courts, which all know must be genial and affable under any and all circumstances. We are courteous when manifest anger or ill feeling or neglect to be kind and obliging, nor should those who are courtiers in the kingdom of Christ, especially since we are always in the presence of our King.

Courtesy should be a most fragrant flower of character. It should begin in thought. We should think kindly of all men, even those who may be our enemies or who may have wronged us. Existing in the mind and heart, courtesy should manifest itself in speech and action. Nothing costs so little as kindness in speech and action. Nothing adds more to the happiness of those about us. On the other hand, in no way can we do ourselves more harm than by discourtesy. We may forget the unkind word, but the one to whom it was spoken does not. We may forget an unkind deed, but others will not. We may not seize the many opportunities about us to be thoughtful of others, to bear with their infirmities, and to be helpful and obliging in their times of need, but if we do not we shall reap the reward for such neglect. In the kindly spirit of Christ, "be courteous"—courteous in the home, courteous among friends, courteous to strangers."

Dr. Clark in Berlin.

A very notable one was the visit of Dr. Clark to Berlin. Dr. Clark is so well known in Germany by reason of his books and messages that each Endeavorer there wished to see him face to face, so that although there was but little time to announce the meeting, the hall was filled to overflowing before the meeting began. When Dr. Clark rose to speak the whole audience rose in their seats, waving flags and singing the national hymn, and Pastor Blecher voiced the hearty welcome of German Endeavorers to their beloved president and spoke of the pleasure it was to them to know that he was strong and well again. Dr. Clark brought with him greetings from Scandinavia and told of the interest and enthusiasm which the message of the German emperor had aroused through all the world. The emperor has also sent his thanks for a message of greeting sent to him by Christian Endeavorers on the occasion of his silver wedding. Many of the Berlin Endeavorers testified how much Christian Endeavor had been to them and expressed their personal gratitude to Dr. Clark for his messages and for the work in which God had so greatly used him. Pastor Stieglitz, a member of the German Christian Endeavor council, spoke of the personal esteem in which Dr. Clark is held. Scarcely any churchman of the present day has received as much honor and love as Dr. Clark, yet he still remains the same simple, faithful, lovable and indefatigable servant of Christ, always giving to Him all the honor.—The Herald, Feb. 28. It was the cool tea to bathe the poisoned place, in cases of severe poison moistening a cloth and laying it on the place.

Secretary Shaw's Loving Cup.

A beautiful and large silver loving cup was given recently to Secretary Shaw by his own Christian Endeavor Union, that of Andover, Mass. The inscription, below the C. E. monogram, is as follows: "Presented to William Shaw, General Secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, by the Andover Christian Endeavor Union, 1907."

The Andover union consists of six societies of average size and quality, part of them in the town and part in the country. Every member of the union gave his share toward the purchase of this cup. That fact shows two things. One of them is the universal honor in which Mr. Shaw is held at his own home. The other is the businesslike way in which they do things in that union.

Practical Endeavor.

At Sholapur, India, the Christian Endeavorers repaired the church walls lately. The women of the society earned money to buy whitewash, the boys doing the whitewashing during their holidays, while the girls cleaned the benches and oiled them. This is practical endeavor.

No Prosperity Without Christ.

Again and again we need to come back to this fundamental thought: The Christian Endeavor movement can prosper only as Christ is in the midst here and its members are in Christ.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

WHY JOHN LEFT THE SEANCE.

Communications Proffered Threatened to Be Too Personal.

"I guess my husband will not drag me off to any more spiritualistic seances after last night," said the lady in gray, speaking a slice of lemon for her tea. "You know he is just about overboard on the subject of mediums, clairvoyants, and 'seein' things at night,' as Eugene Field puts it. I have begged off on going ever since we were married. You know, of course, he was widowed when he married him. Last night I went, and behold, the first thing 'Little Papoose,' or whatever brand of Indian control it was, yelled out was that John's first wife was present right behind his chair, reaching out her hands to him and wanting to speak to him. I wish you could have seen John wriggle; he tried to shut the Indian up, but the first Mrs. Brown had a warning for him, and the Indian was bound to tell him. The warning was to 'look out for squaw with red hair.' Yes, my hair would be called red by those who are not familiar with the real auburn shade—Titian some artists have called my hair—and that did not help matters any. There seemed to be some news coming about other squaws in John's history, but we didn't stay to hear any more. Now John says he is firmly convinced that this spiritualism is all a grand fake."—New York Times.

BROUGHT THE DINNER DISHES.

Young Man's Action Astonished the Hotel Clerk.

At a certain Troy hotel a young man and woman from the country called for a room just after the dinner hour and were accommodated. The young man requested that dinner be sent to his wife and left the hotel for a few moments.

Meanwhile a waiter was sent to the lady's room with a bill of fare. She took it from the waiter, glanced over it with close scrutiny, and then, passing it back, remarked: "This ain't for me. I don't want it!"

Said the waiter: "Why, it's a bill of fare;" to which the young woman, who evidently hadn't traveled, again replied:

"Yes, but you have made a mistake. It ain't for me, I know. I don't want it."

Going downstairs the waiter met the young man and explained to him. He marked off a dinner and passed on. The meal was served, and shortly afterward the young husband came trudging wearily down to the office with the salver full of empty dishes in his hands, and depositing them in front of the astonished clerk, still further astonished him by the remark:

"Here's the dishes. We've got through."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

A Silver Lining.

Last summer I stayed overnight at a hotel in a town so small that the town marshal keeps the postoffice, department store, undertaking establishment, flour and feed and furniture emporium under one roof, and that roof is only two stories high. I was sitting on the hotel porch waiting till the village hack met the ten o'clock train (then it could take me to the next town), when my landlady came running out on the porch in great excitement, waving a silver dime. 'What do you think, mister,' she said, fanning her red face with her apron; 'that chicken I'm goin' to fry for your lunch basket only cost me 11 cents. I got the dime for it, and when I chopped its head off with the hatchet, this dime flew out of its craw.' How's that for the plot for a rural play?"—Exchange.

Sweet Fern Cure for Ivy Poison.

We have found that the common sweet fern which grows in every old pasture lot in New England makes a tea which will relieve the itch and pain of poison ivy poisoning within an hour or two. We simply pick the fresh leaves and boil them so as to make a strong tea, strain it, and use the cool tea to bathe the poisoned place, in cases of severe poison moistening a cloth and laying it on the place.

This recipe is so simple and so readily available to everybody and so prompt in its action that it cannot be given too much publicity.—New York Times.

A City and Its Press.

In some respects a modern city resembles a vast commercial house. In commercial houses the secret of success, and the most successful coadjutors of the municipality in the development and puffing of a capital are the newspapers. And here again Berlin is lacking. Her press is on a remarkably low level. Impoverished, without enterprise, under the thumb of the authorities. In London, New York or Paris the press has a voice in the running of the city.—London Outlook.

The Real Thing.

"How do I know that you love me?" "I walked all the way down Main street this evening to propose."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"I passed a solid mile of millinery and dry goods stores with windows full of price tags and I never faltered."—Houston Post.

SUCKED UNDER 'FLYER,' CHILD ESCAPES UNHURT

Chicago.—Lifted bodily from the ground, sucked under a mile-a-minute mail and express passenger train, rolled over and over along 300 feet of the roadbed while the train was being ground to a stop, and a few moments later lifted practically unhurt from between the rails.

This was the experience the other afternoon of two-year-old Julia Weigle, the miraculous escape from death occurring on the Chicago & Northwestern railway tracks at the North Fortyninth street crossing, two blocks north of the Mayfair station. At six o'clock the child, fastened in a high chair, ate supper with her parents and little brother, Christian, as usual. She suffered a slight cut on the right side of her forehead, her lower lip was cracked and her legs and shoulders were scratched from the rolling along the cinder roadbed.

"How awfully dirty she was, though, when the policeman brought her home," said her mother. "I never saw her so dirty before."

The child's home is on North Fortyninth avenue. Early in the afternoon Mrs. Weigle put her two children out in the front yard to play. Hardly had she gone into the house again when Christian, who is his sister's senior by one year, made up his mind to go up to the railroad tracks, half a block away, and see the "choo-choo" cars. Julia followed him.

The runaways, hardly tall enough to [illegible] along the right of way of the railroad, played undisturbed until 4:15 o'clock. Suddenly Christian heard a big "choo-choo" coming, and as he stepped back from the track he screamed for Julia to look. The girl rose from where she had been playing in the gravel near the end of one of the ties and in a flash was under the wheels of the flyer. She was drawn under the first coach, an express car. The train carried eight cars, coaches all of them passed over the girl's body and the suction drew her along in the wake of the train for 300 feet before the engine finally was stopped. Meantime Christian had been knocked down and was gazing in the dust and weeds to get his bearings again. He was unhurt, however.

Allen Lewis, engineer of the train, caught a glimpse of the child just as the train whizzed past her and, knowing that the girl must be under it almost a certainty that she would be sucked under the coaches, applied the emergency brakes and brought the train to a standstill. He then leaped from the cab, ran back along the rails and picked up the girl. He took her to the big switch tower and gave her to the agent, who turned her over to the police and in half an hour afterward she was safely at home again.

SNAKES BESIEGE SCHOOL.

Teacher and Pupils Wage Constant War on Reptiles.

New London, Wis.—There is no lull in the snake campaign siege upon the country school of Miss Florence Archibald, whose classroom was recently invaded by a big snake and her whole family. Miss Archibald was forced to dismiss her class, while she went after the monster pine snake which had crawled into the classroom.

The attacks of the snakes and other creeping and unlovely things are frequent in Miss Archibald's schoolhouse, which has seen its best days.

Within an car shot of the house is a cemetery which is patrolled by snakes, and neither the teacher nor pupils can go back and forth between the school and their homes without encountering some natural enemy of the animal world.

Bride Travels as a Man.

Chicago.—Max is the latest of New York and a woman whom he claims is his wife and who was attired in the garb of a man, were arrested here the other day. They were discovered in a box car by railroad employes. The woman had cut off her hair and had the severed braid in one of the pockets of her coat. Bender said they were married in New York May 18 and were on their honeymoon trip to South Dakota, where they expected to establish their home. He said they had no money and had been compelled to resort to the box car for transportation.

USE YOUR INDIVIDUALITY WHEN FRAMING PICTURES.

Perhaps nothing so stamps a house with the individuality that grace tables and mantels. But soft cushions arranged ever so well, the chairs placed in the most cozy fashion, the lamps in just the right spots, if there are no photographs, no pictures, the whole aspect of the place will be uninhabited.

For this reason it is advisable to take photographs to even the most temporary of summer homes, and there are many attractive ways to arrange these pictures so that they will not be injured by the dampness that so often comes in open windows, whether at seashore, mountain or country.

Small ones, for instance, may be fastened on a strip of unbleached linen and hung so that they will not be harmed by rain. They may also be mounted on linen-covered cardboard and protected by glass. This last is a particularly good way to care for those of a large size.

Another way is to get a stiff piece of cardboard,—any box lid will do—and cover it with linen, with triangular pockets of linen, into which the pictures may be slipped. The general effect is good, and the photographs is thereby saved from destruction.

A large frame for several photographs may be made by taking the top and bottom of a carboard box—for then both pieces will be of the same size—cutting holes in one of them the proper shape for the pictures and leaving the other for the back of the frame. Cover them both with cretonne, and then lace them on; put them together and bind them with braid, which no dampness can displace. The cretonne mat be fitted around the holes by cutting it so there will be one-half inch to allturn in and paste to the under side—thus leaving no unsightly puckers.

LOSS IN DOMESTICITY.
